George Kent First Settler In Otonabee

FORCED TO COME TO THIS COUNTRY BY HARD TIMES

14 WEEKS' JOURNEY

Newcomers Were of a High Type Both Intellectually and Socially.

(By Jean Wagar)

"Once upon a time" has a fascination for all of us whether young or old, and the long-ago has a peculiar charm when it's setting is an environment which has been familiar since childhood. Peterborough is rich in such historic interest and the meandering Otonabee supplies its full quota of pioneer stories. These stories are the product of just such a depression as that through which we are passing to-day, and which we prophesy may also be productive of as good results.

Troublesome Times.

In the years following the Napoleon; ic wars, wages also failed to keep pace with mounting prices' Then, too, in England, economy was the order of the day and the number of army and naval officers was reduced to a minimum. The result was an exodus of emigrants to Canada.

These newcomers were of a high type, both socially and intellectually, and numbered among them the two men, Hon' Peter Robinson and Captain Charles Rubidge, whose memory will never be forgotten in our city, of which they were the founders and which perpetuates both their names.

Still, to neither of these men goes the honour of being the first actual settler in Otonabee. This distinction is reserved for Mr. George Kent, grandfather of Mr. Andrew Kent, one of Peterborough's highly respected citizens to-day. The latter's memory is a storehouse of treasures regarding

Woodcutter Named As Murderer By Jury

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., July 14 (C.P.).—A coroner's jury to-day had named Robert McFadden, 40-year-old woodcutter, believed a victim of shellshock, as the slayer of Tom Douglas, 56, councillor of Coquitlam, who was shot down on Thursday in his gasoline service station near here.

J. R. Cobbans, a neighbor of Douglas, with Constable Dunn when McFadden was arrested a half-hour after the shooting, testified that on the way to the police office McFadden said there was "one more man he wanted to get, and that was Richardson."

McFadden, when arrested, was within a short distance of the garage in Port Moody, operated by George Richardson.

Suspend Customs Man And Probe Charges

OTTAWA, July 14 (C.P.).—Suspension of W. S. Byers, collector of Customs at Niagara Falls, has been ordered by the Department of National Revenue. The Department is now investigating alleged irregularities in connection with the administration of port affairs by the collector. No announcement in respect to the nature of the investigation has been made. Niagara Falls is one of the important border ports of entry.

ANTI-GOVERNMENT PLOT IS DISCLOSED IN BULGARIA

SOFIA, Bulgaria, July 14. (AP)—A government communique revealed to-day a new anti-government plot had been uncovered at the military garrison in Plovdiv, less than two months after the coup d'etat which established a new regime. The government announcement described the affair as a "Communist" conspiracy. The communique said "several dozen soldiers" were implicated and that about 50 persons had been thrown in jail.

MORE FIRING SQUADS AWAITING HIS CHALLENGERS, HITLER SAYS

Chancellor Hurls Defiance at Foes in Defence of Executions.

PEOPLE DIGEST IT.

By WALTER E. BROCKMANN
(Copyright, 1934, by The Associated Press).

BERLIN, July 14, (AP) — More firing squads and more "purging by blood" await any who challenge Adolf Hitler's rule of Germany.

This was the warning Germany pondered to-day as it digested the Chancellor's Reichstag defense last night of the June 30 "liquidation" of 77 traitors.

"Everyone is to know for all future times" he said, "that if he raises his hand for attack against the state, certain death will be his lot."

The speech, to which many parts of the world listened, stood to-day as a definite marker on Hitler's road to the building of a new Germany.

Hundreds of Nazis rose and cheered when the address—an explanation of the execution of Storm leaders and others June 30—was ended. The Chancellor scarcely noticed them. He lumped into his chair, and seemed dazed and somewhat bewildered. His head fell, almost to his knees.

Answer to Critics

The address was Hitler's answer to those who criticized the "liquidation" of "traitors." It was his defiance of his foes and his appeal for continued and renewed "blind obedience" to his authority.

Opinion is divided among foreign observers to-day as to what extent the Chancellor succeeded in his purpose. Many hold that Hitler is now on the defensive, in contrast to his position during the early months of his chancellorship. These observers call the speech one of the least convincing of any Hitler has made.

The belief was expressed by some that the hand at the helm of the nation is not as firm as it was.

Problems Untouched

Most of Germany's burning problems were left untouched in Hitler's hour and 46 minutes of oratory. Finaces and foreign policy were not mentioned.

The Chancellor, however, sound-

INJURIES FATAL TO THOMAS HIE

SHINGLING ROOF.

Thomas Hie of Westwood died at the Nitholls Hospital late Friday afternoon from injuries suffered in a fall from the roof of a shed at the home of Walter Humphries, Asphodel Township, about ten o'clock in the morning.

Internal injuries, a broken leg and collar bone, were revealed by examination at the hospital. First reports were inclined to be a little favorable, but Mr. Hie's condition took a turn for the worse towards five o'clock, and half an hour later he succumbed to the effects of the fall.

It was reported that Mr. Hie was shingling the roof of the shed, when in some manner he slipped and fell to the ground. He was born near Baltimore, in Northumberland County, sixty-one years ago, and had lived at Westwood for thirty years. He is survived by his widow, two daughters and five sons. The sons are Leonard in the United States, Wilfrid, Alfred, Oliver and Albert at home, and the daughters, Vera and Hilda, at home.

The funeral will be held on Sunday at 2 o'clock from the house to the Westwood United Church at 2.30, with Rev. Newell officiating. Interment will be made in Westwood Cemetery.

ONTARIO FACES BANK OVERDRAFT OF $47,600,000

Marmora District Liberal Association Holds Big Picnic.

HONOR NEW MINISTER.

Hepburn Already Cut Cost of His Own Office 62 Per Cent.

"One of the first discoveries made by the new Liberal administration is that the public debt of Ontario is more than $700,000,000, and instead of the surplus the Henry Government was boasting about before the election we find that there is an overdraft at the bank of $47,600,000." said Hon. J. A. Faulkner, M.D., of Belleville, Minister of Health in the new Hepburn cabinet, in an address at the Marmora District Liberal Association's picnic, Friday, at Crow Lake.

"That gives you some idea of what we have got to clean up," Dr. Faulkner continued. "What do you think of an administration that increased the debt of this province from nothing in 1905 to more than $700,000,000 in 1934? From such conditions, what can you expect? We have got to economize. Premier Hepburn gave the people of Ontario that definite promise in his campaign. He has already cut the cost of his own office in Queen's Park by 62 per cent., and it is the feeling of the Government that it must be permeated with a spirit of economy consistent with the living of the people on the concession lines such as exists in your own neighborhood."

An Unusual Event

Not the large attendance, but the fact that it was a Liberal picnic in the Marmora district of the new riding of West Hastings was mentioned as a most surprising circumstance. Elderly men could not recall when the Liberals had ever before held such a social gathering in a constituency which was regarded as virtually hepeless when Dr. Faulkner was nominated about two years ago.

Refreshment booths and a bingo game, basket lunches, games and races for the children, and a soft-

SPORTS CHEQUE CREATES STORM

Hepburn Maintains Cheque Stamped With Signature Without His Consent.

ABUSING ITS USE.

TORONTO, July 14. (CP)—"Our government has not authorized this expenditure at all," said Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn when questioned over long distance telephone regarding the payment of a grant of $5,000 to the British Empire Games Committee. "We will discuss it on Tuesday," he said. "Unless the money was granted by the cabinet council of Premier George S. Henry before it vacated office, I cannot understand who paid it."

The cheque had not been signed by him, he stated, and apparently if it bore his signature it had been obtained by use of the plates used by the Treasury Department to sign treasury notes.

"I don't care to say at this time whether we would have authorized the grant or not, he said, "but in any case we are going to find out just how the cheque was authorized and how it was signed."

Turn on The Heat, Plea of Prisoner

DENVER, July 14 (CP)—He pines to return to Tennessee where the weather "really gets warm, about 115 degrees," Tom Vaughn, negro, told Municipal Judge Alvin H. Pickens.

Vaughan, picked up on a drunkenness charge, said it was too chilly for him in Denver—"You kin see snow on them mountains." Judge Pickens mopped his brow—it was 98 here—and instructed the defendant to "get hot feet' 'and put the city behind him.

SEVEN HOTELS ONE RESTAURANT SEEK PERMITS

Peterborough's 7 Licensed Hotels Seek to Sell Beer and Wine.

APPLICATIONS MADE

Elite Cafe is the Only Restaurant to Seek License.

New lead—Seven hotels ... .

Each of Peterborough's seven licensed hotels and one restaurant are seeking licenses to sell beer and wine, a check-up this morning revealed. Although reports from Toronto reveal that new applications will have to be made, they have already sent in the application forms distributed by the Liquor Control Board early in June.

In no case was difficulty in securing the fifteen signatures of approval required on the orginal blanks reported.

A number of the applications were filled out and mailed to the Liquor Control Board immediately on their receipt early in June. Other proprietors delayed until the beer law was actually proclaimed this week. The hotels which have applied are the White House, Empress, American, Grand, Windsor, the Montgomery House and King's Hotel. As far as could be learned, the Elite Cafe is the only local restaurant which has applied.

Long List of Questions

The forms were mailed from the Liquor Control Board Headquarters in Toronto, to all licensed hotels in the province. They contained a comprehensive list of questions concerning the size of the establishment applying, the annual turnover, the facilities and many other features of the hotel's plant

MacDonald Plans to Forget Politics And Settle Down in Canada for Spell

S.S. DUCHESS OF RICHMOND, At Sea, July 14 (A.P.)—Prime Minister Ramsay Macdonald, enroute for a vacation in Canada, said to-day he wants to forget all about politics for a while and settle down in the Canadian Maritime Provinces.

"If I can find a nice quiet spot with an attractive hinterland," he said, "I might be tempted to settle down for a spell.

"I know Canada pretty well west of Quebec but little or nothing of the Maritime Provinces, and hope this trip to see something of them. I intend to be away from England about three months."

UNKNOWN MAN IS FOUND IN COUPE HALTON COUNTY

Tracing of Owner of the Car is Leading Point in Mystery.

BODY BADLY BATTERED.

Car Was Left on Lonely Road Sometime Friday Afternoon.

ACTON, Ont., July 14 (C. P.)—Badly battered about the face, the body of a man was found crumpled up in the rumble seat of an automobile near here to-day. The body had a tag attached to the belt bearing the inscription "Kenilworth Jockey Club" and the name of "Bert Toinenly."

Body Partly Concealed

With deep slashes along the side of the head and blood soaking into the suit, the body had apparently been shoved down under the top of the rumble seat, which was about half closed, partly concealing the body.

James Henderson, who lives on a nearby farm, found the body. He saw the car drive to the spot yesterday but forgot about it, and to-day telephoned police when he saw the machine again.

It was found there were deep cuts on the head and forehead, while the back of the head had apparently been battered. There was no sign of any knife or other weapon near the car.

BABY MYSTERY YET UNSOLVED

Two Major Clues in Disappearance Crumble in Police Search.

THEORIES ADVANCED.

HARTSDALE, N.Y., July 14.—(AP). Two major clues to the disappearance of Bobby Connor crumbled to-day as a woman driver and a man peddler were cleared of suspicion.

United States authorities, state and local police, co-operating in the investigation, said they were utterly baffled—knew not, even, if the case was one of kidnapping.

On the belief, however, that Bobby would have been found by the army of searchers if he had only wondered away when he disappeared about dinner time, Thursday, the authorities said they leaned to the kidnapping theory.

Other possible theories advanced—but only possibilities—were that the blonde baby had been slain by a degenerate, struck and spirited away by an automobile driver, or carried off by a childless woman.

A woman canvasser, sought after a neighbor told police he saw her driving swiftly past the Connor home at the time of the disappearance, was found in another Westchester county community last night and exonerated after questioning.

A man peddler, answering the description of the eccentric who canvassed Hartsdale Thursday afternoon was picked up by Seabright, N.J. police but last night he, too, was released.

Exports And Imports Show Big Increase

OTTAWA, July 14. (CP). — In the first three months of the fiscal year, Canada's imports and exports took spectacular jumps, it was shown to-day by the Department of National Revenue. For April, May and June, Canadian exports tottalled $147,526,926, an increase of $35,971,158 over 1933 figures. Imports were $133,869,661, an increase of $46,866,832.

On the export side of the national ledger, in the three-month period, gains were made in wheat, meats, lumber, newsprint, automobiles, copper and nickel. Wheat exports jumped $3,918,653; meat $3,630,000, an increase of over 100 percent; lumber, $2,525,534, an increase of about 75 percent; newsprint increased from $16,648,000 to $19,754,300; automobiles, $2,742,900 to $5,875,415; copper, $3,249,600 to $6,374,100 and nickel, $5,796,500 to $8,128,700.

DEPLETION OF HYDRO FUNDS ALARMS LYON

FIGURES PRODUCED.

TORONTO, July 14 (C.P.). — Depletion of the contingency reserve funds of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission and a steady and serious increase in the average cost per horse-power of power delivered in the Toronto district has caused the new Hydro Commission to take a grave view of Hydro finances, Amplifying his previous statement on the subject T. Stewart Lyon, new chairman of the Commission, to-day gave figures showng the depletion.

The average cost per horse-power of power delivered to the Toronto local Commission increased from $21.28 in 1930 to $30.08 for the year ending October 31, 1933 The total contingency reserve to the credit of the Toronto Commission was at its peak in 1931 when it was $14,629,578. On October 31, 1933, it had dropped to $9,106,600, and at the end of October this year Mr. Lyon would not be surprised if it were only $6,500,000.

Reasons Given

The reason for the drop was that funds were taken from the reserve to carry on operations and avoid an increase in rates. This was the very purpose for which the reserve was built up, but the rapidity with which it was being depleted is causing alarm. The decreasing demand for power in recent years necessitated this use of the reserve funds or an increase in the rates to consumers.

"The chief trouble," said Mr.

Kreutzeitung, steel helmet paper, said Hitler had defended the Stahlhelm against "the ignominous reproach of having conspired with the traitors."

The Deutsche allgemeine Zeitung said "The world no longer will refuse to take seriously a plot in which the murderer of Hitler already had been hired."

"Nor has he calmed world opinion," the paper added. "It is difficult to understand the idea that the accuser should at the same time be the judge."

SARDINES TOO LARGE

PORTLAND, Me., July 14 (AP)—A sardine may be a sardine to the general public, but to the packers their size presents a problem. Most of the sardines brought in this season by fishermen have been too large for packing and two of the packing factories here have shut down until smaller ones come in.

Ottawa Cuts Relief Payments to 25 Per Cent.

CONTRIBUTIONS WILL CONTINUE ANOTHER MONTH

Dominion-Provincial Parley is Called for July 30, on Relief.

INVITATIONS SENT.

Announcement Relieves Tension for Many Hard-pressed Municipalities.

OTTAWA, July 14. (CP).—With July 15, the day when Federal assistance to the provinces for direct relief was to end, almost at hand, the Dominion Government has decided to continue contributions for another month. The Dominion's share wil be cut from 33 1/3 percent of the total cost to 25 percent, and notice is given that the relief contributions will be continued only until August 15.

These developments in the relief situation followed a meeting of cabinet yesterday presided over by Sir George Perley, acting Prime Minister. With their announcement came the statement that the Dominion Governmen will hold a Dominion-Provincial conference on July 30 to discuss the whole question of direct relief. A telegram has been despatched to provincial premiers inviting them to attend.

The decision to continue federal contributions for another month, though in somewhat reduced form, will relieve apprehension in localities where the problem of direct relief is particularly acute.

The government had been advised by a number of municipalities that they would be called upon to shoulder a very heavy load if the federal grants were to cease under present conditions. It was felt that the Dominion Governmen should take steps to continue its contribution at least in cities where unemployment was prevalent; but the decision has been to make it general for another month.

FALSE MODESTY ABOUT PILES

Unfortunately there is a delicacy about mentioning this disease, even to the family physician. The dread of an operation keeps many from consulting their doctor. Seldom if ever is an operation necessary if Dr. Chase's Ointment is used. Relief from the burning, stinging sensations is obtained almost as soon as this Ointment is applied. Persistent use will usually overcome even the the most serious case of long standing.

The little girls, left in the care of an older sister, had been warned by their mother not to go in the water until she had returned from a visit to Fergus. The children were playing side by side when they slipped from the rock ledge into 20 feet of water. Their bodies were recovered with the aid of dragging irons.

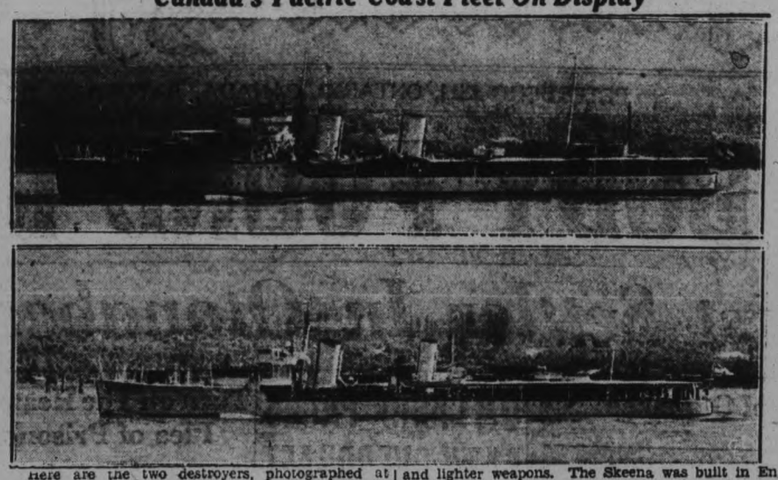
Canada's Pacific Coast Fleet On Display



Here are the two destroyers, photographed at Vancouver, which form the Pacific section of Canada's navy, H.M.C.S. Skeena and H.M.C.S. Vancouver. The latter was loaned to the Canadian navy by Britain in 1928 and will eventually be replaced by a destroyer built by Canada and named Vancouver. She was formerly H.M.S. Toreador and is 275 feet long, carrying three four-inch guns, four torpedo tubes and lighter weapons. The Skeena was built in England with her sister ship, H.M.C.S. Saguenay, at the order of the Canadian government, being laid down in June, 1929, and assigned to the Pacific station in the fall of 1931 after a cruise from the Old Country. EXPLAINING EXECUTIONS HITLER URGES NECESSITY

In Hour of Need He States He was the Nation's Supreme Court, and Acted Accordingly

BERLIN, July 14. (AP).—Highlights from Chancellor Adolf Hitler's speech:

"Only a merciless bloody stroke could perhaps smother the spreading revolt. Better that a hundred mutineers, conspirators and plotters perish than that ten thousand harmless Storm Troop men, ten thousand equally harmless citizens on the other side, should pour out their blood."

"If someone questions me why we did not invoke an ordinary court to deal with the men I can only tell him: "In this hour I was responsible for the fate of the German nation; thereby the supreme court of the German people during these 24 hours consisted of myself."

"I issued the order to shoot those mainly guilty of this treason and I issued the further order to burn out down to the raw flesh the boils of our domestic well-poisoning and the poisoning of foreign countries."

"Everyone is to know for all future times that if he raises his hand for attack against the state, certain death will be his."

"I pity the wives and children of the executed men, but I believe that sufferings inflicted upon them through the fault of their men is only a tiny fraction of the woe that would have befallen tens of thousands of German women."

"In a few weeks' time Brownshirts will again dominate the streets of German towns and make clear to all that the national socialistic Germany has regained stronger life by overcoming a severe time to stress."

"I am ready before history to take the responsibility for 24 hours of the bitterest decision of my life during which fate has again taught me in anxious worry with every thought of mine to cling to the dearest thing we possess in this world: The German people and the German Reich."

NINE GUILTY IN KNIFE SLAYING

Two Convicted of Murder of Archbishop on Christmas Eve.

WITNESS TESTIFIES.

NEW YORK, July 14 (A.P.)—Nine Armenians were convicted today of the butcher knife slaying of Archbishop Leon Tourian in the Holy Cross American Church last Christmas Eve.

The jury's verdict, returned at 1.30 a.m., after a trial lasting five weeks, found two of the group—Mateos Leylegian and Nishan Sarkisian—guilty of first degree murder, for which the death penalty is mandatory. The seven others were convicted of first degree manslaughter, punishable by imprisonment of 10 years to life.

Leylegian is secretary of the New York branch of Tashnag, an Armenian revolutionary society opposed to the policies of the archbishop. The other defendants reportedly are members of the society.

The prelate was stabbed as he led a procession up the aisle of the church, his assailants escaping. The nine defendants were rounded up in the police investigation which followed.

One witness testified he saw Leylegian plunge the butcher knife into the archbishop's abdomen. Sarkisian was accused of holding the prelate's right hand during the stabbing.

The seven convicted of manslaughter were Juan Gonzalez, Jean Yarganian, Martin Mozian, Harry Sarafian, John Mirijanian, Mihran Zadigian and Oanes Andreassian.

Fried Egg Plant Is Gift of Storm

MUSCATINE, Ia., July 14 (CP)—The J. E. Hoopes family of Muscatine had fried egg plant to give away to-day.

An electrical storm played a prank at the Hoopes' farm on Muscatine Island, when it struck a field of egg plant. A column of smoke rose in the air as the lightning played around the plants. Investigation later disclosed a patch about 12 feet square in which the egg plants had been cooked to a turn.

ORDER AFFECTS 175 MEN IN CITY

94 Men Were Taken Off Relief to Aid in Filling Ditches.

BACK ON RELIEF.

As a result of the Hepburn Governments edict to stop the filling of ditches on all Provincial highways, pending an investigation into the advisability of such work, close to 200 Peterborough men, employed in filling the ditches on Highways 28 and 7 since June 1, were today out of employment, temporarily at least.

Mayor Denne estimated that about 175 men had been given work on the two gangs employed in the "ditch filling." "Most of those were taken directly off relief and given jobs," he said.

A. G. Metheral, city relief officer, informed The Examiner that in all 94 men had been taken off the relief roll and given work filling the ditches. Another 80, he said, were given employment in the work through H. Robertson, at the local employment office.

"If that work is stopped it is going to put a lot of families back on relief," Mr. Metheral commented. "I certainly hope they decide to continue."

HEPBURN CONS PROVISIONS OF NEW BEER BILL

Is Recuperating From First Busy Week Somewhere in Country.

NEW APPLICATIONS.

Submit Regulations on Tuesday to Cabinet—No Forecast on Sale.

TORONTO, July 14 (C.P.). — Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn is today recuperating at an unannounced spot in the country after a strenuous week in which he named a new Cabinet, took over the Government of Ontario, proclaimed the new beer and wine law, dismissed many highly-paid officials, and prepared a Royal Commission to investigate the "Abitibi deal."

Next week's big tasks will include the introduction of regulatons to cover sale of beer by the glass, a possible reason why Prem. Hepburn is accompanied on his week-end holiday by Edmond G. Odette the one-man Liquor Control Commission. Application forms for those seeking authority to sell under the new law are already in the hands of the printer, Mr. Odette disclosed yesterday, and they will be ready by Wednesday.

YOU CAN'T FORGET PICOBAC

Mr. PICOBAC Sketched from Life

"Sometimes I forget my hat. Sometimes I forget my glasses. And sometimes I forget my watch. But I never forget my Picobac. I always know I've got it on me somewhere, —one pocket or another.

"You know, there's something about the flavour of Picobac that lingers in your mind. You don't forget it. You don't want to forget it. When I have to go away some place Picobac is the very first thing I pack. I don't want to be caught out on the end of a limb without a supply.

"Do you know what Picobac means? The pick of Canada's Burley crop. Take a pouch or tin of Picobac home tonight with you. Try it—I'll guarantee you'll never forget it. Why? Because it's such a mild . . . cool . . . sweet . . . smoke. That's why.

"And don't forget, you get more tobacco for your money. Good for making cigarettes, too."

Sabbath Message For The Shut-Ins

THE VOICE OF GOD.

ADJUTANT C. WARRANDER of Salvation Army.

"Lo, these are but the outskirts of his ways: and how small a whisper do we hear of him! But the thunder of his power who can understand?"—Job 26:14.

GREAT billows of trouble had swept over the heart and life of Job. His riches had taken wings and fled, his physical strength had become as weakness, his good name had vanished, the friends which had at first praised him remained only to curse. He bemoaned the silence of God in these hours of trouble. We all feel at some time in life as Job felt—stars over us, silent, graves under us silent, all the presence round about us silent. Man sobs and lifts his voice toward the peaks of these eternities and there comes back no answer save the echo of His cry. It seems the only logical thing for Job, as for us all, in the hour when we loose our good name, health or money, and especially when death enters the household and takes a loved one, and the footprint that the angel leaves is a grave dug in the waving grass, that we should cry to God for an explanation of these mysteries. All about seems silent and we ask who can understand the speech of God? Or, again, why does God seem to be silent?

God Endeavors to Speak to Us.

Some may feel in reading about Job's experience that he over-estimated the silence of God. Some may feel that silence is more marvelous than speech. But we learn in the larger knowledge that the speech of God is a wonderful thing. He endeavors again and again to talk to us by ten thousand voices, and that it is man's ear that is deaf to the sweetest voice that was ever heard. The universe is the mind of God rushing forth in full exhibition of the majesty of the summers, the beauty of the winters, and all the solemnity of the seasons. We talk in an alphabet that has twenty-six letters; God's alphabet has ten thousand letters in His marvelous speech. Many times we find it difficult to express our feelings in language. Perhaps if we were to read the true meaning of some things in our life we would change our thoughts about God's silence and marvel at His speech.

How Unwilling We Are to Hear His Voice.

God tries to speak to the soul of man, in the beauties of nature, the sweet music of laughter, yes, in the solemn moment of heartache, disappointment and grief, but ofttimes the ear is closed. It is the pathos of God who is speaking that is manifest in our unwillingness to hear. We have forgotten to listen for his voice.

God's Kindness in Disguise.

How oft we desire all sunshine and complain when the clouds gather. These very clouds which obscure the sun are filled with heavenly rain. Christ tells us that God never speaks to us so tenderly as in our sufferings and troubles. The greatest in the history of the Christian church are those that have suffered. They have their lives destroyed by suffering and trouble, but also made perfect through that same trouble. Homer was heartbroken because he was blind. Dante said, "For thirty years I held heartbreak like a wolf at bay." Milton was a great poet, but he was blind. God closed his eyes to the beauty of the world round about him, but opened them to beauties of heaven which were indescribable. As Jesus was lifted upon the cross it was that, through His suffering, He could take the sin-stricken world to His soul and lift it back to His Father's side. It was the voice of God. "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son." Yes, God's voice comes through shadows as well as sunshine. A poet said:

"Clouds will turn to sunshine,
Night will turn to day;
If you just remember,
God's not far away."

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

WHEN, however dimly, we once begin to realize that "thoughts are things" we see the necessity of being careful as to what we think. Of course, the materlist will immediately deny the truth of the premise, but even the materialist must admit that on the material plane of action thought must precede the action; that a thing must be created in thought before it can be embodied into form.

If this be so, and its verity is obvious, then it must be a law, and if there is one thing about law most certain it is the continuity of law. According to the continuity of law it follows that what is true on one plane of action must be true on other planes; so that if thought is the active force preceding manifestation here on this earth, it must be the active force preceding all manifestation, spiritual as well as physical. "As above, so below. As below, so above."

As the physical universe is but the outward expression of the Cosmic forces, directed by the thought of God according to Cosmic law, so in Man, his health, environment, circumstance, yes, even the texture of his flesh, is but the outward expression of the Cosmic forces operating under Cosmic laws that he himself either knowingly or unknowingly has set into operation.

For a thought sets up conditions in the spiritual world, the world of force, that must inevitably find expression in the physical world, the world of form. "Thoughts ARE things," and many a man priding himself upon outward recititude of conduct has learned to his dismay that by the secret thoughts of his heart he has brought evil and sorrow upon himself.—Frater IX., Rosicrucian Order, San Jose, Calif.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Religious and Social Questions Answered By DR. WYLIE CLARK

What is meant by a "material idol?"—P. M.

An idol is something we worship instead of God. An image made of wood, stone or some other substance would be a material idol, but evidently the questioner is not thinking of that kind of an idol. He is rather thinking of something in the ordinary affairs of life becoming an object of worship. It is the difference of worshipping in the spirit or setting our minds wholly on money, position or any other thing which might completely absorb our time and attention. It is very easy, perhaps not in name, but in reality, to become a worshipper of that which we are pursuing day by day, until God and the spiritual world have no place in either our hearts or minds.

Dr. Wylie Clark

We possess only material things which will pass away and have no possessions which will abide forever.

It is true that we become like what we worship: so then he who worships only the material loses his soul.

Will you kindly give an explanation regarding the Trinity? If Jesus was God, to whom did He pray while on the earth?—T. J. L.

This question has been answered some months ago. It is a difficult one for many minds to get a satisfactory answer—one that clears up everything in regard to the whole matter.

Three men form a firm to do business. Each has a personality and is a person, but they are one firm. Each has his own work to do, but it is all for the firm. Each can consult or advise with the others. Each can speak with authority for the firm—but all the time they are one firm.

When one member is away on the business of the firm he naturally keeps in touch with the head office either by letter, telegram or telephone, because he is one of the firm and the firm is one.

When Jesus, the Son, was on the earth attending to the salvation of men He kept in touch with the Father through prayer. Heaven was the head office and prayer was the method of communication.

Why is it that nothing seems to satisfy the soul of man but a belief in Eternity?—E. B.

Life is man's inheritance. To live and to achieve are in his make-up. The long story of human history is the story of man's doings. What he has done is the record of progress. He sees in the succession of the generations the progress of earth. In that there is a certain satisfaction, but it does not go far enough. If there is nothing more man's personality as an individual is lost. It is this identity he desires to keep—and that can only be done if he is immortal.

Over the incident of cutting off the ear of the servant of the high priest one feels like saying, "Good boy, Peter." It seems to relieve the situation that at least one of the disciples actually did something. It seems, on the other hand, hard for Peter to be rebuked when he was the only one who lifted a hand to save Jesus.

But Jesus had to be true to Himself and also true to Peter. He saved Peter. By healing the ear, Peter was relieved from the consequences of his impulsive action. Otherwise, he would have been guilty of death.

Then Jesus was not to win a kingdom by cutting off ears or heads, but by the power of the right revealed in eternal love. He was to conquer by being smitten—not by smiting—by bearing suffering—not causing suffering. Had He accepted Peter's action and approved of it, how different would the Christian's attitude be towards war and the settlement of questions by physical force!

A Few Reflections

CAN you stop the rain, or make a flower blossom one hour more, or protect the apple from a worm? Just as little can you lock up your daughter if she is determined to go out.

Matrimony is a burden; and to carry a burden one needs encouragement not impediments.

The State should devote its utmost attention to combating prejudices against marriage. The family is a little State. What is going on in most households is a miniature picture of the happenings in a city.

At all times was matrimony the barometer of a nation's morality. The shares of a nation's morality rise parallel to the respect in which the institution of marriage is held by it.

The Romans encouraged and rewarded matrimony, and in many parts of Germany the laws provide certain punishments for those who do not want to marry a few years after they acquire the full status of citizenship.

The countries of Europe do well to safeguard matrimony and punish dissolution. Men and women are the best products of a country and the population is the pivot around which the State turns. The population of a country is its bulwark against the neighbors and its storeroom. No soil is so bad that it cannot feed a population.

Love is the masterkey which opens everything. A man owns this masterkey in his wife and God has ruled wisely that man and wife be united for life, even though this may sometimes mean suffering for one of them.

The peoples who keep their women in a state of slavery invariably end by becoming enslaved. All such peoples were conquered by those who loved and honored their women. A country which begins a revolution, without first settling the all-important question of matrimony and the status of woman, will never achieve anything. For he who is unwise, unjust and unkind to his own kin can never give proof of kindness, justice and humanitarianism on a large scale.

A man who loves and protects his wife only so long as she is young and beautiful, who looks upon her as a calendar good for one year only, and after that deprives her of her legitimate rights and treats her as a thing of his to whom he owes neither love nor loyalty, forfeits the rights of man, for he harms himself and his country.

All true work is sacred.

Cathedral Musings

IF humanity could only realize that the law of cause and effect works out in terms of human destiny as inevitably as it does in the material arts and sciences, men in general would most carefully refrain from setting causes into operation to their own future detriment.

While this may not be a very lofty motive for abstaining from breaking the laws of God and nature, yet it is better than none. The thing is to make a beginning. The natural unfoldment of the higher faculties that will ensue will in time replace the selfish motive by higher motives more in harmony with the Cosmic laws.

The difficulty in the western world in recognizing the law of cause and effect (or Karma) seems to be that the western mind tends to think in terms of one lifetime only on earth, with the consequent "rewards" and "punishments" becoming due and payable at the end of that lifetime. He does not recognize the fact that life is continuous whether it is manifesting here or elsewhere. He does not permit his mind to dwell on the terrible inequalities of life, that some souls are incarnated into tortured bodies, and others are born into the most favorable environment, some into bitter poverty and vile slums, some into wealthy and cultured families, some born "lucky" and some doomed to suffer misfortune after misfortune.

In terms of but one incarnation it all seems so incomprehensible, so difficult to reconcile with what is taught of the goodness of God, but if we look at it from the standpoint that the short span of one life is but as a tick of a clock measuring eternity, and recognize that every personality must and does incarnate into such conditions that are best for it at that particular stage of unfoldment, into such circumstances where it can profit most by experience, and perhaps repay some part of its debt to others, then we begin to see order in the apparent chaos, and loving justice in the seeming heartless cruelty.

Life seems to be a harsh schoolmaster, but it is only the idle scholar who need trouble about the rod. For there is a destiny that shapes our ends, but we weave it ourselves in thought, word and deed from day to day, from lifetime to lifetime. Our material brain and our mortal minds may not always recognize the cause of seeming injustice, or crushing misfortune, but the Dweller within does, and acquiesces in the Divine decree that "as ye sow, so also shall ye reap." — Frater IX., Rosicrucian Order, San Jose, Calif.

God Cares for Elijah

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—I Kings 17:1-24; 19:1-8.

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Ahab was one of Israel's most wicked kings. In punishment of his godlessness Elijah, God's loyal prophet, announced a three years' drought and famine. During this time Elijah retired by a brook where God sent him food by the ravens.

Later Elijah was sent to the home of a poor widow who was on the verge of starvation. She shared her meager supplies with the prophet and God blessed her that her barrel of meal and cruse of oil failed not until the famine was over.

Elijah challenged the false prophets to a test on Mt. Carmel as to whose God could send fire to consume their offerings. Baal's priests failed utterly. Then God sent fire to Elijah's altar. Elijah had the false prophets slain.

This angered the queen, Jezebel, and Elijah fled in fear and hid under a juniper tree greatly discouraged. God sent an angel to feed and strengthen him and restore his courage and then gave Elijah a new vision of the true God.

ANOTHER STRAIGHT FURROW MAN.

In an interview with an American correspondent Chancellor Hitler declares that Germany will turn neither to the left nor to the right, "but will follow the course it has pursued in the past—which means going forward in a straight line."

Herr Hitler had better take care; evidently he has not heard of, or at least has failed to benefit by the experience of another political leader who was a firm exponent of the virtues of the straight furrow—none other than our late Premier, George S. Henry, who boasted that he turned neither to the left nor to the right, but eventually found that the straight road he talked so much about led to shades of opposition.

And this despite the fact that Mr. Henry had the advertising assistance of a new and, since the election, unheard of publication that appropriately enough was called "The Straight Furrow."

If there are any friends in Canada of Herr Hitler they should lose no time in telling the German Chancellor the details of the fate of Mr. Henry whose straight furrow proved to be the path to political ruin rather than the road to a new lease of political power.

Hitler certainly could learn about furrows from Henry.

A NECESSARY SERVICE.

While it must be admitted that Premier Hepburn's dismissal of high-salaried officials and his cutting down of the cost of administration are exactly in line with his pre-election promises ,there will be some misgiving over the decision to abandon Ontario's tourist advertising bureau.

Only recently a committee of the Senate, which investigated the question of tourist traffic promotion from every angle, arrived at the conclusion that this country should increase rather than relax its efforts to bring more visitors into Canada.

Ontario, the banner province of the Dominion, from the viewpoint of tourist attractions and consequently from the viewpoint of revenue gained from summer visitors, should be the last, rather than the first, to scrap its machinery for going after more tourist business.

It is generally agreed that tourist traffic has become a major Canadian industry, bringing millions of dollars into the country every year, and that every cent spent in tourist advertising comes back many times over in the revenue created by the presence of thousands of visitors.

The people of Ontario have given a clear-cut mandate for economy in Government expenditures, but even the carrying out of such a program should not entail the scrapping of services that are essentially revenue-producing.

That is not economy, nor is it good business.

WANTS GOVERNMENT TO RESIGN.

Election promises have a habit of bobbing up like Banquo's ghost and haunting the politicians who get into office on the strength of these pledges and then finds it impossible to implement them.

Out in British Columbia, for instance, the campaign of Mr. Pattullo was marked by constant stressing of the suffering of the unemployed and by promises of quick relief following upon a chance in Government.

However, the new Government has found the problem much more complex than it looked from the outside, and very little has been done as yet to deal with it.

Naturally this situation has caused a certain amount of resentment, and the following open letter addressed to Premier Pattullo by the Unemployment Association of Port Coquitlam, B. C., is typical of the feeling in many other centres:

Premier D. Pattullo, July 5, 1934.
Victoria, B.C.

Hon. Sir,—The members of the Unemployed Association of Port Coquitlam herein draw your attention to the following facts:

Whereas last November you were placed in power by the electors of British Columbia, whose support you obtained by a definite promise of work and wages; and whereas you have failed to provide employment at a decent wage to the unemployed of B. C.;

We hereby demand that you now immediately fulfill your promise or hand your resignation to the Lieutenant-Governor. A. SHAND,
Port Coquitlam. Sec. for Unemployed Assn.

Needless to say, this curt demand will receive little consideration, but it at least shows the way the wind is blowing.

WHERE IS THE UNFAIRNESS?

The complaint of a restaurant proprietor that The Examiner's opposition to the proposed sale of beer and wine in local restaurants is unfair leaves us unmoved.

His only interest in the matter is the hope of financial gain, merely a cash register interest; The Examiner, on the other hand, is looking beyond the money that an individual restaurant keeper might be able to make out of the sale of beer to the effect such sale would have on the welfare of the whole community, and from that angle we cannot think of a single logical argument in favor of eating places in small Ontario cities being allowed sell beer or wine.

We are satisfied that if public opinion in Peterborough on this question could be tested by a vote the verdict would be at least ten to one against restaurant sale being authorized; and that if it were necessary to convince the new liquor administration that this city wants no restaurant licenses a petition signed by thousands of citizens could be secured quickly.

Mr. Odette has, however, already declared that there is to be no flooding of Ontario with beer, and on the strength of that statement we are confident that he is not in the least likely to force upon communities like Peterborough a restaurant traffic in intoxicants that is not desired by the people of this city.

END OF 500 YEARS BUSINESS.

England has many businesses that are hundreds of years old, but some of them are now being forced out owing to the rapid changes of commercial and social practices of recent times and because of new discoveries. Among them is the Red Lion brewery, near the Tower Bridge of London, which was brewing beer 200 years before Shakespeare produced his plays not far from there. But the Red Lion will brew no more.

The last brew was started with fitting ceremony. The ale conners of the city of London attended in full state, with mace and gold-decked gowns. Solemnly and in silence they conned the ale from the King's Brewhouse for the last time. Round them stood the brewery employees with foaming tankards.

Five hundred years is a long time, and tradition dies hard. The Red Lion brewery, owned lately by Hoares, who have amalgamated with Charrington's, is the sole survivor of a number of breweries which once stood on the site. At one time it was a public brewery where citizens were allowed to bring their own malt, and for a license paid to the Government could brew their own ale. In 1492 the brewery was responsible for the first known mention of the word "beer" in the English language. One John Merchant was permitted by a regulation of Henry VII. to export "fifty tons of ale called Berre."

Beer may still be called the national beverage of Old England in spite of the great falling off in consumption, due partly to temperance education and partly to high taxation. Scientists say that beer and bread and cheese are the perfect combination of food and drink. Certainly it is the mid-day lunch of thousands of British workmen who cannot go home in the middle of the day.

Brewing is one of the oldest industries in history. There were brewers in Egypt 4,000 years ago, although ale, or beer, is not so old as that.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

HIGHWAYS PERIL CALLS FOR ACTION.

It is one of the contradictions of human capacity that while it has exhibited genius in providing facilities for motor transportation it has failed signally in making its handiwork safe. Monday's shocking tragedy, suddenly ending three lives, was but the latest example of the peril of our highways, of the thing that is taking a greater toll of life than any other destructive agency in our time.

The world-wide use of road transport for business and pleasure dates from the end of the war, and during those fifteen years it is estimated that nearly 5,000,000 people have been killed and injured in road accidents in Europe and America alone. In Great Britain the number so killed and injured numbers more than 2,000,000, which is twelve times more than the total of British losses in the South African War. Last year in Britain the number of killed was 7,127, the number of injured 216,000, and in the first four months of 1934 there has been a 13 per cent. increase. In the United States last year the number of killed was over 30,000; the number of injured nearly a quarter of a million. The toll in Canada, in killed, was roughly 1,000.

Having regard to the number of children in the casualty lists, it has been estimated that if the present rate of deaths is maintained, nearly every eighth or ninth child in Europe and this continent will ultimately be either killed or injured in an accident on the roads. In addition, of course, there is the enormous expenditure of money involved in medical treatment, with loss of earnings not to be forgotten.

Such things must shock the public conscience. Or ought to. Certainly the attitude of helplessness, or the policy of half-hearted remedies, is not good enough, and, if continued, must mean growing tragedy. In the United States last week President Roosevelt made a moving appeal to public opinion, to the consciences and sense of responsibility of all motorists, and in England the Minister of Transport, Mr. Oliver Stanley, has launched a campaign for safety. Canada simply has got to follow suit.

Let it be admitted that no matter what steps be taken toward safety, possibility of accidents will remain. At the same time, if we are able to spend hundreds of millions of dollars on motor vehicles and motor highways, we ought to be able to spend something to make motor travel more safe. There ought to be, to begin with, a nation-wide campaign against carelessness, and for a greater sense of personal responsibility. There ought to be greater care in the issue of driving permits. There should be complete and prolonged suspension of the permits of all drivers convicted of violating traffic regulations. Everything possible should be done to make highways reasonably safe in a structural way.

We realize that no two people are in agreement about what shoul dbe done, for the simple reason that road accidents cannot be attributed to any one cause. The answer to that is that no method of improvement should be left untried. The answer to it, too, is that, in any event, the incompetent, reckless driver, or the man who is too selfish or too ignorant, or too much of both, to have a decent regard for others, should be driven from the highways. About that proposition, at any rate, there can be no disagreement.

Then there is public opinion. Governments can do much with rules and regulations, but public opinion can do far more, and the courts can help by making it clear that street accidents can no longer be regarded as mere incidents of modern life for which no one is really to blame. Any unreasonable or reckless behaviour on the part of any motorist should be treated with severity, and disqualification and even imprisonment should be imposed in every case where the facts are proved and found to warrant it. Such laws might seem irksome, but they neer could be as bad as the deplorable thing which exists at the present time.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITODIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

With two royal commissions digging into the Abitibi deal the whole facts in the case should certainly be brought out.

Every day, in every way, those big Government jobs seem to be fading out of the picture.

If many more vacancies are created in the civil service that unemployment insurance scheme should not be too long delayed.

The Toronto Star intimated that beer would be sold at hot dog stands, but that story was killed before the roadside refreshment places could get a new supply of mustard mixed.

There's always something new, even in taxation. The British Columbia Government has clapped a tax upon sawdust

NEWS OF OUR OWN VILLAGE

Fred Reid, the new president of the village Rotary Club, give the boys an account of his visit to Detroit convention when the Club et at Graham's Hotel, Mon. According to Fred, Detroit, just across the river from Windsor, to our west, must be quite a town.

A reader of this great family journal writes in to know has the Rangers caught up to their colonel, Jim Winterbottom, yet? There must be a catch or something in this, but anyway your scribe don't know the answer, if any.

Doc Faulkner of Belleville, east of us, has just got hisself a job as Minister of Health in Mitch Hepburn's new cabinet, and your scribe supposes Belleville folks will start right in high-hatting us over the same.

A swimming meet was scheduled for this Sat. a.m. at the old swimming hole in front of Fred Tuggey's place. The only speed that used to be shown there in the old days was when the constabulry paid a visit when the boys was swimmin' raw.

The Orange walk in these parts was held at Port Hope, down Highway 28 from here, Thurs., and many folks from here was on hand for the doings, all and sundry reporting a real good time, despite the humidity and such.

Believe it or not our ball team won a ball game at home Wed. beating the boys from Oshawa, west of here, 11 to 7. Some of the fans in the grand stand done so much panning the lads thought the game must be in Oshawa so went out and won it.

Perce Harrison, our well known north end grocery man, took a softball team down to Keene, Wed., and won a silver mug that oughta look good on the Harrison mantel piece, suggest we.

Rolly Denne's fall fair aint more than a month away, your scribe hastens to point out, it coming in Aug. this year, which aint so good for the sale of hot dogs, but oughta boost the pop receipts, we opine.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

By H. W. L. MAHOOD

A TERRORIST is a coward. Hitler thought to strike opposition down by infusing fear. Instead he showed the white feather. To kill defenceless men and women is not courage. The greatest coward in the world is the murderer. The marvel is that Hindenburg could find the words to commend the dispatch of men and women like the ex-Chancellor, General von Schleicher and his gifted wife ,without a fair and impartial trial. More than a cruise will be needed to restore the valor of a hero. Ante tubam trepidat. Translated into English this Latin sentence is a snapshot of Hitler. "His courage was oozing out." In face he is a lion. In heart he is a poltroon.

For a time he may dominate the German people. Butchery is the beginning of his end. It is more than that. It is the crumbling of the Nazi form of government. Nazism will never again be the same.

An effort will be made by Hitler to keep himself in control. Do you for a moment think that the friends of the ruthlessly slain will fold their arms? Injustice and violence are never partakers of sound sleep. Justice and righteous judgment are ever on their track. It is not necessary for Hitler to decry Christianity and to proclaim to the world his advocacy of a pagan religion for himself and for his people. Events broadcast the fact.

As a man treats those whom he despises so will he treat those whom he considers his friends, when the occasion arises. A man who can mistreat anybody has it in him to mistreat his closest friends. For the man who dares to speak out in criticism or in opposition Hitler holds no sacred estimation.

The defeat of the Germany army in the Great War, or the Treaty of Versailles did not shock the masses of the German people as has the butchery of some of the most talented by Hitler and his cohorts. The blow was struck and all was over before the night had passed. June the 30th. was a fateful day. The officers of the Storm Divisions, and the Minister without Portfolio, Captain Roehm, and those close to him had planned a coup de etat against the Nazi government and Hitler. Many people of high standing in the nation and trusted in the councils of the present regime gave Roehm their encouragement and support. One man spoiled the scheme. Goering had the secret whispered to him by an agent of the secret service machinery of the National Socialist party. Not a moment was to be lost. For on the morning of the next day, June the 30th. Roehm was to launch his counter-revolution. Chancellor Heinrich Himmler, head of the Special Guards, and Joseph Goebbels perfected a plan to nip the revolution in the bud. Swiftly, they arrested Roehm. Accused him of the plot. He made no denial. Nor did he plead for mercy. He had the choice to be his own executioner, or to face the firing squad. He chose the latter. Out there alone in the open he stood. An offer was made to cover his eyes. That he refused. Without blanched face he stood and looked straight into faces of the firing squad. The rifles were lifted. Without the quiver of a muscle he stood. The rifles spit their bullets. A hero fell. Immediately he was buried. No casket received his body. None but those who buried him know where he lies. Is he dead? Is he buried? Some men never die. Some men no grave-digger can bury. Tell me who is greatest, Hitler or Roehm. Hitler is a coward. Roehm was a hero.

Other heroes fell. Herewith we inscribe the roll of the following whose names will shine when that of Hitler is forgotten.

The flower of Germany fell. Mere mention of the names is to bestow honor. There lay Heines, and Count Helldorf, and Karl Ernst, Police Commissioner of Potsdam, and Gregor Strasser. And to continue the recital of famous men we add to the scroll of honor General Schleicher, and his wife. Royal blood was shed in the person of Prince Auwe, third son of William the second. There is some doubt about the killing of Prince Auwa. The mention of his name as probably slain reveals the attitude of the Nazis and Hitler towards the Hohenzollerins. The revolutionists overlooked one very important matter. That was the efficiency and everywhere presence of the secret service. These men did not for a moment dream that Hitler would meet resistance with cold-blooded violence. Von Papen has been selected for the post of Commissioner of the Saar. As this letter is being written he is held as a prisoner in his own house. The reason for this imprisonment has been hinted to be that Hindenburg has written into his will that Von Papen is to be his successor. The report though coming from reliable sources has not been confirmed. Such a testament would have neither legal nor moral force. Germany has a constitution.

Financially Germany is now in a worse condition than she has been. Recovery for the present is impossible. The unexpected blow struck by Hitler has broken confidence on the money market. German industry has been jarred. Nobody knows what next. The people do not have confidence in each other. No man in the public eye knows who may may be in the firing squad to inflict the fierce anger of Hitler upon him. Britain and the United States and possibly Italy will stand aloof. Germany is more alone now than ever before. Barriers are sure to arise in the path of her exports. It will be difficult for her to find governments to loan her money with which to purchase abroad necessities not met by her own natural resources.

A Thought

DECADES IN LIFE

"I would space the decades thus," writes the Rev. R. F. Horton, D.D., in Great Thoughts: "1. For unthinking joy, 1-10. 2. For the keenest pleasures, 10-20. 3. For the awakening to art, 20-30. 4. The best service, 30-40. 5. Rich human relationships, 40-50. 6. From fifty to the end is the Crown and the Achievement. The joy is deeper, but tinged with the sorrow of failure and disappointment. But the relationships are enriched, because increasingly they link the Two Worlds."

Shooting, Clubbing Laid To Insane Man

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., July 14. (CP).—Police to-day laid the fatal shooting of Tom Douglas, 55-year-old councillor of Coquitlam, and clubbing of Gordon Wilson, 29, to an assailant they said was temporarily insane.

Robert McFadden, 40, believed to be a victim of shellshock, was arrested a half hour after the shooting yesterday and charged with murder. He was remanded to July 20.

Douglas was shot down in the service station he operates a half hour after Wilson had been clubbed into insensibility in McFadden's cabin on Snake Hill, a short distance from the scene of the shooting.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

PREACHER SAVED THE SHIP.

On this date, in 1817, when the Scottish peasants were being evicted by the thousands from their poor holdings there sailed from Loch Broom the barque, Frances Ann, 400 tons, bound for Pictou, Nova Scotia. On board were 400 men, women and children broken hearted at leaving their Highland homes, but all imbued with that spirit which has made their race prominent the world over. Just before they sailed the company was joined by Norman McLeod, a young "stickit" minister, who had broken from the Church of Scotland and was "preaching on his own," just like the circuit riders of Upper Canada in its infancy. Then 37 years of age, over six feet in stature, he was a natural born leader of men and was so accepted by the company on the Frances Ann, for he was an able and bold seaman as well as preacher.

When in mid-Atlantic the ship sprang a leak and the captain decided to turn back to Ireland; but McLeod called a meeting of the passengers and was delegated by them to persuade the captain to continue the voyage. When he told the captain that the ship was nearer to America than to Ireland he was threatened with being put in irons. A consultation of captain, mates and McLeod was held. The chart was produced, the position of the ship proven, and it was agreed that the better course was to go on. The captain gave orders to proceed but promised Norman McLeod that when they got to Pictou, if ever, he (the preacher), would find himself in jail. "Of that I will take my chance," the dominie replied. The pumps were manned; the ship kept afloat; in due course Pictou was reached and the captain was man enough to say: "Well, McLeod, I must say that you are a better seaman than I am."

Norman McLeod is notable for a marvellous feat later. The Scots did not like Nova Scotia weather; they decided to set out in search of a milder clime, with McLeod at their head. They were twice ship-wrecked, but at last got away and sailed 12,000 miles to New Zealand, via Australia. There a Scots' colony was founded and between 1851 and 1860 over 1,000 Scots made their way from Canada to New Zealand and there their descendants today revere the memory of the great Scot who led their forefathers to a milder clime. His monument is their constant care.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

STEALING SUNSHINE

I walked through the woods and came to a little clearing made by the fall of a great tree. The tree lay there, rotted and empty, beside a little stream; it was so soft I could put my foot through it. Once it had risen high and widespread and had cast a great shade at its base; it stood among its fellows and talked to them far up there in the sky. . . . But it fell and gave the trees at its feet a chance to grow.

You could see them growing now, here below. Already you could see them growing, 20 and 30 feet tall. One, in particular, has leaped ahead and will be mighty, too, some day. That fatherly giant was no protector of the little trees; it held them back, cheated them of the sunshine, stunted their growth. But now that he is gone, THEIR chance has come.

Strong and imposing fellows, like that monarch of the forest, often think they are protectors of their fellows, particularly of their wives. They shudder at the thought of what their wives will do without them, after they are gone. Those poor, weak women, without experience, who have never earned money, who will not know what to do with themselves when their husbands aren't there to advise and direct and decide!

But life plays a joke on such men. Widows, so often, grow surprisingly strong when husband dies. They grow to meet their new responsibilities. They become independent, they learn to make their own decisions, and their friends observe how much more COMPLETE they seem than when their husbands were alive. They do not confess that they are happier, they may mention their loneliness frequently, and they grieve sincerely—but any stray observer can see that life is in some ways broader and deeper for them and they are living in the bright sunshine instead of in the quiet shade.

Human beings have a trick of stealing each other's sunshine. They have a knack of cheating their dear ones of the right to grow. Strong men do that. So do strong women. Parents and friends, in strengthening themselves, sometimes weaken those around them as much as any great tree of the forest does.

They make a pleasant weakening shade around them and no one knows it is weakening until they are gone—and the strong sunshine pours down from the blue heavens and floods the vacant space where once they stood.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

KERROBERT, SASK.

This town, like so many others in the west, was named by the Canadian Pacific Railway, but the choice was made in a somewhat more novel fashion than generally was used.

At first it was proposed to name it for Robert Kerr, at that time their general passenger agent, but Mr. Kerr being of a modest disposition, said if his name must be used that it be reversed and call it Kerrobert.

This was done by consolidating the two words, but for some unexplained reason the post-office department preferred to call it Kerr-Robert. It was not until 1924 that the post-office department was prevailed upon to adopt the registered name of the townsite and the municipality.

Busy Time Ahead To Fill Gov't Posts

OTTAWA, July 14 (C.P.).—With scores of appointments to be made, the Government will, it is expected, have a fairly busy time for some months securing suitable men to fill the numerous vacancies. Legislation passed at the last session of Parliament necessitates a large number of appointments, in addition to those vacancies which have been in existence for some time.

The governorship of the Central Bank, much discussed in Parliament and outside, is one of the most important posts which Prime Minister Bennett and his colleagues will have to fill. The post of chairman of the Railway Commission has been vacant ever since Judge Fullerton became chairman of the Canadian National Board of Trustees. It is another important vacancy.

In addition to these, the Government must select a head for the new Dominion Marketing Board. The resignation of Thomas Maher left a vacancy on the Radio Commission, and there are 11 Senate vacancies.

Rev. Herbert Taylor Is Visiting In City

The Rev. Dr. Herbert Taylor, pastor of the Baptist Church at Pierpont, S. Dakota, is visiting in Peterborough after an absence of twenty-four years. He is a son of the late William Taylor, who lived on Albert Street, and a brother-in-law of Alderman Stocker. Dr. Taylor is visiting at the home of his mother, who is 93 years of age, and will be in the city for several weeks.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., July 13. (AP)—Bing Crosby and his wife, the former Dixie Lee, screen actress, to-day became the parents of twin boys

While Bing, singer and actor, was passing out the cigars, he was told that he and his wife had established some sort of "record" for screen couples. No other couple in the movies has twins.

The babies were placed in an incubator at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital immediately after birth and were not weighed.

SEEK USES FOR WHEAT SURPLUS IN BY-PRODUCTS

Scientists Are Earnestly Pressing Endeavors at Research.

MONEY IS NEEDED.

China and Japan Have Already Found One Use for Excess Wheat.

MONTREAL, July 14. (CP) — plans for utilizing by chemical means to produce valuable by-products from the Canadian surplus of wheat are being earnestly considered by a scientist at the Canadian Pulp and Paper Research Institute at McGill University.

Dr. W. Boyd Campbell consulting physical chemist to the forest products laboratories at the institute discussed wheat surplus in an interview to-day, stated that in China by an ingenious method scientists had succeeded in producing a valuable substance known as monosodium glutamate from wheat and added that the surface of the possibilities of converting wheat into more costly products had only been scratched.

'If the Dominion" he said, "were to spend a small fraction of the money it has spent on providing transportation and handling facilities for the Dominion's wheat, I believe that the wheat surplus would in time become a forgotten bogey. I would suggest that the Dominion Government include in the budget, as a start in the right direction, the sum of $500,000 to be used in this research over a period of five years."

The monosodium glutamate being made in China, of which Chinese have sold between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000 worth annually, was until recently a rare chemical found only in research laboratories in America. It is used in China and Japan much the same as sugar and salt are used here. It is a condiment used by housewives, restaurants, Buddhists and other vegetarians to impart a meatlike flavor to vegetable diets. As a flavoring agent it is 15 times more powerful than cane sugar and seven times stronger than salt.

Canadian wheat, with is comparatively high content of protein is the best wheat for manufacture of this condiment, the scientist said. China has been making it for several years and production is shortly to be undertaken on this continent.

NICOLA MAKES SHIPMENT

MERRITT, B.C., July 14—Nicola Mines & Metals Ltd. with property at Stump Lake between this city and Kamloops shipped their first carload of concentrates to the smelter last week and from now on hope to be able to maintain weekly shipments.

Manager M. E. Erdofy is authority for the statement that they are making an unusually close recovery of the values, as high as 98 per cent, and that the shipment of concentrates will run better than $300.00 per ton. They are planning on being able to make three carload shipments per month from this date forward.

CAR PRODUCERS DISCOUNT COMPLAINTS

EAST WINDSOR, July 14 (CP)—Complaints being voiced by the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders in Great Britain, that the new tariff will permit entry of "camouflaged U.S." cars into New Zealand are sharply discounted here. It is pointed out that New Zealand has exceedingly strict supervision of the Empire content in imported cars, and requires 75 per cent Canadian content in order to enjoy the British preference.

One local manufacturer declares that the new ruling on tariff will work much to the advantage of his product which already enjoys a favorable market and he looks for much improvement with the knocked-down cars — the only way they are shipped overseas from here—going in at ½ per cent instead of 21¼ as under the old regulations.

UNEARTH OLD CHANNEL

BARKERVILLE, B.C., July 14. (Spesial) — Al Harris, well-known old time mining man and prospector who has been devoting his time for the past several years to the Tertiary Mine located in Cottonwood Canyon some twenty miles above this city, has finally convinced himself that he has in this property one of the old channels of the famous Cariboo District. In his development he has been running bedrock drains, trenching and generally sampling and now states that he has a tremendous yardage of gravel that will run three dollars to the cubic yard. This yardage has been exposed and demonstrated by a drift and arrangements are being made to work the deposit.

TWO BODIES FOUND.

MIAMI, Florida, — Lying face downward on rocks, the bodies of a man and woman were found between two jetty promontories off a causeway here to-day.

The dead were identified by authorities as R. H. Kuehlig, 27, an unemployed real estate salesman, and Mrs. E. F. Faircloth, 50.

Irate Zoo Keeper Plans Lion Parade

SAN FRANCISCO, July 14 (AP)—A parade of hungry lions and tigers in the search of meat was promised here to-day as strike condition cut off the food supply of the Elels-Hacker Zoo.

Announcing he had been denied a permit by striking unions for delivery of meat to the zoo, George Bistany, superintendent, declared the animals at the zoo eat 400 pounds of meat a day, and "I'm going to get it for them."

"They're going to parade to the butchers' in trucks. If any one wants to stop them, all right; but they're going to get meat—dead or alive."

Mr. Elmhirst has been living in Hamilton. Otonabee friends of the family are delighted with Mr. Elmhirst's appointment, and the fact that one of the sons of the township has been chosen to the responsible position as confidential secretary to the new Premier of Ontario.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

TORONTO MINING

TORONTO, July 14 (C.P.) — God's Lake, Gunnar Gold and Eldorado provided the fireworks on the closing session of the week on the mining share market. The two Manitoba junior gold issues traded in heavy volume, moth above the $2 mark, and Eldorado closed 10 cents higher at 2.40, in turnover that exceeded 20,000 shares for the two hour session.

The big gold issues remained indifferent to the action in the cheaper gold group, though the group harbored narrow gains at the close. Hollinger picked up 10 cents, closing at 17.85, Lake Shore up 25 cents, and Teck Hughes 5. Bralorne was off 5 cents to 15.55.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, July 14 (C.P.). — Firmness of the metal shares helped the stock market to maintain a show of life in to-day's brief and generally listless session. A few of the sugars also attracted some attention, but the list, as a whole, followed an extremely narrow range The close was steady.

Transfers approximated 190 000 shares.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

TORONTO, July 14. (CP) — The summer Doldrums were on in earnest to-day in the industrial department of the Toronto Stock Exchange, volume registering the low point for the summer. Turnover was around 3,000 shares.

The slow and slightly unsteady tone was reflected by the interlisted group, aloss of ¼ for C.P.R. Constituting the only price change. Nickel held at 25⅞ with only a few shares coming out. Distillery stocks were unchanged and in the brerwery group Brewing Corporation pfd was down ½, Canada Malting ¼ and Walkerville ¼.

MONTREAL VOLUME

MONTREAL, July 14 (C.P.)—With volume still on the light side, issues on the Montreal Stock Exchange turned a little easier at the close of to-day's abbreviated session.

International Nickel declined ¼ at 25⅞. Dominion Steel and Coal "B" was off ⅛ to 4⅞ while Howard Smith was down ½ at 35½. General Steel Wares lost ¼ at 4½. Power Corporation declined ¼ at 10.

Cockshutt Plow gained ⅝ at 8. Canadian Pacific Railway was up ⅛ at 14. Canadian Car at 7, Canada Cement at 7, Montreal Power at 35½, Shawinigan Power at 21, consolidated Smelters at 149 and Massey-Harris at 4¼ were all unchanged.

NO CLUES FOUND

HARTSDALE, N.Y. — United States Department of Justice operatives waited vainly to-day for a kidnap note that would justify their entrance into the search for little blue-eyed Bobby Connor, 21-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Connor, missing since Thursday evening.

The Federal agents, called into the case under the Lindbergh Kidnapping Law, deepened the mystery of Bobby's disappearance by clamping down a censorship on the household of the frantic parents.

Only three per cent of the 7134 fatal road accidents in Britain last year were on arterials.

DISTRICT M.O.H. TO DISAPPEAR

Minister of Health is Considering Dispensing With Services of District M.O.H.'s.

EIGHT IN ONTARIO.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., July 14 (CP). —Eight district officers of health will be discharged by the Ontario Government if the suggestion of Dr. J. A. Faulkner, Minister of health, is adopted.

"I have nothing against the men personally," he said, "but they are costing us nearly $40,000 a year, and we have to curtail expenditure in every possible case."

His suggestion would be laid before Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn on Monday, he said.

The officers are: W. E. George, Hamilton; T. J. McNally, London; P. L. Maloney, Ottawa; George L. Sparks, Fort William; H. W. Johnston, Sault Ste Marie; M. T. Thomson, North Bay; J. J. Fraser, Guelph; and N. H. Sutton of Peterborough.

TORONTO, July 14 (C.P.)—If he obtains the support of the government, it is the intention of Dr. J. Faulkner, new provincial Minister of Health, to abolish eight district officers of health, whose upkeep last year cost the province $37,779.71, and in ten years of their existence have run up a total of approximately $360,000.

To the Toronto Star to-day Dr. Faulkner stated this was what he meant when he announced yesterday in his own riding that he intended to abolish one whole department. The district officers of health are really a sub-department of the Department of Health.

"I don't want to go over the Premier's head in any way in making this announcement," Dr. Faulkner commented to-day, "but I have drawn it to his attention and he agrees with me. Of course, that's my own opinion that they should be abolished, and I have to get the support of the government.

"I can't see any good use that they serve," Dr. Faulkner said, "except to prepare an annual report."

Lyon, "is that the Commission is under contract to pay constantly increasing sums for power delivered in advance of demand."

Mr. Lyon made his statement in commenting on the recent reported statement of C. Alfred Maguire, former Hydro Commissioner, that everything was satisfactory financially when the old commission left office. He did not wish to enter a controversy, he said, in the face of the facts he could not understand Mr. Maguire's satisfaction with the condition of Hydro finances.

Hydro Lost

In 1933 Mr. Lyon said, Toronto power consumers got their power for $1,250,000 less than it cost the Commission. This was due to the fact $852,000 or $3.30 per horsepower for the Toronto load of $244,128 horsepower was taken from the contingency reserve fund standing to the credit of the Toronto commission and in addition the local commission itself suffered a loss of more than $400,000.

In 1930, said Mr. Lyon, Toronto used 246,766 which cost the Hydro Commission after making allowances for sinking fund and renewals but less the contingency reserve $5,249,974 or $21.26 per horse power. The volume of power increased in 1931 but the average cost also increased in 1931 and when the volume started dropping off in 1932 the average per horse power cost went up still more. It was that year the contingency reserve fund was first used and $1 per horse power or a total of $249,570 was withdrawn and used for the benefit of Toronto power consumers. The next year the amount was $3.30 per horse power.

The same condition does not prevail to the same extent in other areas than Toronto because the bulk of the burden of paying for purchased power falls on the Niagara system on Toronto particularly. This purchased power comes from the Province of Quebec.

Superstitious? No, Just Cautious

Yes, yesterday was Friday, the 13th. But, of course, it didn't mean anything to local people. People in an enlightened community such as Peterborough wouldn't be superstitious.

Yet read the following facts: Chris Graham reveals that rooms at the Empress oHtel are numbered from 50 up, so as to avoid a room No. 13. A hotel room No. 13 can rarely be filled.

Registration clerks at the City Clerk's office are unable to recall a local wedding on a Friday, the 13th.

Local cartage firms report that nothing less than a cyclone would cause Peterborough families to move on a Friday, the 13th.

Superstitious? Surely not. Just cautious.

and operation. The signatures of at least fifteen taxpaying adults in the vicinity of the applicant were demanded on the form. It is expected that the new forms to be mailed next Wednesday will be much the same in nature.

Each of the applicants interviewed stated a readiness to make property renovations to provide the proper facilities for dispensing the beer and wine. All are waiting for definite word from the Board, however, before going ahead with their plans. The facilities which will be demanded by the Board are as yet not known. The Hotel Owners' Association this week advised its members it get definite information from Queen's Park before spending any money.

Says Campaign Unfair

Declaring that The Examiner's campaign against the licensing of restaurants is unfair, and unjust, to the owners of restaurants, Louis Yeotes, owner of the Elite, stated that he intends to keep his dispensation of beer and wine completely separate from the regular operation of the restaurant, if he is granted a license. Revealing that he is prepared to spend $20,000 in renovations, he said he would provide a special room in the basement of his property, and possibly a room on the second floor. "Those who do not care for beer or wine, would be able to use the regular facilities of the restaurant without going near the rooms where the beer and wine would be served," Mr. Yeotes explained.

Inquiries seemed to reveal that the proprietors of the Chinese restaurants in the city are not interested in the beer and wine question. It is understood that none has made application.

Two Chapleau Girls Intent on Shopping

CHAPLEAU, Ont., July 14.—(C.P.)—Two little Chapleau girls, Theresa Dick, seven, and Ida Bain, six, had visited Sudbury on shopping expeditions. So when they found themselves with 15 cents between them they decided Sudbury's stores offered greater opportunities or something. Without the formality of mentioning the trip to their parents, they boarded a Canadian Pacific train here. Thinking they were with other passengers, the conductor chatted with them. When the train reached Memegos, 20 miles from Sudbury, however, the conductor learned they were alone. He left them in charge of a telegraph operator and wired their parents at Chapleau. They completed their shopping excursion at a Chapleau ice cream parlor.

REV. JAS. ROSS PASSES IN CITY

Served for Many Years in Ministry of Presbyterian Church.

84 YEARS OLD.

A long and faithful career in the ministry of the Presbyterian Church of Canada was terminated by the death of Rev. James Ross at his home, 597 Douglas avenue, yesterday. He passed away in his eighty-fourth year after an illness of two weeks.

Rev. Ross' service took him into many fields in Central Ontario in the many years which followed his ordination. He was born in Columbus in Ontario county, son of late Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Ross. In the Whitby and Port Perry public and high schools he received his early education and he taught public school several years before deciding on the ministry as his calling.

Graduating from Knox College in 1882, he received an immediate call to Harwood Presbyterian Church at Roseneath after his ordination. For twenty-two years he served as pastor of that church and then followed two periods in which he administered two charges of his church in the Coboconk-Kinmount and Rosedale field and in Pontypool and Janetville.

When the great church union debate arose, Rev. Ross was residing in this city in semi-retirement, holding no pastorate, but serving his Church as the occasion arose. He took a very active and strong stand against union. When the break finally occurred and Lakefield was left without a Presbyterian Church, he went to Lakefield, and, for four years, conducted Presbyterian services each Sunday in the Queen's Theatre for those who wished to remain with the original church. In 1929 he retired and took up his final residence in this city.

In 1932, Rev. Ross took a prominent part in the 50th anniversary celebration of the Harwood Presbyterian Church, his first charge.

Rev. Ross was twice married, his first wife, formerly Margaret Greig, predeceasing him thirty years ago. His second wife survives, and one son, Dr. C. F. W. Ross, resides in Sunderland, Ontario. Mrs. J. J. Craig of Peterborough is a step-daughter of the deceased.

Following a private funeral service at the home at 2 p.m. on Monday, a public service is to be held in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr will officiate. Interment will take place at Little Lake Cemetery.

Raspberries Scarce On Farmers' Market

While late strawberries were selling at 10 cents a pint box, a few boxes of the season's first raspberries put in an appearance on the Market Square this morning. They brought twenty cents a box.

With a poor crop this year, not more than half the normal crop, huckleberries were scarce at 25 cents a box or $1.50 a pail. Gooseberries sold at 15 cents a quart and there were limited offerings of red currents at 15 cents a quart.

Plenty of new potatoes were to be had at 30 cents a peck. Other prices general about the market were: Carrots and beets, four bunches for 10 cents; asparagus, two bunches for 15 cents; cabbage, 10 cents and two for 15 cents; early cauliflower, 10 cents to 25 cents; radishes, three bunches for 10 cents; peas in the pod, 20 cents for the six-quart basket; and string beans, 10 cents a quart. Butter ranged from 20 to 23 cents. Eggs were 22 cents.

UNKNOWN MAN

Tracing Owner.

HAMILTON, Ont., July 14 (C.P.). —Tracing of the owner of a blue coupe seemed to be the leading point in the mystery which surrounded the finding to-day of the body of a man believed to be Bert Tonenly, Windsor. The body was found on the sixth concession of Halton County.

The number of the car was given by police as DO-972, and this was listed as belonging to Frank Sginrno, York Street, Hamilton. Investigation showed the man did not live there, but had been known by Mike Bucci, who lives at the address given, declared he knew Sginrno but not very well, having seen him only four or five times. He said Sginrno lived somewhere in Hamilton, but was not certain as to the spot. Two or three days ago, Sginrno came to his house and remained for a short time and then left.

"He didn't say where he was going," Bucci said. "It was none of my business. He thought Sginrno bought the car from dealers in this city about six weeks ago.

Further inquiries revealed a man named Frank Sginrno had registered at a hotel here on June 18 and remained one week. Where he had gone from there the proprietors did not know.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

Exhibition Board Sets 25 Cents Gate Admission

ADMISSION SET FOR EXHIBITION

GRAND STAND 35 CENTS.

Important decisions in connection with arrangements for the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, which opens its gates for a full week on August 20, were reached last night at a meeting of the Exhibition Board.

Although everything indicates that this year's exhibition will be on a grander scale than ever before, the Board decided unanimously that general admission at the gate afternoons and evenings will be only 25 cents, while admission to the grandstand at all times will be 35 cents. Admission for children to the grounds and grandstand will be 15 cents, except on Children's Day when the admission will be five cents.

The show opens its gates on Mondays and by Tuesday noon all exhibits will be placed. All arrangements have been made to have the big exhibition "hitting" on all cylinders for Tuesday which will be Children's Day. A special children's program will be provided.

All cars entering the grounds will be charged 25 cents and they must enter by the Lock street gate, near which parking space will be provided.

A new plan of the grounds was submitted by Vivian Millburn, general manager, and was unanimously adopted. This new plan will considerably enhance the attractions of the exhibition and provides for a large space for rest space for men, women and children.

It was pointed out by Mr. Millburn that the exhibition is featuring to special classes that should prove of special interest for feeders of sheep and swine. These classes provide an entry of five sheep or pigs, and arrangements are being made that the animals will be fed and cared for by attendants so that the exhibition does not have to remain with the animals. At the close of the show the animals will be slaughtered and sold.

Emphasis is also being placed on exhibits of cheese and honey in this show.

ONTARIO FACES BANK OVERDRAFT

ball game between Belleville and Marmora-Deloro teams supplied the picnic background in which women seemed to be the more numerous.

Fred A. Bapty of Deloro, president of the Marmora District Liberal Association, was chairman of the politico-oratorical interlude, which was obviously designed for the purpose of acclaiming the new riding's first member of the Legislature, who by the turn of recent events has become a prominent member of the Hepburn Ministry.

Others who assisted in the arrangements were H. W. Sabine, vice-president, and D. E. Bell, secretary-treasurer of the Association, both of Marmora village; F. S. Johnson, Thomas Laycock, George Aunger, M. Moloney, Ed. Neill, Chas. Cook, Hugh Moloney, L. P. Hughes, J. P. Marrin and Dan Shannon.

The speakers included Mr. Baptie, Dr. Faulkner, J. J. Duffus of Peterborough, president of the Central Ontario Liberal Association; James Hawthorne of Warsaw; Norman Gilroy of Coe Hill; Harry Heath, Mayor Tice of Belleville, and Hugh Moloney.

Grateful to Electors

Hon. Dr. Faulkner was greeted with cheers when he was called to the improvised platform, the spacious deck of a big truck, parked in the shade.

Ontario's new Minister of Health said that words failed to express his gratitude to the electors of West Hastings for the honor they had done him.

"Not all of those who are here voted for me, but one of our privileges as a British people is the right to exercise our franchise freely and as we see fit; and I want to assure you that this right will never be interfered with so long as I am an officer of the Crown.

I hope you have all been reading the reports of the recount of the ballots in the election of Col. Fraser Hunter, the successful Liberal candidate in St. Patrick's riding, Toronto. If you have, I think you will have no doubt but that some of the ballots in that riding were interfered with in an effort to deprive Col. Hunter of the victory which the constituents had given him."

Dr. Faulkner paid tribute to the young Liberal Premier, Mitchell F. Hepburn, and said "God giving me strength, I am going to give Mr. Hepburn 100 percent support."

Nesbitt "Stabs" Henry

He said it was disgusting to read the manner in which Conservatives who a few weeks ago were cheering loudly for George Henry, were now the first to desert and denounce him. Among them was Russell Nesbitt, M.L.A., Toronto, who within the last few days "has seen fit to knife his leader in a speech from a public platform.

"I think the Hon. George S. Henry might well ask to be saved from his friends. At any rate we all like the kind of friendship that is true, that stands by you in trouble and defeat.

Some animosities were raised against me in the campaign which I can never forget; and I am sorry that some people not far from this poll listened to what was said on religious lines, that was intended only to hurt me.

I am proud of the fact that as the representative of this riding I have been appointed Minister of Health. The members of the Cabinet are all true Liberals. I may say that I don't know what is the religion of all of them. And why should I? Is a man less honorable because he attends one church or another? The test of citizenship is service to one's country, and let a man worship where he wishes. My own inclination is always to be doubtful of the man who introduces religious questions into public affairs.

The people of this province have enjoyed and are going to enjoy their privileges of schools, the right of free speech and the right to worship where they like. They shall enjoy these rights as long as the Liberal party is honored with the administration of Ontario."

Kepburn Keeping Promises

Dr. Faulkner said that Premier Hepburn had already made a good beginning toward carrying out the promises of economy in the handling of the people's money.

Regarding his appointment to the Cabinet, the Minister said he had told Mr. Hepburn "that his hands were in no way tied to me or to anyone else".

"Without any delegation visiting the Premier in my behalf, he telephoned me a week ago Thursday to meet him last Tuesday. In Toronto he simply called me into his room and said: 'Doctor, I want you to be my Minister of Health.' There was no influence or anything of that kind."

Regarding appointment to Government positions, Dr. Faulkner said that if any appointments were to be made applications should proceed through the local executive.

"The chairmen of the six polls in Marmora township should be in a position to know the qualifications of any applicant for a position. I don't want any person to think that I am not sympathetic. I will do my best to facilitate the appointment of any man who receives the commendation of the local executive. I believe the people of this riding voted for me with the desire that the number of jobs and the cost of government would be reduced, and I hope that you will assist me in that work."

HEPBURN CONS NEW BEER BILL

after being considered by the Premier over the week-end, will be submitted to the Cabinet early next week probably on Tuesday, but the Commissioner refused to forecast the date on which sale would begin.

Opposes Advertising.

Premier Hepburn, before leaving the city, voiced his opposition to liquor advertising, though Mr. Odette is credited with the view the present ban ought to be relaxed in fairness to the press. The Premier said he thought it inconsistent and unreasonable to permit advertising and at the same time teach temperance in the schools.

Ontario public buildings under construction will rise no further to-day. Road-widening work also ceases under the order of the new Government that the circumstances launched by the former Conservative Government must be thoroughly investigated. An exception is the new Hydro headquarters in Toronto, at which work will be carried on to a point where no deterioration would result from the halt. Meanwhile, the advisability of changing the plans in favor of a more modest structure will be considered by the Hydro Commission.

The highways order does not extend to the Trans-Canada road in Northern Ontario, it was indicated by Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests.

LADS OF ARCTIC SEE FIRST CITY GASP AT SIGHTS

Fly 2,000 Miles From Land of Ice Where Father is Free Trader.

USED TO RADIOS, PLANES.

Street Cars, Trucks, Big Bathtubs Prove Marvels of Age to Visitors.

EDMONTON, July 14.—(CP). — Radio and aeroplanes took a back seat to-day because Master Arthur Wellington Watson, 7, and his brother, Gordon Field Watson, 5, were seeing the wonders of the world.

Street cars, automobiles which took "cows out riding," as well as men, women and boys, telephone, signboards, "big bathtubs" and a hundred other things which go unnoticed by millions of other boys and girls were to the Arctic lads the marvels of the age.

Flown 2,000 miles from their home at Coppermine on the Arctic rim where their father, Arthur Watson, is a free trader, the boys reached here yesterday en route to Winnipeg to attend school. Radio and aeroplanes they were accustomed to, but the other things—thrilled them.

Gordon liked automobiles better than aeroplanes, and thought that maybe he might like street cars better than automobiles. And Gordon and his brother, Arthur, just couldn't understand everything, though they were far smarter than many a lad brought up in the cities. After a round of adventures, they were taken to a restaurant.

No Caribou or Fish.

"What you want?" they were asked.

Gordon told the waitress that he didn't want "caribou or fish," and was duly delighted when a fresh fruit cocktail and turkey were served to him.

"Well, does that look like caribou?" he was asked.

"No, that's bird meat," he replied brightly.

During the afternoon "What's that?" was asked by the boys many, many times. Later Arthur pointed to street lights that "shine in the night," and was greatly impressed by the number of automobiles on the streets and expressed the opinion that "nearly everyone must have one." The climax came when a truck, laden with cattle, rolled by, en route to the stockyards.

"Even the cows ride in automobiles," gasped Arthur.

Ice cream cones didn't produce the thrill which observers expected. Arthur remarked that they made ice cream at Coppermine with "snow, ice and canned milk." He hastened to add, "But it wasn't as good as this."

In the north their playmates have been, mostly, Eskimo boys, and Arthur announced with pride that he could "throw" an Eskimo boy bigger than himself "over the fence" at his father's trading post.

Hastings Wins From Norwood Team 7-5

HASTINGS, July 14 (Examiner Correspondence).—In the snappiest and best game of softball played here this season, Hastings defeated Norwood, 7 to 5, before a bumper crowd on Thursday night in an exhibition tilt. The visitors garnered in two runs in the first on two hits and a base on balls; however, the homesters got away to a bg lead in the second, when four runners crossed the plate on three hits, a free ticket to firts and a couple of muffs.

From then on, it was a real pitchers' tussle, backed up by airtight support.

Views Of Amsterdam Where Nine Died In Strike Riots

European discontent caused another upheaval, this time in Amsterdam, metropolis of traditionally peaceful Holland, where a clash between Dutch communists and police as an aftermath to a protest against reduction of the unemployment dole, resulted in bloody handfighting behind barricades in the workingmen's districts, leaving nine dead and scores wounded. MORE FIRING SQUADS AWAITING HIS CHALLENGERS, HITLER SAYS ed defiance to any foreign power that seeks to express its criticism by boycots. Hitler said that in the face of boycots Germany would make herself "independent" through "our ability" and through "the ingenuity of our inventors and chemists."

Full Responsibility

He took full responsibility for the execution of 76 men and a woman in the June 30 'purging," and said he would not hesitate to strike down any others who dare defy the state.

Hitler nearly collapsed after his effort. His manner contrasted sharply with the unprecedented threats of annihilation he made against enemies of the third Reich.

Pale and visibly shaken by the recent bloody events, he touched his usual oratorical heights only at the conclusion. Germany's "strong man" apparently was not himself.

While Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Hitler's right hand man extolled "Der Fuehrer," Hitler sat with bowed head, apparently oblivious of the eulogy.

Noticing this, the Reichstag was profoundly silent—in contrast to cheers when the Chancellor threatened more executions for future "treason." There was a hush when the Chancellor went through the round of hand-shaking with members of the cabinet.

Ambassadors Absent

Noticeably absent were most ambassadors, including those of France, Great Britain and the United States.

Hitler's assurances that Franz Von Papen, the vice Chancellor, was in nowise implicated in the "revolt," drew attention to Von Papen's absence. This fact gave strength to a belief the domestic crisis is not yet over.

That Hitler's own course for the future will be one of conservatism was indicated by his passionate defence of the Reichswehr, or standing army, in which he apparently is putting his greatest confidence.

He also pledged loyalty to President Von Hindenburg and repudiated "permanent revolution."

Express Gratitude

The Reichstag unanimously adopted a resolution framed by Dr. Wilhelm Frick, Minister of the Interior, expressing gratitude to Hitler for "saving the nation" from civil war and chaos through his vigorous action.

The fact that Hitler, with only a few exceptions, did not mention the names of the 77 dead evoked much comment.

"I had to act with the speed of lightning," Hiter said in recounting details of a plot he said was hatched by Ernest Roehm, chief of staff, and other storm troop leaders.

"In that hour I was responsible for the fate of the German nation and thereby was the German people's supreme judge."

"I hope confidently that if fate should at any hour call me from my place, my successor will not act differently and in case he, too, must abandon the field, the third one after us will be ready to safeguard the security of our people and nation with no less determination," Hitler said.

GULLS INNOCENT VICTIMS

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man., July 14. — Innocent victims of the farmers' campaign against grasshoppers—a battle which they were also successfully waging—thousands of Franklin gulls lie dead in the Delta marshes, just north of here. In nests many thousands of young gulls are dead from slow starvation. And like fate awaits thousands more. The birds met death while aiding the farmers in their war against the grasshopper scourge of the grain fields. They died slowly of arsenic poisoning spread by the farmers to check the hoppers.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT HOUSES

MASONRY

Among the trades mentioned in the following brief survey, that of masonry is one of first importance. All materials that are fastened or built into masonry work are handled by the mason contractor—brick, stone, terra cotta; the bedding of structural steel, such as lintels over openings, columns or beams; ornamental iron; pipe railings around outside basement stairways; area gratings, steel basement sash, etc.

Some Pointers on Construction

Footings are either concrete, stone or hard-burned common brick laid in cement mortar. There is no necessity for having a basement of greater extent than to include laundry, fruit room, boiler and fuel storage sections, although the expense of fully excavating under the entire house is not great and extra room is appreciated.

Basement walls are buit of stone, brick, concrete and concrete block, or combinations of these materials. Chimneys are sometimes lined with terra cotta or glazed tile flue lining, so that the clinging of soot will be reduced to a minimum.

To damp-proof the outside walls a half-inch coating of cement or asphalt paint is practicabe. If the dampness is excesive, however, it is a better plan to brush or trowel a pate nted compound into the walls. A weeping tile drain is necessary where the land slopes against the house. Where large basement windows are required for lighting purposes areaways may have to be built.

Distinctive Brick Faces

The right selection of face brick is of vital consequence. Not many thousands are required to build the average home, but an additional $2 or $3 per thousand in cost may place the stamp of quality on the simplest design. In some localities brick veneer is popular. Care should be taken, however, even though the wood sheathing be covered with waterproof paper, that no water is alowed to penetrate the brick. The arrangement of brick courses, color of mortar joints, etc., is usually delegated to the architect.

For porch floors, brick is not practicable; concrete, though less attractive, is cheaper. The prevailing choice is slate, stone, or combinations of these materials.

LOCARNO PACT CEMENTS PEACE

On Strength of New Security Another Disarmament Conference is Called.

WANT GERMANY IN.

GENEVA, July 14 (A.P.).—The world powers were committed today to another serious fling at disarmament next September by the official convocation of the steering committee of the disarmament conference.

Arthur Henderson, conference chairman, exchanged by the recent Franco-British conversations and the boom given to security pacts, officially called the committee meeting for the early days of the League of Nations Assembly beginning September 10.

The Eastern Locarno pact which France is fostering and which Great Britain and Italy have endorsed was regarded as a major factor in determination to carry on conversations in furtherance of world peace.

Henderson in a communique said, "In the light of information concerning the progress of conversations between governments, I believe it useful to convene the meeting."

Between now and September statesmen will devote their efforts to securing the return of Germany to the conference, as it is generally realized her presence is necessary to its success.

Lost Society Airmen Are Reported Safe

WATERTOWN, N.Y., July 14.—(AP)—Two New York City Society airmen and their wives were reported safe at Wellesley Island in the St. Lawrence River after fears had been held early last night that they had been forced down enroute because of bad weather over New York state.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward O. McDonnell and Major and Mrs. John McDonnell, the four at first feared lost, landed at the Island as Flight Commander Richard F. Hoyt was debating whether to report their absence.

They had been unreported since taking off at Port Washington for Albany, Oneida Lake, and St. Lawrence. The McDonnells said they had halted and then resumed their flight after a rain storm.

MILLIONAIRE DIPLOMAT FREED AS ALIEN GANGSTER SUSPECT

Acting on Advice From Chicago, British Held South American

MAY SUE POLICE

London.—A millionaire visitor to England stepped from the dock of Bow St. police court—free.

Free of the charge of failing to register as an alien—a technical offence of which he was acquitted under the Probation of Offenders Act.

Free, also of the suspicion of being a Chicago kidnapper and gangster.

The millionaire was Senor Julio Enrique Roman, a mining engineer from South America.

He had come to England with a diplomatic passport on a diplomatic mission. He was also engaged on a large deal in oil running into hundreds of thousand of pounds.

Similarity in Names

The United States police sent a cablegram stating that Senor Roman was believed to be identical with a man "wanted" for kidnapping.

Detective Sergeant Veness, of Scotland Yard, said it had now been definitely established that there had been an unfortunate mistake by the Chicago police, due to similarity in names. Roman was not the man wanted for kidnapping.

When seen at his hotel, Senor Roman was furious. "I am thinking of bringing an action against the London and Chicago police," he declared with Latin fervor.

CLAIM "GHOST BUS" HERALDS ACCIDENT

Believe Medium of Death Passes at 1 a.m.

London.—Hundreds of people in North Kensington talk about the "Ghost Bus."

It passes, they say, from Cambridge Rd. gardens into St. Marks Rd.—the scene of a number of serious motor accidents—just as the clock of a neighboring church strikes "one."

"One more accident" is what residents say when a few moments afterwards they are awakened by the sounds of another crash.

At a Paddington inquest on Ian James Beaton, who died following a collision between his car and another driven by the chauffeur of the Hon. Samuel Vestey, it was stated that the crash occurred at the junction of St. Mark's Rd. and Cambridge gardens.

One o'clock is just a quarter of an hour after the last omnibus from Liverpool St. to Wormwood Scrubs has passed by the "death crossing."

J. Rouse, who lives a few yards from the junction, says there are many people, including motorists, who declare the "Ghost Bus" comes along after the regular service has stopped. Motorists swerve to avoid it, and crash, he claimed.

VILLAGERS PRAY AS BODY LOCATED

Drowned Girl Had Tried to Save Playmate

Tottington.—While a minister led the assembled villagers in prayer in this Lancashire village a girl's body was recovered from a mill pond.

The girl was Joan Walsh, aged eight, who had given her life in a vain attempt to save that of her five-year-old playmate, Kenneth Golding, son of the village policeman.

Rev. G. H. Spencer of St. John's Free Church, led the crowd of villagers, who had assembled on the embankment, in prayer when the girl's body was recovered.

Throughout the service he held the police-constable's hand.

Joan's body was removed on a stretcher through a crowd of weeping villagers to her home.

CALCUTTA DOCTORS ON MURDER CHARGE

Calcutta.—Three of Calcutta's most prominet doctors have been committed for trial in the high court charged with killing a man by injecting in him germs of a most deadly disease.

The accused doctors are: S. P. Bhattacharyo, D. R. Dhar and T. N. Brattacharjee.

With a man called B. C. Pande, they are accused of conspiring to murder Amarendra Pande, a step-brother of B. C. Pande.

It is alleged that, first, they obtained plague germs and introduced them into Pande's body by smearing them on his pince-nez.

This caused heart trouble, and for a time Pande was gravely ill. After much attention, however, he recovered.

Then, it is alleged, the four accused sent to a research institute in Bombay and from there obtained germs of a most deadly kind—germs unknown in Calcutta.

The doctors are accused of injecting these into Pande's body by means of a pinprick—seemingly by accident. Pande died soon afterwards and it is said that the doctors issued a death certificate. The body was then cremated.

KEEP NAVY PLAN SECRET

Seventy Workmen On Construction Sworn to Silence

Haverfordwest.—A mysterious admiralty plan is being carried out at Milford Haven.

Seventy men, all sworn to silence, are at work. They have fenced off sixty acres of land and have begun preparations for large-scale tunnelling operations.

It is known here that, a mile away, the admiralty propose to establish a $1,750,000 coaling depot, but the Milford Haven scheme has given rise to three theories.

These suggest that the secret works will prove to be:

1. An arsenal—a branch of Woolwich.
2. A new naval base.
3. An air base, to be linked up with the flying-boat station at Pembroke dock.

But these seventy workmen know they are working for the silent service—and they are saying nothing.

FOLLOWS HUSBAND AS MANX MEMBER

Woman M.P. Watches Interests of Laboring Class

Peel.—A gentle-faced woman with dark glowing eyes is making history in the historic Isle of Man.

She is Mrs. C. Shimmin, the first woman ever elected to the ancient Manx parliament, the House of Keys.

"I am only carrying on my husband's work," she said. "When he died two years ago he had been Labor member for Peel for nearly 14 years. Our little parliament—there are 24 members—is in some ways in advance of Westminster. We have, in addition to the old age pension a pension of ten shillings a week for men and women over 45 who are bedridden or physically unable to work."

BISHOP WOULD RETURN COLONIES TO GERMANY

Urges Self-Government for India in Speech Against War

London.—An astonishing speech, in which he urged Britain to get out of India and to give Germany back her colonies, was made by the Bishop of Birmingham (Dr. Barnes) recently. Britain, he said, should keep out of war at almost any cost.

"War is an evil—in all circumstances to be abhorred," he declared. "It is so great an evil that unless the certain alternative be loss of freedom nothing can excuse it. I am convinced that unless large scale war ceases civilization will perish."

Pleading for what he called a policy of "international righteousness" for Britain, he said: "I would, so far as this country is concerned, reverse the injustice of the Treaty of Versailles. For a beginning, I would, so far as such action depended on this country, restore to Germany the colonies handed at Versailles to our control. Then, further, I would give to India self-government, withdrawing all control save such as was needed for the maintenance of order during the period of transition.

The bishop exhorted all nations to submit disputes to an international tribunal, and a promise to abide by the decision given.

BLAME CHUM'S DEATH ON 'IRRESPONSIBILITY'

Judge Says Crime Can Be Committed at Twenty Years of Age

Folkestone.—"Due to the irresponsibility of youth."

This was a phrase added by an inquest jury to their finding that death was accidental in the case of 2nd. Lieutenant Harry Melville Thompson, aged 23, who was shot by his friend at Hythe Small Arms school.

The friend, Second-Lieut. G. H. F. Plinston, is 20 years old. "But youth of such an age is not absolved from all responsibility," said the coroner. "You can commit a crime at 20, so 'the irresponsibility of youth' won't do."

The foreman of the jury then asked if they should retire again.

The coroner said he had instructed them that they could return one of three verdicts—manslaughter, negligence to criminal negligence, or accidental.

The foreman, after again consulting with the jurymen announced that they considered there was negligence but not criminal negligence.

The coroner then entered the verdict as follows:

"Deceased died from gunshot wounds, such wounds being caused by the negligent discharge of a loaded pistol by Lieut. Plinston, but such negligence did not amount to criminal negligence."

GROOM TWICE MISSING FOR HIS OWN WEDDING

Preacher, Organist and Guests Wait in Vain

London.—Rev. T. B. Jehu, vicar of St. Matthew's church, Willesden, N.W., is wondering what to do if he is again asked to marry a certain couple.

Two days running the prospective bridegroom, a soldier on leave, has failed to turn up for his own wedding.

The first time was on a Thursday. The bridal party had assembled at the church and the organ was playing when a friend of the bridegroom walked in with a telegram saying he could not be present.

The guests got on with the wedding breakfast. In the middle of it the groom walked in and the wedding was arranged to take place at 9 a.m. the next day. On that day, neither bridegroom nor bride put in an appearance.

NATIVE CHIEFS BRING COLOR TO PADDINGTON

Rulers of Millions Pleased With British Woollen Socks

London.—Three men who have never seen a paved road, an omnibus or a hall porter and who do not understand a word of English, were plunged into London recently.

They are the Sultan of Sokoto, ruler of 1,369,000 people in the Northwest Nigeria; the Emir of Kano, from the northern provinces of Nigeria, and the Emir of Gwanda, ruler of 286,000 people on the northwestern boundary of Nigeria.

They and their entourage and Sir Offori Atta, the Gold Coast chief, who arrived on the same train, made the most startling spectacle Paddington station has seen for years.

Petunia satin embroidered with blue and yellow flowers, purple with orange, green and red striped trimmings, royal blue, gold brocade, yellow slippers, purple and silver turbans, decorated black and brown, adorned figures of marvellous dignity and sculptured beauty.

The dignity of these men, surrounded by staring English people, in an edifice of smoky stone, glass, taxicabs and trains such as they had never imagined, was superb.

Black, slim giants, with features that would have sent a sculptor into ecstacies, hands as small and slim as a woman's, noble carriage, and a lithe, swinging walk that is poetry in motion, such as no white man could ever hope to achieve.

They had been given woollen socks to help them meet the rigors of our English climate, and some of them liked them so much that they kept them on.

None of the emirs has been outside his own country before.

STAMPS CHANGED

British Postage to be "Better Value for Money"

Cambridge.—Britain is to have new postage stamps this summer. The first announcement of the change was made by Sir Kingsley Wood, postmaster-general, here.

The main change will be in the preparation and in the appearance of the new stamps. The actual design and size will not be altered, but colors will be deeper.

"They will be better in appearance and quality than the present stamps—better value for the money," said an official of the post office.

The new stamps will be prepared by the photogravure method instead of surface printing.

PRISONER ADMITS MURDER FOR WHICH MAN CONVICTED

"In 1928 I Should Have Been Strung Up," He Shouts In Court

OTHER SERVING LIFE

Nottingham.—A man who has already served four years of a life sentence for murder may find himself free as the result of an amazing outburst from the dock by a prisoner at the assizes.

The prisoner, Walter Prince, alias Jones, a 32-year-old laborer, was found guilty and sentenced to death for the murder of Harriet Shaw, aged 21, of Springfield Rd., Retford.

Prince, who was found by the jury fit to plead, insisted on giving evidence. Immediately he entered the box he shouted:

"I wish to make a statement before I kick-off. In 1928 I should have been strung up for the wilful murder of Mr. Armstrong, of Rusholme, Manchester. A man by the name of George —— is now doing penal servitude for life for something I did."

Protested Innocence

The man to whom Prince referred is George Fratson, aged 34, a piecer, who is now serving a life sentence for the murder, on May 4, 1929, of George Armstrong, aged 70, a hatter and hosier of Rusholme, Manchester.

Fratson was arrested at Preston and was sentenced to death at Manchester assizes on the capital charge. Throughout the trial he stoutly protested his innocence. The court of criminal appeal a few weeks later dismissed Fratson's application for leave to appeal against the sentence.

A fortnight later it was announced that Fratson had been reprieved and that the home office authorities were pursuing further inquiries into the case.

The Nottingham police say that they intend to communicate particulars of Prince's statement to the Manchester police and the necessary authorities.

Medical aid was summoned, and all the poisoned men and girls were taken to the Royal Victoria hospital. A special staff of doctors and nurses were called in to deal with the patients.

At first all but six were allowed to go home after treatment, but later ten others were recalled and detained in hospital.

The stage was set. His opponent had been chosen. The purses had been fixed. John's was to go to charity.

Two Sundays ago he was formally introduced at the Ring as a new recruit to professional boxing.

But a few days after his mother's return from the United States John strained his shoulder while throwing the medicine ball.

A doctor's certificate was sent to the management of the Ring stating that John Buckmaster would be unfit for the fight, which was then cancelled.

As Duncan sat in his classroom at the King Edward VI. grammar school here one morning recently the headmaster, C. Harper, entered.

The room was stuffy.

"Somebody open a window," said Harper.

Duncan jumped to obey. He pushed up a window, overbalanced, and fell twenty feet on to an asphalt path below. Three-quarters of an hour later he died in hospital.

BEQUEATHS $75,000 TO FRIEND OF YOUTH

The story of the friendship started 40 years ago, when Lady Hepburn, then Miss White Smith, Harry Hepburn, and John Dickson all lived in the same road in a North London suburb. Harry Hepburn was just starting the career which led him to a knighthood. Dickson was still at school at Eastbourne, but all three were great friends. They played golf and cricket together, and attended parties at each other's homes.

CHINESE PIRATES SEIZE SHIP LATER RELEASE BRITISHERS

STOLE BOYS' TOYS

Shanghai.—Becoming alarmed by British aeroplanes which persistently patrolled the country at the month of the Yellow river, Chinese bandits, who had kidnapped five Britishers, released them unharmed.

The British aircraft were employed with the full concurrence of the Chinese authorities.

All day long aeroplanes from the aircraft carrier Eagle were roaring up and down the Yellow River delta. In this expanse of creeks and marsh land the pirates were known to have gone to ground with their 26 captives —five British, one Japanese, and 20 Chinese.

Escape by sea was impossible, for the pirate junks would have had to run the gauntlet of the British, American, and Japanese warships which had assembled off the coast. On the landward side Chinese troops had drawn a cordon round the pirates' lair.

Adrift in Small Boats

Finding escape out of the question, the pirates soon found concealment difficult—even in the dense reed forests which cover the marshes in the delta.

The pirates, becoming terrified, apparently decided to get rid of their prisoners and they pushed them off in sampans (small native craft). G. D. Nicholl was the first to be located, about 30 miles up the river.

He told his rescuers how the pirates had got rid of him, with the Chinese prisoner as companion, and at once assured them that the other four Britons were fit and well.

The air activity, he said, had so alarmed their captors that the early release of all four was a certainty—as proved to be the case, for they were located soon afterward and taken on board the destroyer Whitshed.

"Passengers" Attack

The pirates' raid was the most impudent that has taken place in northern Chinese waters, which have been fairly free from piracy recently.

The Shuntien, a steamer belonging to Messrs. Butterfield and Swire, was on her maiden voyage from Tientsin to Shanghai. In the quiet of Sunday afternoon, in the gulf of Chihli, between Taku and Chefoo, a score of Chinese deck "passengers" suddenly showed themselves in their true colors.

After a short but fierce fight they seized command of the ship, gaining control of the bridge, engine-room, and wireless cabin and keeping the passengers below decks.

One of them, a clever navigator, then took the ship toward the mouth of the Yellow river, where five junks appeared, either commandeered or manned by accomplices.

They filled these junks with loot, consisting of cargo and the personal belongings of passengers. Even dress suits were taken, as well as trinkets and toys belonging to two little British boys who were travelling with their mother.

Then with their 26 hostages they disappeared into the swamps of the delta, having been in control of the ship for 24 hours.

CONVICT BRITISHER ON SPYING CHARGE

Gets Five Years Hard Labor for Obtaining Naval Secrets

Malta.—Three Maltese judges, sitting as a special tribunal, sentenced an Englishman to five years' hard labor on a charge of spying here.

He was Herbert Charles Pollok, said to belong to Brighton. With him in the dock was an Egyptian named Constantine Kahill, who was given the same sentence.

The two men were found guilty of obtaining information from warships which might be useful to an enemy power.

Astonishing precautions were taken to keep the evidence secret. The judges sat in camera and without a jury. Even the press was excluded and a warning was given that any divulging of the evidence would be held prejudicial to national safety.

STEAK TEMPTS LION AWAY FROM SOLDIER

Escaped Beast Prefers Sirloin to Man Within Its Grasp

Paris.—A soldier on furlough from the French balloon corps had a narrow escape from death when he met a young circus lioness on furlough from her cage.

Both the soldier and the lioness were taking an early morning constitutional through the empty streets of a Paris suburb.

The soldier started to run. The lioness gave chase. In a few bounds she caught up with the soldier, and with one flirtatious pat from her paws hurled him to the ground, where he lay bleeding from wounds in the scalp.

It was at this moment that Marcel, the keeper of the lioness, awakened by her blood curdling roars, rushed out of his caravan dressed only in a nightshirt.

He realized the situation. The lioness had smelt human blood. At any minute the lust of the jungle might rise in her, and the soldier be mauled to death.

So Marcel seized the weapons nearest him, which were a whip and a trident used by Neptune in the circus pageant. Thus equipped, he hurled himself at the beast, his nightshirt fluttering wildly in the wind.

Martha the Corsican, as the once-lovely red-haired lion tamer queen of the circus is known, then issued from the caravan kitchen clad in a blue kimona and dangling a gigantic piece of sirloin in her hand.

The lioness sniffed the appetizing odor of the sirloin, and left the soldier. Martha chained the lioness up and put her back in her cage.

The soldier was rushed to hospital by the police. He was not seriously hurt.

ACTIVE IN STERILIZATION

Berlin.—Three hundred and twenty-five persons have been sterilized in Berlin this year at the order of the Berlin sterilization court.

BANDITS DISTURB CAFE PATRONS

Throngs Chase and Capture Robbers Amid Bullets

Paris.—Three Italian bandits who attempted to raid a popular cafe in the heart of Paris found their escapade ending rather like a slapstick film.

The three, who had stolen a car, drove to a cafe on the Place des Ternes, where two of them leaped out and sprang at the cafe cashier, firing their revolvers wildly.

When, however, they tried to rejoin their companion in the car, his lack of experience in driving caused him to crash into a tree and before he had had time to think he found himself arrested.

Pursued by an angry crowd, the two fled down the street, still firing left and right.

Waving their firearms, they tried to board three successive taxis, but the cabs only stopped dead, and they had to jump out of the opposite doors.

Finally, with scores of people now after them, they rushed down the entrance to an underground station, the police capturing them just as they were about to board an outgoing train.

And though they kept up their stream of bullets to the last, not a single one of their pursuers was hit.

SEES SOVIET GAINING FIRST PLACE IN GOLD

Official Claims Russian Production to Increase $40,000,000 This Year

Moscow—"Last year the Soviet output of gold surpassed that of the United States and Canada combined. Very soon we shall overhaul the Rand mines, and thus take the world's first place as gold producers."

So stated one of the leading Soviet executives, M. Serebrovsky, head of the State Gold Trust. Stalin has recognized that in the modern economic world the greatest hunger is for gold, he believes.

The mines of South Africa, which to-day provide more than half the world's gold, will be exhausted in another 50 years. Then Russia will be able to dictate to the other countries of the world, he claims. It is only four years ago that M. Serebrovsky was appointed head of the Soviet Gold Trust. Educated abroad, with full command of French, English and German, it is said that he has first-hand experience of world gold mining. He estimates this year's Soviet gold production at $60,000,000, but declares that next year the total will reach $100,000,000. One of the richest gold producing mines in Soviet Russia was formerly owned by British shareholders. This is the famous Lena Goldfields, seized during the revolution.

LOCKED IN CAGE 15 YEARS SPY UNAWARE OF WORLD WAR

Faithful Fiancee Gains Freedom for Convict From Devil's Island

"DAZED BY CHANGE"

Paris.—Fifteen years in a cage, like a wild beast, on a tiny island in a tropical climate, with no one to speak to.

Such was the experience of ex-Lieutenant Benjamin Ullmo, who has just arrived here, after undergoing 26 years' penal servitude on Devil's Island for having betrayed his country while under the spell of a modern Delilah, known as "La Belle Lison."

The evidence was so strong against him when he was arrested in 1907 that he had the sympathy of no one but his fiancee, Mlle. Blanche Dupuis, who forgave him his association with the "Delilah" of the case and vowed that she would spend her life working for his release.

Many speak of all the French penal settlements as Devil's Isle, but, as a matter of fact this name actually belongs to a particular island reserved for political prisoners.

Captain Alfred Dreyfus and Ullmo are the only two in recent years who have served their sentences there.

Years of Silence

Fifteen years out of his 26 were served by Ullmo on this island. He was kept in a cage-like cell, and even his warders refused to talk to him.

During all this time he was ignorant of what was taking place in the world and was unable to write to or receive letters from his sweetheart. It was not until the end of 1922 that he was transferred to another island, where he learned of the Great War.

Though without an answer to her many letters, Mdlle. Dupuis never ceased her efforts to secure remission of his penalty.

These efforts were unavailing until this year, when, having at last received letters from Ullmo, she pleaded his case to the president of the republic.

Later she received word that a free pardon had been granted to the exile and that he would be returned to France at once.

Recently Ullmo arrived here en route to his native Toulon. "I am dazed by the change in the world," he said. "It will take me years to get accustomed to it. Only one thing is unchanged. It is the love of my faithful sweetheart."

"QUEEN" SUES GOVERNMENT

Paris.—The "queen" of a tropical island, married to a French policeman, is suing the French government for an increase in her royal allowance of $300 a year. She is Queen Salinda Machimba, of Moheli, near Madagascar, though she is known in private life as Mme. Camille Paule, and lives in the little village of Clery, in central France.

OWE BLISS TO WINE AGED COUPLES CLAIM

Saint-Julien-de-Beychevelle. — The health of the French president was toasted in the warm, red wines of the Medoc by some 480 couples, married from 50 to 70 years, who avowed, amid cheers and rejoicing, that their health and happiness lay in "the good Bordeaux wine."

At the church the couples were "remarried" at the altar, heaped with flowers.

Husbands and wives of the Medoc region, whose years entitled them to golden wedding honors were awarded gold medals.

"You are a living testimony of the health-giving qualities of your wine," said the president.

CZAR'S ROUMANIAN ENVOY KEEPS JOB

Eagle Still Guards Last Outpost of Former Royalty

In 1918 the Bolsheviks shattered the Russian imperial crown. The czar and his family were murdered, the Soviets mastered Russia.

The imperial diplomatic corps all over the world was swept away to make room for proletarian ambassadors of Soviet Russia. All except one—his excellency Count Koziel Poklovesky, envoy and minister plenipotentiary of the czar of all the Russians to the court of Roumania.

Almost every government came in time to recognize the new regime in Russia. When the new ambassadors and ministers arrived to take up their posts abroad the black double-headed eagle of the Romanoff's disappeared from embassies and was replaced by the proletarian hammer and sickle.

Stood By Imperialists

But Roumania did not recognize the new regime. The eagle still held away over the embassy in Bucharest. Count Koziel Poklovesky held on to this last outpost of czarist Russia; carried out his "duties" as imperial Russian ambassador. Carried them out until now.

True the count used only one wing of the spacious building in Bucharest.

True, too, that some of the broken window-panes have been filled in with paper, that the proud imperial eagle over the main entrance is now held together by a piece of wire.

But, inside, the bust of the czar still dominates the main salon, even though the paintings, tapestries, plate, and most of the furniture have been sold.

So the count will also go. The last of the imperial Russian ambassadors will have vanished.

POLAND USES LINEN TO AID OWN WORKS

Government Acts to Cut Down Cotton Imports

Warsaw.—Linen for soldiers, officials and society women is decreed by no less a style dictator than the Polish government, which seeks thus to encourage the use of domestic products.

With the slogan "Our land must feed and clothe us," the government seeks to cut down importation, most of it from the United States. About $19,000,000 worth came in last year.

First to adopt linen was the army, for whose summer uniforms $2,000,000 was appropriated. The ministry of public instruction, department of posts and telegraphs, and other public offices also ordered that summer uniforms be of linen.

Bags for coins, salt, tobacco and similar articles are being made by state monopolies out of linen alone.

Polish women, too, entered wholeheartedly into the drive. Mme. Jadwiga Beck, wife of the foreign minister, fostered the fashion of linen dresses trimmed with peasant embroidery.

The slogan first was enunciated by General Lucjan Zeligowski, the leader, who seized Wilno in 1920 and who now lives quietly on a farm near that town and grows flax. On that principle the government adopted a bill to foster the cultivation of flax and hemp.

Foodstuffs grown in Poland constitute one of her main exports, but for long she has had to import so many textiles that clothing material has formed 22 per cent. of her imports.

Experimental work with flax and other fibre plants is being conducted at the University of Wilno. Another effort to stimulate interest in flax was made at an exposition here designed to show the value of Polish linen in comparison with cotton products.

FIND FISH ON SHRUBS THAT'S NATIVES' STORY

Claim Carp Carried Five Miles Before Falling!

Geelong.—It rained fish during a recent storm five miles from this town in Victoria, Australia. After the storm small carp, some weighing several ounces, were found in fields at Grovedale, natives claim.

No dam or water supply is close to the field, so it is believed the fish were sucked out of the only lake in the district by a vortex during the storm, and carried five miles in the air before being scattered.

Some fish were found hanging in shrubs and several were impaled on a barbed wire fence.

SMART WOMEN "GO NATIVE"

Paris.—South Sea Island costumes will be worn by smart women on European beaches this summer. At a cocktail party just given by M. and Mme. Jacques Heim in their Neuilly home, the atmosphere of Tahiti and the coral islands was evoked by dancers in native costumes, while mannequins displayed pareos and saronga to the smart gathering.

Kent's Creek Named After Otonabee's First White Settler

FORCED TO COME TO THIS COUNTRY BY HARD TIMES

Peterborough's early history, in which his forebears took such an active part.

One year before Adam Scott built the first mill in Peterborough, at the foot of King Street, the township of Otonabee was surveyed and a party of emigrants, sponsored by Peter Robinson, arrived in the early summer of 1819.

Conducted by Captain Charles Rubidge, this party included some thirty people of which George Kent and his family were members. These emigrants, as we have said, were of a high type. They were forced to this country by circumstances, not banished to Canada. They were not drawn to it as adventurers, neither did they rush here for the love of gold—but for the very same reason that our families are scattering to-day to other countries, with the hope of escaping a depression with which they could not cope.

14 Weeks' Journey.

The journey of this particular party required three and a half months, fourteen weeks, all by water. Landing in Quebec, they rested and, laying in supplies, took smaller craft and made their way, almost by hand, to Cobourg, where they again rested before undertaking the last stretch of their toilsome journey' The land where Cobourg now stands could, at that time, be bought for fifty cents per acre, and was a temptation. However, this party of emigrants were destined for the newly-surveyed township of Otonabee and they trailed their way over a very primitive road, if it could be called a road at all, to Harwood, on the south shore of Rice Lake' This fifteen-mile trek meant a great many hardships for the women and children, even though lumber wagons had been provided for them. The final lap of their long journey was to cross Rice Lake, since the only access to Otonabee township was by way of Rice Lake and the Otonabee River. The lake was very shallow and treacherous, owing to the wild wind storms which frequently sweep over it and many have been caught and drowned in its rough stormy waters.

However, Peter Robinson, with rare foresight, had himself planned for this party of his, a capacious but very primitive flat-bottomed boat, which, though propelled by oars, was large enough to accommodate the whole party with plenty of room for all their belongings' The boat measured from end to end, sixty-five feet and was eight feet wide. Can we picture this boat to-day as we sail blithely across from Harwood and enter the Otonabee in our jaunty little steamers? And when we view the beautifully cleared farm lands dipping down to the river's edge it is difficult for us to see these same banks one solid mass of woods' A glory of many shades of green compared with the changing maple leaf to its glowing russets and reds. Here trees mingled as friends, the pine and the oak standing side by side with the birch and shady elms, with arms about each other'

It was into this picture that our boat oad of newcomers from the old land sailed' Mothers weary and tired after nearly four months on the water with little children peevish and troublesome. Was it a wonder that they longed for a place to stop, a place to rest, a place they could make into homes. Being young, with ambition and hope, they did not grow discouraged with the thought of much hard work and long waiting for houses and barns and other comforts in a new home they might call their own' It was with this feeling that the George Kent family entered for the first time the Otonabee River. Here they knew they were entering the township to which they were destined to be the first settlers and it was with some disappointment they saw the sun slowly sinking from view.

They had gone up the river about three miles and were casting about for a place to land their large and unwieldy boat, for, having no regular guide, they took the Indian advice that when nightfall came and the sun within a couple of hand's breadth of the horizon, to look no farther but to stop where landing was possible' "What is this?" they asked, when a tall clump of trees marked an opening at the right. So they changed their course which brought them into new waters for branching out of the river was a little creek which they followed for a space and then stopped for the night, little reckoning that here was to be their real home and the home of a long line of posterity'

Can you imagine them—and smell the faintly pungent blue smoke wafted to them from their first clean wood fire, and eating their first meal on the banks of the little, newly-discovered creek? What could have been better than a supper in such circumstances, cooked in the open and eaten by the firelight? They were glad and ready to lie down upon their improvised beds of cedar boughs over which their blankets were spread. They expected to for a e this camping place in the n g ing out they remained and to day it is the ancestral homestead of a large and proud family

Settled in Otonabee.

Great was their surprise when they saw the beauty of their camp with its giant trees in the light of a summer morning sunrise' This place seemed good to George Kent and his wife, and it was thus that the first white man settled in the township of Otonabee, bordering on the little creek which is now known as "Kent's Creek".

Out of the many newcomers who spent their first night here only the George Kent family remained. On this site now stands a pretty summer cottage built by John Coward, a great grandson of the first settler, George Kent.

There are spots that one touches in life's little, or great, journeys, as there are people one meets, that are never forgotten, providing a lasting and indeed indestructible matrix for memory's records and from which new editions are struck off to the last unit of time. Such a spot is the George Kent homestead and such a man was George Kent.

The family consisted of father and mother and their three little sons, John, George and Hugh, all born in England. Their first steps as settlers in this new land were to clear their farm acres and perform settlement duties by order of the government. The first hundred acres was cleared with a thirty-three foot allowance for a road. A similar adjoining road was cleared by a neighbour and made the required wide public roadway of Otonabee township.

Aided Newcomers.

When this was finished, Mr. Kent was ready to continue the clearing of his land and to erect suitable buildings. With all this, he was never too busy or self-centred to help other newcomers in settling. Captain Rubidge, himself, liking the spot so well, returned in May the next year and took up a homestead, upon which he and his family lived, and where he farmed for over forty years. The old Rubidge homestead is now owned by Thomas Taylor and it was here that the first Post Office was opened in Otonabee. In 1841, Captain Rubidge moved to Peterborough, where he was appointed Registrar for the county, which position he held until his death in 1873.

Just five years after the family settled in Otonabee was the advent of the first white child born in the township. This was William Kent, who grew up in a home of thrift into a useful and well-to-do citizen who had a large share in the building up of his community. William Kent, our first Otonabee child, married Alice Mather, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Mather, came to Canada in 1825 with another Peter Robinson party and settled in Otonabee where they were neighbors of the Kents' Their original home is now known as "Mather's Corners". This family also had its share in making the history of the township. Being a carpenter, Mr. Mather was in his element in a country where lumber was plentiful and many homesteads to build.

His family of five boys and four girls could scarcely hide their light under a bushel, even in this new world. They all settled in Otonabee but one son, Sam Mather, who drifted from home and settled in the Southern States. He, too, was provident, for when slavery was abolished, Sam Mather owned one hundred slaves who were so loyal they would not leave him. Another son, Andrew Mather, bought a farm on the Hiawatha road, and his youngest son, John, is still living on the old homestead at the age of seventy-six years. So, Andrew Kent of Peterborough, named for his grandfather Mather, has a long and highly respected line of ancestors on both the paternal and the maternal side of his family. His father, William Kent, Otonabee's first white child, lived his whole lifetime on the old homestead, dying in 1903 in the same, but vastly improved surroundings, in which he was born seventy-eight years before.

Happy Family.

In speaking of his father, Andrew Kent paid high tribute to his fine character as a Christian gentleman, as a father, as a neighbor and as a citizen. One can easily visualize the happy family of William Kent, whose wife (Alice Mather) was not only a companion to her husband, but to her boys and girls. In a great measure, this story is indebted to these confidences for Andrew Kent has a very retentive memory. He distinctly remembers the very solemn death-bed scene of his grandmother Mather, when he was but two-and-a-half years old.

The nearest Sunday school was five miles away, and Mr. Kent owes to the teaching of his sainted mother, much of his knowledge of the scriptures. She, with a neighbor, Mrs. Robinson, took turns in gathering the children of the community into their homes on Sunday afternoons where they read together and had the Bible explained to them. What a contrast to the homes of 1934!

Then, too, the children were taught that to be happy they must be useful and the Kent family was no exception to this rule. When Andrew Kent was thirteen years of age and his little sister, Sarah, but eleven, they had the great adventure of "sugar-making". Sugar of any kind was scarce in those days and springtime was busy time, then, as now, on the farm. With all the work and necessary improvements this special year, the father could not take on the added burden of the sugar bush' However, he had not trained his children in vain, so when they made the momentuous proposition to him—that if he would "tap the trees" they would do the work—he took them quite seriously and kindly. The boy and girl undertook what was very real work, and what was intentionally made real work if we believe the old Indian legend. This legend tells us that maple sugar was first made in 1690 by Nokomis, grandmother of Manabush, a popular hero of Indian tales and legends' Nokomis bored the holes in the maple trees and placed a vessel under each. When Manabush found the vessels filled with a thick syrup, he said: "Grandmother, it is not good that trees should produce syrup in this easy way. If man can gather sugar like that they will become lazy and they should be made to work, compelled to chop wood and spend nights in watching over boiling syrup."

Fearing that Nokomis would do nothing, Manabush climbed the trees and poured a bucket of water into the top of each, which dissolved the sugar in the maples. Since then, there has been no thick syrup run from the maple tree and now the sap contains only from one to two per cent' of sugar, and the real maple sugar or syrup is only obtained through work.

So it was actual labour for these two children, that might well daunt grown men or women, to look after the product from seventy-five maple trees. When the season closed, there were over a hundred pounds of sugar, besides all the maple syrup needed for family use.

Long and toilsome was the work, but what happy children were this boy and girl, who remember it all clearly to-day. How they gathered the troughs full of sap and carried them to large kettles, dipping from one to the other as they heated' When boiled to syrup, they carried it home in pails for Mother to boil into sugar on the stove, while they stole away to sleep and rest. These are literally "sweet memories" of their happy youth down the Otonabee.

Another important event of his boyhood, as recalled by Andrew Kent, was the building of the road through the swamp over the old Hiawatha road. The township called for tenders and the contract was given to William Kent, at his bid of one hundred and forty dollars with all material gratis and all labour to be paid by the contractor.

The preparation for the foundation of this road is of great interest, when we think of the concrete pavements and highways over which we drive to-day. This road, however was built of cedar, black ash and gravel, with logs fourteen feet long and twelve inches across at the ends. The land was measured and covered with cedar and recovered with six inches of gravel. A large order for one hundred and forty dollars, out of which Mr. Kent had to pay for all the labour he employed. We may think of this when we pass that way again.

As was quite natural, the new settlers soon came to know the Indians, whose reserve adjoined them. They found them to be good friends and neighbours, whose chief industry was trapping, hunting and fishing.

The rice, from which Rice Lake derived its name, was given to the Indians by government grant and was their staple food. They harvested it in the fall with their canoes usually going by twos. The stalks were bent over the canoes and the grain beaten out. When full, they took it to land and placed it in kettles over a steady fire, stirring with wooden ladles until the rice was well parched. Then it was husked and ready for use, and was cooked much the same as we cook other rice.

In those early days, when a neighbour wanted to erect a building of any kind, he had but to choose his location, get the logs cut, and gather them into a pile on the spot. There were always four or five expert axemen, who would take each a corner of the building, and not leave it till it was completed. If it were a house they would lay the logs, put on the roof and chink all cracks, plaster it and leave it ready for the family to move in.

Andrew Kent recalls how his father, William Kent, after his crops were in, was wont to spend four or five weeks helping his neighbours to build. Starting out on this mission of helpfulness, he drove his handsome yoke of pure white oxen, which weighed twenty-three hundred pounds. The boys of the Kent family all learned how to farm and the first ploughing Andrew Kent ever did was with this white ox team.

Another happy memory of his boyhood were the "logging bees" and the last one at the old home will have a tang of interest for the dwellers of Otonabee to-day. At this last bee, Mr. Kent remembers there were forty-five men and it required five men to manage the work of each yoke of oxen.

That day they logged up nine acres of woods. A bee was as impossible in that time without liquor as it would be without food and in that one day, five gallons were consumed, averaging nearly a pint to each man. The liquor was neither "wine" nor "beer", but the real thing—hard whiskey. "However, there was also a great plenty of good food, provided by my father," said Mr. Kent.

One of Mr. Kent's early and vastly interesting memories is of the building of the Hiawatha church. His father, William Kent, also had a share in this historic church. He burned the lime for building the foundation and Andrew, as a young boy, drew it to the site of the new church. "We were all at the dedication in 1870," said Mr. Kent, and he remembers distinctly the fine choir of Indian singers. Many Peterborough people came to Hiawatha for this event.

Made Own Clothing.

During these early days in Otonabee there was an "old spinning wheel" in the kitchen—not the parlor—where it was put to actual use and was not merely an antique ornament. Every farmer had a drove of sheep, and a man named MacDougall, who had learned weaving in Scotland, did a good business among the farmers. Mrs. William Kent secured a web each of flannel and full-cloth every year and made it up into coats, suits and even dresses, for her family, with her own nimble fingers.

It was then a well-worn proverb that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." (There are no dull boys to-day because of too much work). When winter came, sleigh rides in the hay rack were in order. The "crowd" was gathered up and wrapped in blankets and robes, to the tune of sleigh bells they wended their way to some home to which they had been invited. Perhaps to an "apple-cut" which was one of the winter's most hilarious indoor sports. Here the apples were pared with a machine which we see no more to-day. They were cored and strung onto stout cord and likely hung from the rafters to dry. That was the day when dried apples were the standard fruit dish and guaranteed to "keep" the year round.

There was always a "fiddler" to be found at these thrilling parties and when ten o'clock came, the apples and the work were hidden away and a sumptuous supper was served. When everyone had done full justice to the repast, the floor was cleared and a jolly social dance was enjoyed far into the wee sma' hours. A hat was passed and the proceeds handed to the fiddler without a word.

"Taffy pulls" and "sugar parties" were also favorite forms of entertainment. However, there was always the spiritual side to the social times of the young people when Mr. Kent was a boy, for the crowd gathered once a week for the old time "class-meeting". This was really an "experience" meeting. And still they say that "The Oxford Group" is something entirely new!

Just across the river from Kent's Creek, you may remember, lies "Darkey Island". A Negro came from no one knew where and lived in solitude on this island, giving it the name by which it has always been known. He was a lonely creature who spent his time in fishing and selling his catches for food. One day he was found dead in his shanty which is always pointed out to strangers sailing down the river as "Darkey Island" with the haunted shanty.

Campbelltown is another interesting spot near the old Kent home and derived its name from a man named Campbell, who owned a farm of two hundred and eighty acres in the vicinity. He gave the Otonabee township council a right-of-way to the river, and being a specially beautiful location, it became a very popular picnic ground. The river bank was lovely and a grain wharf was built at the end of the road, making it a place of business, as well as pleasure. All along this shore, and far back, was a wonderful growth of pine which Mr. Campbell solden bloc for $16,000. The property was later bought by J. J. Howden, who is still a resident in Otonabee.

There was a fine beach at Campbelltown and it was here that Andrew Kent, with many other boys of the neighborhood, learned to swim. "And," he added, "in those days, no one ever heard of such a thing as 'mixed bathing' and would have been shocked indeed had they thought the time would come, when young ladies would walk the streets of Peterborough dressed merely in bathing suits.

Otonabee township was a very fine arming district and this occupation was a good and profitable business sixty-two years ago, when William Kent and a neighbour, Mr. Adamson, bought a threshing outfit from Richard Mowry, who kept a foundry in East City. They hired Andrew, then a boy of fifteen, to drive the horse power. The threshing season began about the 15th of August and it was usually the first of April before they finished. The most they ever received at that time for a job of threshing was eight dollars. The first day's work done by the Kent-Adamson outfit was for a man named Crowley, who realized five hundred bushels of wheat. This outfit also threshed for the Hiawatha Indians, who were very industrious and grew a splendid sample of grain. In the Indian Reserve, which adjoined the George Kent property, there was 1,550 acres of the best of land. Each member of the band of Indians received an annuity of twelve dollars in money, which was paid to them quarterly, and meant to them affluence.

Andrew Kent lived with his father on the old Kent homestead, until he was twenty-four years of age, when he married Mary Elizabeth Gillespie. In reviewing his courtship, Mr. Kent said he was somewhat in awe when it came to interviewing his prospective father-in-law to ask for the hand of his daughter. While he was of a well-to-do family, he was approaching a wealthy, but a kind and understanding man, who desired for his daughter a husband of character rather than wealth. So he said: "My boy, you have as much as I had when I started," and gave the young couple his blessing. They started their new life on a fifty-seven acre farm which Mr. Kent rented from his uncle Nicholas Swan, paying $120 a year for rent and taxes. Mrs. Kent's father, James Gillespie, was a native of County Down, Ireland, coming to Canada in 1850 to settle in South Monaghan. After fifteen years, he moved to Otonabee township, where he bought 400 acres on lots 11 and 12 of the 12th concession, and were neighbours of the Kents. In 1854 James Gillespie married Esther Barnard, a piece of whose handiwork at the age of eleven years, in the form of a quaint old-time sampler, hangs today in the home of her grand-daughter, Mrs. W. D. Sargent, Lansdowne Street, Peterborough.

Retired to Peterborough.

Just twenty-six years ago, after a long and useful life spent in Zion, Otonabee, Mr. and Mrs. Kent came to reside in Peterborough. To express the esteem in which they were held and the regret felt at their leaving a home which has helped to make the history of Otonabee, the congregation of Zion Methodist Church, who were all friends and neighbors, gathered at their home on January 10th, and presented them with a beautiful writing cabinet and secretary, which is still a treasured possession in Mr. Kent's home. An address was read by Rev. William Johnston and the presentation was made by John Lancashire and Joseph Manley.

When Mr. Kent bought his quarter of an acre on Lansdowne Street, he paid only $440 for it and the taxes but $9 when his house was erected. At that time there were only thirteen houses east of Lock Street and south of Lansdowne. So Mr. Kent has lived to see great progress and growth in the city of his adoption.

On the first Sunday in their new home, Mr. and the late Mrs. Kent attended and joined The Treasure Seekers Bible Class in St. James Methodist (now United) Sunday school. Mr. Kent served this class in an official capacity for fifteen years, and is still a faithful and honoured member. One of the activities of this class which might prove interesting to-day, was an excursion to the Thousand Islands when a train was chartered in Peterborough for $140. The round trip cost each individual only $2.60 and the class cleared $60.

Mr. Kent keeps well in touch with the old days and old friends. A letter recently received from Joshua Robinson, Carson City, Nevada, recalled days in the old log school house down the Otonabee. And, of those who attended that school nearly seventy years ago, only Mr. Robinson, who is in his eightieth year, Mrs. John Lancashire, Mrs. C. Curtis, Mrs. Frank Henderson, John Emberson and Mr. Kent, remain. And in looking back, Mr. Kent said, "It seems but a handbreadth of time since those school days." He is enjoying unusually good health and takes an active interest in both church and political life and resides with his second wife, formerly Sarah Duncan Stenton, in the fine home he built twenty-six years ago on Lansdowne Street. His two children, Enos Kent, who lives on the old homestead, and Edith, Mrs. W. D. Sargent, Peterborough, live to comfort Mr. Kent's later years. Mr. Kent has three grandchildren, Mary Wood (Mrs. Edwim Rowe), Miss Zetta Wood and Miss Eleanor Kent, and two great-grand-children, Gordon and Marion Rowe.

Family Record.

Though one hundred and fifteen years have elapsed since Peter Robinson was instrumental in bringing to Canada, and Otonabee, George Kent and his family, who proved to be its first settlers, Andrew Kent has kept a fair record of his people and so far as he has been able to gather it, the following is a list of the family names:

George Kent and wife, of Nottingham, England, first settlers in Otonabee. Sons:

1. John—land agent. Left two sons and one daughter.

2. George—farmer. Married a Miss King. Left one son and four daughters. His grandson, George Kent 3rd., now lives on his homestead at Plainville.

3. Hugh—Married Julia Collins. Left three sons and one daughter. One of these sons is William Kent, druggist, Peterborough. John, George and Hugh Kent were all born in England and came to Canada with their parents in 1819.

4. William—the first white child born in Otonabee, married Alice Mather. Children, four daughters and two sons:

Andrew—Married, 1st., Elizabeth Gillespie; 2nd., Sarah Duncan Stenton.
George—died.
Annie Jane—died.
Sarah Margaret Henderson.
Alice Counter.
Louisa Taylor.

Many years have passed since men first made their way into an unopened township, but still the Otonabee pursues its winding way past all the scenes related of the long ago and with, doubtless, countless secrets of that time locked within its peaceful breast. What a strange tale it might tell of improvements wrought since that distant day. And what a different world would greet William Kent, could he return to his ancestral acres to speak over the telephone, to hear the wonders of the radio, and to see the great winged airplanes glide overhead.

Still we have need, in our new and improved world, of many of the pioneer virtues. Of courage, honesty and a perseverance which conquers over almost insurmountable obstacles. Equipped with these, it would be hard to predict what the next hundred years may bring forth.

An American collector recently paid $1700 in London for a sixteenth-century Saxon suit of tilting armor which had come from Germany.

Historic Fort Niagara Recreated To Former Glory

An aerial view of the reconstructed and historic Fort Niagara which has been brought back to a semblance of its former glory after seven years' work and an expenditure of over half a million dollars. The fort was first founded in 1678 and was the scene of two centuries of conflict involving France, Great Britain and the United States, which countries successively held it. The fort will be opened officially during a three-nation celebration, Sept. 3 to 6. The skeletons of unknown Colonial soldiers were moved in an impressive ceremony to the crypt of a monument being erected in honor of the Rush-Bagot treaty between the U.S. and Canada.

ANOTHER TERRORIST BOMB FOUND IN PARIS STREETS

PARIS, July 14.—(A.P.)— Another bomb, still without the now familiar note from "The Three Judges of Hell" was found to-day in a street in the south-west section of Paris.

Yesterday one was found in the base of a lamp post and police began investigating a renewal of the campaign of terror which mysteriously ceased three weeks ago.

The bomb found to-day was placed before a block of apartment houses but the fuse was not lighted. Presumably it was intended to frighten instead of to destroy.

The bomb was a simple iron cylinder eight inches long and two and half in diameter with a fuse at the end. Police said it contained a yellow substance, presumably explosive which was being examined in a laboratory.

Killaly—Macdonald

A wedding of unusual charm was solemnized this afternoon at three o'clock, in St. Andrew's United Church, when Marguerite Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Macdonald, was married to Laurence Stansfield Killaly, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Killaly, Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. C. V. McLean, before a background of beautifully arranged summer flowers forming a colour scheme of pink, blue and white, which was carried out in all the decorations. Miss Mabel Clarry presided at the organ throughout the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attended by Miss Mary Macdonald, her sister, as maid of honor; Miss Anne Macdonald, also a sister of the bride, and Miss Edith Killaly, sister of the groom, as bridesmaids.

Mr. Robert Macdonald attended the bridegroom and the ushers were Mr. Dudley Jessopp, of Chicago, Mr. Mac. Donnelly and Mr. Angus Macdonald, of Peterborough.

The bride was lovely in a gown of white bridal satin with pearl trimming, fashioned in formal classic lines with long close-fitting sleeves. Her veil, a family heirloom, was of tulle and chantilly lace, caught at either side with clusters of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white gardenias and lilly of the valley. Her attendants were dressed alike in poudre blue gowns with cornflower blue hats, gloves and shoes, and carried quaint bouquets of blue and pink corn-flowers.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the beautiful gardens at the home of the bride's parents, 300 London street. Mrs. Macdonald, the bride's mother, gowned in blue georgette, with hat, shoes and gloves of the same shade, and wearing a corsage bouquet of pink roses, received the guests. She was assisted by the groom's mother, Mrs. A. L. Killaly, who was attired in light blue flowered crepe, with trimming of a darker shade and matching accessories. Also assisting at the reception were Miss E. Morrow, Mrs. Duncan Walker, Mrs. N. Buchanan, Mrs. J. F. Strickland and the bride's three attendants, Misses Mary and Anne Macdonald and Miss Edith Killaly.

Beneath the marquee on the lawn, the table was lovely done in a cloth of silver and centred with the wedding cake which was also decorated in the prevailing colours of pink, blue and white. There was a profusion of flowers everywhere, with the natural beauty of the gardens forming a lovely setting for the small tables arranged in cosy groups.

Among the large number present at the wedding and reception were the following out-of-town guests: Mrs. Robert Stuart, Chicago, grandmother of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. John Stuart, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Stewart and Miss Anne Stuart, Chicago; Mrs. Walter Jones, Chicago; Mrs. Alexander Laird, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Alexander McBain, Toronto and Mr. and Mrs. James Eson, Boston, Mass.

Fourteen children, little girl friends of the bride, formed a very interesting group at the reception.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Killaly left on a boat trip, the bride wearing a chic ensemble of blue georgette, with blue hat trimmed with white and matching shoes and gloves.

Upon their return from a month's honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Killaly will reside in Peterborough.

NEW DALAI LAMA FOUND IN TIBET

Spirit of Expiring Buddist Pontiff Transferred to New-born Child.

STATE IN FURORE.

DARJEELING, Bengal, July 14 (AP)—The neighboring land of Tibet is in a furore, said unconfirmed reports reaching here today, over the discovery of a new Dalai Lama, the reincarnation of the Buddhist pontiff who died last December at Lhasa.

For seven months religious emissaries have been searching the mysterious land of Tibet from end to end, seeking a baby who was born at the exact moment the Dalai Lama ceased to breathe.

Buddhists believe that the spirit of the expiring Buddhist pontiff is transferred to a new-born child, who eventually will don the priestly robes of the man who rules the Buddhist world from the white and crimson palace at Lhasa, the Tibetan capital.

In the meantime the head of Reting Monastery, two days' journey north of Lhasa, has been ruling the "Forbidden Land" pending discovery of the new incarnation.

While emissaries were hunting for the babe, all Tibet has been indulging in prayer. Holy men examined the heads of all infants to determine if they bore the distinctive marks laid down by tradition.

BARBEAU STORY IS SAID ABSURD

Boy Has Comfortable Home in Peterborough if He Wishes to Stay.

ATTENDING SCHOOL.

Declaring the story of neglect which his 15-year-old son, Joseph Barbeau told Sudbury police when picked up the other day as a homeless wanderer to be absurd, Archie Barbeau of this city stated to-day that the lad has a comfortable home here if he wishes to stay. He has run away from the city on four different occasions, Mr. Barbeau said.

Due to the size of his family, he boarded the boy at a good home in Peterborough, the father relates. The board bill was paid regularly and there was no reason for him to run away. He was plentifully supplied with clothes and other needs.

Contrary to the boy's statement that he was forced to leave school, Mr. Barbeau reports that he was attending public school here up to the time of his disappearance and was to have written his entrance examinations. He suggests that it might have been a fear of the examinations which caused the youngster to run away.

CAR PRODUCERS ISSUE PROTEST

Want More Protection in New Zealand for British Cars.

CONCERNS CANADA.

WELLINGTON, N.Z., July 14. — C. P. Cable, Via Reuters.)— The British Society of Motor Manufacturers to-day cabled the New Zealand Government protesting against the Dominion's new tariff proposals which they claim fail to give the industry in the United Kingdom adequate protection against Canadian competition.

The protest followed expressions of disapproval by represetnatives of British automotive firms here. They maintained the new duties will fail to protect their firms against competition by Canadian cars which, they hold, are really United States' products exported through Canada.

On the other hand Sir Henry Page Croft, Conservative member of the British House of Commons and chairman of the executive of the Empire Industries Association, offered congratualtion to the government on what he called its generous tariff preferences to Britain.

Sir Henry assured New Zealand the Association appreciates its difficulties and will do its best to give reciprocal help.

HITLER SPEECH DISAPPOINTING TO ALL EUROPE

French Withhold Comment in Fear of Hampering Peace.

SPEECH CONTRADICTORY.

London Express Says Hitler Address Wild and Hysterical.

(By Associated Press.)

Disappointment at Chancellor Hitler's failure to discuss German foreign policy was the general reaction to his speech to-day in the European capitals.

Official comment was withheld, in some instances, until the text could be carefully studied.

Nationalist newspapers in Paris interpreted Hitler's silence on foreign affairs as an indication he is in no hurry to study the French proposal of an Eastern Locarno Part.

The French Foreign Office carefully withheld comment, fearful of hampering the delicate Locarno negotiations.

The commentator of the newspaper Figaro said the speech 'will disappoint both Germany and Europe," and that it was full of contradictions.

Army is Restive.

London's Daily Mail saw as an indication the German army was restive Hitler's statement that President Von Hindenburg had reconciled the Reichswehr to the present state of affairs.

Importance also was placed upon the Chancellor's assertion that the storm troop forces had been increased against his orders.

The Laborite Herald said Hitler "has revealed himself the obedient servant of the old gang, ready at any minute to kill anybody in its behalf, and the Reichstag enthusiastically followed the leader."

The London Express described Hitler's speech as "wild, screaming and hysterical," uttered "by the voice of a man on the verge of a breakdown."

Many Italian quarters expressed disappointment because foreign policy was not discussed. Thousands heard the broadcast, eager to learn Hitler's attitude toward the proposed Locario Pact.

RADIO REPORTER LIKES PETERBORO

Jim Hunter of the Toronto Telegram Holidaying at the Lakes.

Peterborough and the lower Kawarthas have won a new friend in Jim Hunter, the Toronto Telegram's talking reporter, a favorite with the radio legions in this district, who is spending a holiday at Catchacoma and Chemong Lakes and Deer Bay. He and Mrs. Hunter were shopping visitors inthe city this morning as a week-end break in leisurely fishing and resting among the lakes in the central part of this county.

Mr. Hunter called at The Examiner this morning, and in a conversation with members of the staff said that he had not previously realized the beauty and cleanness of this city.

He said he was greatly impressed with Peterborough, and remarked that the citizens evidently take a pride in the appearance of their city and their homes. And incidentally Mrs. Hunter has found prices in the local stores decidedly attractive.

The Telegram's radio interviewer is delighted with the lower Kawarthas and the holiday facilities so close to Peterborough and Toronto. Mr. Hunter intimated that when he gets back on the job again he is going to hand the city and the lake district a "plug" over the air.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Coolness can be cultivated in decoration. Several features which contribute to it can be introduced into the decoration of any room. Consideration of this fact costs nothing, and a number of the measures recommended for the cultivation of coolness in summer decoration are not a matter of expense.

* * * * * * *

Just as an individual is dressed for coolness partly by the scarcity of garments worn, likewise is a room. The "stripped down look" is desirable especially in rooms which must bear the burden of both winter and summer use. The all-year 'round living room looks much cooler when ornaments are removed, elaborate draperies taken down, or replaced by light sheer ones.

* * * * * * *

Simplicity of decoration makes rooms look cool. Whatever contributes to the lavish richly decorated appearance so welcome in winter, detracts from the cool appearance in summer. Some of the effect is more than that of suggestion. That is, a freer circulation of air becomes possible when any obstruction to draughts is removed, as is the cause with heavy hangings.

* * * * * * *

Certain porcelains suggest coolness, as also do mirrors. Potteries of a cool green glaze, hard white surfaces of exposed woodwork, such as window casings, bring coolness to the fore in decoration, and refresh the eye. White in decoration has also the advantage of being in the mode.

* * * * * * *

If elimination of the sort advised is impossible for lack of space to store things, as is the case with some individuals, cool linen covers imposed on upholstered chairs, upon tables and a minimum of curtaining, will help give the "stripped down look" without removing any of the furnishings.

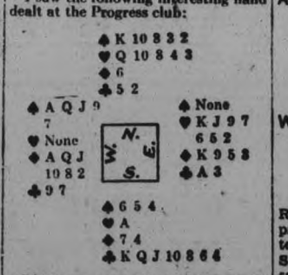
CONTRACT BRIDGE

Written for Central Press

By E. V. SHEPARD

A FREAK DEAL

I saw the following interesting hand dealt at the Progress club:



Bidding went: West, 2-diamonds; East, 2-hearts; South, 3-clubs; West 3-spades; East, 4-hearts; West, 5-diamonds; East, 6-diamonds, ending bidding.

West fulfilled his small slam contract, losing a single spade trick, as North refused to cover the Q of spades with his K, and dummy trumped 3 spades and a single club. The hand ended by having to give North a single spade trick.

When West asked how I liked his play, I informed him that he should have made a grand slam. This could have readily been accomplished as detailed here.

The opening lead was the 5 of clubs. Dummy's ace won the trick. West did not think clearly. He was in the dummy, and 7 hearts must be more readily established than 5 spades. The declarer expected opposing spades to break 4-4, but the chances for that to happen were much smaller than the chances that the opposing spades would be found either 5-3 or 6-2. His probabilities were wrong.

Having won the first trick with dummy's ace of clubs. Lead the 2 of hearts. Trump South's ace, using the 10 of diamonds. Lead the ace of spades. Discard dummy's last club. Don't bother about declarer's spades. Lead the J of trumps, and overtake with dummy's K.

Lead dummy's lowest heart. Ruff with the Q. Lead the 8 of trumps. Win with dummy's 9, pulling the last opposing trump. Lead another heart. Ruff with the ace, taking next to the last trump from the declaring hand, while dummy has left two trumps.

Lead declarer's last club. Ruff in dummy. Lead the 7 of hearts from dummy. Ruff with declarer's last trump. Have dummy ruff a spade, giving the declaring side its tenth straight trick.

Dummy has left only the K-J-9 of hearts, while North holds the lone Q of hearts. Claim the balance of tricks, as declarer can now discard his three losing spades on dummy's three winning hearts.

Of course the grand slam cannot be bid. Nobody can tell in advance that no trick can be lost.

Almost every player has a peculiar weakness. He first thinks of his own cards, and how to establish his own long suit. He rarely thinks of how to establish a longer suit in dummy.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Cleans Hats

A housewife suggests this: "To clean white straw hats buy a small block of magnesia, shave very finely with sharp knife. Moisten with peroxide to make a paste, and with an old shaving brush or discarded tooth brush apply the paste to the hat. Place in the sun to dry and bleach. When dry brush off a with stiff brush. The band and lining should be taken off and cleaned in gasoline or washed with mild soap and water, pressed and tacked back in. White cloth shoes can be cleaned this way, too.

Absence of Coins Proves Bad Omen

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 14 (CP)—An aged negro expounded to a limited curbside congregation his "proof" that Saturday, not Sunday, is the Sabbath. Then he passed a shiny top hat.

No coins fell. Slowly he packed his charts and moved on.

"Beloved," was his parting comment, "it's Friday the 13th. I might have knowed the debil was in dis crowd."

JOHNSON SPEECH DRAWS PROTEST GERMAN ENVOY

REGETS EXPRESSED.

Washington Points Out Statements Made Stricly as an Individual.

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP) — Replying to an official German protest against the anti-Hitler utterances at Waterloo, Iowa, of Hugh S. Johnson, the State Department said yesterday it was "to be regretted" that the position occupied by the Recovery Administrator made it possible for remarks by him as an individual to be "misconstrued as official."

The department made this statement in explaining a visit to Secretary Cordell Hull's offices to-day by Dr. Rudolph Leitner, Charge d'-Affairs of the German Embassy, to protest General Johnson's speech.

Speaking as Individual

"The Secretary of State called the attention of Dr. Leitner to the published statement of General Johnson which appeared in Friday morning's press, to the effect that he 'was speaking as an individual and not for the State Department or for the Administration.'

Secretary Hull declined to answer questions asked by newspaper men concerning any other phases of General Johnson's speech or the German Government's protest.

He also declined to say whether the State Department considered the statement made to Leitner by Hull could be considered as closing the episode, or whether any further action by the German Government was anticipated.

In his Waterloo speech yesterday, the NRA Chief said conditions in Germany made him very "actively sick."

"The idea that adult responsible men can be taken from their homes —stood up against a wall—back to rifles—and shot to death—is beyond expression," he added.

Your Health

The skin suffers more in the summer than in the winter, partly because it is more exposed and partly because it functions in a greater degree.

It is exposed, first to the sun and wind. More surface area is exposed, and it has more enemies in the way of insects and plants in the summer than in the winter.

So far as the extra function which it does in the way of ridding the body of fluid by perspiration and regulating the body temperature in the summer, the skin is the most important organ that we have.

In a few instances, skin diseases are better in the summer than in the winter. This is particularly true of the disease called "ichthyosis", or scaly skin. Individuals who have this are practically well in the summer time, only to have it recur in the winter.

But one rare skin anomaly makes the victim's life in the summer an absolute misery. This is a congenital defect in which certain portions of the skin are absent. The patients never sweat, and the skin has a loose appearance as if it did not fit the body, on account of the absence of the elastic layer.

The absence of sweating leads to very serious general disturbances in the summer time, because perspiration regulates our body temperature. These patients, if untreated, would run a temperature as high as 104 or 105, and even die of heat stroke, simply from lack of the cooling effect of evaporation on the surface of the body. They have to be kept in a bath, or else in a place where a hose can be turned on them or pails of water thrown over them, all summer long.

Several similar forms of skin disease occur, and I recently saw a patient demonstrated in the clinic who had run a temperature for which nobody could account. The temperature had been going on for over a year. Tests for the presence of typhoid fever or of undulant fever or tuberculosis were negative. A great many physicians saw the patient, and the final explanation was to prove that there was a defect in the skin which cut down the amount of perspiration and, therefore, the regulation of body temperature.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

M. C.: "I heard a few remarks by a metaphysician recently, who claimed that the liver was a shock absorber for the body, and the worst shock it could receive was the death of the animal. This, he also claimed, rendered the liver if not poison, highly indigestible. This has given me some worry because I am very fond of liver."

Answer: The liver is not the shock absorber of the body, and it would be impossible to designate any single organ as such. There is no substantial truth in the idea that the liver is immediately changed by the death of the animal, and it certainly is not true that liver is indigestible. In fact, it is an extremely nutritious and valuable food. Eating liver will certainly prevent any tendency to pernicious anemia in middle age, and possibly to many other diseases.

KILLS SISTER WITH RIFLE

CHICAGO, July 14 (CP)—John Peltz, 7, slept peacefully last night, unaware he had killed his 11-year-old sister, Mary Ann.

His father, Frank Peltz, put him to bed after the boy picked up an older brother's rifle and fired a shot that struck his sister in the head.

She died later in a hospital.

Tomato Juice
Jellied Salmon Loaf
Potato Chips or Scalloped or Creamed Potatoes
Buttered Green Peas
Graham Doughnuts
Iced or Hot Tea

This is a dinner or luncheon for a warm day. Doughnuts are a good all-year-round dish, but don't eat too many at any time of the year.

Today's Recipes

Jellied Salmon Loaf.—Two tablespoons granulated gelatin, two tablespoons cold water, one cup salad dressing, one-half cup whipped cream, one cup salmon, two-thirds cup diced celery, one-half cup chopped sweet pickles, one-fourth cup chopped green pepper, two tablespoons chopped pimentos, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-fourth tablespoon paprika. Soak gelatin in the cold water (about five minutes) and when dissolved add ingredients and mix. Then pour into loaf dish (I've found a glass loaf dish best) and chill. When set, or stiff, unmold and garnish with hard cooked eggs and salad dressing.

Graham Doughnuts.—One egg, one and one-half cups sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon soda dissolved in one-fourth cup warm water, two cups white flour, two cups graham flour, one teaspoon baking powder, five tablespoons melted shortening, two cups sour milk, one teaspoon nutmeg. Beat the egg with the sugar and salt, add the soda, the flour and baking powder, shortening and milk combined. This makes a stiff dough. Cut and fry in deep fat.

STAGE AND SCREEN BEAUTY ALWAYS IS IMMACULATE

The talented Miriam Hopkins, who displays her thespian abilities just as expertly on the stage as she does on the screen, is considered by critics one of the few really beautiful actresses of the legitimate stage. Miriam always seems so delightfully fresh and immaculate. There is a natural fragrance about her that is most refreshing. And she believes that even if a girl is an actual knockout, her beauty will go for naught if there is any hint of perspiration odor about her.

Miriam is perfectly right about that. For the odor of perspiration is most offensive, and can break down a woman's entire structure of loveliness and charm. In the summer time, the need for combatting perspiration odors becomes particularly important. For the warmth of the weather increases the activity of the perspiratory glands, and renders the problem a complicated one. Frequent baths and changes of clothing are essential during this season. And a good deodorant or perspiration deterent should be employed to assist in keeping the body sweet and fragrant.

There are, of course, a good many effective deodorants on the market at present, and no woman should have any difficulty in finding a suitable one for her use. However, there are several excellent remedies also that can be made right at home. One of the best of these consists of three parts of distilled water and one part of aluminum chloride. This solution is basically for underarm use. It should not be used too often, as it is rather strong. It is safest to apply it once every three days for the first two weeks. And after that, an application once a week should be sufficient to remedy the condition.

If your back perspires a good deal during the hot weather, you may sponge it with a mild solution of alum, and then powder it lightly. I've found that plain rubbing alcohol also provides an effective remedy for excessive perspiration. The armpits and back should be sponged with the alcohol every morning and night, for good results. This solution not only acts as a perspiration corrective, but also cleanses the skin and guards it against germ invasion.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Superfluous Hair

Peggy: If you bleach the hair on your face light enough with a mixture of two teaspoons of peroxide and half a teaspoon of household ammonia, it will not be noticeable.

Colors

Evelyn: I think that a soft ochre shade of powder, soft orange rouge and vivid lipstick would be the best for you. You should find shades of tan, brown, burnt orange, dark reds, gray and green becoming.

Bleach

Alice: A half and half mixture of lemon juice and peroxide will help to bleach freckles and dark skin. Use cold cream after the bleach has dried on your skin to keep the skin supple.

Hands

Gloria: An excellent hand lotion can be made of equal parts of rosewater and glycerine, or by mixing three parts of rosewater with one part of glycerine.

STAMP CORNER

By M. A. BESSEY

It is surprising to note the difference in the philatelic popularity of a country, once they start to issue a few attractive pictorial or commemorative postage stamps.

Just a few years ago, Australia was far from being popular with collectors because their first two permanent issues were not outstandingly attractive; then to add to the confusion of the collector, various watermarks of a similar design were used in the paper for different reissues of the same type of stamps.

A combination of perforation varieties, sufficient to confuse the most experienced, adds further to the complications of correctly identifying many of the kangaroo and King George type stamps. But now things seem to have taken a change for the better. During the past few years quite a number of attractive pictorial and commemorative stamps have appeared, with which there are no difficulties relative to watermark and perforation varieties.

The latter stamps are going to put Australian stamps right up in the running with the best of them. The demand has been so steadily increasing that it is now becoming difficult to secure sufficient supplies of practically all issues to even begin to fill the demands for them.

All of the O.S. overprints are in demand, and some values are bringing prices well up in the dollars. These stamps, by the way, were so overprinted for the use of members of the Australian parliament, and were issued to them, only. Few used copies are to be found, and mint copies are still more scarce. None are now being issued, present supplies are again being perforated with the initials, O.S., instead of overprinted.

From all appearance it would seem to be a good idea for the collector to get busy on Australia, and incidentally, don't overlook the early issues from 1913 right on through to 1929, during which period so many watermarks and perforation varieties appeared.

There are very few expensive stamps among these issue, but it is surprising just how hard it will be found to complete the sets. The 1913 issued of the 6d. kookaburra is very scarce, and always in demand. The air mail stamps are still very reasonable in price, and should not be overlooked.

Condition of Stamps

Once again, I want to draw this to your attention. The condition of stamps has a most important influence on the philatelic value of all postage stamps.

When you secure used copies of modern or current issues, they should be given the same care and treatment as any other stamps.

Do not peel the stamps away from the envelope or wrapper on which they have been used. Invariably when you peel off the stamp, a part of it will stick to the paper, leaving a "thin spot" in the stamp. This practically ruins it philatelically. The proper thing to do, is to tear off a piece of the paper with the stamp on it, leaving about a half inch margin on paper on all sides of the stamp. When you get home, put it in a dish of water for ten or fifteen minutes, after which the stamp will usually fall right away from the paper. All traces of the gum on the back of the stamp should be carefully washed off. Then just lay the stamp on a piece of newspaper or blotting paper and let it dry.

You will find that stamps of Canada and the United States will wash very easily, with no trace of gum or stickiness left on them. In the case of some foreign and tropical countries, a heavier and more adhesive gum is required. This may be found impossible to remove entirely, but by gently rubbing the back of the stamp with the fingers most of it will come off. If the stamp "curls up" when drying, it may easily be flattened out by placing it under a heavy book for a few hours, after it is thoroughly dry.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

IT IS WITH great reluctance that we have to report that Jockey Dick Townrow has decided to retire from the saddle. Increasing weight, the bugbear of all jockeys is the primary reason. He rode many a winner during his colorful career and will be greatly missed by the regulars not only on our tracks but on those across the border as well. One season, while riding for Harry Giddings he led all Canadian jockeys by a wide margin. Another familiar face will be missing from the jockeys colony, as Jockey Fellows, the little fellow with the broad smile, sails for Europe this week to try his hand on the large tracks on that side of the pond.

The Fort Erie Stewards have issued an order that any horse claimed at their meeting must be kept on the grounds until closing day. What helped to make this necessary was that a stranger reached in and grabbed Irene's Bob the other day from the Smallman Stable and immediately shipped her to Detroit. By the way she is all fit and ready to win, so don't neglect her at the Motor City. Young Kitty kept her record intact, of finishing in the money on every start this year. She had a couple of seconds this week at Fort Erie. We doubt very much if another horse in America can boast of this consistency.

TRUE SENTIMENT came through with a nice win on Thursday and the price was lovely. This one has been knocking at the door for a long time. Fire Reel surprised everybody by winning a six furlong dash yesterday when he was always considered best over a distance of ground. We notice where Brooklyn Tommy McCarthy has chopped Broadway Lights down quite a few notches. He is competing this afternoon with cheap platers where one year ago he was in the come and take me for five thousand dollars, class. He should walk his beat easily this afternoon, and if he does you may look for him to be stepped up quite a bit on his next appearance.

This horse Photograph looks to be headed for a winning effort shortly. His recent form has been awfully good. The same can also be said about the good Canadian bred Heap Good. His connections are very high on him at the present time and expect him to earn a lot of feed money from now on. That great Canadian bred from the far West, George E. Miller is once again in our midst and believe you us he will win his share of purses from now on until October. He does not need to take a back seat to any Canadian bred in training with the exception of Young Kitty, who, of course is a standout in this division. The Smallman Stable have Wooly West going great guns right now, and when this fellow is right it takes a mighty keen hide to take his measure.

Fosters-Electrics Battle to 4-4 Deadlock

HURLERS GIVE GOOD DISPLAYS IN FAST TANGLE

C.G.E. Overcomes Foster Toal Gained in First to End Game in Tie.

FAIR FIELDING.

Hetherington Holds Merchantmen to Four Hits, McIlwaine Allows Six.

Fosters returned to life in their E.P.L. game at the Exhibition Grounds last night and earned a 4-4 draw with C.G.E. before a handful of fans. It was a smart ball game, a battle between two young hurlers, with C.G.E. overcoming an early lead to eke out a tie. Both teams presented changes in their lineups, and several players on the seniors' reserve list were in the contest.

Ken Hetherington pitched smart ball for the Electrics, holding the opposition to four hits, three of them in the first inning, and fanning six. He settled down after a shaky initial canto and was almost unbeatable the rest of the way. Chuck (Lefty) McIlwaine returned to Fosters' mound and southpawed them in fine style to restrict the clubbing C.G.E. hitters to six scattered bingles and fan five. He worked out of innumerable holes by neat flinging, some of the holes being caused by his own wildness.

Fair Fielding.

The fielding was fair, but both sides booted the ball at critical times. Fosters were weak at shortstop, but otherwise fielded to perfection. Many of the latter players were holding down unaccustomed positions. There were no particular fielding features. Dinesen led the Foster crew at bat with two in four, and none of the Electrics got more than one safety. Johnston had a fluke double when the right gardener misjudged his fly.

Fosters got three in the first frame on singles by Maudsley, Dinesen and Bert Bailey with an out and a wild pitch. C.G.E. got one back in the second, Busby walking, stealing second and trotting home on Barry's bingle. Fosters got their fourth run in the third frame, Joe Bailey walking, reaching second on an error, stealing third and getting home on a bad peg to second.

Score Again in 4th.

The Electrics kept pecking away and got another in the fourth when Busby reached first on a fielder's choice, pilfered second and third and tallied on an error. They got their third run in the fifth, Saunders walking, stealing second, reaching third on a wild pitch and stealing home. They tied it up in the sixth, Busby singling and moving up on an error, stealing third and racing in on Fetter's hit.

ORPHANS LEAD MEN'S LEAGUE

Fast Travelling Harrison Crew Defeats Fashion-Craft 7 to 6.

IN HECTIC STRUGGLE.

The fast travelling Orphans moved into first place in the men's softball league by defeating the Fashion-Craft outfit 7-6 in a hectic struggle last night at Central. The game was won in the last of the ninth, when, with the score knotted at six all and a man on second, Max Board drove a slashing double into left to drive in the winning run and bust up the old ball game.

Fashion Craft scored all their runs in the first two frames and from then on were helpless before the fine pitching of Heffernan, who toiled for the winners. Orphans scored five in the first, one in the seventh, and pushed over the final tally in the ninth off the delivery of Bill Simmons, who was having one of his good nights and was very stingy with base hits.

The victors heavy hiting was done chiefly by Wilshaw with four hits for five trips to the plate and Jones with three safe blows for an equal number of trips to the platter. The attack was also featured by a home run on the part of Miller in the first inning.

The Tailor men also did some heavy clouting with McDougal and Clarke each having three singles apiece to lead their team at bat.

Many fine fielding plays were displayed by both teams particularly by Butcher in centre field for the Fashion Craft, who ran far and wide to pull down several hart hit balls which might have gone for extra base hits.

The teams:

Fashion Craft: Gray, c; Russell, 2b; McDougal, ss; Wiley, 3b; Butcher, cf; Clarke, 1b; Naish, lf; Beckerman, rf; Foley, rf; Simmons, p.

Senators Unleash 17-Hit Batting Attack Against Wings For 6-4 Win.

(By The Associated Press)

Newark Bears' International League lead had swelled to 3½ games again to-day and all because Denver Grigsby, Montreal outfielder, dropped an easy fly ball.

Newark was trailing the Royals, 3-2, with two men on and two out in the seventh. Dale Alexander, big Newark outfielder, sent an easy fly to right field, but Grigsby muffed it and two runs scored to give the Bear a 4-3 lead. The Royals tied it up in their half, but Newark tallied what proved to be the winning run in the eighth, Johnny Neud knicking Relief Pitcher Harry Smythe for his fourth hit of the game, a double that sent Joe Glenn across the plate. Walter Brown, big Bear right-hander, allowed only six hits and clouted a home run in the third to help win his 12th victory.

Wings Fall to Senators

Meanwhile second-place Rochester took a 6-4 drubbing from Albany Senators. Norbert Kleinke, Tony Kaufmann and Pete Appleton were touched for 17 hits, but Albany missed many scoring chances and had 15 men left on base.

Only one of the Senators' cluster of hits was for extra bases, a double by Joe Mowry. Alvin Powell led the attack with three singles. After a shaky start in which he was nicked for two runs in the first, Ed Chapman pitched steady ball for the winners. The victory enabled Albany to regain undisputed possession of fourth place, a full game in front of Montreal.

Singles by Manager Ike Boone and Outfielder Murray Howell gave Toronto three runs in the eighth inning and a 5-2 decision over Baltimore Orioles in a night game. Whitey Hilcher gave up only two hits and fanned six in the first six innings, but walked the first three men to face him in the seventh and was relieved by Charley Lucas. The latter held scoreless that frame, but grew wild himself in the eighth and Baltimore tied it up at 2-2, only to lose out in the last half of the same frame. The victory left the third place Leafs only a game and a half behind Rochester.

Buffalo and Syracuse split two one-sided night games, the Bisons taking the first, 11-5, in innings, and Syracuse the second, 12-3. Fabian Kowalik went the route for Buffalo in the opener although he gave up 12 hits. Buck Crouse's four safeties led the Bison charge. In the second game, Syracuse grabbed 15 hits, Ted Norbert contributing two home runs and a single, and Clarence Blair a home run, triple and single. Bobby Coombs, appearing in a relief role for the Chiefs, allowed only two hits in the last five innings and was credited with his second victory in as many nights.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, our senior ball club is right at the top of the Central Ontario ladder, but I don't know whether the lads is dizzier because of their lofty position or because of the riding they hadda take from a few loud-mouthed grandstand jockeys in the game here Wed. with Oshawa. It's about time them home birds that is always throwing the hooks into the Lee gang got wise to themselves before they get the boys fed up with that kind of thing. It's a queer situation that mosta the Petes would rather play a game before the ten-minute eggs that patronize the game at Kingston than perform here at home, and they ain't no sense to it. Here is a ball club that is playing better ball on the road than any Peterboro team in years, with a record of 4 straight wins away from the home lot, and yet the first boot they make over at Riverside Park the wolves in the stand is on their necks.

In the Wed. fixture, Mac, the boys did their sloppiest defence work of the season, they ain't no argument about that, but they wasn't given no help to pull theirselves together by the yaps from the sidelines, and you gotta hand it to them that they overcame their own misplays and the panning of some of the crowd and went out in the 8th frame and pounded out a win that kept them out in front in the league race. It was a loose ball game all the way, but the Petes had the punch when it was needed and come through like a game team.

Mon. the lads pulled off 1 of their smartest wins of the season when they travelled down to Kingston, and for the 2nd time in a row made the Ponies like it on their home cushion. Archie Deyell stood the penitentiary pack on their heads, allowing only 4 hits and 1 run, and Mister Speedy St. Louis nearly matched him in effectiveness, allowing only 6 safe blows. It was as close as a humid July day, but the Petes battled all the way along the line and emerged with a helpful win. It was the 4th victory in succession on the road.

This Belleville team is also going places, and after Wednesday's game was only 1 game behind the Lee boys, the Mills gang having win 3 in a row since the Petes beat them last week, winding up with a win in Kingston, the 1st time in years that the Nats have been able to head off last year's champs. The Ponies slipped back to 3rd place, while the Dukes, who have dropped their last three fixtures, are well down in the cellar.

Well, Mac, nothing more of interest, so suppose we chop it off here?

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

Giants Recover Two-game Lead in National by Beating Pirates 7-6.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Instead of just one "crucial" series, two were offered for the entertainment of major league fans to-day and both of them involved New York teams.

While the Yankees were regaining the American League lead yesterday through a partial fracture of the Friday the 13th jinx which brought them a 4-2 triumph over Detroit's Tigers, the Giants were warming up for a five-game setto with second place Chicago Cubs by increasing their National League margin to two games.

Close Call for Giants

The Giants after gaining an early lead through the slugging of Frank O'Doul and Joe Moore, barely lasted to beat the Pirates 7-6 in the series final, but at the same time the Cubs went down by the same count at Boston. Between them, O'Doul and Moore took care of six Giant runs, the former hitting one homer, the latter two.

The day's big battle, which returned the Yankees to their half-game lead, was largely an occasion for Babe Ruth to win the plaudits of a throng of 25,000. The Babe started the scoring in a mound duel between Red Ruffing and Tommy Bridges by socking his 14th homer of the year—his 700th in more than 20 years of big league ball—and Bill Dickey knocked in the other two runs.

Despite the double cause for celebration, it was a bad day for the Yanks because Lou Gehrig was forced out of action, threatening his record streak which ran to 1,426 games when he took part in a couple of innings. An acute cold in his back caused Lou so much trouble that he retired in the middle of the second frame.

Washington's Senators took an even more severe blow in the cause of a 3-2 triumph over Cleveland that left them only a half game behind the losers. Johnny Stone, setting the hitting pace in the early innings suffered a fracture of his left ankle going into second base in the third inning and may be lost to the club for the rest of the season.

In the third American League contest, Wesley Ferrell took personal charge of Boston's 7-2 victory over the Browns, pitching effectively and socking two circuit blows that accounted for future tallies.

Games Rained Out

The remaining National League affair, with the Philadelphia-Chicago contest in the American and St. Louis-Philadelphia in the National rained out, was one of those things in which Cincinnati slammed out a big lead against Brooklyn, driving old Tom Zachary off the hill, then barely staggered through to an 8-6 decision over the Dodgers.

Paul Waner Returns

Paul Waner returned to the "Big Six" yesterday, stepping up his batting average by seven points as he hit four times in five attempts against the Giants, and Lou Gehrig, who had to retire after making a hit his first time up, added two points to his mark and tied Travis for third place in the American League and fourth in the sextet. Sam Leslie also registered a gain, picking up two points with two hits in four times up but slipped behind Waner in the standings. The other leaders lost ground.

HOLLYWOOD HOCKEY CONSCIOUS PLANS MAKING ICE THRILLERS

And There are Plenty of Stars Now in Pro Ranks to Fill All Roles But Feminine Lead—Maybe It Will Be Richard Arlen.

(By L. S. Shapiro, Central Press Canadian Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, July 14.—Baseball pictures, football pictures, golf pictures, horse-racing pictures boxing pictures — Hollywood and film fans the world over have had their fill of pictures glorifying the athlete and the thoroughbred. Even dog-racing and polo have had their innings on the silver screen. All but hockey.

Late Chas. Gardiner.

And now, if the plans of Hollywood producers materialize, hockey will come into its own on the silver screen. All the major companies are considering scripts with hockey backgrounds. The tremendous strides made by the game in the United States makes hockey a perfect background for a sports epic. In the east and middle-west, Canada and Europe, the public for a hockey pictures is assured. In the south and west, hockey has hit the headlines consistently enough to make for a curious public.

Inspired by Gardiner

It was the tragic death of Charlie "Chuck" Gardiner, the Chicago Black Hawk goalie, that awakened Hollywood to the possibilities of hockey as the basis of a screen story. The life of Chuck was dramatized so skilfully by Chicago hockey writers that a demand developed for a screen story along the same lines, and Chicago sports writers went to work on screen material. The scripts are in Hollywood, and producers are trying to fit them in to their next season's schedule.

The major problem facing Hollywood is developing a movie star who can skate. Many of them are hockey fans and attend games in Madison Square Garden regularly when they are in New York. Richard Arlen is a particularly rabid fan, and is said to be expert on skates, which should nominate him as the first hockey star of the silver silver screen.

Jackson's Classice Profile

If Hollywood moguls scour the professional hockey ranks for screen material, they will find plenty. Take Harvey Jackson of the Toronto Maple Leafs. No finer profile ever graced a Hollywood studio, no finer physique ever made a feminine line at the box-office. Other juvenile types might be selected from a group, including Butch Keeling and Cecil Dillon of the Rangers, Marty Burke and Pit Lepine of Canadiens, and Tommy Cook of Chicago.

Richard Arlen

As for villains—the National Hockey League can supply them at a dime a dozen. Who, for instance, can make a better face than Ching Johnson, or Charlie Conacher, or Cyclone Wentworth? And the classic profile of Mush March should be fitted somewhere in the picture.

Gorman for Comedy

When it comes to executives, the suave handsome Leo Dandurand would be typed beautifully as the master-mind of the game. For comedy, Tommy Gorman can jabber away in a manner which would put Lee Tracy in the discard in no time. And the strong, silent character would have to be Frank Calder. He would be cast to type.

Tom Gorman

Hockey has played a large part in movies before. Only recently, a Ranger-Canadien game at the Garden played a part in "Manhattan Melodrama," the feature film starring Clark Gable, William Powell, and Myrna Loy. nI the excitement of the game, Gable murders someone. From the shots on the ice Johnson and Siebert were getting away with plenty of it.

HAWKS WIN FROM MAPLE LEAFS 7-3

Fine Twirling Dished Up in Minor City Ball League Tussle.

Hawks defeated Maple Leafs, 7-3, in a good bantam baseball game in Armour Field last evening. Some fine twirling was dished up by the rival moundsmen and fair fielding, despite several costly errors. Cleary pitched one-hit ball for the winners, striking out four. The lone hit came in the second, Copperwaite singling. Curtin on the other slab allowed only three hits, one by Anderson in the fifth, one by Cleary in the sixth and one by Pammett in the sixth. He fanned eight. Walks steals and misplays figured in the runs. The Leafs pulled off a snappy double-play in the sixth to end a bad frame when Hawks scored three markers. The teams:

And so we have another benefit softball game. The pyjama-clad Bert Deck led his all-star team last Saturday in that great bedroom mystery, "How Jake Lost At The Eleventh Hour"—or was it in the ninth inning? Anyway, the two all-star aggregations led by Messrs. Deck and Jake Beckerman put up a grand battle at Central a week ago tonight, with Jake's crew leading till the ninth when Deck's lads got two runs and won out, 3-2. Jake promptly challenged the others to a return match for this eve, funds to go to benefit of injured players, and Bert just as promptly accepted. Now, there's the setup, lasses and laddies, so act accordingly.

The popular tune down around Kingston these days probably is "The Man on the Flying Trapeze", the first couple of lines of which go: "Once I was happy but now I'm forlorn, Like an old coat that's all tattered and torn." The reason? Why, simply 'cause the Ponies who have been prancing gaily at the head of the C.O.B.L. parade for lo, these many years are now way back the road somewhere eating the dust kicked up by the Petes and Nats, and battling with Oshawa to keep out of the cellar. How have the mighty fallen! The Dukes and Ponies—all the king's hosses and the king's men! Of course, they're not very far behind and the race is only half over, but these teams—particularly Kingston—do not like nosing around the foot of the ladder at all, not even for a few weeks. That's why it hurts now.

• • • • • •

Well, ye Kingston scrivener has to hang the Ponies' reverses on somebody or something, so naturally enough he picks on the umpires. Not that it's anything new, as he always did pan umpires unceasingly. Since Oshawa stepped into Kingston and knocked the Ponies off once, and the Petes did that little thing twice in a row, and then even Belleville smacked over the '33 champs, life has been even more sour than usual for our Kingston contemporary. And the poor arbiters are taking an awful beating at his hands. Since he was always against umpires, even in the fat years, it is only natural now that no attention is paid to his wailing. It's the old story of the lad who cried "Wolf, wolf!" once too often.

• • • • • •

President Max Swanston told us yesterday: "The umpiring in the Central League this year is all right. We've got some of the best officials umpiring in this league that you'll find anywhere in the O.B.A.A. I've seen plenty of them, neutral and home-towners, and I know these fellows we have this year are honest and competent. They'll make mistakes but Big League umpires do that. I have no intention at present of making any changes." We agree with him. Umpires like Johnston, Colling, Walsh and a few others are as good as you'll run across anywhere. They're on the level, experienced and not afraid of criticism. Even noted officials like Shepherd and Oswin got rode by the Kingston scribbler. But never such duds as Messrs. Pound and Twigg!

• • • • • •

Hoot Gibson's application for an O.B.A.A. transfer from Cobourg to Belleville was refused the other night in Hamilton, while Duke Dainty was recommended for re-instatement in Oshawa, but it has to come up yet before the A.A.U. of C. This same body turned down an application for re-instatement here of a former pro pitcher, now in Campbellford, which the Petes' management had been working for hard lately but on the quiet. Along about this time of year it's tougher to ease a player by the authorities than to mooch a fish for canned heat at a Prohibition rally.

• • • • • •

Westclox gals and Keene have a postponed softball game yet in the first half of their schedule. If Keene cops it, Westclox and C.G.E. are deadlocked for second place, but if Westclox grabs it, then Keene is first and Westclox second, and they must play to decide the sectional leadership. It should be played before the second half opens on Tuesday. Omemee and Keene also have a postponed fixture to run off. We're still waiting for the rest of the schedule.

• • • • • •

There was another tie-game in the E.P.L. last e'en, Posters trotting out a revamped squad to lead the Electrics more than halfway home. With a pitcher catching, another one on short and an outfielder on second, besides a rightfielder in his first game of the year, they nevertheless looked a vastly different team behind Chuck McIlwaine's nice forkside flinging. C.G.E. were lucky to get a draw, despite some excellent throwing by Hetherington. Posters have Hardill, Marrocco and a couple of others lined up and may present a really strong team Tuesday. At least, you've got to give them credit for trying.

• • • • • •

Stolen bases continue to be a habit, a pernicious habit, in this circuit, fourteen of them being pinched last gloaming. All summer we've been waiting patiently for a guy to steal home. They've done everything else, and last p.m. Saunders rewarded us by taking a bigger lead off third than the Liberals took recently and going under the wire to cop all bets. McIlwane of Fosters, and Houston and Fetter of C.G.E. were playing, these fellows all being on the seniors' reserve list. And we're not ratting on them when we say they didn't get their release from the Petes. Prexy Bill Prindible of the E.P.L. told us, and so did Knotty Lee of the Petes. If either team had won, the other could have protested. Better check up on this, boys.

Topping off the schedule at Indian River last night before the biggest crowd of the season, Indian River blanked North Douro, 10-0. Too much Walsh was the trouble with the losers. He pitched fine to fan eight in three frames, and had great support. Thompson, on the other hand, went fair and his support was wobbly. The loss puts North Douro out of the play-offs which begin at Indian River Tuesday between Indian River and Elmwoods. The teams:

Just Before Hubbell Showed His Stuff

Frank Graham, New York sports writer, representing the Baseball Writers Association, presenting the association's plaque to Carl Hubbell New York Giant pitcher, after they had selected Carl as the most valuable player to his team during the 1933 season. The presentation took place just before the start of the all-star baseball game in New York between the American and National League stars. Hubbell then went out to show why he is hailed as the greatest southpaw of all time by striking out six of the American Leagues heaviest hitters in two innings of the all-star game.

McCARTHY FIVE HAVE COMBINED AVERAGE .344

Did Hubbell Fan American League's Finest Five, Question of Fans.

AVERAGES SAY "NO."

Carl Hubbell's magnificent performance in striking out five great American League batters — Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Jimmy Foxx, Al Simmons and Joe Cronin—in a row is creating a great deal of lively discussion among fans.

No other pitcher in all baseball history has turned in such a performance against such a brilliant array of batters. None have had the chance. But Carl had the chance and succeeded—so more power to him.

In no way detracting from Hubbell's wonderful bit of pitching, it must be pointed out however, that while he fanned the five most famous batters of the American League in a row he did not, necessarily, strike out the five BEST—not on the 1934 batting averagers, anyway.

The five leading batters of the American League at this writing are Heinie Manush, Charley Gehringer, Gehrig, Frank Higgins and Cecil Travis. Their combined batting average is .34. The Ruth-Gehrig-Foxx-Simmons-Cronin quintet is averaging .329.

However, the way Hubbell was hurling Tuesday he not only may have fanned a Manush-Gehringer-Gehrig-Higgins-Travis "murderers' row," but might just as easily cut down an All-Time American League combine formed, say, of Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth, Joe Jackson, in their prime, teamed with to-day's Gehrig and Foxx.

That's how good Mr. Hubbell was.

SPEAKING OF the so-called "murderers' rows" let's see how many clubs to-day possess actual or potential ones.

We find the New York Yankees possessed of the most potent "murderers' row" in baseball to-day. That is (the five leading Yankee regulars have a higher combined batting average than any other major league club's "finest five" has, at least, at the moment.

The Yanks' five—Saltzgaver, Gehrig, Chapman, Dickey, Combs, standing in that order in hitting effectiveness—have a combined batting average of .344.

The combined averages of the six other American League potential "murderers' rows" are:

St. Louis Brown — Hemsley, Garms, Burns, West, Pepper—.310.

The Chicago White Sox, alone, have no potential murderers' row.

THE NEW YORK GIANTS have the leading "finest five" in th National League—that's why they are on top. Terry, O'Doul, Ott, Moore and Jackson average. 342.

Though they no longer enjoy Klein's services, the Phils top quintet boasts a combined average of .341, just one point below the great Giant machine.

The five Phil horsehide floggers are Todd, Allen, Hendrick, Moore, Davis.

As in the case of the American League, the National has only seven teams to boast real murderrs' rows. The other five and their combined averages are:

Chicago Cubs—Cuyler, Hartnett, F. Hermann, W. Herman, Klein—.327.

St. Louis Cardinals—Medwick, Collins, Orsatti, Frisch, Davis —.325.

Boston Braves—Jordan, Berger, Urbanski, Lee, McManus—.319.

The hapless Cincinnati Reds have no big gun barrage and, like the equally weak-hitting White Sox, are in last place.

Centre Douro Beats Indian River 14-8

In an exciting East Peterborough Softball League game that sent fans home with sort throats, Centre Douro beat Indian River, 14-8, the game being called in the sixth due to darkness, with the count then 14 to 13. The pitchers went fair and had good support. Indian River's outfield was ragged and aided in the team's downfall. Towns, Elmwood's first-sacker, was right on and pulled a neat double-play alone. Charlie had a good night at bat, smacking out a homer. The teams:

BERT PEARSON LOSES FRIDAY IN 100 YARDS

Bill Christie of Toronto Surprises Fans With Victory in Empire Tests.

ACHILLES WINS RELAY.

CIVIC STADIUM, HAMILTON, Ont., July 14 (C.P.). — Lean Bill Christie, Toronto's journeyman sprinter, who spent four seasons in the open competition they threw at him in local meets, and only this year arrived in major company, led Bert Pearson of Hamilton to the tape yesterday in an upset triumph that all but overshadowed other startling performances at Canada's British Empire Games track and field trials here.

The wiry Achilles A.C. boy, a stylish dashman, who can come from behind, burst past Pearson 15 yards from the finish of the 100-yards final, and had enough left to stave off the rallying drive of the blonde Olympian, who completely set at rest reports that he wasn't as good as he was two years ago. He wasn't as good.

Christie's fine win in the slow time of 10.2 seconds, shared the spotlight with a great victory at 440 yards by Ray Lewis, Hamilton colored star, in 48.9 seconds, and a record-breaking mile run by Les Wade of Montreal. Wade lowered his own native Canadian mile record from 4.21.6, to 4.19.9, to become the first Canadian to run the distance in better than 4.20.

Richardson Triumphs.

A 15-year-old school boy, Sam Richardson of Central Tech., Toronto, and Ray Cooper, a 19-year-old youngster from Cobourg, Ont., running for the Beaches A.C., sent Toronto's Empire hopes soaring still higher with victories on the field. Richardson won the running hop-step-and-jump, with a jump of 45 feet 8½ inches, and Cooper scored in the running broad jump at 22 feet 8¾ inches, then Lloyd Longman, beapectacled Monarch A.C. ace, suddenly cut around his arch rivals with one lap to go in the gruelling six-mile event and sprinted wildly for the full quarter mile to beat Roy Oliver of Halifax, the pacemaker, and Dave Komonen, Sudbury Finnish marathoner, by 20 yards.

Longman's grand finish was as pulsating as anything the first day's program produced. Jim Worrall of Montreal had an easy time winning the final of the 440-yard hurdles, romping up the stretch without a foe near him in the good time of 55.8 seconds.

After "taking it" consistently on the chin in the track events, the West came through brilliantly with the weights. R. Waters, burly policeman from Vancouver, won the discus throw with a best toss of 130 feet ½ inch, and George Walla of Port Arthur captured the 16-pound shot put at 43 feet 6¼ ins.

HOWIE WILLIAMS TO TURN PROFESSIONAL

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

Number 350

A three on a short hole can be made in a number of ways.

One player may place his tee shot about ten feet from the cup, putt so that his ball just barely misses dropping for a two.

Another player can put his tee shot into the rough or, worse yet, into a deep sand trap. Then blast the ball out of the hazard on to the green.

Although his second shot may leave him a 20-foot putt for a three, it's not uncommon for such putts to drop. Both players chalk up a three and the score card gives no hint of the ease or the struggle in making the par.

Too many players take advantage of this by rating themselves as good players when they are simply enjoying good results.

The consistently low scorer is the one who hits the ball properly.

ELECTRICS HAVE PLAYOFF CHANCE

C.G.E. Scores Early Lead to Win From Omemee 24-10 at East City Bowl.

C.G.E. girls retained their slim chance of a play-off place in the first half of the Ladies' City and District loop last night, when they beat Omemee, 24 to 10 ,at the Ashburnham Bowl, before the best crowd of the year.

The winners showed plenty of punch in the opening frames when they pasted out nine hits for thirteen runs, three of these hits being homers, one by Dot Byers and two by Elsie Gates. They were blanked in the fourth but added three in the fifth and counted every innings after. Omemee came to life in the fourth when they sent three across and piled their total up to ten in the eighth.

Jean Hickson pitched six frames for the losers, walking four and fanning three. She was easy to hit and was replaced by Dot Sherin in the seventh, who showed a deceptive change of pace that puzzled the C.G.E. baters. She fanned one and walked two. Margaret Snowden went the whole game on the slab for the Electrics. She whiffed four, passed four and was nicked for ten hits.

The teams:

Omemee: Rehill, rf; Fisher, 2b; Pickett, 1b; E. Bigelow, c; McQuade, ss; Reddick, 3b; Sherin, cf, p; P. Bigelow, lf; Hickson, p; Magee, cf.

C.G.E.—DeCarlo lf; M. Snowden, p; Byers, 2b; Millar, c; Gates, 3b; W. Snowden, ss Hodson, rf; Todd, 1b; Martin, cf.

Score by innings:

Omemee	000 321 220—10 10 9
C.G.E.	652 032 41x—24 17 7

Umpires—Dick Galbraith at the plate, Ab Frick on the bases.

THE SPUN GLASS MYSTERY

A Tale of Scotland Yard

By A. FIELDING

CHAPTER 48

Pelham found the death of John Tait a fascinating problem. "That would explain why she thrust herself on the only member of the household there who wouldn't refuse to take her in, however thin her story. Yes, that would explain that, and also why it took place after the suicide of one man and so shortly before the murder of another. She might well be terrified, implicated as she was in blackmail but not standing to win anything from a murder."

There was a short silence. Pointer was thinking of Naylor who was so certain that his cousin's death was not linked with that of Lord Mills. Naylor's whole manner bore out, to Pointer, the idea that he knew Gillian Dundas was the blackmailer, but felt sure she was not in any murder plot. At any rate, he believed that Naylor was attracted by Gillian Dundas' beauty, but struggled between that attraction and the repulsion to what lay beneath the beauty. That meeting the first night in the library between Miss Dundas and Tait, of which Lady Tait had told him, was, Pointer now thought, very possibly not connected with Mills at all, but with Westmacott. It was possible that she was even then warning him, yet altruism and Gillian Dundas' face seemed a most unlikely combination. . . . Suddenly he saw a far more likely supposition.

"I don't think she went to warn Tait, sir. But I should think it quite possible she told him all she knew, and offered to get proofs for him about the Westmacott fraud. Or possibly she had some papers proving it. . . . She was some four years with Mrs. de Souza. If I'm right, she might have got hold of something which she was willing to sell to Tait. I wonder if Tait had anything on him which she had handed him, any paper which she alone could have got at to give him? And that the poisoner got hold of those? Oh, before he left Lady Ida's, of course . . . got them by a trick . . . to look at, claimed they were forgeries . . . that sort of thing." Pointer's mind was groping. "If she knew that he had had them, and that they were not on him when he died, it might account for her certainty that her number is up. You know, sir, bad lot though she is, I'm sorry for her"—he was speaking with a perplexed frown—"but I don't see any way to help her. In my opinion, she's so certain she's for it, that she thinks that even prison for a stretch of years, as she would get if convicted of blackmail, can't save her."

"You think she's certain it would be prison first and then poison when she got out ——" Pelham arched his eyebrows. "Well, certainly Lady Ida has everything at stake. Glad to think that, if she's in it, she's going to lose everything too. This Westmacott fraud is about the limit in heartlessness, and has been practised for years on a chap who has been generosity itself to her and her son. I always did know she was as sharp as a needle, and as unscrupulous as they're made. I bar her at bridge. Nothing proven, of course, but her placing of cards is a bit too good to be true. But all the same this sort of a charge. . . . We must have cast-iron proofs." Again there was a short silence. Each man mentally tested the links so far. All seemed to stand the pull—so far.

"And that boutonniere the fellow Strange was wearing when he came to the studio ——" Here Pelham had the same terrible suspicion of that decoration as Pointer had had. "We might have come upon Miss Dundas dead too, only in her case a letter would probably have accompanied the corpse, supposed to be from her, relating to an old story between herself and Tait, for which reason she had first poisoned him, and then taken her own life. . . . There was an old affair between them, Lady Tait thought." Pelham put the papers together.

"What are you working at now?"

"Trying to trace any taxis taken by Tait yesterday morning. He arrived in one for his belated lunch, I know."

"Perhaps he left his boutonniere in one," Pelham suggested.

"You make my mouth water, sir. But it's possible. Anyway, I want to find out if he was wearing gloves, or not. The butler says not when he came in to lunch. But he might have stripped them off as he entered. As long as he wore gloves he was safe, even if he handled the poisoned spray. And it's possible he tossed it into the street."

"I suppose your idea is that it was handed him with some sweet word of 'wear this to show me you've no longer any suspicions of me' by Lady Ida?"

Pointer grinned an assent. Some such words would, he thought, have accompanied the little sprig.

"And the poison? How will you find out if there's any more?"

Pointer looked bland. "Bit of routine work m do it, sir. My fear is, lest Mrs. d Souza, or whoever has it, carries about with her in a phial or powder form. But I doubt it. She seems to have used it very freely, according to the analyst, which suggests that he has plenty more."

"Ah yes, you think Miss Dundas knows that too." And Pelham let Pointer go.

Gillian Dundas was being discussed at the same moment at Great Cumberland place. Early that morning, around 10, Alysia Naylor came into the library, where her brother was reading the paper. He looked up sharply. He made no show of effusive greetings, either to her, or to Claridge who had come in with her. Etta was writing at a table in a corner. She turned round to hear better.

"It's about that companion of Mrs. Burnham's," Alysia began. "I've brought Reggie along because he knows something we think the police ought to be told. But because it's the police—well, I induced him to tell it to you, and abide by your judgment."

"Unusually flattering," Claud murmured with something like a veil dropped over his eyes.

Claridge cocked his sleek little head on one side and wetted a cigaret with a look of relish on his face.

"It's about Miss Dundas, as Alysia says. I happened to be passing her studio yesterday morning, when I saw Tait come out. I thought, of course, the police knew of this visit of his, that you all would know of it, or I should have come round at once. But I had an engagement in the country which I couldn't avoid and now, when I do rush round, Alysia tells me she hasn't heard a word of it."

"He told me," Claud said negligently, "but, as you say, it's of no importance." He looked slightly bored.

"Told you!" Alysia's voice came in surprise. As for Etta, she shot a long, rather odd look at her brother, but said nothing. Claud nodded and permitted his eyes to stray to some papers on the table with an unmistakable interested look.

"But why didn't you tell the police?" Alysia asked sharply. "They want very much to find out every place where John was yesterday morning."

"The police don't tell you all they've heard," Claud said to that.

"Rubbish!" she retorted, "they don't know anything about where he went nor whom he saw yesterday, and are simply wild to find out."

Naylor looked as though considering a knotty point. "Then in strict confidence," he said finally, "I thought it as well not to tell them about this interview Tait had with Miss Dundas because it concerned you, Alysia."

"Me! With Miss Dundas!" Incredulity was in her voice and eye.

He nodded regretfully. "It's rather a private matter. Perhaps you'd rather Claridge left us?"

Claridge rose—very slowly. Alysia stopped him. "Of course Reggie can stay. I can't think what you mean, Claud."

"John had got a funny idea in his head that you wanted to separate him from Mrs. Burnham," Naylor said to that, speaking very quietly and objectively. "He got an idea, further, that Claridge was sent by you to Vichy with some idea of coming between him and the lady in question—Lucy. I ridiculed the notion. He went to Miss Dundas as to an impartial umpire to decide the question. She was to be asked in some indirect way whether she too had noticed how hard Claridge tried to pay his court to Mrs. Burnham."

FIRE DESTROYS LUMBER

BLIND RIVER, Ont.—Fire destroys 15,000 feet of hardwood lumber at the mill of the Matinenda Llumber Company on Lake Matinenda, north of here, last night. A call was put in to the Forestry Department branch here and the assistance furnished resulted in the blaze being put out in one hour and 20 minutes.

For. July 15

Sunday's horoscope holds testimonials of propitious circumstances probably affecting the entire destiny. New contacts, environs and interests are foreshown, with the spirit of initiative heightened to a degree to vigorously attack such gratifying opportunities. However, there may be minor setbacks or problems of a financial nature to compose.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of important change, with excellent opportunities for new interests, contacts and surroundings. This prospect, suddenly presented, may prove of radical importance to their lives.

A child born on this day should be ingenious, progressive, original and independent in thought and action. It should safeguard its lesser interests and belongings in life.

For Monday, July 16

Monday's astrological forecast is one of perplexing omens, with prospects of subtle developments, intrigue, conspiracy or secrecy to be unraveled. This situation sagaciously or tactfully managed may result in some fair advantages or profitable connections with those in places of power or authority. Certain mental or spiritual problems are likely to arise. These affairs of a literary or publicity nature should have fair activity and progress.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year of intriguing or mysterious situations to be wisely handled by strategem, tact or diplomacy, with much wariness as to deception, fraud or cunning. There may be some leanings toward occult, mystical or strange investigations.,

A child born on this day may have a rather peculiar cast of mentality, with yearnings for the occult, marvelous or unusual in many phases of life. It may be fond of curious and strange adventures.

Apsley

APSLEY, July 14. — (Examiner Correspondence)—The local Orange lodge held a "walk" and picnic on the Fair grounds on the twelfth, under the superintendence of the W. M., Tom Hales. Starting from the Orange Hall at 10.30 a.m. the parade, headed by William Johnston on his white charger, and the Apsley brass band, marched through the village to the war memorial, where the lodge's wreath was laid by John Coones, prayer being offered by Chaplain Samuel Carr. This was followed by the playing of "Nearer My God to Thee" by the band, and the procession then marched to the Fair grounds to the music of the fifes and drums. Dinner was served in the Exhibition Hall. During the afternoon races were held and the band played several selections. Several Orangemen from the road camps attended the walk, and assisted the band, an expert fifer being quite an acquisition for the occasion. Fine weather prevailed and the picnic was quite a success, and enjoyed by everyone. Isaac Lean, the veteran member of the Order, who is 88 years of age, and hale and hearty, participated in the walk, marching as upright and spry as the youngest. Mr. Lean has been an Orangeman about 63 years.

DENY ANDORRA PRETENDER SECRETARY DUKE DE GUISE

BRUSSELS, July 13 (A.P.).—The household of the Duke De Guise said to-day no such person as Boris Skossyref, a Pole who has been seeking to proclaim himself King of Andorra, the little state between Spain and France, has ever been the Duke's secretary.

Signing the proclamation as "Boris I." Skossyref ordered removal of the Council General, a general election held August 1, named a president of the Government and announced "a general amnesty of all social offenders."

Spanish newspapers yesterday published a proclamation by Sykossyref, who claims to have been the Duke's former secretary, in which he announced that henceforth he was "Sovereign of Andorra and defender of the faith."

The pretender to the purple was recently expelled from Andorra because of a fantastic attempt to place the Duke De Guise on the throne and Andorrans appeared to regard his latest move as diverting—nothing else.

Traitors' Call

TIFFIN, O., July 13 (C.P.).—Elmer Clemens' four pet crows helped a lot in luring the wild crows he likes to hunt. Now their voices are giving out and the owner's solution was to record th cries on a phonograph record.

Clemens was non-committal about the phonograph's first trial.

RACER INSISTS NOT CARELESS

Kaye Don Assumes Responsibility for Fatal Crash in Trial.

NO INSURANCE.

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man, July 14. —(A.P.)—Kaye Don, British motor car and motor boat racer, insisted to-day under cross-examination at his trial for manslaughter, that he thought he showed no carelessness during the test run which resulted in a crash and the death of his mechanic, Francis Taylor.

He said yesterday he took his racing car out on the night of May 28 to test it for the "round of houses" race at the suggestion of Taylor himself.

Don, who walked to the witness stand with the aid of a stick (he was seriously injured himself in the accident) answered in a low voice, occasionally becoming almost inaudible.

"I don't think I was careless," he said. "I regret the accident obviously."

He added he accepted all responsibility for taking the car on the disastrous trial spin.

During a series of questions directed at Don the attorney-general mentioned that "you had no headlights, no horn, no driving license for the Isle of Man and no insurance.

FRISCO STRIKE MAY RESULT IN WIDE FAMINE

City Forces Are Marshalled as Mass Strike is Threatened.

CONFERENCE FAILS.

Strike Leaders Meet to Reach Decision on United Action.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 14 (A.P.). —Against the threat of famine and disease, official San Francisco marshalled its forces to-day and awaited decision of union labor which stood ready to strike in mass support of its maritime members.

Heat, light and the all-important supply of food must continue, Mayor Angelo J. Rossi declared in assuming the "unlimited emergency power" granted him under the city charter.

Virtually the last hope of persuading employers to arbitrate the Maritime strike—critical issue in the projected general strike of union labor—was swept away as President Roosevelt's Labor Disputes Board reported "no success" after a long meeting with employers.

The general strike weapon, held poised over the bay cities, was passed in San Francisco to the hands of an enlarged strike committee which meets to-day to take unified action. Formation of the committee, representing all of the 144 unions with a total membership of 65,000, was authorized yesterday after a central labor council "strategy" committee failed to make a recommendation.

"Apparently there is nothing that can avert a general strike," George Kidwell, member of the "strategy" committee who has consistently opposed such drastic action, declared.

Police and fire department heads and army officers from the San Francisco presidio were called into conference by Mayor Ross before he issued his proclamation. No action was announced on a proposal to request that control of the 12,000 national guardsmen on the waterfront be extended over the entire city.

The President's board, struggling desperately to bring about an armistice between the 27,000 striking marine workers and the shipping interests, continued conferences.

"We have to get both sides together on arbitration at once," O. K. Cushing, spokesman for the board, said, "or find some other solution."

Regardless of the general walkout outcome, the ranks of striking teamsters, taxicab drivers, chauffeurs and wholesale butchers, will be swelled to-night and to-morrow. Laundry drivers have voted to strike to-night, bringing the total out to approximately 11,000 in the bay region.

Six thousand culinary workers in San Francisco will strike to-morrow, Hugo Ernst, president of the Waiters' Union, announced. This will affect restaurants, hotels, clubs and other places employing union labor.

George St. Winner When Knox Defaults

George St. won the first juvenile play-off game of the Church Softball League by default last night when Knox were unable to field a full team at the Oval. Three of the Knox players were out of town, and the substitutes expected failed to show up. The seven players present, however, with the help of other Church Loop performers played and won an exhibition affair with the George Streeters. The second game will be held Tuesday at Queen Mary School when Knox will have a team on hand.

Nazi Is Murdered By Group In Vienna

VIENNA, July 14. (AP). — A squad of men entered the apartment of Cornelius Zimmer, alleged Nazi, stood him up against a wall and shot him to death to-day.

The killing immediately aroused conjecture among the general public as to whether this was the beginning of ruthless vigilante actions against Nazis.

Through Chancellor Dolfuss, the government this week opened a mop-up campaign against the party.

Police disclaim any knowledge of background for the shooting and said an investigation is under way.

We all like nice roads, but when one travels up the old 12th Line of Rawdon it is everything but natural. The beautiful valley which was so shaded with large maples, is only one stretch of straight road, also the large rock near W. S. Stiles' gate has been removed and those two stately elm trees that have stood so many years are being trimmed until they are past recognition. I am sure Mr. Alf McKeown, of Vancouver, who is visiting his old home here, will notice the vast difference since his boyhood days in this community.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, July 14 (AP)—Aiming straight for the famous mark of $1 a bushel, wheat shot suddenly forward almost five cents late yesterday and scored a perfect bull's eye.

Excited speculative buying that accompanied unconfirmed reports of foreign developments of sensationally bullish character whirled December wheat in a few minutes to exactly $1, compared with an earlier low of 95¼. The rush of late buying came mostly from eastern sources and caught the wheat market rare of offerings.

Despite active profit-taking on the crest of the rise, wheat closed strong within a fraction of the day's top, 2¾ to 3½ cents above Thursday's finish; corn ⅞ to 1⅝c advanced; oats, ⅜ to ⅝c up, and provision showing 5c to 22c gain.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, July 14. — A half-hour of real, old-time bull trading sent wheat futures prices on a swift climb on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday. The upturn erased early losses and left values at the close 1¼c to 1½c higher. July at 81½c, October 83⅝c to 83½c, and December at 84½c to 84⅝c.

Whipped into action by a deluge of bullish crop reports, speculators returned to the market they deserted on Thursday and drove prices up in a sudden three-cent surge from the low points. Most of the ground lost since Wednesday's wild 6½-cent upswing was recovered.

Their enthusiasm was based on reported poor conditions in Western Canada. Advices of blazing heat and crop deterioration from Europe, continued heat in the United States South-west, and a private estimate of Australia's 1934 crop indicating a yield of only 115,000,000 bushels.

Buying orders poured into a trading pit practically bare of offerings and traders experienced difficulty in making their purchases, owing to reluctance of wheat holders to sell.

The Australian estimate is the smallest forecast in years. The bull fever also struck Chicago, where wheat prices went over the $1-a-bushel mark in frenzied trading. Liverpool, however, closed lower, ⅜d to ½d off.

World wheat statistics yesterday showed 5,500,000 bushels of wheat cleared from Australia and Argentine during the past week, the Argentine supplying 3,500,000 bushels. No exports were reported from Russia, and but 32,000 bushels were shipped from Danubian countries.

Cash wheat trading centred around the durum variety. Coarse grains turned upwards in sympathy with wheat.

ROAD FOREMEN ARE CHANGED

LIBERAL AXE ALREADY FALLEN ON SOME HEADS

New Foreman Being Appointed to Road Camps on Apsley Highway.

MORE COMING.

Took Active Part for Conservative Party During Past Election.

The expected shake-up among the foremen employed on the new Burleigh Falls to Bancroft highway and other works of the Northern Development Department in Peterborough County, as the result of the change in Government, has commenced already and it is estimated that the services of more than a dozen minor officials on the road jobs have been dispensed with and new men appointed to take their places.

Packing Their Bags

Questioned by The Examiner today in regard to the rumored changes on the highway works, a Conservative leader said, "Yes, there has been a lot of packing of bags up there. There has been a grand trek out and another parade of new men in. If my information is correct, and I think it is, this is only the beginning and when the Hepburn Government begins to swing the axe in earnest around here some of the changes are going to be startling."

James Hawthorne, Liberal candidate, interviewed by The Examiner by telephone at noon today, confirmed reports of the changes along the northern road jobs.

"Did those men who were fired

Shooting Affray Is Heard By Constable

KITCHENER, Ont., July 16.—(C. P.)—A midnight shooting affray of which no victim can be found is puzzling police to-day.

Night Constable Robert McMorran, who patrols the park board property known as Breithaupt Bush, reported this morning that two shots were fired in a closed car which was parked in one of the wooded drives late last night. The shooting terminated an argument between a man and a woman, and the car immediately pulled away and disappeared.

"There was a heated argument going on in the car, the officer said to-day. "A man and a woman were exchanging insults and vile epithets were used by each of them.

"Suddenly, I heard two shots and as I ran toward the car, it started away and disappeared at high speed around a bend in the road."

The officer said he searched the ground where the car had been parked but found no clue. The machine was parked about 200 yards distant when he first heard the argument. Although he ran to the spot after hearing the shots, he was unable to see the license number of the car.

It is believed possible that if there was a victim of the shooting he or she was carried away in the speeding machine.

The resolution was signed by H. G. Walker and H. Girven for the George Street Church, and R. S. Merrell and W. G. Shiner for the Murray Street Church. Rev J. H. Sutcliffe was also a signatory as minister of the combined congregations.

SMALL CHILD IS RESCUED FROM PAIL OF WATER

FEARED DROWNED.

Firemen Used New Inhalator —State of Coma for 12 Hours.

Head first in a bucket of water in which he is believed to have been immersed more than five minutes, Albert Buott, thirteen months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Buott, 4 Aylmer street, was snatched from death Saturday afternoon by his mother, followed by the successful use of the Fire Department's new inhalator.

The child lay in a state of coma for twelve hours after he was resuscitated.

"He was playing in the bathroom where we keep a bucket of water" Mr. Buott told The Examiner, "and when my wife heard the swishing sound cease she went in and found the boy head down in the bucket, his feet sticking up. He seemed to be dead when she lifted him out. I went to work on him on the table, applying first aid. My wife called the Fire Department and Dr. Herbert Young. The firemen responded immediately with the inhalator. Just before the firemen arrived the baby took a deep sigh, and I redoubled my efforts. After the inhalator was used for a few minutes, Dr. Young assured us that he would recover."

Mr. Buott said that he found the boy's hat in the bucket, which is nearly as tall as the boy, and from that evidence he believed the boy was reaching over for the hat, lost his balance, and fell in head first. As soon as his breathing was fully restored hot water bottles were applied and blankets, in spite of the torrid July afternoon as a safeguard against pneumonia, and when The Examiner called yesterday the boy was smiling cheerily.

Mr. Buott told The Examiner that he was very grateful to the Fire Department for their prompt and effective service.

Hounds Aid Hunt For Missing Baby

HARTSDALE, N.Y., July 16 (AP) —The search for 21-months-old Bobby Connor, strayed or kidnapped, led again to-day into the woods fringing this New York suburb.

With the help of bloodhounds and Boy Scouts, police organized a new and more thorough hunt through the woodlands and dales near the Connor home from which the child has been missing since late Thursday.

While authorities and the child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Connor, said no authentic ransom notes had been received, the theory of kidnapping was not abandoned. Federal agents remain on the scene.

The arrest of Bernard Seidenberg, 20, accused of writing an offer to Connor to sell clues to the whereabouts of the child for $50, was announced by Frank Fay, Department of Justice agent in charge. The federal agent expressed belief the youth knew nothing of the child's whereabouts.

CREIGHTON MINES, Ont., July 16. (CP)—It wasn't exactly the "cat's whiskers" for two kittens left in a hen's nest in W. Gotre's chicken coop by their mother, a stray cat. But the hen did her best. She would sit on the shivering kittens—and lay an egg. After a week, the mother cat, summoned, perhaps, by telepathy, removed them to other quarters.

KAYE DON GIVEN 4-MONTH TERM MANSLAUGHTER

Found Guilty of Charge in Death of His Mechanic During Crash.

ON TEST RUN.

Noted British Speed Driver is Allowed Bail Pending Appeal.

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man, July 16 (C.P.-A.P.).—Kaye Don, noted racing car driver, to-day was sentenced to four months' imprisonment for manslaughter, but was released on bail a few hours later pending an appeal.

Don was convicted in connection with the death of his mechanic, Francis Taylor, killed during a practice spin May 28. Don himself was seriously injured when the light racing car catapulted off the highway on a sharp turn.

Application for leave to appeal was granted at a private afternoon session. Don was allowed bail, permitting him to leave the Isle of Man if he desires. Earlier the judge had indicated a suitable date for the appeal might be found next month.

If confirmed the sentence will be served in New Douglas prison.

Francis Tayler, the mechanic was killed instantly on a night practice run for a local race when the automobile catapulted off the highway on a bad turn. Don himself was seriously injured.

The automobile and speed boat racer was convicted Saturday night. Immediately upon sentence to-day Don's counsel fyled notice of appeal.

As soon as the sentence was passed Don was arrested.

His counsel scurried about attempting to arrange bail, which would permit Don liberty to return to England while the appeal is pending.

The prosecution charged Don failed to slacken speed when rounding a dangerous curve, endangering both his and Tayler's life. The speed king pleaded not guilty.

Mrs. Don, an English girl to whom Don was married at Greenwich, Conn., in 1932 flew here yesterday.

Don became well known in Canada and the United States for his efforts to wrest the Harmsworth speed boat trophy from Gar Wood of Detroit, in 1931 and 1932. He failed, but has set numerous automobile and boat speed records.

Still limping from his injuries, Don walked into court with the aid of a cane. The racer displayed no emotion except that he appeared tired and worried.

He placed his right hand to his forehead when the sentence was announced, as he had done numerous times during the trial.

While the appeal was being lodged Don was held in custody of police.

Man Slain At Acton Wanted By Police

HAMILTON, July 16 (C.P.). — A tangled skein of crime and intrigue faced Provincial Police to-day as they endeavored to unravel the mystery which surrounds the murder of Frank Sigiuono, whose body was found in the rumble seat of his car near Acton on Saturday morning. Sigiuono had been shot twice at close range.

Police had been searching for him in connection with the Tuckett payroll robbery. The authorities desired to question Sigiuono as to the affair, and also concerning the hold up of the Dominion Yarns office at Welland.

Police state that the murdered man had been seen in Welland the day prior to the yarns company affair.

4,000 TROOPERS PATROL STREETS MORE CALLED

Only Bread, Milk Delivery Allowed—Food Scarce, Violence Flares.

1,300,000 AFFECTED.

City Becomes "Ghost Town" as Restaurants, Shops, Markets Close.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 16. —(AP)—Completely paralyzing the metropolitan area with a population of more than 1,300,000 persons, the general strike called by Labor Unions became effective at 8 a.m. today.

All business and traffic ceased and the National Guard moved swiftly to prevent violence.

Tanks were enroute to the city, bearing machine guns and one pounder guns.

Orders to proceed at once to the siege area were received by the 160th infantry at Los Angeles.

A field artillery unit got under way from Salinas with 75 millimetre guns.

The National Guard force here was increased to 4,000 men, 2,000 troopers being moved quickly into the city.

Headquarters of the guard on the waterfront was a scene of feverish activity.

Violence broke out here and in the Transbay region. Police said a mob of nearly 1,500 stormed and looted a grocery store at 23rd and Mission streets.

At Hayward 50 men raided an alleged Communistic headquarters, dragged the furniture to a nearby lot and set it afire.

Pickets approached pedestrians and warned them not to go to work.

Most of them ignored the few passing automobiles, apparently fearing even private machines would be attacked.

Mayor Angelo Rossi, whose plea to Acting Governor Frank Merriam had resulted in more guardsmen being rushed here, was the target for abuse shouted by six alleged Communists as he came to the Hall of Justice to confer on the strike crisis.

Chief of Police William J. Quinn personally came to the mayor's aid and arrested the men.

Mob Strips Store

The mob which stormed the grocery store here smashed the doors and stripped the place of $2,000 worth of groceries before police riot squads arrived.

Running the strike blockade under the state highway police convoy, the first fleet of trucks laden with food neared San Francisco from Sacramento. The heavily guarded trucks carried meat, bread and fresh produce. Acts of violence increased alarmingly in the East Bay region.

An egg truck was overturned at San Ramon. The strike pickets cruised in Livermore, issuing warnings to gasoline station operators to cose up.

"Either close up in two hours or we will do it for you," the pickets warned.

A truck carrying a load of pears was sent hurtling into a canyon at Dublin.

At the Presidio, army headquarters here, officers said they were maintaining a "watchful waiting" attitude.

No orders had been received to mobilize the regular army troops.

"We feel the State of California will be able to cope with the situation," the officer explained. "The state has 7,000 troops available, and with the aid of the police and law abiding citizens here the situation should be kept in hand."

About 500 soldiers are ready for immediate duty, however, with 300 more available on short notice.

Shops Markets Close

Streets became like those of a "ghost city" as restaurants, shops, markets and scores of places from which residents were accustomed to obtain service closed their doors.

In addition to the 80,000 union workers in San Francisco and the east bay cities of Oakland, Berkeley and Alameda affected by the strike, thousands of other men and women were thrown out of employment as business stopped.

Portland May Be Next.

Plan for a general strike, meanwhile, were reported "proceeding with all possible haste" by a policy committee representing unions at Portland, Ore., another of the Pacific coast seaports blockaded since the walkout movement was started by Longshoremen May 9. One member of the committee said the call of a general strike, if issued, will be for Wednesday.

Traffic Menace

SWANSEA, Ont., July 16. — (CP) — A feminine sun-lover who climbs a friendly on an island in the Humber River and removes her bathing suit is worrying Constable Archie McColl. Amid blushes, the eagle-eyed constable said today: "I had heard about this young woman, and I got a glimpse of her the other day. She was up in the top branches. She no slouch at climbing. She came down far enough to give me a little sauce."

The whole trouble, from a police standpoint, is that the island is situated at a strategical point so far as traffic is concerned. It lies directly beneath the Bloor Street bridge, when traffic passes to and from Toronto. There is always some danger of a Peeping Tom precipitating an accident, police feel.

WAITER HUNTED AS NEW TRUNK MURDER FOUND

Body of Professional Dancer is Second to be Discovered in Brighton.

ALL PORTS CLOSED.

Trunk Also Contains Head, Arms Believed Off Torso Found June 17.

BRIGHTON, England, July 16 (A.P.) — A stuttering waiter who mysteriously disappeared over the week-end was sought to-day for questioning in the bizarre trunk murders of two women.

A woman's body, jammed double into a trunk, was found last night. In the trunk also were the head and arm of another woman, believed to belong to the torso found in a trunk checked at a railway station here June 18.

A description of the waiter, known as Toni Manini, an Italian, was flashed by telegraph and telephone to police of the entire country and inquiries for him were made at French ports on the English channel.

He was known to have spent a few hours late Saturday night at a Brighton dance hall after a lengthy grilling by police before the discovery of the latest body. At dawn Sunday he was seen walking toward London.

Authorities closely guarded details but the body was said to be that of Violette Kaye, professional dancer who was supposed to be filling an engagement in Paris.

BRITISH OFFICER SLAIN BY TURKS

Second is Wounded as Sentries Pour Salvo Into Sailing Boat.

INQUIRY ORDERED.

LONDON, July 16.—(C. P. Cable.) —The British government is urgently investigating through diplomatic channels the loss of a British naval officer and wounding of another, when they were fired on by Turkish sentries on the Turkish mainland off the Greek islands of Samos in the Aegean Sea.

The incident occurred on Saturday, according to an official report from the Admiralty made public to-day.

A sailing boat belonging to H.M.S. Devonshire, containing three officers, was heavily fired on by the sentries, the report said.

Surgeon-Lieut. J. B. Robinson was wounded and lost overboard, and so far his body has not been recovered. Lieut. T. S. K. Mundell was wounded in the shoulder. The other officer was not hurt.

The cruiser had been visiting the Samos Islands, which are fairly close off shore. No further details of the incident were furnished.

PROBE OPENS ON FINANCES OF PROVINCE

Hepburn Declines to Affirm or Deny Report of $42,000,000 Overdraft.

DETAILS LATER.

TORONTO, July 16.—(C. P.)—Full inquiry is now being made by the Hepburn government into the finances of Ontario and in a few days a statement will be made. Premier Mitchell Hepburn today declined to confirm or deny a report there was a $42,000,000 overdraft standing against the government.

He said, however, it was quite correct to call it an overdraft but intimated there were treasury notes outstanding to a considerable amount. He declined to say how much.

"There will no longer be any conspiracy to conceal the truth from the people," he said. "We will show them how much they will have to pay because of the late government's attempt to bribe its way back into office."

The premier today ascertained the facts in connection with the $5,000 cheque recently received by the British Empire games committee from the government. He learned, he said, it was issued following an order-in-council authorizing the expenditure passed on July 4, after the election, former Premier George S. Henry had promised the contribution in a telephone conversation several months ago. There was nothing that could be done about it now.

Passed After Election

"He passed an order-in-council after the election," he said "implementing his pre-election promise to expend public funds."

The regulations to cover the sale of beer and wine are well on their way to completion but will not come before the cabinet council until Wednesday. The liquor system will be put into effect as soon as possible, but no indication could be given yet as to whether sale would be permitted in taverns apart from hotel beverage rooms.

As there is complete overlapping between the publicity activities of the highways department and the prime minister's office that will be eliminated, Mr. Hepburn said today. He refused to say whether any other economies were ready to be placed in effect but indicated there would be important announcements before the end of the week.

No Obstacles Face Coming Hunger Trek

TORONTO, July 16 (C.P.). — No obstacles will be placed in the way of the proposed hunger march on Toronto of Ontario unemployed by the Government, Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn to-day assured a deputation from the local committee of the hunger marchers.

The Premier reaffirmed his belief in freedom of speech, assembly and organization. The question of whether the Toronto city police would allow the marchers to use the city streets and hold a demonstration in Queen's Park on July 30 would make necessary a conference between representatives of the Government and the city, Mr Hepburn said. The Ontario Provincial Police would be instructed to accord the marchers every courtesy on the highways.

Other demands made by the committee will be discussed at a meeting to-morrow with a committee from the Government composed of Hon. David Croll, Minister of Public Welfare, the Deputy Minister of Labor, and General Victor Williams, Commissioner of the Provincial Police.

The Ontario Hunger March Committee plans a march from all parts of the Province to reach Toronto on July 30 with a demonstration billed for the same day On July 31 they plan to start a four-day congress at the Labor Temple with about 700 delegates, selected from the whole group sitting in.

Young Ingersoll Girl Dies in Crash as Car Fails to Take Curve.

(By the Canadian Press)

Drownings, railway and motor accidents took a toll of 11 lives in Ontario over the week-end, while at least a dozen others suffered serious injuries.

Three were swept to death by Lake Huron's undertow at Inverhuron Beach near Kincardine. William Langley of Guelph lost his life in a gallant attempt to save Jowilla Todd, 12, and her 14-year-old sister, Florence. Two youths rescued another sister, Fay.

Florence Squires, 19, and John Deacon, 30, of London, were caught by an undertow at Iperwash Beach, near Sarnia, and disappeared before help could reach them.

Francis Burns, 19, was drowned in the waters of Lake Peterson, near Cobalt. Friends searched half an hour before recovering the body.

Only 16 months of age, Rodger Hughes drowned in a foot of water at North Bay.

William Anderson, 54, of Camlachie, was hurled to death near Sarnia when a motor car collided with a railway jigger at a level crossing.

Found On Tracks

The mangled body of William Goodward, young English farmhand, was found on railway tracks near Alliston. He is believed to have been walking home when struck by a passing train.

A motor car crash near Muir cost the life of Maxime Clayton, 18, of Ingersol. The car failed to take a curve and turned over in the ditch. Miss Clayton's sister escaped injury but the driver, her brother Jack, was taken to hospital in a critical condition, his chest crushed. There will be an inquest at Woodstock.

A 12th life was lost near Ottawa when lightning fatally burned Richard Kelly, 15, of South Hull, Que., after he had sought shelter under a tree. A companion escaped.

TOPEKA, Kas., July 16.—(C. P.)—Sunday's 111 degree temperature proved too much for Dr. J. F. Barr's golf balls.

Dr. Barr left his golf bag lying in the sun while he went into the clubhouse for luncheon. When he returned an hour and a half later, he said the covers of eight balls had grown soft and run together.

STUDENTS RISE AGAINST HITLER

10 LEADERS ARRESTED.

GOETTINGEN, Germany, July 16 (A.P.)—One thousand students of a university here staged a "revolt" against Adolf Hitler to-day, clashing with brown-shirted members of the student body who support the chancellor.

After a fiery meeting at the town hall, the rebellious students, all of them members of fraternities, fought to defend their ancient colors against a deluge of Hitlerite youths.

Hoses played on the combattants by the fire department failed to stop the fight but police finally were successful in restoring order.

Leaders Arrested

Ten ringleaders were arrested and charged with "breach of the peace and incitement to revolt."

Two fraternities were suspended until further notice by the university president, acting under pressure of the Nazi Conducted Students' Federation.

The incident was viewed as significant, since it provided the first instance of open "revolt among German students, the vast majority of whom have been ardent supporters of the Nazi movement. It was also taken as an indication of the extent of dissatisfaction which was climaxed by the bloody June 30 "purging" of Nazi ranks.

The fraternity men were protesting the wholesale dissolution of fraternities and the conversion of their houses into student "barracks," as a part of the Nazi program.

Woman Candidate Victorious In B.C.

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C., July 16 (C.P.).—Mrs. Dorothy Gretchen Steeves, defeated in the general British Columbia elections last November, to-day had won a seat in the Legislature through victory in the Provincial by-election.

Her victory restored to seven the strength of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation in the Legislature and gave the House its second woman member. The other is Mrs. Paul Smith, Liberal, who sits for Vancouver-Burrard constituency.

One poll was still lacking in the by-election, with the vote standing: Mrs. Steeves, 2,789; Mackenzie Matheson, Liberal, 2,284; E. E. Leary, United Front, 150; James Witham, Independent, 41. Mrs. Steves' had a majority of 505 over Matheson and a majority of 314 over all candidates.

Air mail and passenger service has been started between Canton, Hankow and Peiping, China.

FRISCO'S FOOD PLIGHT SERIOUS

Fresh and Smoked Meat Supplies Low—Many Restaurants Closed.

HOSPITALS CARED FOR.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 16. (AP). The food situation in the San Francisco metropolitan area was estimated to-day to be about as follows:

There is little fresh meat, and the supply is rapidly becoming exhausted. Smoked meats hams and bacons — which housewives have been buying heavily because such meats keep well—are about gone.

The larger hotels, which have facilities for food storage, insist they will be able to feed "regular guests". Patrons of smaller hostelries in some instances have filled closets in their rooms with canned foods to meet the eventualities of the "siege."

Fresh meats and other necessary foodstuffs will be supplied hospitals by special dispensation of the general strike committee.

Hundreds of restaurants already have closed. Others say they will have to.

One relief station feeding 100 persons daily, was down to a fare of beans yesterday.

No interruption, at least immediately is anticipated in the supply of milk and bread, although a stopped of bakery deliveries was a possibility.

BUTLER, Mo., July 16—(CP)—Officials have discovered in looking back over old ordinances that the city could reap a harvest in fines—if it could only collect.

PURCHASE GIRLS FOR RE-MARRIAGE

Missionary From Island in South Seas Finds Wives for Tribe's Young Men.

SYDNEY, Australia, July 16. — (CP).—Back to civilization for the first time in 23 years, Rev. Father F. X. Gsell, pastor at Bathurst Island, off the north coast of Australia, told of a strange custom which necessitated his purchasing 124 native girls at $10 each.

Girls were married on the day of their birth, almost invariably to old men, who were permitted as many wives as they desired. A rigid standard of conduct within the tribe was insisted upon, and under the severest penalties a husband was not allowed to trade one of his wives to another member of the tribe.

Sometimes, Father Gsell said, a young native would take away a woman who was already married to one of the tribe, and immediately trouble would arise, the whole tribe seeking to avenge such a breach of custom.

Often the runaway couple would appear at the mission, and then a bargaining process would begin. The old husband generally would agree to the woman "marrying" the missionary, caring nothing what happened to her afterward. Actually what happened was that the missionary would agree to buy the girl, and would later hand her over to the care of the young man after he had given a pledge, in the presence of the tribe, that she would be his only wife.

Car Crashes Pole To Avoid Collision

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, July 16. — Campbellford is generally spoken of as a quiet town—but at 3 o'clock on Saturday morning residents in the vicinity of Pellisier and Sebastopol streets, thought that the world had come to an end. Here is the story. A motorist driving east at what must have been a fairly good speed, judging by the marks on the telegraph post, evidently did not figure on meeting another car at that hour—the other driver perhaps thought the same—so east bound jams on the brake, swings to the left, bangs into the pole, down comes the street lamp crash on the pavement—but before anyone reaches the scene both cars had disappeared in the darkness.

THREE ARE SLAIN IN TEXAS STRIKE

Negro Independent Longshoremen Shot Down on Way to Work.

UNION MAN WOUNDED.

HOUSTON, Texas, July 16 (A. P.). — The roar of gunfire on the waterfront, leaving three men dead and three others wounded, created a tense situation to-lay in Houston's dock labor troubles.

The outbreak occurred as 20 negro independent longshoremen were riding to work yesterday. A car which police believed carried members and sympathizers of the International Longshoremen's Association, drew alongside and pistols and shotguns poured a stream of lead into a truck and a motor car occupied by the negros.

One of the negro independents jerked out a pistol and returned the fire, wounding C. O. Reeves, union longshoreman. The negro's pistol fire was cut short when a bullet felled him.

SLOW CHLOROFORM CAUSE OF POISON

Delayed Action of Drug Rarely Heard of But is Always Fatal.

BRIDLINGTON, England, July 16 (C.P.).—A case of poisoning from the delayed action of chloroform, which was stated to be very rare but always fatal, and which cannot be detected, was the subject of an inquest on Mrs. Eleanor M. Boynton, 28, who died in child birth.

An anaesthetic was administered to Mrs. Boynton before her child was born. Afterwards she seemed normal but succumbed some days later.

Dr. H. W. Nicholson said that acute poisoning caused by the delayed action of chloroform was seldom heard of. "It is always fatal," he added. "There is nothing to show it, and it is a poison which destroys the entire liver and only occurs in people who are predisposed to it."

The coroner asked if any specialist could have detected this peculiarity before the chloroform was given. The witness thought not.

HUDSON'S BAY GOVERNOR LANDS AT CARTWRIGHT

P. Ashley Cooper is Welcomed by Newfoundland's Officials on Initial Visit.

TRADING VILLAGE.

Brings Special Message From King and Queen for Eskimo Tribes.

CARTWRIGHT, Labrador, July 16 (C.P.). — Bearing a message from His Majesty the King to his Eskimo subjects of the Far North, P. Ashley Cooper, Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, came ashore here to-day at this unofficial capital of the Labrador coast, the first port of call of R.N.S. Nascopie's annual voyage to Hudson Bay and the Eastern Arctic.

With pipes playing and the Governor's flag flying from the lifeboat, Mr. Cooper was welcomed by Newfoundland Government officials, missionaries, and company representatives. The greetings from the King, which will be delivered at each post as the ship proceeds north to Baffinland, was transcribed in Innuit or Eskimo.

Accompanying the message was a news reel of His Majesty specially prepared for this expedition. The message itself will be given in both Eskimo and English. The text of the message follows.

"The message of King George, who rules the British Empire, and of Queen Mary, his wife, to the Innuit:

"The Queen and I send to our loyal Innuit subjects, who dwell throughout Northern Canada and on the shores of Labrador, a message of greeting from our home in the great Encampment of London. In every part of the British Empire, be it ever so many sleeps from our Encampment, the happiness of our subjects deeply affects the personal happiness of the Queen and myself.

Proud of the Eskimos.

"You should know that we have often heard tell that no people are merrier, more friendly, or more thoughtful for their families than the Innuit. In the same way that parents are proud of their children, so the Queen and I take especial pride in our faithful and hardy Innuit.

"May each Innuit family thrive, and may your children and grandchildren learn in their turn to do honor alike to their parents and to the British Empire."

On behalf of the Government of Newfoundland, M. Murphy, Justice of the Peace for the Labrador Coast, welcomed Mr. Cooper to the little Community Hall of this fishing and fur trading village. At the reception speeches of welcome were also made by Rev Mr. Pharsons of the Anglican Mission, and Dr. Paddon of the Grenfell Mission. Later there was a dinner on board the Nascopie, and in the evening a dance and fireworks ashore. After two days the Nascopie will leave again for the north.

QUEBEC COUNTS TOLL AT SEVEN

Five Drown, Car Crash Kills One, Motor Boat Propeller Another.

TWO INJURED.

(By the Canadian Press).

Two deaths by accident, one of them in an automobile collision, and five by drowning was the toll to-day as Quebecers attempted to escape the sweltering heat of towns and cities in the cooling waters of lakes and rivers this week-end and added to the rising toll of summer deaths in the Province of Quebec.

The drowned are John Ulley, foreman of the Montreal Electric Company; Paul Quesnel, 33; Lionel Gilbeault, 24, all of Montreal; G. Bourgeault, Ste. Justine De Newton, and Frances McCarthy, 16, Quebec. The other week-end dead are Catherine Scullion, 17, Montreal, and Albert Gelinas, 31, Yamachiche, Que.

The 17-year-old Scullion girl was killed when struck by the whirling propellor of an outboard motorboat. The blade pierced her skull when the boat suddenly shot into reverse as it was being started. The other girls, Jean Davidson, 12, and Angela Thistlethwaite, 14, were also struck by the propellor and suffered injuries. The former is in a serious condition in hospital, while the latter was allowed to return home after treatment.

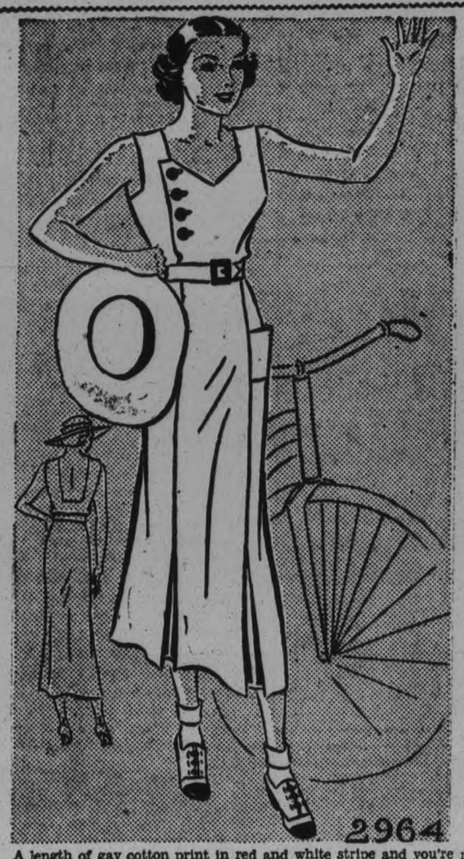
Fashion Service



A length of gay cotton print in red and white stripe and you're ready to start. It's almost as simple as falling off a log to make it.

The side closing with button trim creates a long graceful bodice line. The front panel skirt effect will make you appear taller and more slender. It has the new deep square out sunback.

Such a model as this would also be delightful in checked seersucker plain pastel or pique print in checks or stripes, plaided gingham, linen, pastel or white washing silk.

Style No. 2964 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18 years, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust. Size 16 requires 3⅞ yards of 35-inch material with ¼ yard of 35-inch contrasting.

BLITZ TORTE SMART FOR SUMMER MENU

"Good plain cooking" sounds a bit stuffy in summer. It usually is, to, and without enough variety to interest a glutton. Even if "Blitz Torte" was not a delicious cake, it has a sophisticated ring that suggests great, air spaces, smooth lawns and clipped boxwood trees.

* * * * * * *

This recipe makes an excellent Blitz Torte with very little effort, and it is very good with any of the fresh berries in season. Just sweeten and crush them and serve on top.

* * * * * * *

BLITZ TORTE

1 1-3 cups sifted cake flour, 1 1-3 teaspoons baking powder, 4 egg yolks unbeaten, 4 egg whites, ¼ cup almonds shredded, ½ cup butter or other shortening, ½ cup sugar, 5 tablespoons milk, 1 cup sugar.

* * * * * * *

METHOD: Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks, one at a time, beating very thoroughly after each addition. Add flour, alternately with milk, beating thoroughly after each addition. Spread in two greased 9-inch layer pans. Beat egg whites until stiff, then beat in 1 cup sugar gradually. Beat well. Spread in equal amounts on top of each layer. Sprinkle tops with almonds. Bake in slow oven (325 degrees F.) 25 minutes, then increase heat to moderate (350 degrees F) and bake 30 minutes longer.

* * * * * * *

Almonds may be omitted and the cake served with a fruit sauce or ice cream, if desired. Or put layers together and cover with crushed berries.

Your Health

By DR. LOGAN CLENDENING

The commonest skin disease in summer is probably the commonest disease, except the common cold, which afflicts people in the United States—ringworm, or athlete's foot, or Dhobie itch.

It is caused by the invasion into the skin of a small fungus which is related to yeast. It forms a network of branching roots, which grow insidiously in the upper layers of the skin. It is particularly likely to grow well on moist skin surfaces, and for that reason the feet, and especially the areas between the toes, are affected. It also grows on the hands between the fingers, under the armpits, and on the thighs.

The most prominent symptom is itching. If the blisters are scratched open with the finger nails, infection is likely to set in and considerable inflammation may result.

The appearance of the eruption differs somewhat in different parts of the body. When on the feet it is usually recognized on account of the popularization of the term "athlete's foot." When not on the feet, it is almost always described to something else than what it actually is—acid, or heat, or irritation from rubbing.

Characteristically, the fungus causes blisters, around which there develop red areas of inflammation. This is almost invariably true on the feet and hands. Under the armpits there is an area of redness with very sharp edges, so that the normal skin stops abruptly and the red, itching area begins.

The disease is seldom dangerous except as the scratching may cause infection. I have known of serious blood poisoning from this source, and even the loss of part of a limb. But even in the mildest cases the annoyance is sufficient to make it a disease of real importance, and even economic importance.

The prevention and treatment will be taken up in the articles following this one.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

P. H.: "(1) What causes acid and gassy conditions in one's system? (2) What is the common cause of an unpleasant or dark brown taste in the morning, on awakening? (3) In cases of chronic constipation, do you recommend mineral oils?"

Answer: (1) Acid conditions of the system are far less frequent than is generally supposed. Many symptoms are ascribed to acid in the body when the blood, as a matter of fact, is entirely neutral. The blood protects its neutrality by an extremely complicated mechanism, and it is very difficult to upset. When acid does occur in the system it is extremely serious, as in diabetic coma. By "gassy conditions" I presume you mean eructitaons of gas from the stomach, or the presence of gas in the intestines. These are seldom of any special significance, although gall bladder disease is frequently associated with eructations of gas from the stomach.

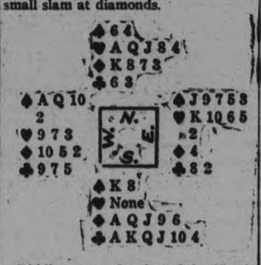
CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

PARTNER'S CONFIDENCE.

Partner's confidence is essential to success. To retain confidence it must never be abused. In May I was partner of a pupil who never before had taken part in a duplicate game. To make the matter more trying, my partner never had played before at the Knickerbocker Whist club, where the highest kind of skill is to be found. That confidence gave us top score. The following hand gave us a big top score on the first round. No other pair dared play the hand at clubs, and no other pair ventured to play the hand for a small slam at diamonds.

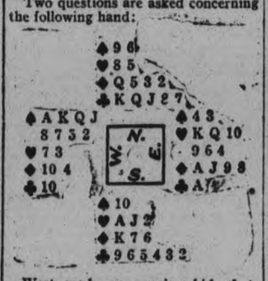


Bidding went: South, 2-clubs; North 2-hearts; South, 3-diamonds, to show the shorter suit; North, 4-diamonds; South, 5-clubs; North, 6-clubs, instead of stopping at 5-diamonds, as was done at other tables. My partner believed that I had some excellent reason for thinking that we could make a small slam at both calls, but that honors held at clubs would give us a higher score than we would make at diamonds.

No opening lead could have defeated the small slam contract. West led the 10 of diamonds, hoping either that East could ruff or held the ace. After East had followed suit, not even 5 trumps in one hand could have mattered. The hand was a spread, merely announcing that I would discard one spade on the ace of hearts, and pull clubs until all of that suit fell. One spade trick had to be given to the holder of the ace.

Questions

Two questions are asked concerning the following hand:



West made an opening bid of 4-spades, second hand. East jumped the call to 6-spades. The opening lead was the K of clubs. Before tomorrow, think over these questions:

(1) Should East bid the small slam?
(2) Should West fulfil the contract?

BE BEAUTIFUL

In one of the Broadway shows in which I starred, the last Follies produced by the well-loved Flo Ziegfeld, there was a young chorine who had quite a mania for ocean bathing. This lass would go to a local beach each day, spend the entire afternoon swimming about in the briny, and get to the theater just in time to hop into her costume for the opening number.

I often wondered, when I saw her prancing about on the stage, how she managed to keep her hair in such perfect condition. Despite the fact that bathing caps help a great deal to keep the hair from becoming soaked, you know as well as I that some water always seems to manage to creep beneath the cap and dampen the hair. And as I told you in one of my columns not so long ago, when the hair becomes dampened with briny ocean water or hark lake or river water, it becomes dull, sticky and unattractive.

This young chorine's locks, however, always seemed soft, glossy and fluffy. And one day I asked her how she managed to keep it in this condition and, at the same time, do all the swimming that she customarily did. She grinned impishly and replied, "Merely by using the old head and a piece of chamois."

Her reply, of course, was rather mystifying. But when she went into further explanation about the matter, I had to admit that she had used the head of hers. According to her, the lass who likes her swimming, yet hates to have her hair soaked or her wave ruined by ocean water, can very simply prevent this. Before donning her bathing cap in preparation for that first plunge into the water, she should brush her hair upward from the hairline all around her head, and pin it securely on he top of her head. Then she should take a strip of ordinary chamois, about three inches wide, and bind it about her head so that it entirely covers the hairline. After this, she should don a snug bathing cap and put it on so that it entirely covers the chamois band. Try this system, if you dislike getting water in your ears, or getting your locks wet when you go swimming. You'll find it no end helpful in keeping your hair soft and fluffy, and perfect undulations in your wave.

Editor's Note: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, and ten cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling. For her articles on "Care of the Hands and Nails" and "Care of the Feet and Legs", two cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope are required. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

Work Piles Up Fast For Bennett's Return

OTTAWA, July 15 (CP).—The return of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett on Wednesday will find an accumulation of business which the Premier had held over until he had had his brief visit to Western Canada. This is for the most part a result of the legislation passed at the last session of Parliament, and has to do with the numerous appointments to fill the posts created by Parliamentary enactments.

Transcending these, however, will be the preparations for the Dominion-Provincial conference scheduled for July 30. At this assembly the whole matter of unemployment relief will be thoroughly threshed out. On Friday a note was sent to Provincial administrations advising that for another month the Dominion would continue its contribution to relief on a reduced basis. Instead of contributing 33 1-3 per cent., the Federal Government will contribute 25 per cent. Since the $40,000,000 public work program is expected to reduce to a tremendous extent the unemployment relief needs of the country, the Dominion administration feels that its relief demands will bear lightly on both provinces and municipalities, consequently its own contribution should in like measure be lightened.

SPECIAL EXHIBIT BY FARM GROUPS

C.N.E. Opens Class for Members of Agricultural Societies.

The prize list of the Canadian National Exhibition includes a special section restricted to members of Agricultural Societies, through whom entries must be forwarded. The Peterborough Exhibition Board is planning an exhibit which has been referred to Alex. Huston and A. D. Runions, representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, for preliminary promotion.

This section of the C.N.E. includes grain and seed, and grain in sheaves. An entry in the first class must comprise a collective exhibit by five individual farmers. Four prizes are awarded ranging from $60 to $24. Sheaves of grain must be submitted by three farmers, with five prizes ranging from $40 to $16.

Transportation charges are paid by the C.N.E., and there is no entry fee. A local exhibit should be forwarded through the secretary of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, and as the entries must be sent in early next month, Mr. Huston hopes to enlist this week a group of farmer members of the Exhibition who will provide a Petreborough exhibit. Forty per cent. of the prize money is allotted to the Agricultural Society.

Other Fair Boards in the county will probably take advantage of this special class at the C.N.E.

SPECTACULAR INCREASES.

The latest bulletin on Dominion finances just issued at Ottawa is even more optimistic and encouraging than that of a month ago, for gratifying increases are shown in revenues received.

Customs and excize collections last month were $4,224,349 higher than those in June a year ago, while the collections for the first three months of the current fiscal year surpassed the total for the first quarter of the last fiscal year by the huge sum of $15,283,485.

At the same time, indicating rapidly improving trade conditions, Canada's imports and exports were taking what are fittingly described as spectacular jumps.

For the first quarter of the year exports from this country totalled $147,526,920, an increase of $35,972,158 over the 1933 figures, while imports leaped up to $133,869,661, which was almost $47,000,000 better than the total for April, May and June a year ago.

Another sure indication of better times is the fact that income tax collections for the quarter were $623,167 better than for the same period last year, while customs revenues increased by $6,890,472 and excise duties by $7,289,545.

The substantial gain in exports is made up largely by large increases in the amount of wheat, meats, lumber, newsprint, automobiles, copper and nickel shipped out of Canada in the first quarter of the fiscal year.

Meat exports increased by 100 per cent., lumber by 75 per cent., and other commodities were exported in noticeably larger quantities.

THE RELIEF SITUATION.

If the whole program of new provincial public works and road building is to be scrapped in the interest of economy, sending back to the relief lists thousands of Ontario men who have been engaged in these projects, the relief situation promises to develop a fresh crisis.

The seriousness of this new turn in affairs is aggravated by the fact that the federal public works relief program benefits only a comparatively few centres, and still more, by the decision that Ottawa, although continuing its contribution to direct relief for another month will pay only a quarter of the cost instead of a third.

With the relief lists suddenly swollen by the return of thousands of heads of families who have been temporarily employed, municipal and provincial authorities find themselves in the position of having to raise 75 per cent. of the cost of direct relief for the next month, and after that perhaps of having to find all the money needed for assistance to the unemployed.

If the Bennett Government at Ottawa and the Hepburn Government at Toronto believe that it is possible to put the whole responsibility for caring for the still abnormally large numbers of workless on the shoulders of the municipalities they are hopelessly out of touch with the plight of the municipal taxpayer, who has had more than he could do to meet his obligations under the system by which the two Governments each assumed one-third of direct relief costs, and who certainly cannot be expected to foot the whole bill.

AN IMPORTANT INDUSTRY.

The importance of the woollen industry in Canada from the viewpoint of employment opportunities was stressed in the address of President H. Barrett at the sixteenth annual meeting of the Canadian Woollen and Knit Goods Association in Toronto the other day.

Mr. Barrett pointed out that during the depression years the woollen and knitting industry in this country had performed a national service in maintaining and increasing employment.

For the last twelve months the index figures of employment in the Canadian woollen and knitting business have been rising, and in May of this year employment in the cloth mills was at 126.8, while in the hosiery and knitting mills it was 120.4.

The benefit of this steady and increased employment was all the greater by reason of the fact that the industry is not concentrated in a few large places but is spread over many of the small centres of population, inasmuch as out of the 300 mills in the country 130 of the plants are located in towns with less than 10,000 population and 49 more in cities of less than 25,000.

The president was able to announce that the woollen and knitting industry now directly employs 26,000 Canadians and has an annual payroll of over $20,000,000; these figures only refer to those directly employed in the industry itself, and do not take into account those engaged in furnishing fuel, supplies, power, material, maintenance or transportation.

That there must be thousands in the latter class is seen from the fact that the woollen and knitting industry purchases over $30,000,000 worth of supplies every year.

ADVERTISING NEW LAWS.

Calling attention to the need of great publicity for new laws, a matter which The Examiner has on more than one occasion brought forward, the Brockville Recorder and Times mentions the fact that some of the American states require the publication in newspapers of all newly enacted legislation so that the public may be acquainted with the details.

Here in Canada there is no such provision, and as Hon. George P. Graham's paper points out, police and other authorities are informed of the changes—but the people are left in ignorance of the new laws until prosecutions are initiated.

A few samples of recent enactments are given, and it would be interesting to know how many Examiner readers knew anything about these measures:

"Every one commits theft who maliciously or fraudulently abstracts, causes to be wasted or diverted, consumes or uses any electricity, or uses a telephone or telegraph line or obtains telephone or telegraph service."

"Every sale, loan, gift, barter or exchange of any property, by any lottery, ticket, card or other mode of chance depending upon or to be determined by chance or lot, is void, and all property so sold, lent, given, bartered or exchanged, shall be forfeited to His Majesty."

"Every one is guilty of an offence and liable upon summary conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars or to imprisonment for any term not exceeding sixty days, or to both fine and imprisonment, who without authority from the Minister of National Defence carries or discharges any firearm upon any property or premises under the control or management of the said Minister."

"Every one is guilty of an indictable offence who sells, exposes or has in his possession for sale, or who advertises for sale any goods or things which have been used, reconditioned, rebuilt or remade, and which bear the duly registered trade mark or the trade name of any other person who owns or is entitled to use such trade mark or trade name, unless full disclosure is made that such goods or things have been so used, reconditioned, rebuilt or remade for sale, and that they are not then in the condition in which they were originally made or produced."

WHY NOT PLAN FOR PEACE?

The approaching day when Canada and the United States will observe 150 years of peace along their unfortified 4,000-mile border is to be commemorated by the publication of a dozen bulky tomes, says an editorial in the Rotarian. Already a committee of distinguished citizens of both countries, headed by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University, is at work gathering data from the days of the voyageurs to the present.

Fortunately there is much more to the story than those bald facts. The survey—over-used word!—is to go further than reviewing how these North American governments have managed to refrain from war. It will attack the problem of peace positively, striving to make clear the technique these two nations, both trained in responsible government, have developed to live side by side in amity for more than a century.

War is not the normal state of man, although many histories certainly give that impression. On their pages the mountain peaks of interest are wars, with meagre space allotted to the vales of peace between. Friendly relations between nations may not have the glamour of men striding down boulevards to the squeak of fife and the roll of drum, but let no one say that in the scientific work of a Banting or the humanitarian career of a Grenfell there is neither significance nor romance.

A current news story tells how an idea, originated in a small Canadian Rotary Club, has merged two great scenic playgrounds into the Waterton-Glacier International Peace Park. A gesture? Yes, but more. Much more. It is official recognition of what people long have known, that in play is a tie which can with increasing strength web nations in understanding and goodwill.

It is but one of innumerable elements of common interest that have brought Canadians and their neighbors to the south into friendly relations. These two peoples have been unconsciously developing a method of peace. Its success merits the painstaking study Dr. Butler and his co-workers are prepared to give. And it is not too much to expect that these men will discover principles of social organization which will hereafter prove of value in planning for amicable relations among all nations instead of for war.

ALBERTA'S NEW PREMIER.

Another former immigrant has reached the top of the political ladder on the prairies in the Hon. Richard Gavin Reid, who has been chosen to succeed the Hon. J. E. Brownlee as head of the U.F.A. Government in the province of Alberta. Mr. Reid was the choice of supporters of the Government who met in caucus at Edmonton this week following the resignation of Mr. Brownlee, a sequel to the rather sensational court proceedings in which he recently figured, and will now proceed to re-organize the ministry and conduct the government of the province.

A native of Scotland who came to Canada in early manhood and joined many of his countrymen in farming in Alberta, Mr. Reid is not without considerable parliamentary experience as he has been a member of the Alberta Legislature since 1921 and a Cabinet Minister for the same period of time. At first Minister of Municipal Affairs and Minister of Health, he was transferred to the Provincial Treasurer's portfolio in 1926 and he has since occupied that office, in addition to serving as Minister of Municipal Affairs.

It is announced that the Alberta Government will continue as a distinctly U.F.A. administration without any attempt at fusion with other groups, such as had been rumored. This means that the Greenfield and Brownlee tradition of government in Alberta will be continued, at least until the next general election, which must take place next year, if not earlier. At the present time, the United Farmers hold 36 seats in a legislative assembly of 63 members, while the Liberals, led by Mr. Howson, are in second position with 13 members, the Conservatives hold six seats, followed by four Labor representatives and four Independents.

How well the Reid Government will fare in the contest at the polls which is due to take place before many months have passed remains to be seen. Word from the West is that its position is none too secure, and it will be almost a miracle if it is able to receive a renewed mandate from the people, particularly in view of what has been happening to other provincial governments throughout the Dominion.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Anyway Premier Hepburn is solving the vacation problem for many civil servants.

Just in the interest of economy it might be mentioned tht the layman can see little need for two highly paid counsel in the Hydro probe.

Judging by the despatches from California, all is not quiet on the western front.

Dr. Charles Breier declares that Canada supports a revision of the calendar, which should be news to about every nine hundred and ninety-nine Canadians out of a thousand.

The intimation that the Hepburn Government will grant no restaurant beer licenses is not surprising. There is no real demand for such licenses.

It look as if the new Government has just about taken the hide off the Hydro.

Poor rich folks! If they spend they are showing off. If they don't, they aren't circulating money to help recovery.—San Francisco Chronicle.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

ZEALANDIA, SASK.

Strange as it may seem, this name was manufactured from New Zealand, the point of origin of one of the settlers in the district.

Ten farmers of the territory gathered in 1905 to choose a name for the settlement. Three names were suggested, but on the representation of a Mr. Englehedth, who came originally from New Zealand, the above was forwarded to the government for its approval.

When the railroad went through the district in 1908-09 the rail authorities wanted to change the name to Brock, but a petition from the citizens persuaded the government to leave the original name.

THE BROWSER.

The Browser is always very glib in giving advice to other people about what books to take on vacation, but he never knows what He should take. . . . He has discovered, after years of trial and error, that the best thing to do on a vacation is anything else but book reading. . . . Somehow or other books don't seem to fit in. The birds make so much noise. The crickets drive you crazy. The grass is so noisy. The silence is so interfering. . . . And you can't keep your mind on a book while all that racket is going on. . . . Magazines are different. And when you're finished with a magazine you can drop it without a pang. But there's a superstition about books. Hardly anybody has enough courage to throw a book into a wastebasket just because it's a bore or badly done. . . . The Browser has heard of people throwing books at buzzing mosquitoes or putting books into blazing fires because they are obscene, but that's quite different from sloughing off a book as casually as a snake does his skin and leaving it by the roadside for anyone to take. . . . The Browser used to try putting books into his wastebasket but the janitress would not allow it. She kept on retrieving books like "The Grain Trade During the War" and "Reports of the Chemical Foundation for 1926" until she wore him out, and he gave up in despair. So now, when anybody asks him for a book he hands out one of those books that the janitress will not let him throw away, and that ends that' . . . The Browser is now dividing his friends into those who like F. Scott Fitzgerald's "Tender Is the Night" and those who do NOT LIKE IT AT ALL. The score is about even between those who sniff and those who cheer. . . . Those who like it may like Ronald Fangen's "Duel", those who don't will not like Fangen's "Duel", either. . . . But the Browser did. . . . The publishers say that Fangen, "whose work has never before been translated into English, has long been known to his countrymen as one of their leading men of letters". But this will not be the last to be translated. . . . The man is a master of the difficult business of slipping the scalpel of the imagination under the skin and laying bare the quivering nerves of mankind. . . . He goes about his business pitying, but he goes about it. . . . "Duel" is the story of a successful man of international reputation and of a thwarted country doctor who seethes with jealousy and hatred. . . . It's more than that. It's the story of their wives and sons and daughters, too. . . . It is a duel between one man who moves steadily toward the sun and another who plunges fiercely toward death and defies that other to save him. And if that does not sound particularly attractive, please pardon the Browser, because he has a headache today and doesn't feel like writing this column—and too many people have been sitting in his office today and asking him questions, and he wishes they'd all go away and allow him to do his work.

The Browser hears that Louis-Ferdinand Celine is still working in his little hospital and allowing his royalties to pile up in the bank. . . Someone else told him that Celine was wounded in the war and carries a piece of steel in his head, behind one eye, and that he writes painfully and hasn't many years to live, but doesn't mind. . . . Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterborough's Leading Handwriting Analyist for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

Miss Ruth Glenn,
R. R. No. 2, Hastings, Ont.

Your handwriting was delineated on March the seventh, and I am sorry to note that it did not appear in "The Examiner." I hope you will forgive this oversight, and enjoy reading what I have to tell you now. You had asked me then for lucky days and months, but forgot to give me the date of your birth. However, dates do not matter at all in the delineating of your handwriting, and you wrote sufficient in your letter to enable me to give you a definite reading. You are of course quite a young person, so the chief characteristics that I shall mention will be in the hope that you will try to develop them as you grow older. In your letter you have at least four different types of 't' bar crossings. One shows that you can have excellent will power, another with its tall upright stroke depicts imagination of a practical type, the others portray lack of will power or determination at times, but not always. You appear to be rather set in your ways and mannerisms, but sympathetic and genuine in friendship. You do not appear to be 'Very fussy' about your personal clothing, but you do like to be comfortable. Some of your letters reflect an artistic tendency, but it is not at all definite as yet. I think it might be defined as in your love for flowers, plants or music. When you are older, you will no doubt love entertaining and pride yourself upon your ability to set a 'good' table. Right now, your character should be adaptable, lovable and kind, though impulsive. If you enjoy music at all, which really does present itself in some of the rounded loops, try to cultivate either vocal or instrumental with a view to having an accomplishment which is both charming and a means of bringing you friends, for it is usually the girl who cannot do anything in the line of entertaining, who is a 'wall-flower'. A good dictionary, and diligently reading the daily newspaper, will add greatly to your general knowledge. In closing I wish to say that you have it within you to become very charming and successful, so try to attend to the details of dress and deportment. Learn to carry yourself erect, modulate your voice, for no matter what other personal charms one possesses, if the voice is harsh or rasping, the dress, deportment or physical beauty will fade into nothing.

Marguerite Evans,
601 Water Street,
Peterborough, Ont.

Your handwriting expresses intelligence and initiative. You are a thorough person and always endeavour to put forth your best efforts when engaged upon work of any nature, though you do drive yourself mentally quite often. Don't you? There is a nervous tendency noted in the manner in which you portray the word 'Peterborough'. It shows that you are inclined to 'be on the go,' without sufficient rest. Your imagination is well developed, and your sympathetic nature leads you to feel the hurt of others. You are sensitive, and a decided hurt to your feelings will remain with you for a long time. You may outgrow this sensitive characteristic, and if you do, nursing or teaching should appeal to you. I am rather afraid that you will be careless about your health, so a word of warning now might save you years of suffering. I see a love of out of door recreation noted in the loopings of your 'g's' and if you swim, it would be well for you to remember not to sit about in a damp bathing suit, and to wear warm clothing on chilly nights. Your capital letters reveal many artistic tendencies. The loop of your capital letter 'P' is interesting because it reflects tenderness, and interest in music. This, with your ability to make the road smooth for others, should bring you deep devoted friendship and lasting love. You may often become discouraged, but I do not think that you will ever give up. Your type as a rule work best in large groups, but should not try to carry out projects alone. You are diplomatic, gracious and pleasing, but find it quite difficult at times to control your criticisms. You are sentimental, but try to hide this fact as often as possible. You will have to guard against signing notes of guarantee for others later on in life. Your number is ten. Your birthsign is Libra the Balance. You are ruled by Venus. August and December are your most fortunate months. Friday seems to be your lucky day.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

THE DISCOVERER OF CHURCHILL.

On this date, in 1620 Jens Munck, the discoverer of Churchill, sailed from that place after a winter of terror. Munck was born June 3, 1579, the son of Erik Munck, a Danish nobleman. After an early life of vicissitudes he was commissioned by King Christian IV., of Denmark, to command an expedition to find the north west passage. He had two small ships, the Unicorn and the Lamprey, with crews of 65. They left Copenhagen May 9 and arrived at the mouth of Hudson straits July 11. Because of ice and waste of time in examining Ungava Bay, they did not reach the western end of the straits until September, but on the 7th of that month the Unicorn sailed by accident into Churchill harbor, and two days later was joined by the Lamprey.

The indications of winter decided them to stay. The two ships were taken well into the harbor and beached at a point close to where the Hudson's Bay Company's post was in later years. The winter was not very severe to Danes, bred in and used to cold, but proved fatal to the company, for out of 65 only Munck and two sailors were alive when the ice went out the following June. The Unicorn was abandoned, but the Lamprey was launched and in it Munck and his companions made their way home, arriving September 21, 1620.

Munck, who lived until 1628, wrote an account of his expedition giving the name New Denmark to the country and naming the harbor "Jens Munck's Winter Haven" or "Jens Munck's Bay". It was not until 1686 that the British entered the harbor when Captain Abraham named it Churchill after Lord John Churchill (afterwards the great duke of Marlborough). In 1688 it was ordered that Churchill be "settled" and from that time on it has figured in the records of the Hudson's Bay Company, who thought highly of its harbor. In March, 1929, a railway steel reached the harbor and Churchill again became a post of inter-empire trade.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN.

TORONTO, July 16 — Approximate prices track shipping point:

Wheat 88c to 91c, oats 38c to 40c, barley 45c to 46c, corn 68c to 72c, rye 48c to 50c, buckwheat 58c to 60c.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, July 16. — Sensationally unfavorable crop reports from spring crop territory on both sides of the Canadian border ran wheat prices up on Saturday 12 cents above Monday's low point.

A widely known Chicago crop expert telegraphing from Weyburn, Sask., said that between Minot, N D., and Weyburn, 165 miles, he did not see one field of grain that gave promise of being harvested. In a further report from Regina, he added a general survey showed conditions worse than expected, and that fully 4,000,000 acres across Southern Saskatchewan were clore to failure with no improvement possible.

After a maximum overnight rise of 2 cents, far overtopping in some cases $1.00 a bushel, wheat reacted under first profit-taking but closed strong ¼c to 1¼c higher, compared with Friday's finish, corn ⅝c to ¾c up, oats at ¼c decline to ⅜c advance, and provisions showing 5 to 15 cents gain.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Prices were easier on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market last week while offerings were substantially less than they were during the previous week.

The butter market ended the week at 19c a pound for fresh No. 1 in carlots or less, off ¼c. Small lots to retailers were 20c a pound for solids and 21c for prints. Exports for the week totaled 42c boxes in the corresponding week last year. Receipts were 26,578 boxes, as compared with 33,919 the week before.

Cheese also declined in price, Ontario colored being 10¼c to 10½c a pound in comparison with 10½c to 10⅝c a pound the previous week, while Quebec cheese sold for 9⅝c to 9¾c a pound against 10c to 10½c a pound a week ago. Exports totaled 29,911 boxes, as compared with 14,877 boxes the previous week and 30,319 boxes in the corresponding week last year. Arrivals were 28,653 boxes against 34,036 boxes the previous week.

Egg Prices Steady

The Egg Market was steady, graded, shipments in carlots or less being quoted at 20c to 21c a dozen for a large, 19c to 20c for A-medium or B and 18c to 19c for C. Receipts for the week totalled 11,825 cases against 19,513 cases the preceding week.

On the Potato Market, the bulk of the trading was in new Quebec stock which sold for $1.45 for No. 1, per 80-pound bag, while New Brunswick Mountains (old stock) brought 65c to 70c per 80-pound bag, down 15c from the levels of a week ago.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, July 16. — Surviving a last-minute reaction, wheat futures made further headway on Saturday on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, closing with a net advance of ⅝c to ¾c. July option ended at 82½c, October 83⅜c, and December at 84⅞c.

Swept upward 1⅛c in the early dealings, futures were subjected to selling in the closing stages of the market that nicked the advances considerably.

Despite a lull in the inflow of adverse crop news from other countries, good support was at hand to support values for the greater part of the session. A strong 1½d advance at Liverpool was a factor in the upswing.

Export sales of 500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat were reported and some buying from seaboard houses was in evidence. Chicago traders were in on both sides of the market. Wide fluctuations featured Chicago trading.

Cash grains, spreads closed unchanged. Coarse grains were dull.

GOLD ISSUES SHOW ADVANCES

San Antonio Passes $6 Mark While Little Long Lac Gains 80 Cents.

ELDORADO LEADS SILVERS.

TORONTO, July 16 (CP).—The mining section of the Toronto Exchange whooped her up at a pace that was at least unusual for a mid-summer market. Gold and some of the silver shares traded in huge volume and price gains in places were 5 to 10 per cent. higher at the close. San Antonio passed the $6 mark, Little Long Lac gained 80 cents to 7.70 and God's Lake about 35 cents. Eldorado led the silvers with an advance of 18 cents to $2.58.

Trading expanded to take in a large number of the cheaper gold shares, and outside of those mentioned, McKenzie, Red Lake, Bobjo, Siscoe, Pickle Crow, Buffalo-Ankerite, Central Patricia, Manitoba and Eastern and B.R.X., all turned over in heavy volume and at higher prices. Bralorne held a gain of about $1 at $16.75 and Teck Hughes, trading heavily was up 10 cents to $6.95. Dome, Hollinger, Lake Shore and McIntyre showed little change.

MINING CORPORATION.

Mining Corporation was one of the silver features. It is understood that London was a heavy buyer of this stock recently and when demand increased in sympathy with silver shares in New York, the floating supply on the local Exchange was found to have been depleted.

ELDORADO.

Eldorado was another issue to recover in the late days of last week. This issue early in the week was again below the two dollar mark, but strengthened sharply Friday with the general list.

GUNNAR GOLD

Gunnar moved higher, although failing to hold it's entire advance to the close of the week. News arrived that the vein had been cut on the first 125 foot level and that it was anticipated it would be cut on the second level within a few days and on the third and fourth level within 30 days. No assays were available at the time of writing, but unofficially values were said to be in the neighborhood of $30.00.

New York, July 16th:

Now, more than ever before it is essential that investors and speculators view the stock they hold or those they intend to purchase for two important angles instead of one. Ordinarily stock market committments are made after a study of earnings, assets and prospects affecting an individual issue but now an even more important factor must be taken into account—the stock prospective conversion value in relation to other securities or commodities. For example, a person intending to buy Consolidate Gas would consider the dividend, the excellent past earnings and the fact that current earnings are running about 50 per cent. over dividend requirements. They would recognize the investment qualities which the stock rightfully merits because of the Company's excellent performance over a period of years. However, before reaching decision both the present and prospective exchange or conversion value of the stock should be considered.

In June, 1932, a holder of Consolidated Gas could switch or convert one share of "G" into 2 1-2 shares of United Fruit. At the present time a holder of "G" would have to give up three shares in order to get two shares of "UF". Both investors and speculators should now pay more attention to exchange capital value than dividend returns.

It is our belief that before many months have passed by the conversion rate between Amn. Tel. and Tel. and Amn. Smelting will be much more favorable to "Smelting".

Industrial Section Closes Ragged Due Partly to Scarcity of Buying Orders.

DISTILLERIES OF.

TORONTO, July 16. (CP) —The Price level for industrial stocks was a bit ragged at the close today, due to the market's tendency to trail New York and to scarcity of buying orders. Offerings of the distillery shares fell on a dull and thin market and Walkers Common dropped 2 points, Industrial Alcohol 1, and Distilleries Seagrams nearly a point. In the brewery list Canada Malting was off a half point but the Brewing Corporation issues were up ¼ to ⅝.

Siege Highlights In San Francisco

(By the Associated Press)

The "Siege of San Francisco" —A general strike intended by Union labor to paralyze the entire metropolitan area of 1,300,000 persons — was ordered begun at 8 a.m. Pacific Coast Time today.

The strike, involving an estimated 100,000 organized workmen, is aimed to assist 27,000 Pacific Coast Longshoremen and Marine Workers who have been on strike for two months seeking changed working conditions.

Four thousand National Guardsmen are on guard, 2,000 additional men having been ordered out late last night. Reports, neither confirmed nor denied are that the federal government is increasing its concentration of armed forces in the coast area.

Food supplies are low. Some commodities are exhausted. There is a shortage of fuel for motorcars. Extra police have been sworn in to meet the emergency.

Efforts at reconciling the differences between the striking longshoremen and their employers are at a stalemate.

Plans are being pushed "with all possible haste" for a general strike in Portland, Ore.

A man was bayonetted at San Francisco yesterday by a National Guardsman, and may die.

lose their jobs because they had been active for the Tory Party in the election?" Mr. Hawthorne was asked.

"Yes, that was the reason," he replied.

T. P. Lancaster, Conservative candidate, was also interviewed by telephone by The Examiner.

"Have there been many changes in the ranks of the bosses on the northern roads?" the reporter querdied.

"Has there? Well, I'll say," he answered. "My information is that the changes thus far have been mostly the result of agitation by Liberals around Apsley. I have been informed that at least a dozen men have been fired and other men put in their jobs. I am told that Mr. Hawthorne authorized the changes."

Mr. Lancaster admitted that several of the changes had been expected by him. "Some of them took an active part in the election, not in the camps, however, and it was only to be expected that they would lose out as a result of the change in government.

However, some of those who have been fired were good Liberals and others were worthy men who had earned their jobs through ability. Some of the Liberals were appointed through me, and I recommended them because they knew all there was to know about road construction."

LEGION HONORS VETERAN DEAD

TAX RATE NOT HIGHER.

A large representation of members of the local branch of the Canadian Legion marched yesterday afternoon to Little Lake cemetery where they decorated the graves of 116 veterans of the British forces in the Great War who lie buried there.

Despite the intense heat the veterans made a smart appearance as, wearing their war medals and carrying bouquets of flowers, they marched down George street behind the Salvation Army band.

Previous to the ceremony of decorating the graves, a brief but impressive service was held in the cemetery. Robert Haddow, president of the branch, was chairman and emphasized the necessity of the younger generation remembering the sacrifices made by the soldiers in the war. "It is such services as these that help to keep the memory of our dead comrades ever green," he said.

Mayor Denne suggested that owing to the intense heat that yearly falls due at the time of the Legion's decoration service, that the service be held in the evening. "There are many returned soldiers who would like to have marched with you to-day," he stated, "but all can not stand this heat. If this service was held in the cool of the evening there would be many more here."

He corrected a statement made a week ago at the decoration service in St. Peter's cemetery that the city taxes were higher this year. "Our tax rate is not higher. It is 37.6 mills as it has been the past three years despite the fact that we had to absorb $78,000 for relief payments."

Mayor Denne urged the need that the Governments should carry on relief works "in order that those in need may earn their way and not have to accept charity." He referred to the splendid work carried on since 1859 by the Little Lake cemetery board, men who give their services without remuneration, and the fact that reserves of $100,000 had been set up to secure a new cemetery when the need arises.

Rev. Paul Costello, chaplain of the Legion, expressed his gratification at the large attendance at the service of returned men. "Indeed every parade of this nature to our cemeteries should always be creditable," he said. "The Legion is performing here to-day a very sacred function, because its members have paraded here to honor its dead."

The good fellowship that exists in the Legion membership radiates to all parts of the city, he stated. He particularly stressed the great service rendered to returned men by Captain James Abraham in securing pensions for those who needed them.

The Legion should consider the late Judge E. C. S. Huycke as one of its honored dead, Father Costello said. "His Honor Judge Huycke was always with us. He worked for us when we were overseas, and he worked for the returned men when they came home. We must honor his memory with that of our other dead."

Again he spoke of the peaceful conditions prevailing in Canada as compared with other countries throughout the world. He urged the veterans to do their part in the fight to maintain Canada's high standard of manhood by combatting the spread of salacious literature and the showing of filthy films which are corrupting our youth to-day.

Dr. N. H. Sutton, a past president of the Legion, recalled his long connection with the local branch and said, "It looks probable that this may be well my valediction among you," he said. "In France the officers of the Medical Corps learned to serve and on their return they continued to serve the returned men in whatever capacity possible. I have tried to do so."

He urged the members of the Legion "to fear nothing as long as your cause is right, and to inculcate in the minds of our children the things we held dear." Dr. Sutton said, "The Legion has been the rallying point and the steadying place of all good causes in this Canada of ours. I shall always have a fond place in my heart for the Legion of Peterborough."

INDUCTION HELD AT MILLBROOK

Rev. A. L. Siscoe Takes Charge of St. Andrew's Church in Solemn Ceremony.

STIRRING ADDRESSES.

MILLBROOK, July 16 (Examiner Correspondence).—Rev. A. L. Siscoe, formerly of Cardinal, was inducted into the pastorate of the Millbrook United Church circuit at a congregational meeting held in St. Andrew's Church, Millbrook, on Friday at 8 p.m., the Rev. S. A. Kemp, of Havelock, chairman of the evening, performing the solemn and serious induction ceremony.

The sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. McLean, of St. Andrew's United Church, Peterborough, who spoke of the coming of a new minister to his charge as "a period of idealism for both clergyman and laity". Taking his text from Titus 2:10: "Adorn the doctrine of God, our Saviour, in All Things," making a strong plea that individual lives make the Christian religion beautiful, as well as practical.

"You are painting a picture of Christ for the men, women and children of the community; is it repellant or beautiful? Remember an age such as ours will not be appealed to by our religion unless we make it attractive, and the church will not fulfill its place in the world until it incorporates Christ's words: "Consider the lilies," as well as Paul's words: "Beautify the teaching of God, our Saviour, in all things."

Workers Together with God.

Previous to the formal induction of Rev. Mr. Siscoe into the pastorate of the local charge, Messrs. W. H. Coombe, M. McDowell, and Mrs. McDowell sang "Softly and Tenderly Jesus is Calling", and immediately following the solemn ritual, Rev. A. E. Moorehouse, of St. James' Church, Peterborough, gave the charge to the minister and to the congregation, basing his remarks on the words, "Workers Together with God". The congregation was adjured to allow their pastor time for patient, plodding study in preparation for his sermons; systematic planning was urged as necessary to a successful pastorate, and the elders were reminded of their duty "as real under-pastors in the shepherding of the flock". An ear sensitive to the teachings of the Holy Spirit was mentioned as necessary for minister and people alike, and the people urged to be attentive to receive "the gift which your pastor has to impart". "Your minister is a brother in Jesus, so do not be afraid to go to him with your problems, and allow no misunderstanding, however simple, to remain unexplained away. On the other hand I hope your minister will be an evangelist, a missionary, a prophet, a leader, and not fearful of talking finances when necessary, and in closing I bring you Paul's message, "We beseech you brethren, that ye receive not the grace of God in vain".

The new pastor pronounced the benediction, after a brief personal message to his people, and adjournment was made to the parsonage, where the visiting clergy with their wives, and others, enjoyed a social hour and an opportunity of becoming acquainted with Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Siscoe and their family, the Women's Association looking after the service of refreshments. Ashton Fife, of Peterborough, contributed a sacred selection as a piano solo in the early part of the service on Friday evening.

Nudist Colony Is Rumored At Orono

ORONO, July 16.—Orono is all atwitter over a rumor that a nudist club is being organized in this community. It is stated that about twenty men, tiring of the confining and warm clothes of today, have decided to dispense with them and hold meetings in the nude in the Community Memorial Park. They do not anticipate any objections will be raised, but Reeve Lovekin has decided otherwise. "There certainly will be objections raised," he has said. "I don't know whether there is a by-law covering that sort of thing, but if necessary we will pass one." According to information received, the nudist club so far is composed entirely of male members, but it is alleged that it is planned to admit women members at a later date. As far as could be ascertained last night, the club has not held any meetings yet.

Sailors of the British Navy are to receive $18 a year "grog money" instead of $15, the present allowance.

MEN'S CLUB HOLDS ANNUAL GATHERING

St. John's Church Members Enjoy 'Selves at Jackson Park Picnic.

The annual picnic of the St. John's Men's Club was held on Saturday, July 14, at Jackson's Park, which, with its shaded spaces and rustic surroundings, proves an ideal picnic ground for such hot weather as the present. The club had invited their "opposite number" the Woman's Friendly Bible Class to be their guests and quite a large crowd turned out.

While elder members discussed varied topics of weight and interest the more active organized an all-ages softball game, the players ranging from grandparents to small children—over eight and under eighty.

The call to tea was very welcome and after the inner man, woman and child had been satisfied a program of sports was run off. The nail-hammering event was humorously contested but the high spot was the difficulty the ladies had in getting into their bags for the sack race.

A special guessing competition prize was won by W. J. Hume.

The following are the results in the sports:

Children 8-10—1, Betty Coleman; 2, Arnold Law.

Children 10-12—1, Audrey Dainton; 2, W. Pakenham.

Children 12-16—M. Pakenham.

Spinsters — 1, Edith Laws; 2, Kathleen Ford.

Married women—1, Mrs. F. Biddle; 2, Mrs. C. Willison.

Men's sack race—1, Mr. Robinson; 2, Mr. Foskett.

Nail hammering for women—Mrs Dainton; 2, Mrs. C. Coleman.

Biscuit and whistle for juniors—Boys: 1, A. Pritchard; 2, M. Pakenham. Girls: Marie Crouter; 2, Viola Crouter.

The general arrangements and the sports program were in the hands of the president, H. K. Lemmings, Secretary G. Groombridge, Messrs. F. Dainton, A. Laws (starter), W. J. Howden, R. R. Ford and J. Vollans.

The picnic was quite the most successful one the club has ever had and everyone of a large attendance seemed to have a good time. It was a fitting climax to a most successful club session and encourages great hopes for next winter's activities.

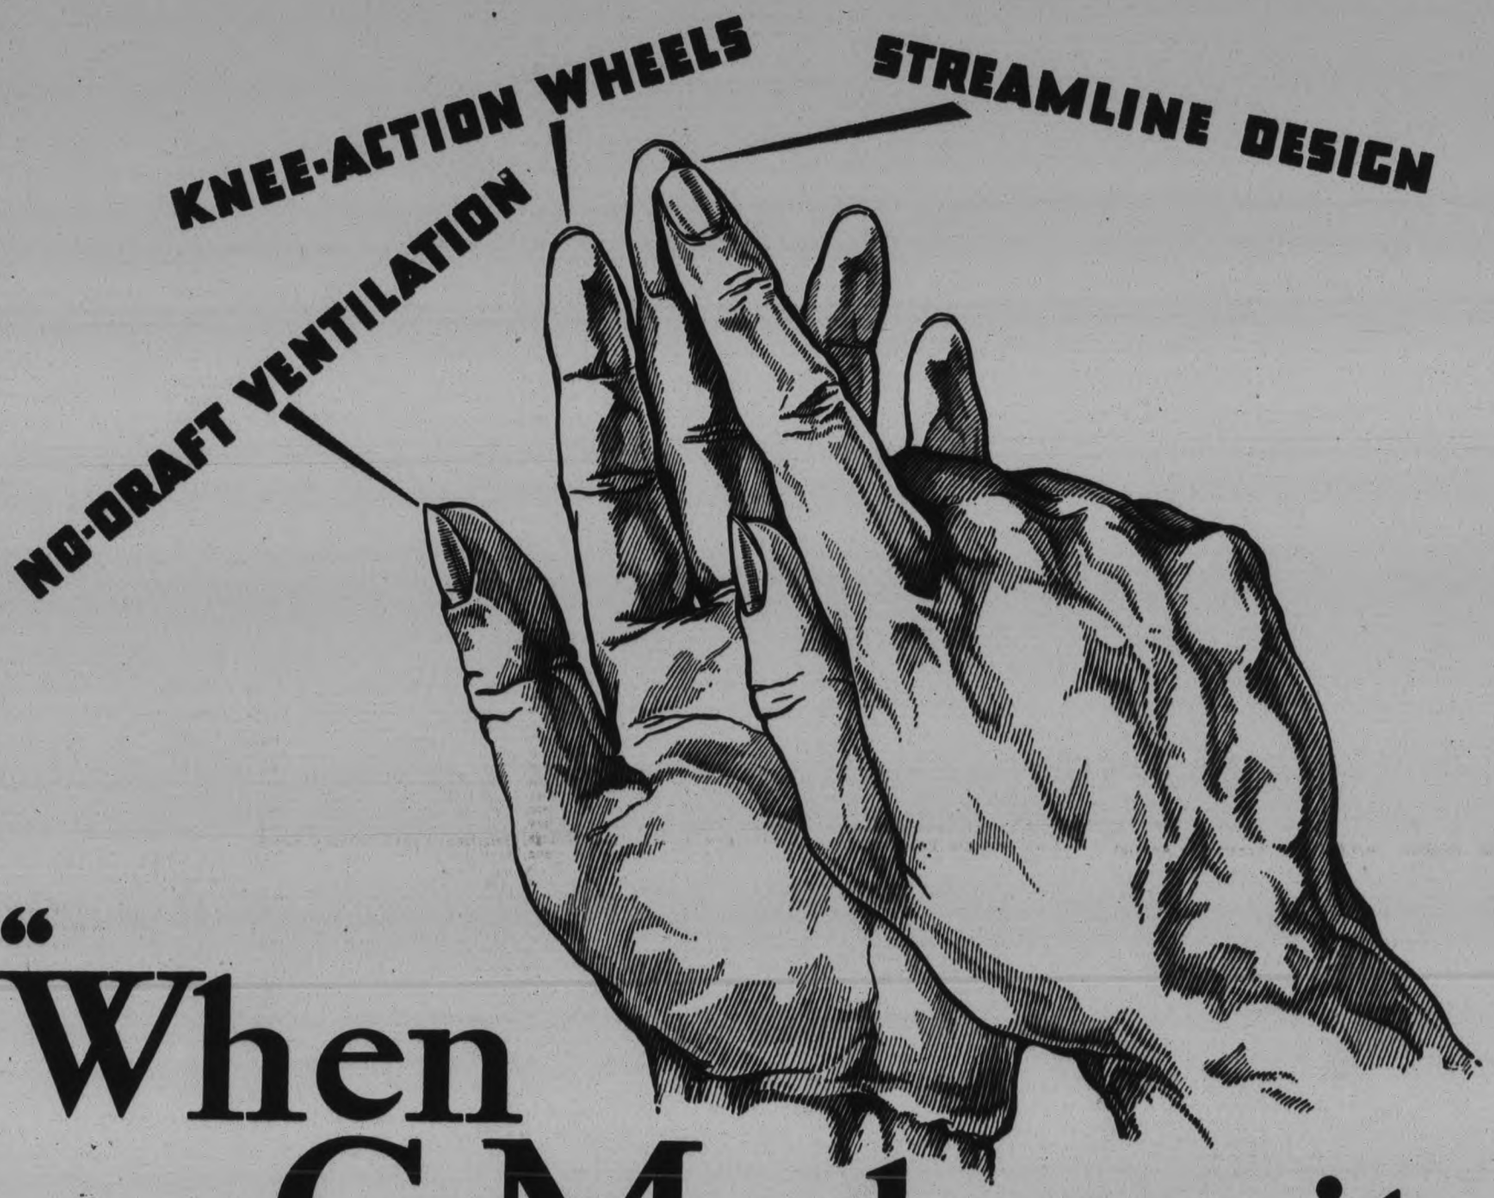
"AN EYE TO THE FUTURE - AN EAR TO THE GROUND"
— this describes General Motors' policy, a policy by which the public is given what it wants in better cars year after year, and yet is safely protected against ill-timed or dubious experiments



"When G.M. does it you know it's going to click . . ."

YOU'VE probably heard people express their trust in General Motors in just such words as those.

But what they're saying right now is even more emphatic:

"Look at No-Draft Ventilation. Look at Knee-Action Wheels. Look at the way General Motors developed the idea of streamlining and did it in styles that say beauty as well as speed.

"That's sure calling the turns—and General Motors called all three."

The real admirers of General Motors will point to what's back of all this.

They'll tell you that General Motors built the first Proving Ground—in order to experiment at its own expense, not the public's.

Then they'll point to the "Proving Ground of Public Opinion"—more than a hundred thousand questionnaire booklets sent out each year, to check General Motors' vast engineering knowledge against what people want in their new cars.

And there you begin to see why people have such confidence in anything that General Motors builds.

We might find it easier, and more dramatic, to trust to "hunch"—rather than put our designs to this constant testing and checking. But we believe the public wants its motor cars, as we want our business, built on a sounder foundation.

Old Kingston Boy Passes In Sault

SAULT STE MARIE, Mich., July 16. (CP). — Ninety-two-year-old Corey Ferris one of the oldest links with the Michigan Soo's past history, was buried yesterday. Mr. Ferris was born at Kingston, Ontario, in 1842. He arrived in the Sault early in 1880. He built the town's first water wagon and watered the city streets, charging each merchant a set price for watering the street in front of his store. If any refused he simply cut off the water while passing and Ashmun street often took on a spotty appearance after he passed. He drove a mail stage over the old Macinac Trail between the Michigan Soo and St. Ignace long before the turn of the century.

Four-leaf clovers are uncommon, but how about seven-leaf clovers. Henry Carpenter of Bowmanville, who is visiting in Lindsay, picked up a well-formed seven-leaf white dutch clover the other day. He says four and five-leaf specimens are common.

EARLY DAYS OF GREAT WAR ARE RECALLED AGAIN

C. G. Frost Describes for Rotary Club Strategy of First Battles on Eastern Front.

DR. MOIR HONORED.

Is Presented With Past President's Pin on Retirement After Year as Chairman.

A graphic description of the early stages of the world war, particularly in regard to the situation on the Eastern front was given members of the Peterborough Rotary Club at their weekly luncheon to-day by C. G. Frost of Lindsay, who spoke on the subject "Battles on the Eastern Front, Leading up to and Including the Battle of Tannenburg."

The luncheon was also featured by the presence of six visiting Rotarians and by the presentation to last year's president Dr. A. Moir of a past president's pin, the honors being done by Rotarian Fred L. Roy, first president of the Peterborough Rotary Club. In making the presentation Rotarian Roy eulogized the services of Dr. Moir, declaring that under his presidency the club had a very successful year.

In reply Past President Moir thanked the members for their support and said that his year as president had been a very happy one.

Mr. Frost who was introduced by Rotarian T. J. Carley began by pointing out the great part played in the war by the Russians and quoted figures to show the heavy losses sustained by the Russian armies. With the aid of a blackboard he reveiwed the various strategical plans prepared by the Germans, Austrian and Russian general staffs and then graphically sketched the development of these plans in the test of real warfare. The events leading up to the annihilation of General Samsonoff's Russian army were clearly pictured and in the course of a short address Mr. Frost succeeded in giving his hearers an adequate conception of the tremendous happenings of the early days of the world. In conclusion he said all the strategic plans failed, all the countries lost and 'We're paying for it now."

President J. Fred Reed expressed the thanks of the club to Mr. Frost.

ALLEGES HUMBUG AT ART EXHIBITS

Sir Timothy Eden, British Author, Raps Habits of Art Fancier.

LONDON, July 14.—(CP). — Sir Timothy Eden, author of "Five Dogs and Two More," has written in the Spectator a vigorous denunciation of the Royal Academy and the gallery-going habits of the British art fancier.

"Somebody asked the Prime Minister at the Royal Academy banquet why he did not say something about the pictures," Sir Timothy writes. "What could he say, poor man? What can anyone say? The Academy has many times been attacked in recent years, but it is now passed beyond the reach of mortal malice. No mere man can disturb the waxen serenity of that chamber of horrors.

"It is not surprising that the uneducated British public should swallow this stuff. It is very right that a social function should be made of the thing and ignorant lords approve of it in top hats. But it is a scandal that art critics should devote long columns to this exhibition —I prefer the French word 'exposition'—in responsible papers, analyzing it and criticising it with all the seriousness in the world. And these same critics have probably written books about great masters."

Sir Timothy continues: "We must go to the National Gallery to take the taste out of our mouths. Why does everyone go to the English Loan Exhibition and the Dutch Loan Exhibitnon and all the other Loan Exhibitions, where he has to pay half a crown for the pleasure of smelling the multitude and catching an occasional glimpse of a picture, and why does no one go to the National Gallery when he can walk round it day after day, in freedom and solitude, and examine, for nothing, many of the masterpieces of the world?

"The answer is—humbug, again. They go to those exhibitions because it is the thing to do, because they have been boomed in the press, because they have to pay for the pleasure (which, of course, makes it certain that it is a pleasure), for any reason, in short, but to see the pictures. And they are quite right, because one never can see the pictures."

SCOLLARD COW BIG PRODUCER

"Bayview Melody" Bought by Amos & Black at Peterborough Exhibition.

DUAL PURPOSE SHORTHORN

One of Frank Scollard's dual purpose Shorthorns which he sold to Amos and Black of Moffat has been making a very creditable production record, according to a dairy news item in a recent issue of The Canadian Countryman.

The report, which was shown to The Examiner by A. D. Runions, representative of the Department of Agriculture, is as follows

"Amos and Black, Shorthorn breeders of Moffat, Ontario, have the high-producing cow in a recent list of Shorthorns qualifying in the R.O.P. in "Bayview Melody," which has completed the very creditable year's production of 13,340 pounds of milk, 605 pounds of butter-fat, average test 4.53, at five years of age."

The list includes the names of several other matrons with good records but the Peterborough-bred cow shows the best record.

The sale of "Bayview Melody" was directly the result of Mr. Scollard's showing of animals from his dual purpose Shorthorn herd at the Peterboro Exhibition two years ago. Amos and Black were also among the exhibitors and this cow so appealed to them that they made a bid for her which Mr. Scollard accepted.

His herd at present includes "Queen of Bayview" the dam of "Bayview Melody," and also a younger cow, which is a daughter of "Bayview Melody."

Tigers Again Top See-Saw American Struggle

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

FORT ERIE catered to an immense throng on Saturday for the tenth day of their fourteen day meeting. Jim Badame's Khorasan won the feature event despite the fact that he was carrying the crushing impost of one hundred and twenty pounds. He looks to be headed for a successful campaign from now until the snow flies again. Brannon clipped one fifth of a second off of the track record which stamps him as a mighty smart 2-year-old. We told you not long ago that Stefant Jr. was a good buy for his new owner. Well he won again on Saturday and paid over eighteen bucks for each two dollar straight ticket. He seems to have gotten over his bad post antics too.

Eddie Seagram expects to win a few heats with Lady Hockberger, whom he acquired recently from the Hatch Stable. This one has a little more class than the average plater. Dunlin's Lad again proved that the Fort Erie racing strip is very much to his liking when he took a smart bunch of sprinters into camp, in the opening set on Saturday's card. This old timer seems to have taken on a new lease of life recently, and will be heard from again shortly.

ART HALLIWELL has a couple of well charged guns ready to shoot at Detroit. They are Polyp and Two Tricks. The former in a distance event and the latter in a sprint. The horse Shoot which has been winning regularly at Detroit is the same hide that Roy Waldron brought up here from New York two years ago and knocked them all dizzy on the Canadian circuit.

Another horse at Detroit that is ready is Salisbury. This fellow is a half brother of Springsteel which goes to show he is no slouch. Another smart sprinter at the same place is a nag called Up. This one can fly, when in the mood and his connections are planning on a winning streak. Mud makes his chances really better although he can negotiate the fast going real well too. Down at Mount Royal they are looking to Rideau to cop a sprinting event any day now in the Canadian Bred ranks. Optical is another that is slated for a win without much delay.

OUR OLD friend Len Sweep, the Queen of the half milers has copped two in a row at the eastern metropolis. Another one of our old friends Eveline F. is eating her oats at Arlington Park, Chicago these days just waiting for a spot. She sure can travel around any man's race track when so inclined. While Little Stokes is doing his stuff down at Rockingham, and it will take a good plater to kick dust in his face over a distance of ground. Sambo Brown is another at the same place that is ace high with the talent.

ARCHIE DEYELL GIVES SUPERB MOUND DISPLAY ALLOWS FOUR SAFETIES

Tommy Foley Leads Petes' Offensive With Homer, Triple And Single—Burton, Konopka And Batten Rank Next In Order For Willow Work.

LOCALS PULL OFF NEAT DOUBLEPLAY IN 4TH WILLS, FRINK DO MOUND WORK FOR DUKES.

The Petes blanked Oshawa, 5 to 0, in the Motor City Saturday to retain their grip on first place and run their string of road-victories to five in a row. Behind the superb four-hit pitching of Archie Deyell, the visitors played grand ball to hold the Dukes in complete subjection from start to finish and send some four hundred fans home disgruntled.

Deyell was in rare form, the big local righthander blazing his fast ball across the pan and crossing the batters up with slow drops. He did not throw a hook but fanned nine, gave but four hits and walked two. Archie allowed a single in the first and not another hit from that time till out in the eighth when two clouts in a row put the only Oshawa man to reach third on that sack. One more hit came in the ninth. His teammates gave the big flinger fine support.

Tommy Foley led the Petes' offensive, his big bat accounting for a homer over the right-field fence, a triple to deep centre and a single in four times up. No one was on when he hit the homer. Burton and Konopka each had two hits and Batten clouted a double. Konopka, Calladine and Deyell did some nice infielding, with Whatley's pegging proving deadly, and both Burton and Foley featuring with great catches in the outfield. The Petes pulled off one nice double-play.

Lefty Willis hurled for Oshawa and pitched a good game except for four hits and two runs in the sixth. He was chased to start the ninth for protesting too violently over the umpire's judgment of a strike that fanned him. Frink finished in good style. None of the Dukes got more than one hit, Malott's being a double. The whole Oshawa infield played good ball, Peacock and Malott in particular. They also pulled off a twin killing.

Petes Score in Third

Batten doubled with two out for the Petes in the first but died on second. Wallace singled for Oshawa but was out stealing. In the locals' third, they got their first marker when Whatley walked, got to second on an error and tallied on Konopka's hit. Foley hoisted one out of the park for the Petes' second run in the fourth. Two runs were counted in the sixth. Dallin singled to start but was out on Batten's fielder's choice. The latter took second on Foley's hit to right. Tommy was out on Ash's roller, Ike taking third. He scored and Ash moved up on Calladine's single, and Fred tallied a moment later on Burton's bingle. The last run came in the eighth. Batten being safe when the catcher muffed a third strike and it rolled through the fence. Ike trotted all the way home on Foley's terrific triple.

Oshawa Threatens in 8th

The only Oshawa threat came in the eighth. With one out, the Dukes got runners on second and third. Willis, who had fanned before, was called out on strikes and put out of the game for protesting too strongly, the whole crowd making an uproar. Then Deyell calmly struck out Hurst for the third time in the game.

TORONTO LEAFS WIN THREE GAMES OVER THE WEEK-END

Take Double-header From Orioles on Saturday, Split Twin With Chiefs Sunday.

WINGS COP DOUBLE.

(By Associated Press.)

George Toporcer's Rochester Redwings finally seem to have chased the International League jinx held over them this season by Newark Bears.

Beaten nine times in their first 10 jousts with the Bears this campaign, Redwings turned on their tormentors yesterday, walloped them twice, 7-3 and 4-0, and moved up to within a game and a half of first place.

A crowd of 7,000 looked on while Robert Kleinke and Ira Smith pitched Rochester to its double victory. Kleinke allowed only six hits in the opener which Redwings clinched with a four-run rally at the expense of Vito Tamulis in the sixth, and contributed three hits to his own cause. Smith kept eight hits widely spaced in the nightcap, outpitching Charley Devens and Marvin Duke by a wide margin. The league leaders outhit Rochester by a margin of 8-7, but were helpless in the pinches.

Third place Toronto slipped another game further behind Rochester by failing to get better than an even split with seventh-place Syracuse Chiefs. Toronto, winning the first game 15-9 and dropping the second, now trails Rochester by a game and a half. Eighteen Toronto hits and five Syracuse errors gave the Leafs the first game which was marked by an eight-run rally by the Canadians in the fourth. George McQuinn kicked in with five singles for the winners, while Manager Bill Sweeney collected two doubles and a pair of singles for Syracuse. Clarence Pickrel allowed Toronto only two hits in the nightcap and was in danger only in the third when a circus catch by Sweeney helped him out of a deep hole.

Albany's Senators, dividing two games with Buffalo, held on to the fourth place, a game ahead of Montreal. The Senators dropped the opener 8-4 as Jack Smith clouted two home runs, one with the bases filled in the fourth. Albany won the second 6-4, thanks to Roy Spencer, Buffalo catcher. Spencer dropped a third strike with two out in the seventh and last frame, and Bert Delmas reached first base. Del Bissonette then walloped a home run to win the game. Smith, who had collected four hits in the opener, got two more in the nightcap to snare hitting honors for the day.

Break Losing Streak.

Baltimore broke an eight-game losing streak by taking Montreal over the hurdles, 5-4, in the first game, but lost the second 3-2. Guy Sturdy, Baltimore manager, gave the Orioles an early lead they never relinquished in the opener with a home run with two on in the first inning. Clydell Castleman, optioned to Montreal by New York Giants yesterday, pitched the Royals to victory in the second game, allowing seven hits.

DETROIT CLUB HOLDS ONE GAME AND HALF MARGIN OVER YANKEES IN HECTIC HARRIDGE STRUGGLE

Hubbell Rescues Schumacher in Seventh to Give Giants 5 to 3 Win.

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr. A. P. Sports Writer)

Detroit Tigers were resting today if not on top of the world, at least on top of the American League, where they welcomed their first chance to draw a deep, quiet breath after battling their way up past New York Yankees.

The Tigers wound up their campaign against the Yanks with a smashing 8-3 triumph yesterday which brought them three victories for the four game series. Meanwhile New York Giants, engaged in a similar important series with the second-place Chicago Cubs, increased their lead to two full games with a 5-3 victory. But they still had three games to go to the decision.

Schoolboy Rowe, who won the first game of the series for Detroit, again aided the Tiger cause as 26,000 fans looked on. He worked six innings, gave eight hits, fanned six and kept all the Yanks but Lou Gehrig under control. Gehrig, celebrating his return to full-time duty after an attack of lumbago that threatened his record consecutive - game streak cracked four straight hits.

The Giants had a somewhat tougher time and finally had to call in Carl Hubbell to replace Al Schumacher and protect a slim lead Mel Ott had given them when he smashed a double with two aboard in the sixth.

Somewhat further down in the National League standing, the Phillies were able to point to an advance greater than that recorded by either league leader. Hitting hard behind Phil Collins for their fourth straight victory, the Phils downed Cincinnati 9-1 and moved for the first time this season up to sixt place. Their advance was aided by the Cardinals, who trimmed Brooklyn twice. The Cards won the opener 2-0 on Dizzy Dean's four-hit hurling, then followed up with a 6-3 triumph produced largely by Joe Medwick's two homers.

Cleveland Indians also had a big day when they made fourth-place safe by walloping the Senators 10-8 in each game of a doubleheader. The first time they built up a big lead and held it, the second they had to rally after tossing away a 6-1 margin gained in the opening inning.

27th Homer for Johnson

Bob Johnson's 27th home run, which gave him the major league lead, and a triple steal executed by Johnson, Jimmie Foxx and Bing Miller provided a pair of features for the Athletics as they walloped the cellar-dwelling White Sox, 11-7 and 11-5. Both came in the first game.

Two other bargain bills on the day's program resulted in even breaks. Pittsburgh's Pirates trounced Boston Braves 5-0 when Waite Hoyt came through with a one-hit pitching performance, but they ran into Ed Brandt's three-hit flinging in the second game and went down 4-0. Boston Red Sox and St. Louis Browns slugged it out in two performances, the Sox winning the opener with a 17-hit attack, 12-1, and the Browns taking the after piece 9-3 when George Blaeholder pitched effectively although he granted a dozen blows.

LAKEFIELD, July 16 (Examiner Correspondence)—The call of the highway sounded the death knell of the boys softball teams as the boys are nearly all working, so the girls are preparing to step into the breach. In order to get the league going well the Young's Point girls came down and trimmed up the locals in a snappy six innings fixture on Thursday night, 19-10.

BILL CHRISTIE OF TORONTO NEW CANADIAN SPRINT KING

Final Selections Made for Canuck Track Representatives at British Empire Games.

DEARNLEY HEADS WOMEN.

(By Elmer Dulmage, C.P. Staff Writer.)

HAMILTON, Ont., July 16 (C.P.)—Studded with such fallen stars as Bert Pearson and Hilda Strike, Sunny Gilbert and Mary Frizzell, Canada's British Empire Games track and field brigade, was posed to-day for a takeoff for London with more promise than anything else in its makeup.

It was a team gathered from pretty well all over the country, but it lacked a Dave Komonen, a Duncan McNaughton, and a Percy Williams. It carried two sprinters who were "tops" until this season, Pearson and Miss Strike, and their successors, hustling Bill Christie of Toronto and Audrey Dearnley.

Leave on Friday.

Early on Friday morning this track force of 29 men and 19 women, led by M. M. (Bobby) Robinson, who has yet to make known his private opinion of the team's strength, will sail from Montreal on the Duchess of York. The Empire Games open on August 3.

Two days of trials for men here produced enough worthwhile performances to at least partially make up for Pearson's failure in the sprints, Komonen's all-round tumble from the distance running heights, and a scattered few distinctly mediocre showings.

Pearson, Hamilton's flying towhead, who ranked with the fleetest dashmen in the world last season, won a place on the team by finishing second in the 100 yards. But he finished sixth last Saturday in the 220 yards final as Christie romped to his second sprint triumph with Allan Poole of Vancouver, and Frankie Nicks of Halifax at his heels. Christie's time was 22.2 seconds. Pearson was many yards back.

It was almost a disastrous blow to the Dominion's track hopes as the failure of Miss Strike the previous week to qualify in the women's trials. She did not even reach the final. Yesterday it was announced the former Olympian will go along as a broad jumper, her expenses being paid by a Montreal club.

Men's Team

The men's team lined up like this to-day when Coach Alex Wilson, Empire quarter-mile champion in 1930, turned it loose for a workout:

100 and 200 yards — Christie, Poole, Nicks, Pearson.

880 yards and mile—Jerry Sampson, Montreal; Les Wade, Montreal; Earl Moore, Hamilton.

120-yard hurdles — Art Ravensdale, Hamilton.

440-yard hurdles—Jim Worrall, Montreal.

Running broad and hop, step and jump—Ray Cooper, Toronto; Sam Richardson, Toronto.

Running high jump—Joe Haley, Trail, B.C.; Sunny Gilbert, Hamilton.

Pol vault—Sylvanus Apps, Hamilton, Gilbert.

Weight events—George Sutherland, Calgary; Robert Dixon, Vancouver; Robert Waters, Vancouver; George Walla, Port Arthur. Walla will sail provided his Canadian naturalization papers are passed.

Marathon — Harold Webster, Hamilton; Dick Wilding, Alex Burnside, Percy Wyer, Toronto.

This is going to be another busy week at the bowling club. Fair weather permitting, we will finish up the schedule games by Tuesday or Thursday night. On Monday night the games will be as per schedule, but on Tuesday night there will be a double-header, commencing at 7 p.m. sharp.

These games on Tuesday night are the postponed games of the season, and they must be played or defaulted; the games committee has made this decision.

On Wednesday we are holding our big mixed tournament, commencing at 1 p.m. Standard Time.

We expect a large entry, but if any lady has not a partner, if they will communicate with Mrs. H. Staunton, of if any gentleman has no rink, if he will phone S. Lowe, these parties will do all they can to see that these players are placed on a rink.

All Peterborough members—both ladies and gentlemen—are asked to wear the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club souvenir pin.

O'HALLORAN SCORES BRILLIANT GOAL FOR LOSERS' LONE TALLY

LACK OF PRACTICE.

Lindsay fell seven goals to one in a soccer league engagement on Saturday afternoon to the Canadian General before a fair attendance of spectators. The lack of practice as a team failed to help the visitors which caused five of their tallies to be registered through misunderstanding in the run of play.

Mistakes Cost Goals

C.G.E. won the toss and compelled Lindsay to face the sun. A break away by McMaster ended in the post saving a counter. On the next visit by the local forwards, McPhate shot the ball against the custodian who saved but the rebound from his kick hit his full back to go back into goal. Lindsay retaliated but failed to find the target when excellent opportunities were placed to them by the halves. The second goal was an easy counter which fell to the foot of McMaster who connected to find the inside of the upright. C.G.E. registered another tally when McIntosh travelled down the wing and centred across to goal. Tiffany, Lindsay goalie saved but he let the ball fall out of his hands to the toe of McMaster. A little later McPhate headed a smart goal from a cross on the right. A miskick by the Lindsay full backs, permitted McMaster to send in a low grounder that goalie missed by inches to stop. Repeatedly Lindsay would break through the opposition to find Curtis unbeatable although the efforts of Wilson, Lindsay, deserved a more suitable reward than fruitless flag kicks. The visitors pressed continuously up to the interval but lacked finish around the goal. Canadian General 5, Lindsay 0.

Clever Goal for O'Halloran

On resuming, it was evident that the C.G.E. were satisfied with their lead and played a defensive game throughout. Their action allowed Lindsay to take advantage of the easy going to test out the ability of the local custodian. After ten minutes play, O'Halloran scored the best goal that has ever been scored this season when he delivered a rocket drive in below the cross-bar to beat Curtis all the way. The C.G.E. went back to get sixth tally when Earle found the net from a scrimmage in front of goal. For the remainder of the period the tactics shown were of the most uninteresting character. With five minutes to go, McIntosh broke away on the right to beat the Lindsay custodian with a shot that found far corner of the net. C.G.E. 7, Lindsay 1.

Lindsay — R. Tiffany, goal; J. Flynn and R. Worthington, full backs; J. Wiles, C. Bacon and J. Springhall, halves; D. Wilson, J. Taylor, A. O'Halloran, J. Loy and D. Best, forwards; sub, D. Moore.

Canadian General — W. Curtis, goal; W. Robb and A. Mitchell, full backs; A. Burgess, E. Jones and S. Clark, halves; J. McIntosh, F. Earle, B. McMaster, J. Quinn and T. McPhate, forwards.

Referee—A. Frick.

DECK'S OUTFIT TIES COUNT IN EIGHTH INNING

All-Star Softball Tangle With Beckerman Clan Ends in 8-all Deadlock.

HITS WELL SCATTERED.

The all-star game at Central on Saturday night ended in an 8-all deadlock. Bert Deck's aggregation came from behind in the first of the eighth to score 2 runs and knot the count, then holding Jake Beckerman's outfit scoreless in their half of the same frame. The ninth inning commenced in semi-darkness, Deck's scoring three in the first half of the inning and continued till Beckerman had scored three in their half, then with two down, Umpire Batley called the contest.

The exhibition itself was a combination of heated arguments and good softball, with Pat Calladine and company having a little the best of the discussions as usual. The hits were kept well scattered by all the hurlers, Elliott and Sturgeon for Deck's, with Butcher doing it all alone for Beckerman's. Jack Playford and Joe Dorrington led their respective teams at bat, the former with four out of five, and the latter with two out of three. Weir also hit a long four-bagger for the Deck gang.

Both teams fielded rather well although Deck's looked sloppy in spots. However they completed the only double-play, a fast Weir-to-Dormer-to-Smith twin-killing, to retire the side in the sixth, after one was out.

The teams:

Deck's: H. Dormer, 2b; Smith, 1b; Starr, c; Sturgeon, lf, rf, p; Weir, ss; Playford, cf; Gardner, 3b; Elliott, p; Walsh, rf, lf; Miller, rf.

Beckerman's: Dorrington, 3b; Parsons, 2b; Calladine, c; Ellis, 1b; T. Monsomery, af; Carrie, rf; Fleming, ss; Butcher, p; F. Montgomery, lf.

Score by innings:

Deck's	000	210	023	—8 10 5
Beckerman's	120	101	003	—8 10 2

Umpires—Weir and Batley.

ARGOS LEAD WATER CLUBS AT CALEDONIA

Toronto Club Stages Impressive Triumph Over International Aquatic Field.

BUFFALO RANKS SECOND.

CALEDONIA, Ont., July 16.— (C.P.)—The double blue standard of the Toronto Argonaut Rowing Club that flaunted victory at the Mohawk Aquatic Club's first annual regatta, was hauled down to-day after one of the greatest water carnivals seen in many years on the historic Grand River.

Though gaining fewer actual victories in the score than their closest challenger, the Toronto Club staged an impressive triumph over the International field, that finished with Buffalo Westsides behind Argos, followed by Toronto Dons, Hamilton Leanders, Detroit, Brockville and St. Catharines.

Final standing:

	1st	2nd	3rd	Total
Toronto Argos.	5	7	2	31
Buff. Westsides	6	0	1	19
Toronto Dons	1	5	3	16
Ham. Leanders	3	1	1	12
Detroit	0	1	0	2
Brockville	0	0	2	2
St. Catharines	0	0	1	1

(Point total compiled on bases of three for first, two for second and one for third).

Buffalo, however, gave one of the best displays in capturing the only three events for fours, two eights and one doubles. Argos took four wins in the singles and another in a row over.

5,000 See Show.

Some 5,000 persons, lined the banks of the two-and-a-half mile straightaway for the regatta, augmented by a series of swimming events in which 75 natators of both sexes competed. Miss Ruth Kerr, of Windsor, gained the premier laurels by capturing the only three marks she sought. Toronto Dolphinets won the 200 yards relay for girls.

Leanders took an easy victory in the feature event, the senior eight. The crimson-shirted Hamiltonians took the lead from the start, were never seriously challenged and finished two lengths in the lead of Toronto Dons, who managed to squeeze out the Buffalo aggregation by a narrow margin.

Although a guard with a life buoy, a man in a boat and a swimmer raced to save George Wakefield from the river in Dublin, Irish Free State, the man drowned while thousands of spectators stood helpless.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball, Lacrosse, Soccer Softball, Bowling, etc.

By C.J.P.

The Petes did it again. Right in Oshawa Saturday, they slapped the Dukes over with a whitewash brush to the tune of 5-0 before four hundred peeved customers. It gives the locals a firmer grip on the top rung and runs their unbroken string of road-wins to five tilts. What gave 'em the game? Archie Deyell's pitching, some timely hitting—especially by Foley—and some lovely fielding. Knotty Lee didn't make the trip, feeling pretty sick. Captain Fred Ash was in charge and made a good job of it. The boys had quite a few local rooters down there, too. Murray didn't play, giving his leg a rest, and Calladine held down his position okay.

• • • • • • •

The lanky Deyell threw lovely ball, holding the Dukes to four hits, three of them in the last two frames, and fanning nine. He had 'em handcuffed with a whistling fast ball, a slow drop and fine control. He didn't use a hook. Whatley gave Archie first-rate support and so did the other Liftlockers. Lefty Wills went pretty good for Oshawa the eight innings he pitched with Frink finishing strong.

• • • • • • •

Tommy Foley went to town in a big way down in the Dukes' summer home. He was at bat four times and hit a homer, a triple and a single. He and Burton, who got two hits, also did some smart fielding. Konopka got two bingles and turned in some neat defensive play, also. In fact, the lads stepped out there and looked like a million smackers, full of pep and fight and playing heads-up baseball. It was too bad that umpiring dispute had to come up and give the hotheaded Oshawa fans a half-excuse to crab after the contest.

• • • • • • •

With one out in the eighth two Oshawa runners got on second and third. The crowd sensed a rally and made plenty of noise. But Wills, who had fanned before, was called out on a third strike that grazed the inside corner of the plate. He was hugging the platter and jumped back from it. When the call came, "Strike three!" he jumped up and down and yelled and argued with the umpire, inciting the rabid fans who immediately took up the holler. Wills was tossed out of the game and excitement reigned for a time. Even after the struggle, over a hundred fans followed Umpire Shiner Johnston to the clubhouse booing him and waited nearly half an hour till he came out to boo some more. It wouldn't have taken much for real trouble to develop.

• • • • • • •

The whole thing was absurd and had it happened early in the game wouldn't have caused a ripple. But with the crowd keyed up and Wills suddenly bursting out like that—after the guy had looked like a sap at bat before—it put the umps on the spot. But Shiner just laughed at the crowd. Hurst, next man up, fanned for the third time that game and so ended the rally. The Dukes never had a chance. You can't win ball games by giving the other team 10 hits and only getting four yourself. Even if Wills had walked, it's two bits to a plugged nickel the tail-enders couldn't have wiped off that whitewash coat.

• • • • • • •

Some fun at the men's benefit softball game Saturday eve, we're told. 'Twas another exciting battle—with $9.00 being raised—marked with wisecracks, players being rode hard by each other, some nice softball and pretty fair pitching. Butcher fanned ten for his side. The count was tied at 5-all going into the ninth and both sides scored three more to make the final tally read, 8-8. It was called after the count was again knotted, and doggone near time as the street lights were on! It was funny toward the end with Deck's bunch rushing play and Beckerman's gallants stalling to beat sixty. Sturgeon passed Calladine deliberately to get Ellis and then Jim doubled to score two and tie it up. The big crowd enjoyed it all.

• • • • • • •

Girls' Softball League schedule for the second half is out now. Tuesday, Keene, and Westclox meet at the Bowl in their first-half postponed game. If Westclox wins, they are in second place with Keene in first. If Keene wins, C.G.E. and Westclox are tied for second pace, with Keene still first. If the Electrics and Westclox have to playoff to settle second place, the tilt will be a sudden-death one at the Bowl next Saturday e'en. First and second teams of each half playoff at the end of the schedule to declare finalists.

• • • • • • •

Cobourg lacrossers defaulted to Kiwanis here Saturday, not sending a team as some of their players were playing baseball. It wasn't the local club's fault at all, but nevertheless quite a few fans were disappointed and that makes it tough for Kiwanis. Cobourg phoned Pete King here late Friday night to say they couldn't field a team. Pete promptly phoned Secretary Dopp of the O.A.L.A. in Toronto, and Dopp called Cobourg back and ordered them to play under threat of being kicked out of the Ontario body—not temporarily, but for all time. But Cobourg didn't send any further word here, and the locals had to finally call them Saturday to see if they were coming. The answer was "No", so they'll likely be expelled from the loop. Serves them right, as schedules must be lived up to. This is the O.A.L.A, not the Inter-County League.

NAPANEE GIBBARDS WIN TWO SATURDAY

Forest Hills and Belleville Crystallacs Suffer Setbacks to Furniture Men.

NAPANEE, July 16—Gibbard 'B' strengthened their hold on first place in the Lennox County League with a one-sided win over Forest Mills in a scheduled intermediate group game Saturday afternoon. The youthful Bishop, pitching for Gibbards, was a big factor in the shutout, yielding only three hits and striking out 12. Only five got to first. Although given poor support, Tyner managed to keep the game within reason until the seventh and eighth, when his teammates failed him.

Score—			R	H	E
Forest Mills	000	000	000-	0	3 6
Gibbards	124	000	27x-16	13	1

Batteries—B. Tyner and Breeze; Bishop and Stinson.

Gibbard Athletics won from Belleville Crystallacs here Saturday afternoon 6-0 in a Quinte League intermediate fixture. A four-run splurge in the first inning put the game away for the locals. Pointer breezed along, only 24 men facing him in the seven innings and he fooled about half of them with his strike-out ball. A nice double play by the visitors in the fourth inning was the fielding feature.

Score—			R	H	E
Belleville	000	000	0—0	2	0
Gibbards	401	001	x—6	8	1

Batteries—Weeks, Hammell and Thomas; Pointer and Brennan.

THE SPUN GLASS MYSTERY

A Tale of Scotland Yard

By A. FIELDING

CHAPTER 49

Alysia, for once, was speechless. A wave of scarlet flamed in her thin face.

"Oh, but—oh, how ——" she faltered, then stopped, biting her lip.

"He got the idea partly from Claridge's very sudden gallantry ——" Naylor's lip curled, "partly from the fact that on his return he seemed more in your pocket than ever." The barrister's cold, clever eyes, with their finely cut lids, looked once at sister and sister's fiance—for Claridge and she had become engaged the evening before—and said nothing. Alysia looked genuinely shocked and humiliated. "As a matter of fact, Miss Dundas had no idea of what he was talking," Naylor went on. "She scouted the idea. And on that, Tait hurried away. Now you see why I didn't mention it to the police? It is of no use whatever."

"Oh, none! None!" came hurriedly from Alysia and from Claridge in unison.

"And it would look—odd," Claud went on slowly, "very odd. For, of course, we none of us must forget that as immediate beneficiaries under John's will, and probable beneficiaries under Aunt Norah's will—we're all just a bit suspect. Distinctly so. So now you see still more reason why the unimportant talk that John had with Miss Dundas should not be mentioned. At any rate by us. I can only hope the police will remain in ignorance of it. It had nothing to do with John's murder.

"What had?" Claridge asked suddenly, looking very closely at the other man. Naylor adjusted his blotting-pad more closely in line with the table edge.

"Some form of spite, I fancy. Apparently the Ricci woman has confessed to having done it from hatred of Aunt Norah, and dared the police to prove it. Interesting problem."

"As one who has had the pleasure of seeing some of the friends that Miss Dundas keeps, I wonder," Claridge said meaningly. Claud gave him a swift inquiring look that brooked no denial.

"It was at Victoria ——" Claridge gave a version of what he had seen of Gillian's strange friend. "The man was mad—really mad," Claridge wound up. "And dangerous. There was no mistaking it."

Naylor listened with an attention so close that Claridge was flattered. As a rule he only got half or a quarter of an ear from the young man.

"Some sad little story, probably," Naylor said rather abruptly when the other had done, "but nothing to do with John's murder. Miss Dundas does not—like we three—benefit by that crime. No, but for Mrs. Ricci's confession, if it was a confession, I should be inclined to see the prisoner as some one who wanted to injure Lucy . . ." he finished meditatively.

"Lucy! Mrs. Burnham!" Alysia opened her eyes and then closed them tightly. "Oh, I see," she finished faintly.

"Which was an additional reason for being silent," Claud added.

"Oh very much so!" Alysia said fervently. She gave Claridge a look, and the two went off together. Etta left her chair for a second to come and lay a hand on her brother's arm. Rather unusual for Etta. She was chary of personal contacts.

"Damned clever—and unkind—of you, Claud," she murmured with a half derisive, half admiring laugh. "I mean," she corrected herself swiftly, "I think it was so clever of you. From beginning to end." And without waiting for a reply she took up her writing again. There was absolute silence in the room.

Which was not the case in the lounge to which Claridge and Alysia had gone.

"I don't believe it," Claridge was saying spitefully. "Claud's in love with the girl. When I saw your cousin, he was tearing out of the house as though he'd seen the devil. Of course, if Claud chooses to give that explanation, we can't say anything. But it doesn't fit the expression I saw on Tait's face."

"Why didn't you say so to Claud?" Alysia asked with her usual shrewdness. Claridge humped his shoulders.

"What can one say when the other chap takes up that kind of an attitude? Nothing. I don't believe it, that's all. But he's done what he meant to do and that's put us where we have to let it go. Oh, yes, he's in love with that young woman all right. Hope you'll like her as a sister-in-law," he added nastily.

But Alysia only laughed. "Claud is not the kind to fling his career away," she said confidently. "Nor do I believe he's struck with the Dundas girl," and she began to talk of their own future, now so rosy.

In the library Claud sat with shut eyes behind his paper. Etta, too, only made a pretense of writing. Suddenly the door opened again. Claud's jaw set, but it was Mrs. Burnham who slipped in, rather breathlessly. She closed the door carefully behind her before she spoke.

"Will you come and talk to Miss Dundas, Claud? She's beyond my doing anything with. I'm—well, she positively frightens me. . . ."

"Frightens you?" Naylor gave her a very intent look.

"For herself only, of course." Mrs. Burnham seemed surprised by the misunderstanding.

"She wants to go away—now. At once. Secretly. She wants me to let her have the money to slip off to the continent and stay there till all this terrible affair has been cleared up. But how can I? Of course, it is terrible for her. Oh, more than for me, my dear Claud, for he belongs to me. Anything that has happened to him is just as though it had happened to me, and one can't run away from one's sorrows. But he's nothing to Gillian. The poor child is near a nervous breakdown with the shock of this dreadful, dreadful business. I'm very sorry for her. I don't want to be selfish. It's not for my sake, or for the looks of it, that I want her to stay. I think she should stop, don't you? Surely every one, even if like Gillian they have nothing to do with my dear John, should stay? Don't you think so too?" She ended on a note of surprise to Etta, as though Claud's silence perplexed her. But Etta said nothing.

"She wants to go away, does she?" he asked heavily, in a very level voice. "Well, Lucy, I don't see how I can talk to her on the matter. It lies with herself, I suppose. At any rate, not with me." He spoke in a very aloof, rigid voice.

She stared at him again.

"Claud, what's the matter with you? You act as though you disliked Gillian. I thought you ——" she hesitated. "What makes you act so oddly?" She finished.

"Oddly?" Naylor did not seem to like the word. "I fail to see anything odd in my not talking over her plans with Miss Dundas."

"But your face—your whole manner to her since—it—it—happened," she persisted, eyeing him very closely, and yet with a frown of bewilderment on her face. "I can't understand it. My own belief, or rather certainly, is that his death is due to some dreadful accident, but even so, she had nothing to do with it. Why did you look at Gillian in the hall yesterday as though—when they brought him in—as though, well, I don't know how to put it into words. If it weren't so monstrous I should say you suspected her of having—having had a hand in whatever happened to him. You must be reasonable, Claud."

Naylor said nothing, he was looking at the wall behind Mrs. Burnham with a steady, unblinking stare.

"I insist on your talking to her," she continued. "You're a barrister. You must know that I'm right, that she oughtn't to go—that she can't go, in fact."

"I don't feel myself in a position to decide for Miss Dundas," he said as stiffly as ever. "The responsibility is too great."

"If only John ——" She put her hand to her eyes for a second. "Do you know, Claud," she said in a whisper, "that I actually ran to his library just now to ask him to help. I can't make him seem dead."

"Don't try, my dear," he said gently. "Don't try, Lucy. It's heaven's help to those hurt, like you."

She nodded. "I don't feel anything here." She touched her heart. "I'm told—the terrible fact that he's gone—that never—never—never ——" Her voice seemed to fail her on that, but she went on, her back to Naylor, "that I shall not see him again, but I can't seem to realize it. It's like knowing that some terrible disaster has happened on the other side of the world."

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, July 17

The affairs of this day, judging by the lunar and mutual aspects, may be a mingling of the adverse and the propitious, with employment offering prospects of promotion, increase or preferment. The mind may be quickened into sharp, caustic or overtensioned grooves, leading into certain irresponsibilities of judgment and speech or into avenues of jealousy and bitterness in the private relations. Domestic or effectional inharmony or regrets may follow this. Sign contracts or enter into agreements with caution.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of conflicting conditions, with employment flourishing, the mental talents under high pressure, but with the speech caustic, ill advised and possibly unfair. This leading to friction, inharmony and disruption in the domestic or romantic relations. Be careful in business agreements or contracts, as the judgment may not be dependable.

A child born on this day may be mentally bright and clever, but possibly too ready of speech and action. It may incline toward sports and athletics.

"It's my personal contact method of campaigning and conscientious service over a long period of years that got the votes. I go into the rural precincts and country stores as well as visiting the cities. Folks like to know what a candidate looks like before they vote."

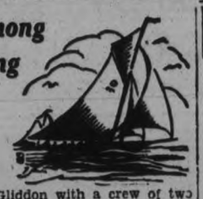
Chemong Sailing



Club Notes

Otto Gliddon with a crew of two men crossed the line with a comfortable lead over the craft piloted by Lynn Scott, and won the weekly dinghy sailing race of the Peterborough Sailing and Aquatic Club on Chemong Lake Sunday. Ralph Clark piloted the boat which took third money, the remaining two in the field trailing well behind.

A fair breeze blew over the course and there were no dull moments, although the contest had at no time the appearance of a battle for position. Many spectators watched the event from the high bank of the lake.

Next Sunday will see the next of the series, points counting on the season.

Adolf Hitler's Rise From Austrian House-Painter To German Chancellor

As an Austrian youth Adolf Hitler began as a house painter. He soon developed into a skilful debater. When the war broke out he enlisted in the Bavarian army. He went to the French front, was cited for bravery and was gassed. He was in the hospital when the German empire crashed.

Joining the German Workers' party in 1919, Hitler attended his first mass meeting at Munich which degenerated into hand-to-hand fighting.

In 1923 Hitler, with his followers, attempted a "coup d'etat" which resulted in a bloody battle and an eight months' prison term after he had proclaimed a new national government. He ran for president in 1932, after becoming a German citizen, but was defeated by von Hindenburg.

Shortly afterwards Hitler and his Nazis, growing over stronger, tried to take over the government but President von Hindenburg opposed it.

Finally Hitler was appointed chancellor in 1933, and in May he outlined his program before a million people in a speech at Tempelhofer Field, Berlin. Last January, on the first anniversary of the "National Socialist Revolution," the Reichstag granted Hitler extraordinary powers.

Fosters Must Win On Tuesday Evening

Fosters play Cogs in tomorrow's E.P.L. game at the Exhibition Grounds. This is just about Fosters' last chance to get going to keep in the race for a playoff berth. The way the team has been shaken up recently—battling to a 4-4 draw with C.G.E. last Friday—indicates that this team may be tough to knock off Tuesday, even by Cogs. The Foster crew is expected to trot out a new catcher and several new players for this tilt. If they do, it should turn out to be another fine ball game.

Cogs have not dropped a fixture this wear, winning seven so far and tying one. They hope to keep their record clean tomorrow and show the fans why they are up there on top. Probably Casey Masterson will get the assignment Tuesday, though Percy Vannest is also available and due to go in there again. Fosters are almost sure to send in Lefty Dunkerley, who held Cogs to a tie some time ago. It may mean a grand pitchers' duel and at any rate should prove an interesting E.P.L. struggle.

South-End Review

Last week's results: Nationals 9, Albions 12; All Saints 13, Cogs 16; Albions 14, Orioles 13; games this week: Cogs vs. Nationals Monday, Albions vs. All Saints Wednesday, Nationals vs. Orioles Friday.

League Standing

Team	P	W	L	P.C.
Albions	4	4	0	1.000
Cogs	3	2	1	.666
Orioles	3	1	2	.333
Nationals	3	1	2	.333
All Saints	3	0	3	.000

The Albions won both their games last week, defeating Nationals, who played the game under protest, Monday, and nosing out Orioles by the odd run Friday. Cogs stepped into second place by taking All Saints into camp on Wednesday evening. Burke ran miles to mob Kitchen of a homer in the Nats-Albions game with a circus catch to save the day for Albions. Lasenby's pulled off a sensational catch too on Friday night, getting one off his shoestrings while half turned away. Managers will meet to-night at 8.30 at All Saints' clubhouse.

MILLBROOK LOSES 4-1.

MILLBROOK, July 16.—(Examiner Correspondence.) — Millborok took the small end of the score in the league game of box lacrosse played at the West Beach Park, Port Hope, on July 12, the lakeside boys defeating the home team by a total of 4-1.

Three twenty-minute periods were played, L. Smith scoring twice for Fort Hope in the first period, Henry Gray putting in Millbrook's only goal, D. Canailla and D. Smith bringing up the four which Port Hope totalled. The game was called at 7 p.m. daylight saving time, with Rowden as umpire, and a large number of Millbrook fans present.

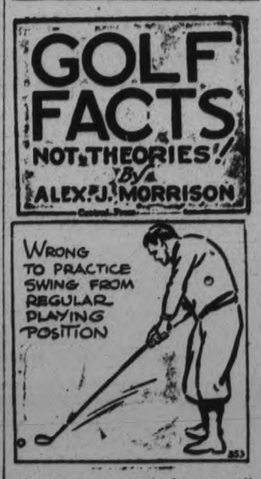
CRICKET

As neither of the local clubs had outside fixtures a friendly game was played between them at the Oval on Saturday, and the P.C.C. repeated their previous wins, the final score being P.C.C. 145, Whitakers 107.

Peterborough opened with J. Lawrence and W. Burks who made a splendid start and wrote the total to 77 before Burks was unfortunately run out. Capt. Dyer changed his batting order so that players who had not batted in recent matches owing to innings having been declared closed might get their innings and 7 wickets were down for 95. Lawrence left at 79 for a well feared 45, including seven 4's later. Mawhood (23 not out), Dyer (13), Mitchell (15), hit freely and the total reached 145. Hamilton was the most successful bowler with the good analysis of 6 for 30. On Whitakers going to bat he followed up his success with the ball by scoring 45, Colbran (14), Jefferson (19) and Wild (10 not out) were the only others to offer any serious opposition to the bowling of Dyer (4 for 38) and Lawrence (5 to 25) and the innings closed for 107.

Next Saturday, July 21, Peterborough play the Toronto Beaches C.C. in Toronto.



I'm always amused when my critics credit me with making rules that have their origin in nature itself.

For example, the starting position I advocate is widely criticized, yet everyone admits the hitting position I've featured to be absolutely correct.

The starting position I advocate is simply an approximation of the hitting position.

A sort of setting up or feeling out of the same muscles which must dominate the hitting position.

This is the rule involved:

The muscles cannot help but be influenced by the first impression given them.

This holds with every normal person so why not give the muscles an impression of the desired position and movements when you first step up to the ball?

Keene Girls Head Softball Standings

Keene girls' softball team top the list in the first half of the Ladies' City and District League with two postponed games yet to be played. The Rurals have eight straight wins in as many starts and their playing style so far mark them as the team to beat. Westclox are right on the heels of Keene with two losses in nine games and one game yet to be played, this against Keene. This latter tussle is of vital importance to the third place C.G.E. crew who will slide into a second-place tie with the Clockmakers if Keene wins the game. The Electrics as a team have shown more general improvement than any other nine in the loop and the fact that they are near the top in the first lap indicates that they will be tough opposition on the home stretch.

Team standing:

	P.	W.	L.
Keene	8	8	0
*Westclox	9	7	2
C.G.E.	10	7	3
*Omemee	9	4	5
Sixth Line	10	1	9
Maple Leafs	10	1	9

BIRTHDAY PARTY AT SPRINGVILLE

C.G.I.T. Join W.M.S. on Occasion—Honor Mrs. Moyer, Ruth and Helen.

LIVELY PROGRAM.

SPRINGVILLE, July 16 (Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. Wm. Whitfield was hostess on Wednesday afternoon when the Springville W.M.S. met at her home to celebrate their annual birthday party. In spite of the threatening weather, the gathering was exceptionally large. This was partly due to the presence of the C.G.I.T. Girls and the younger girls, all of whom contributed to the programme.

Mrs. Hunter, President conducted the meeting, opening the programme with an impressive introductory address. Business brought forward included the announcement of the August meeting, which will take the form of a picnic to Wallace's Point. An invitation will be extended to the Fairmount ladies to share the fun; also the Sectional Rally, which will be held at Springville in September.

A splendid programme given by the girls was as follows:

Readings by Marie Van Allen, Margaret McNeil, Mamie Cathcart, Dorothy Douglas, Velma Staples and Patricia (Pat) Staples; piano solos by Janet MacIntosh and Laura Neals; vocal solo by Viola Neals and a violin solo by Barbara (Happy) Staples. Janet Wilson gave an interesting address on "Leprosy".

Mrs. Moyer Honored.

At the conclusion of the programme, Mrs. Moyer, who is about to leave this community in the near future, was presented with a token of love and appreciation from the ladies of the congregation, consisting of a Life Membership Pin to the W.M.S., a table lamp and walnut end table. Miss Ruth Moyer was remembered by a string of beads and bracelte to match. The address was read by Mrs. A. Hunter, while the presentations were made by Mrs. M. Johnston, Mrs. Wm. Whitfield, Mrs. Grandy and Dorothy Cathcart.

Miss Helen Moyer was the recipient of the gift of a fountain pen from the girls of the C.G.I.T. The address was read by Marie Van Allen, and the presentation made by Mary Staples. Suitable replies were made by each, followed by the singing of "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows".

Lunch was served on the veranda, and lawn, and to add enjoyment to the out-of-doors picnic, a playette picturing the work of the "Red Cross" was presented by four girls, Ruth and Winnifred Hunter and Mary and Nora Staples.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the host and hostess thus bringing to a close a very pleasant afternoon.

HINT GANG WAR ACTON SLAYING

Italian Victim Found to Have Been Shot With 2 Different Guns.

NO SINGLE CLUE.

HAMILTON, July 16. — (CP) — Left without a single clue as to identity of their quarry, provincial police today intensified search for some trace of fingerprints or other tell-tale marks that might lead to apprehension of the slayers of Frank Sigluono. The battered body was found by a farmer's son investigating its prolonged parking on an isolated sideroad, near Acton and had been shot twice through the head, each time with a different gun. A postmortem performed at Milton by Dr. E. R. Frankish, medico-legal expert showed the man had been killed by .22 and .32 calibre bullets, both of which penetrated the brain. There was trace of a third bullet wound but Dr. Frankish could find no pellet.

Police were reticent to discuss the case until after further investigation and they declined to comment on the rumored theory Sigluono might have been the victim of an Italian gang war. Reports said police had discovered the victim had been involved in a shotgun shooting at a Merrilon roadhouse but were unable to locate witnesses to the supposed fray.

FEELS MANX AHEAD IN PENSION RATES

First Woman in Isle of Man Parliament Would Help Her Sea-Folk.

PEEL, Isle of Man, July 16. — (CP)—Mrs. C. Shimmin of Peel, the first of her sex ever elected to the ancient Manx Parliament, the House of Keys, is gentle-faced with dark glowing eyes. Telling about her election and her work, Mrs. Shimmin said:

"I am only carrying on my husband's work. When he died two years ago he had been Labor member for Peel for nearly 14 years. Our little parliament—there are 24 members—is in some ways in advance of Westminster," Mrs. Shimmin said. "We have, in addition to the old age pension a pension of 10 shillings a week for men and women over 45 who are bedridden or physically unable to work.

"What I am most concerned about at present is the plight of fishermen and sailors of my constituency. They are very hard hit by the depression and I want some of our budget surplus devoted to their relief. We have no unemployment pay in the Isle of Man and we try to find work on the roads for the men who have no jobs."

A question of etiquette arose when Mrs. Shimmin first attended the House of Keys as a member. Should she wear a hat? The decison was left to her. She decided to wear her hat and now she wishes she had taken it off. "It is so tiring to wear a hat all day," she said.

4,000 TROOPERS PATROL STREETS

er, overshadowed all else and the Maritime dispute, which led to the spreading revolt, became merely a part of the general picture.

Mayor Rossi declared the strike is the "greatest disaster that has fallen upon the golden gate city since the earthquake and fire of 1906."

The State's National Guard force which could be pressed into service numbers about 6,000 men, guard officers said. About 800 thoroughly trained Federal troops are stationed at the San Francisco presidio, but their officers said they had received no instruction concerning possible action.

Store Raided

In the first outbreak resembling a food riot, a crowd of 400, which was angered by reports of profiteering, broke into a grocery store, seized the staples in stock and smashed show windows and fixtures.

Federal aid to insure against hunger was promised by Robert Hinckley, investigator for Harry Hopkins, national relief administrator. But, he added, "the strike situation may result in San Francisco facing greater distress than the city had as a result of the 1906 fire and earthquake."

Declaring he could not understand "why this situation should last longer" General Hugh S. Johnson, N.R.A. administrator said in Portland he planned to come to San Francisco to lend his aid in peace efforts.

Edward D. Vandeleur, president of the San Francisco Central Labour Council, in a statement, declartd the San Francisco Industrial Association was placing 750 "strike-breaking" trucks with armed guard into service to move freight from warehouses and docks.

Plan to Spread Terror

"It is also a reported plan of the association," Vandeleur said, "to spread panic and terror throughout the city by calling upon the governor to declare martial law to protect their activities."

Lights and power for the strike-locked metropolitan area, approximately the size of the state of Rhode Island, was assured when the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, voted not to walk out.

Milk and bread deliveries continued under sanction of the general strike committee. The city's newspapers, though showing a sharp curtailment of advertising, will not be interrupted, it was indicated after the Typographical Union accepted a new wage agreement.

PASSENGERS HURT CAR LEAVES ROAD

Vehicle Crashes Head-on Into Stump in Turnout to Another Motor.

HASTINGS, July 16 (Examiner Correspondence).—F. Hand, an employee on Wm. Lewis' farm in Percy Township, was seriously injured in an automobile accident on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Hand, along with Messrs. Walter Warner and John Beavis, were returning from Westwood, where they had attended the funeral of the late Thomas Hie. When just east of W. S. Fife's farm on the Peterborough road, they met another car in charge of Mr. McColl of Campbellford. Mr. Beavis, who was driving, turned out, and in doing so struck some gravel, which caused the car to go into the bushes, where it hit a stump. Mr. Hand was thrown against the windshield. He was rushed to the office of Dr. W. N. Campbell of Hastings, where ten stitches were required to close the out in his face. The unfortunate man also received numerous cuts on the head, as well as suffering greatly from loss of blood and the shock.

Speaking to The Examiner shortly after the accident, Mr. Warner, who suffered a bad cut on the hand, said that only for the fact that they were only going at a moderate speed, the results might have been fatal.

The front of the car was badly wrecked.

RECALLED SCHOOL OF CENTURY AGO

Oldest Living Pupil Talks of Wearing Three Petticoats, Two of Flannel.

WINNIPEG, July 16. (CP). — Baking, sewing and spinning wood were taught 107 years ago in the first Anglican school at St. Andrew's—then St. Andrew's—in addition to readin', 'ritin' and 'rithmetic. In commemoration of the founding of the school in 1827, a pageant was presented at the old institution.

The youngest pupil of the school presented a bouquet of peonies to Mrs. Jane Fulsher, its oldest living pupil, who is 96. Some one was bold enough to ask Mrs. Fulsher how many petticoats she wore. "Three," she replied, "and two are flannel." She was Jennie Gibson when she was a pupil of that old school in the 1830's.

There was a living interest in the program. A score of of little girls, pinafored, moccasined or barefoot, took beholders back to 1827 and the days when anyone who did not speak Gaelic was in most Red River homes just as well dumb.

Miss Marjorie McGougan, a high school pupil, dressed as Mrs. Cochrane, gave a fine delineation of the instructress in bannock-making. But the high spot in Scene One of the tableaux program was that in which there entered a great-great-grandson of Archdeacon Cochrane, young Murray Pratt of Winnipeg, who riding up on a cayuse that might have been a lineal descendant of the famed Cochrane pony, performed the supervisory motions of his ancestor as he moved about the schoolroom set.

The corresponding high spot in Scene Two was the appearance, as a schoolmaster of 1831, of Rev. Geo. Gunn, grandson of Hon. Donald Gunn, a pioneer teacher in the Grand Rapids school. Cast as his grandfather, Mr. Gunn moved along the pupils, armed with a cane of contemporary vintage, suitable for pointing, prodding or persuading. The boys were shown learning harness-making and carpentry. The little girls came in bonneted, carrying lunches in colored handkerchiefs.

VERDICT GIVEN PRINCESS IRENA IS CONFIRMED

Appeal of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Ltd. is Dismissed by Court of Appeal.

QUESTION OF DAMAGES.

Portrayal Character in Motion Pictures "Rasputin and the Empress."

LONDON, July 17.—(A.P.)—The Court of Appeals to-day dismissed the appeal of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Ltd., from the verdict of a lower court which awarded damages of $125,000 to Princess Irena Yousoupoff, who charged she had been libelled by the portrayal of a character in the motion picture, "Rasputin and the Empress."

Mr. Justice Scrutton dismissed the action after informing Sir Patrick Hastings, counsel for the Princess, that it would be unecessary for him to re-argue the contention that "Natasha," a character in the film story, is identified in the popular mind with Princess Youssoupoff.

Question of Damages.

"What we wish to have dealt with by you is the question of damages," the Justice said to Sir Patrick.

The attorney then argued that every element that would properly be present to aggravate damages was present in this case. He called attention to the prominence of the Princess and observed that, "a small verdict for her would be an insult."

He added that a more dangerous form of publication of an alleged libel "couldn't be imagined."

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Company contended that the character "Natasha," who is represented as being on intimate terms with Rasputin, is purely fictional, and that no identification of her as Princess Youssoupoff was intended or implied.

LONDON WAITER IS UNDER ARREST

Scotland Yard Inspectors Question Man Concerning Trunk Murders.

BODY IS IDENTIFIED.

LONDON, July 17 (AP)—Tony Mancini, the stuttering Italian waiter, was charged to-day with the wilful murder of Mrs. Violette Kaye—also known as Mrs. Violette Saunders—a professional dancer.

She was the victim of "the Brighton trunk crime No. 2." Her body was discovered jammed in a trunk with the head and arms of another woman ,believed dismembered from the torso discovered a month ago in a trunk in the Brighton railroad station.

Mancini was arrested early today in southeast London and questioned by Scotland Yard detectives. At the end of their grilling they charged him with murder and arranged for his appearance in police court to-morrow.

Mrs. Saunders had been killed by blows from a hammer, while the torso victim was dismembered with a saw. Both a hammer and saw were found in the cellar where the second trunk was hidden, along with blood-stained clothing.

The identity of the dismembered woman remainer a mystery.

Highlander Rescues Men From Drowning

CHICAGO, July 17 (C.P.)—The quick action of a member of the 48th Highlanders of Toronto, early to-day saved two Chicagoans from possible death by drowning.

The two, Herbert Johnson, 30, and Gerald Steiner, 20, ran their car off the road and into Lake Michigan south of the Naval Armory where the Highlanders are encamped for the World's Fair.

Sidney Knight, 24, a private in the regiment, dived into the water and assisted them into a boat which arrived from a yacht in the harbor a few minutes later. He then dove down eight feet to the car to see that no one else was inside.

The First Strike

(By the Associated Press).

The strikers in the first great walkout on record never did go back to their jobs.

They were the Israelites who worked in Egyptian brick factories. The Bible tells that Pharaoh ordered them to furnish the straw for the bricks instead of getting it from their taskmasters.

They objected. Having found a leader in Moses, they walked out—toward the Promised Land—and never returned.

C.C.F. CHAIRMAN POINTS THE WAY TO ACHIEVEMENT

Woodsworth Reviews Clash in Ontario—Party Stronger Than Ever.

RALLY IN WINNIPEG.

Claims Provincial Campaign Shows Organization on Better Basis.

By SAM G. ROSS

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

WINNIPEG, July 17. (CP).—Recounting adversity and success of the past year, J. S. Woodsworth, Winnipeg Labor M.P. and national chairman of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, to-day pointed the pathway towards greater achievement as 150 delegates from all parts of Canada gathered for the Federation's second convention.

Mr. Woodsworth reviewed the clash of forces within the C.C.F. ranks in Ontario and declared the organization in the eastern province was stronger to-day than ever before. He dealt with criticism by the clergy and replied by quoting the Federation's manifesto denying interference with radical or religious groups.

He scented a trend toward socialism in legislation intoduced by the Bennett administration at Ottawa and termed financing of the $40,000,000 public works program by issuing new currency a 'radical departure from the 'sound money' policy" of the administration. The Stevens inquiry into mass buying and selling he termed "a scathing indictment of capitalism."

Chief Well Pleased

While results of provincial and by-elections in the past year had been called a disappointment by many within the C.C.F. fold, Mr. Woodsworth declared that "everythink considered, they were a remarkable achievement." He pointed out 500,000 persons had voted C.C.F. candidates and in other places where elections have not been held he believed the voting power was strong.

"In the short history of the C.C.F." Mr. Woodsworth declared, 'Calgary stands for provisional organization; Regina for the adoption of a program and constitution. Winnipeg, we hope, may

Stewart's Statement Is Termed Ridiculous

TORONTO, July 17 (C.P.). — Terming Mayor William Stewart's latest statement that the Ontario Government take responsibility for the good behaviour of the hunger marchers who propose to come to Toronto as "ridiculous," Premier Mitchell Hepburn to-day said he would assume before hand they were "a bad lot." No compromise appeared on the horizon to-day in the deadlock between the City Hall and Queen's Park over the reception to be accorded the hunger march which is scheduled for July 30.

TAKEN AFTER 2 YEARS

SUDBURY, Ont., July 17 (C.P.) —Local police are holding for Canadian immigration Mike Wolney, 38, who two years ago escaped from the Winnipeg immigration sheds where he was awaiting deportation to the Ukrain.

Wolney apparently has been here most of the time since his escape but city police did not know he was wanted in the West. He was traced here through his wife whom he married in the West after the death of his first wife.

HEROIC EFFORT IS MADE TO SAVE DROWNING BOY

Ten Year Old Boy Lost His Balance While Paddling in Home-made Boat.

DANGEROUS CRAFT.

Older Brother is Rescued by Leo Murphy of Park Hill Road.

The Otonabee river claimed its first victim of the season this morning, when Lionel Hewie, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Hewie, 127 Park Hill Road, was drowned at a point just above the Goose Pond.

A heroic effort by Gerald Hewie, aged 14, to save his younger brother failed, and nearly cost the older lad his life.

The quick action of Leo Murphy, 57 Park Hill Road, who from a boat plucked the older boy from the river as he struggled helplessly in the grip of the current was all that prevented a double tragedy.

40 Minutes In Water

The drowning occurred at 10.50 this morning at the end of the Antrim street on the river. The alarm was sounded immediately and brought a detachment of police and firemen, who dragged the river from boats. Forty minutes later the body of the drowned boy was brought up from the river on a pikepole by Robert McKenzie, fireman.

Efforts at resucitation were commenced immediately and were maintained for more than an hour, but proved unsuccessful. Dr. Herbert Young pronounced the lad dead.

Dangerous Craft

A rough, home-made boat was really responsible for the drowning. The Examiner was informed that this dangerous craft, less than 10 feet long, pointed, not more than two feet wide at its greatest width, with a six inch gunwale and consisting of rough planking was salvaged from the river above Auburn

DOCTORS URGE PASTEURIZED MILK FOR CITY

Resolution Adopted Unanimously by Medical Association, Dr .McPherson Staes.

IS BADLY NEEDED.

Board of Health Informed Present Milk Test System is Not Satisfactory.

A resolution urging that all milk distributed in the city be pasteurized was passed unanimously by the Peterborough Medical Health Association at a recent meeting. Dr. A. W. McPherson, Acting Medical Officer of Health, informed the Board of Health at its regular meeting this morning.

Dr. McPherso's announcement concerning the unanimous decision of the Medical Association came during a discussion of the city's milk supply. It was a complete surprise to the members of the Board.

Hoodwink Inspector.

Alderman Walter Stocker chairman of the Board, had opened the subject of milk distribution when he related that he had been reliably informed that one milk distributor at least was hoodwinking the sanitary inspector, Charles Stapleton, in his milk test.

"I have direct information that this milk peddler prepares a special bottle of milk each month to be tested," Alderman Stocker said. "And it is this particular bottle he always has ready for Mr. Stapleton."

"Do you know his name?" asked Mayor Denne.

"Certainly."

"Well, give it to the inspector and have him checked up immediately," the Mayor urged.

"I will," Alderman Stocker declared.

Obtained From Rigs.

Dr. McPherson said, 'Our milk inspection has not been satisfactory all

LOCAL RECOUNT ON WEDNESDAY

Judge Ruddy Will Examine All Ballots in Lancaster Election.

MAY TAKE WEEK.

Recount of the ballots cast by the electors of Peterborough county on June 19 will begin at the Court House Wednesday morning with Judge O'Connor of Cobourg presiding.

T. P. Lancaster, M.L.A., of Havelock, who was officially declared elected by a majority of thirty-four, will be represented by J. F. Strickland, K.C., and James Hawthorne, the Liberal candidate, by W. F. Huycke.

If the ballots are to be examined singly by Judge Ruddy himself, the recount may not be completed within a week or more, and it is understood that a suggestion has been made whereby representatives of Mr. Lancaster and Mr. Hawthorne might facilitate the work by assisting Judge O'Connor if he were willing to share his responsibility with them. His honor has set aside three days of this week to the counting of the ballot..

ABITIBI PROBE GETS UNDER WAY COUNSEL SOUGHT

Request is Made That Counsel Be Appointed for Former Hydro Commission.

CALL MEIGHEN.

Clarke Locke, Who is to Represent Hon. George H. Henry Not Present.

TORONTO, July 17 (C.P.).—In a sweltering court-room in Osgoode Hall to-day the Royal Commission appointed by the Hepburn Government formally opened its investigation into questions concerning the Ontario Hydro Commission and the "Abitibi deal."

Chief Justice F. R. Latchford of the Appellate Division, Supreme Court of Ontario, and Hon. Robert Smith, former Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada, acted as commissioners, with Arthur G. Slaght, K.C., Commission counsel and J. C. McRuer, K.C., acting for the Hydro Commission.

The investigation centred about a deal whereby the Hydro Commission, at the request of the former Conservative administration, took over the assets of the Ontario Power Service Corporation, constructing a power project on the Abitibi River in Northern Ontario.

Former Members Present

Among those in the room before the inquiry opened were Rt.. Hon. Arthur Meighen and Hon. J. R. Cooke, both former members of the Hydro Commission; Hon. George S. Henry, former Premier, and Hon. William Finlayson, former Minister of Lands and Forests.

Among other matters to be investigated in the question of any connection financial companies headed by Mr. Meighen had with the transaction.

When the inquiry opened Mr. Slaght introduced the various counsel to the Commission. The only other counsel to appear, he said, was Clarke Locke, who was to act for Mr. Henry. Mr. Locke was out of the city and wanted to wait until to-morrow before proceeding with examination of Mr. Henry.

The whole question was whether Mr. Henry's evidence should be held up, said Mr. Slaght.

The first evidence he wanted to

3 Men, Woman Taken Following Hold-Up

MONROE, Mich., July 17. (AP)—Three men and a woman captured after a brief shooting skirmish on a side road near Samaria, Mich., late last night, waited to be transferred to Toledo to-day, to face charges of having robbed the Page Dairy Co. there early Monday of currency and cheques.

The quartette, riding in a coupe with two members of the party hidden in the rear baggage compartment, were trapped four miles north of the Ohio state line by Deputy Sheriffs.

The captives identified themselves as Arnold Perry, 25; Sam Kauffman, 26, and his wife, Esther 23, all of Chicago, and Carl Lewis, 20, Toledo.

Police reported they found in the captives car five revolvers, $2,946 in currency and $505 in cheques which was believed to be the loot from the Page Dairy Co. robbery.

Game Wardens Are Likely To Be Fired

TORONTO, July 17 (C.P.).—The Toronto Star to-day says it learned Hon. H. C. Nixon, Provincial Secretary in Hon. Mitchell Hepburn's Cabinet, has decided to discharge every game warden and deputy game warden in the province, whose aggregate annual salary is $145,791.

The orders for the dismissals have not yet gone out, says the Star, but are expected to be put in the mails within the next few days.

The newspaper says the dismissal order will affect 117 permanent and temporary game wardens of the districts at London, Orillia, Ottawa, North Bay, Sault Ste. Marie, Fort William and Sioux Lookout, the seven district headquarters for enforcing the Game and Fisheries Act. Five hundred deputy wardens who receive no salary are slated to go, the paper says it learned.

Exercise

NEW YORK, July 17 (A.P.).—Police Commissioner John F. O'Ryan to-day told 400 police lieutenants that from now on they would pound the sidewalks, on day in four, as though they were ordinary patrolmen.

The commissioner said he thought it would be a good way to keep administrative officials in close touch with what was going on.

ELECTRIC STORM CREATES HAVOC IN NOVA SCOTIA

Bolt Kills Lad of Six and Eleven Others Are Injured.

SIX BUILDINGS BURN.

Poles Snap, Power Cut Off, But Deluge Proves Relief for Parched Crops.

HALIFAX, July 17 (C.P.).—Nova Scotia was recovering to-day from the ravages of an electric storm of tropical intensity which killed, maimed and caused havoc over a wide area as lightning bolts shot earthward.

At Tufty's Cove, across the harbor from Halifax, little Johnny Larisey's life was burned out as he huddled in terror with his little brothers and sisters in their parents' summer home yesterday.

Eleven other Nova Scotians were injured and at least six buildings were burned to the ground. Church steeples were smashed, small buildings were levelled, animals were struck down dead.

Telephone poles were snapped, electric light services were cut off, and hail in some sections broke windows.

It was a welcome storm to farmers generally, however, for it brought with it deluge of rain that relieved a country parch and dry after a month's drought. Forest fires raging for more than a week were quickly extinguished.

Tragedy For Newcomer.

But it brought tragedy to the Pulsen family. Henry Pulsen arrived six weeks ago from Denmark and purchased a valuable farm near Kentville. In the storm, his 70-year-old mother was struck down and now lies in a critical condition as the result of shock. His barn was razed, burning up all his stock, three horses, a registered bull, five pigs, farm machinery, hay and grain. Gunner Andrason was overcome by smoke while fighting the fire and collapsed.

In Westville Mrs. William Allan was rendered unconscious when a bolt entered her dwelling as she was seated with her husband near a window. Her left arm was paralyzed but she was slightly better to-day.

Homes in Sheet Harbor were rocked by the lightning, damaging flues, splitting shingles and cracking concrete foundations. It was regarded as the most severe storm to strike in a generation.

Your Evening Smile

SLIGHTLY MIXED

An old lady was visiting a racecourse for the first time.

"I want to put a dollar each way on Dixie Dean," she said to the bookmaker.

The man at the window laughed good naturedly.

"I say, ma'am," he said, "you've got things wrong, haven't you?

Dixie Dean's a football player, not a horse.'

"Dear me," said the old lady "then I must have put my pin in the wrong part of the paper."

CROWDED TRUCK HIT BY TROLLEY TERRIFIC FORCE

Nine Others on Smaller Vehicle Taken to Hospital Seriously Injured.

MORGUE TRAGIC SCENE.

Street, Covered With Blood, is Littered With Wreckage, Battered Bodies.

MONTREAL, July 17.—(CP)—Montreal's Jewry crowded the grim corridors of the morgue today to identify their dead. Six Jewish people, five men and one woman, were instantly killed in the small hours of the morning when a crowded motortruck collided with a street car in the north end of the city. Nine others were injured. An inquest opened today was adjourned till July 24.

Identification of the dead was completed at noon when Miss Bella Zumick, 19, was identified by B. Stein, her brother-in-law.

The other dead:

Benjamin Schwartz, 44, storekeeper, of Montreal, multiple fractures of the skull and fractured limbs.

Boris Hamat, 33, truck helper, of Montreal, fractured skull and internal injuries.

Peter Adelard, 45, Montreal merchant, fractured skull.

Leon Haber, 22 Montreal, dresscutter, fractured skull.

One On Tram Injured

The only passenger on the tramcar injured was E. Roberge, 39, Bordeaux, Que., who suffered a broken nose and cuts about the face. He was kept overnight at St. Luke's hospital.

Corona Filiatrault, 23, Laval Des Rapides, Que., who motored past a few moments after the accident occurred, became hysterical from shock and was also taken to St. Luke's hospital for treatment.

Lack of definite identification of the six victims brought a steady stream of Jewish people to the city morgue in search of relatives. One by one the mutilated bodies were identified by weeping relatives. Moses Stern accompanied friends on their grim errand and after they had identified Smalkin's body he suddenly recognized the clothing on a body on the next slab as that of Leon Haber, 22-year-old dress cutter, his brother-in-law. A belt buckle with the initials "LH." further established identification. Stern collapsed but later laid formal claim to the body.

The motortruck, which according to police reports was loaded with 18 passengers and nearly a ton of trunks, handbaggage, fruit and vegetables, was in daily operation between Ste. Agathe Des Monts in the Laurentian mountains, and the city.

Emile Fisher, driver of the truck, was believed to have caught his wheels in the streetcar tracks and was unable to turn out when a northbound streetcar approached on the other track. Leo Dupuis, streetcar motorman, said he foresaw the accident and jammed on his brakes.

The truck collided with the streetcar and the whole left side of the truck was ripped off. The truck rebounded from the streetcar, ran crazily on for a few yards, dropping the victims of one by one onto the roadway, and then fell over on its side.

The motorman, stunned by the impact, brought his car to a grinding halt. Shrieks of the injured and dying brought residents running from nearby houses. A lone automobile roared down the road at high speed, swerved through the dead and dying littering the street and disappeared into the night. Nobody was struck by this unidentified car.

The Injured.

The injured are Mrs. L. Maislin, 44, suffering from shock; Molly Maislin, 9, shock; Bella Visbergh 29, injuries to legs and ribs; Emile Fisher, 24, driver of the truck severe head injuries and bruises about the arms. David Burnstein 55, head cut; E. Roberge, 39 bruises to face; Esther Shizgal, 42, cuts about face; Anna Lifshitz, 30, shock; Isidore Stromberg, 47, shock. All the injured, with the exception of Roberge and Stromberg, came from Montreal. Roberge lived in Bordeaux, Que.,

HUNGER MARCH STIRS FRICTION IN QUEEN CITY

Stewart in Opposition Asks if Govt's Will Stand Good for Any Damage.

TYRANT SAYS ROEBUCK.

Mayor Playing Politics Says Premier and Attorney General.

TORONTO, July 17 (C.P.)—The political spotlight, for almost two weeks focussed on the varied doings of Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn and his newly-selected government, to-day was turned on the verbal battle between the Premier, aided by his attorney-general and Mayor W. J. Stewart of Toronto.

Both Premier and Arthur W. Roebuck, Attorney-General assailed the mayor for his attitute in regard to plans for an unemployment "hunger march" July 30.

The marchers, said the Premier "are entitled to every courteay." and consideration to a request for funds to aid the marchers during the stay in Toronto, will be given by the cabinet to-day.

Mr. Roebuck said: "Mayor Stewart's position in attempting to isolate the government from hearing an expression of views of a section of the community is altogether unwarranted and is of the type of Toryism that brought about the revolution in Russia."

Said the mayor: "I am not a tyrant nor unfair, but merely trying to support constituted authority." The city, he added, had a right to say if it would tolerate "A deputation with a mob at its heels" using its streets and parks for a demonstration.

Ready for Deputation

The Premier gave assurance the government would receive a deputation; ordered Provincial Police to provide an escort to the delegates and appointed Commissioner General Victor Williams of the Provincial force, to discuss plans with Toronto authorities, and arrange "freedom of passage through the streets of Toronto."

But as far as Mayor Stewart was concerned there was to be no compromise. "The policy of the Police Commission in the matter is absolutely the same as I was when a similar problem arose two years ago. At that time we forbade any marches or demonstrations by 'hunger marchers' but sanctioned and gave police protection to obviate any interference, to the call of a delegation upon the then Premier, Hon. George S. Henry. Is every group that wishes to call upon or do business with the government to be accompanied by a parade and demonstrations?"

"What right has the Mayor", said Mr. Roebuck, to whom the Premier referred any further statements, "to assume in advance those citizens who gather to make representations on political matters to the new cabinet have any intention of violating the law? To accuse them in advance of a purpose to riot on arrival in Toronto is as unjust as it is unwarranted."

What the Mayor Wants

The mayor, however, was not waiting for the delegation to arrive from various sections of the province to find if they intended to riot.

"I would like to ask," he said, "whether, if the premier wants to receive and possibly make a speech to a large group of paraders and demonstrators, and if they should grant a permit for a parade, will he give an undertaking for the good behavior of the participants, guarantee their maintenance while in the city, and indemnify the city against any damage resulting from their visit."

Premier and attorney-general both accused the mayor of "playing politics."

It was not known if the matter would be mentioned at cabinet council meeting to-day.

So Fort Erie Council ruled to-day when Ernest Sykes, whose expenses home will be defrayed by Canadian Immigration Department, will be properly outfitted.

Sykes in an eloquent plea to municipal fathers declared he arrived in the Dominion decently clad, and his greatest objection to going home and facing the natives on the Village Green was his attire, in grave disarray through his search for work. His wish for decent clothing will be gratified.

HUSBAND SHOT STAR BOARDER

IS 78 YEARS OLD

LINDSAY, July 17.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Thomas Childers, a seventy-eight-year-old resident of Seagrave, was given suspended sentence and placed on probation for two years on a charge of shooting John Kemp with intent to do bodily harm.

Childers came before Magistrate Purdy of Port Perry on the week-end. Counsel for the accused made a strong plea for leniency. Childers' son, Thomas, of Sonya, Mariposa Township, is to assume the care of his father for the next two or three months, until a disagreement between the aged man and his wife had become settled, and providing that John Kemp, the complainant in the case, leaves the hamlet of Seagrave and the Childers home. It appeared from the evidence of the complainant that he held no animosity against Childers, and had even obtained legal counsel for the defence. Childers told his counsel that he did the shooting in order to make Kemp leave the house. It was Mrs. Childers' home and the husband had no authority to order Kemp to leave. Childers declared that there were certain suspicions in his mind, but admitted that they were unfounded.

Meighen Inquiry Has Been Postponed

OTTAWA, July 17.—(CP)—Because of the inquiry instituted by the Ontario Government, Chief Justice Duff has decided it would be inexpedient at present for him also to proceed with an inquiry into the charges made against Right Hon. Arthur Meighen in his capacity as a member of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

On July 7 the Chief Justice of Canada was commissioned by the Dominion Government to conduct such an inquiry. In making the appointment, the Government stated Mr. Meighen, in pressing for an investigation, had submitted if he were guilty of the charges made against him he should not continue to be a member of the Government of Canada.

Mr. Meighen is Government Leader of the Senate and member of the Cabinet without portfolio.

Already 35 cases have been reported and it has been definitely decided to hold a clinic, presided over by one of Ontarios outstanding child specialists who will diagnose each individual case and advise what treatment is considered necessary.

OFFICER'S DEATH BRINGS BRITISH CRUISER IN RUSH

Turkish Officials and London's Ambassador Endeavor to Untangle Shooting.

MANY VERSIONS.

Greek Report States Britishers Were Fired on as Boat Headed to Sea.

ANKARA, Turkey, July 17 (C.P. Cable). — Turkish authorities and the British Ambassador are to-day endeavoring to settle conflicting versions of the manner in which Surgeon-Lieut. J. W. Robinson was killed by sentries' bullets.

In the meantime the cruiser H.M.S. London was reported to be rushing to the scene of the tragedy near the Samos Islands in the Aegean Sea.

An Admiralty statement in London disclosed no details, but announced that Robinson was killed and Lieut. T. S. K. Maunsell wounded when sentries opened a heavy fire on them near the Turkish mainland.

One version here had it that a customs officer saw three naked men land on the beach and that he was compelled to fire when they disregarded his challenge. Another said they were in swimming suits and were treated as smugglers. The two officers and another who escaped unharmed belong to the cruiser H.M.S. Devonshire.

A Greek report said the officers were ordered to move further away from the shore, but when they turned their sailing boat toward Samos, which is Greek territory, the Turkish centries opened fire. Robinson fell overboard and disappeared. The other two swam to safety on the island.

It is understood the Turkish Government considers its officials acted correctly, but is prepared to express its regrets to the British Government.

Traffic Menace

SWANSEA, Ont., July 16. — (CP) — A feminine sun-lover who climbs a friendly tree on an island in the Humber River and removes her bathing suit is worrying Constable Archie McColl. Amid blushes, the eagle-eyed constable said today: "I had heard about this young woman, and I got a glimpse of her the other day. She was up in the top branches. She is no slouch at climbing. She came down far enough to give me a little sauce."

The whole trouble, from a police standpoint, is that the island is situated at a strategical point so far as traffic is concerned. It lies directly beneath the Bloor Street bridge, when traffic passes to and from Toronto. There is always some danger of a Peeping Tom precipitating an accident, police feel.

No Wings

JOLIET, Ill., July 17. (AP)—The studious students of Stateville—Illinois' most modern prison—were given their reward to-day.

Because of their progress in sociology, calculus, anthropology and assorted other subjects, Warden Frank D. Whipp added a course in flying.

Why not? he asked. Stateville has engines, machinery, 67 acres of ground and two former pilots among its company.

He picked up an old plane cheap.

But as an after thought he decided on one condition: The boys can learn about flying to their hearts' content. But the plane will have no wings.

BRADLEY TRIAL GETS UNDER WAY

COMMITTED JULY 21, '33.

CAMPBELL'S BAY, Que., July 17 (C.P.)—As a sequel to the mass murder of an entire family in the quiet little settlement of Demers Centre, a hamlet on Allumette Island in the Ottawa River, nearly a year ago, Michael Bradley, 42-year-old farmer went on trial for his life here to-day, charged with the slayings.

In one of the most sensational crimes that stirred the entire country, five persons were shot to death on the morning of July 21, 1933. They were Bradley's father, Joseph, 69; his mother, Mary, 69; his brother, Thomas, 46; his sister, Johanna, 35, and an uncle, John Bradley, 66.

A priest who went to the farmstead upon aroused suspicions of neighbors about the quietude which enveloped the home, discovered the slayings. Three days later, Quebec Provincial Police arrested Michael Bradley as a material witness and following an inquest, a week after the crime, charged him with murder.

The court of King's bench, which will be the scene of the trial, is presided over by Justice Philemon Cousineau of Montreal. Defence attorneys James Crankshaw and Marcel Gaboury of Montreal are expected to call 15 witnesses while Francois Caron, the prosecuting attorney, 20.

LABOR DISPUTES TEAR 3 COASTS, INTERIOR OF U.S.

Frisco Strikers Facing 9,000 Troops, Police Allow Food to Move.

MORE UNIONS WALK OUT.

Trouble Flares in Alabama, Minneapolis, New York, Boston, Baltimore.

(By The Associated Press)

Labor troubles blotch each of the United States' three coasts and dot its interior to-day.

More than 101,000 workers have been called out on strike and members of many other unions threatened walkouts.

The 100,000 union workers in San Francisco, heart of the maritime workers' walkout, relaxed the strangle of their general strike sufficiently to permit movement of foodstuffs and operation of the municipal traction system, but the situation remains critical.

Branding the hardships of a general strike "undeserved and intolerable," Acting Governor Frank Merriam promised at Sacramento last night to "act with the utmost vigor" for the public weal. Nine thousand national guardsmen and police were ready in San Francisco for his orders.

The general strike spread across San Francisco Bay to the Oakland area, where unions had fixed for to-day their walkout in sympathy with the longshoremen. Violence drummed its prelude yesterday, four persons being hurt by flying fists and weapons.

Twenty-two thousand Alabama textile workers were called out in a strike beginning to-day. Officials of the United Textile Workers of America, which is demanding pay increases and improved working conditions, said the strike affected 40 locals. Shifts in five mills went out last night.

Minneapolis truck drivers struck again at midnight. Four thousand men joined the previous strike, in which two were killed and 200 hurt. They charged their employers were flaunting the agreement which ended last May's disorders.

Life Of Boy Is Saved By His Two Friends

BELLEVILLE, July 17.—Prompt action by Ray Woods probably saved the life of his brother while swimming at Cooper's Dam yesterday. A jagged piece of glass cut Carl Woods' wrist and the brother tore the shirt from his back and made a tourniquet, which partially stopped the flow until the boy could be taken to the surgery of Dr. Austin Walters, who dressed the wound.

The boy fainted three times on the way to the doctor, but Wesley Evans, an older chum, revived him each time to finally land him where aid could be secured.

"The action of the two boys saved the child's life," said Dr. Walters.

KINGSTON, July 17. — Mayor William P. Peters met with serious injuries yesterday, driving into the city from his summer home at Battersea. Mayor Peters suffered severe injuries to his back, one leg and cuts about the head. His sister-in-law, Miss Marion Coon, and Miss Carrie Breen, driving with him, also suffered serious cuts and a severe shaking up. When the car toppled over one door remained open and Mayor Peters was able to extricate himself and the other members of the party.

JUMPING PARTNER TO SMALL SLAM.

West made an opening bid of 4-spades, trusting partner for 2 tricks, East jumped to 6-spades, upon 3 qu ick tricks. aas the jump justified? The opening lead was the K of clubs. Should West fulfill the contract abainst the best subsequent play?

For all East knew, his partner might have been void of hearts, and unable to establish that suit. Had hearts contained K-Q-J-10-X-X there could have been little question about the soundness of the jump, butI disapprove doing this on what was held.

Dummy's ace of clubs own the first trick. Two rounds of trumps pulled all opposing spades. The hearts were led. South won the first rick in that suit, by capturing dummy's Q with his ace. South ruffed the declarer with a club. That kind act enabled the declarer to fulfil his small slam contract. West led his last heart. Dummy's K won. The declarer ruffed a heart. All opposing hearts fell. Dummy's ace of diamonds was used for re-entry, with all hearts good. West discarded his losing diamond upon one of dummy's hearts, fulfilling his contract. But the contract was fulfilled only because South permitted it, by leading a club for West to ruff.

I played the hand as declarer. When dummy went down I saw no chance of dulfilling the over-ambitious contract. It seemed to me that I must lose one heart trick and one diamond trick, and perfect defence would have put the contract down a trick.

Suppose South declines to win the first heart trick. What is West to do? If Dummy's K of hearts is led the ace will win, and the J will stop the suit. If a low heart is led the J will win and the ace blocks the suit.

With South's double stop to hearts, if he declines to win the first heart trick, and wins the second trick in that suit, with another stop in reserve, South then can lead a club and ruff the declarer, as the contract cannot be fulfilled.

Another method of defeating the contract is for South to win the first heart trick, then to lead his K of diamonds, to remove the ace of that suit. South can defeat the small slan comtract in two ways. Only his unfortunate lead of a club enabled me to make the small slam.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Catering for two is a little more difficult in summer than winter. Appetites are in need of tempting more in hot weather than cold. Change of foods is wanted in quicker succession than in cold weather. Two days of the same meat, however, well varied in preparation, may pall when the temperature hovers about ninety, when it would be eaten on consecutive days with a relish if the thermometer registered nine. With refrigeration installed in a home, keeping meats, although uncooked, is possible for two or three days, provided the meat is kept in a very cold part of the refrigerator.

* * * * * *

A small sirloin steak with the tough end hamburged can be used as follows: Broil the steak itself to the rare, medium, or well done, stage as wanted. Spread it lightly with butter, dredge with salt and pepper and just a dash of celery salt. Stand in oven for two or three moments so that the meat is marinated with these things. Dress platter wih parsley and serve immediately. Two or three days later escallop the hamburged portion, using bread crumbs, rather coarsely ground as alternate seasoned layers. Over all pour enough undiluted condensed tomato soup to moisten well. Cover with bread crumbs seasoned and dotted liberally with butter. If onion flavor is liked, grate a little over each meat layer when preparing the dish. Cook for 25 minutes in an oven with temperature of 400 degrees.

* * * * * *

In the day intervening between these two servings of the steak have boled fish with caper and egg sauce. Cod is a good fish to boil or haddock. Neither is expensive. Halibut and fresh salmon are higher and considered better, but with the sauce named the first fishes are satisfactory. Put the well washed and wiped fish in cold water, bring to a boil and simmer until tender. If boiled rapidly the fish will break, but if simmered, it should not neither will it need to be tied in a cloth to prevent this happening.

* * * * * *

Make a white sauce of one tablespoon butter and one of flour blended together over a low fire. Moisten with three-quarters of a cup of milk and season highly with salt and pper. Before serving add one chopped hard-boiled egg and a scant tablespoon of capers. Pour over fish in platter and garnish with water cress, radish roses, and circles of hard boiled egg.

Veterans' Reunion

FOURTH BATTALION

The Fourth Canadian Infantry Battalion (The Old Mad Fourth) are going under canvass during the Canadian Corps Reunion at Exhibition Grounds, Toronto, August 4th, 5th and 6th.

It is expected that members of this unit will be present in large numbers. The Fourth will participate very prominently in this reunion. Many old acquaintances will be renewed. It is not likely that such a gathering will ever again be held and those attending will always cherish a happy memory of their attendance. A banquet will be held for the members of the Fourth on the evening of Saturday, August 4th. All members of the old Fourth are requested to register their names, addresses and regimental number with the Secretary Sergt. Harry Kingscott, Toronto Headquarters 4th Infantry Battalion, 60 Bond Street, Toronto, Telephone Waverley 2428.

CYCLIST BATTALION

The Cyclist Battalion is holding its re-union in conjunction with the Canadian Corps Re-union to be held at Toronto on August 4, 5 and 6 and in order to complete the necessary arrangements the committee is particularly anxious to hear from all ex-members of this unit who intend coming to Toronto at this time.

Fashion Service

Isn't this the most intriguing frivolous little frock for afternoon parties or to dine and dance in?

This charming dress is flowered crinkled organdie with French blue grosgrain ribbon sash. The ruffles are picot edge (done professionally). You'll find the rest of the dress simple enough to make.

If you feel you would like a plain colored dress, choose turquoise blue in misty net so divinely young and flattering. You will have a dress that is more unusual than many, and you will probably not see it copied.

Style No. 2996 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 16 requires 4⅝ yards of 39-inch material with ¾ yard 39-inch contrasting.

Bethany

Mr. and Mrs. D. Thornton, of Saskatchewan, are guests of friends in Bethany.

Mrs. Charles Porteous returned to her home here after spending a few days with friends and relatives in Cavan and vicinity.

Mrs. J. Thompson, of Toronto, is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. R. Patton.

Olive Harris, of Saskatchewan, is the guest of relatives for an extended visit.

The annual flower service in connection with the Sunday School of Holy Trinity Church, the Marsh, Manvers parish, was held on Sunday.

On Friday evening about two hundred friends and neighbors gathered at the Town Hall to give welcome and greeting to Mr. Everrett Smith and his bride, who was formerly Miss Vera Preston, of Saskatchewan. The evening was spent in dancing and music was supplied by R. Sisson and J. Galloway. An address was read and a cabinet of silver presented to the young people. Dainty refreshments were served.

FIRE PROTECTION

FORT ERIE, July 17 (C.P.)—"As long as folk from the beach district are assets to For Erie, which we know they are, we should be willing to serve them in protecting against fire," said Councillor John Charles, as Fort Erie Council conferred with Reeve H. M. Hershey, Deputy Reeve Gorham, Councillor Jewson and Clerk Ellsworth of Bertie as the result of which the Erie Beach fire protection controversy is settled. Bertie will pass a by-law and give Fort Erie a copy, the former agreeing to pay all expenses of future fire calls.

stand for consolidation and at least preliminary preparation for our first big struggle—the coming federal election."

Pointing out the C.C.F. was the official opposition in the British Columbia and Saskatchewan legislatures and had one member in the Ontario legislature, Mr. Woodsworth called for strengthening of provincial and constituency organization in preparation for the federal election. The half-million who had voted for C.C.F. candidates was the start of electoral support but this figure should be greatly increased by diligent work already shown by branches of the Federation.

PROTECTING THE PEDESTRIAN.

Not because we have any idea that it will produce any beneficial results but merely to satisfy our own conscience, we would direct the attention of motorists to the warning issued by the Ontario Safety League that all drivers making right or left turns on city streets should remember that, according to law, the pedestrian has the right-of-way when crossing with the green light.

This may be new to the far too many motorists who seem to think that the pedestrian has no rights at all, but we are doubtful whether calling attention to the law will help to improve conditions at protected intersections.

The man on foot may have the satisfaction of knowing that the law is with him when he starts across the street with the green light, but that satisfaction is not, after all, much protection when some careless driver makes a quick turn round the corner and bears down upon the unlucky pedestrian at the intersection.

Until a few healthy fines have been paid by the most flagrant offenders the idea that the traffic regulations give the pedestrian the right-of-way and protect him from vehicular traffic will have to be regarded as a mere theory.

THE RIGHT COURSE.

While The Examiner has already expressed the opinion that the coming hunger march to Toronto will be a flat failure so far as accomplishing anything beneficial is concerned, we believe that Premier Hepburn is quite right in assuring promoters of the proposed trek that the provincial authorities will put no obstacles in the way.

It is to be hoped that the Toronto city police will show similar good judgment and permit the hunger marchers to march to their heart's content.

In the long run it will be found infinitely better to give the demonstrators every opportunity to let off steam than to use force to prevent their assembly.

Attempts to restrain such demonstrations by police simply serve to give those attacked an opportunity to pose as martyrs and to stir up fresh resentment against law and authority.

We can see little sense in this trek to Toronto, but now that it has been organized it might as well be given a chance to go through, even if there is not much in the way of definite results that can be expected from the placing of such impossible demands before the Provincial Government.

Under present conditions it is going to be a difficult enough task to maintain the current scheme of relief without attempting to load any more burdens upon the shoulders of the taxpayers.

SOME DESERVE DISMISSAL.

While The Examiner, as a matter of principle, is not in favor of the spoils system and believes that civil servants who have done their work well and kept away from political activity in the main should be left alone, there can be no complaint over the dismissal of those in the employ of the province who have been active politically.

Any civil servant, temporary or permanent, who interested himself in the last election knew he was taking chances, and he cannot complain now that the fortunes of war have gone against him, if he finds himself dismissed from his position.

If foremen in the road camps, for example, busied themselves in furthering the interest of Government candidates they went into the thing with their eyes open, and they have no cause to protest the decision of the new Government that officials who made no attempt to disguise their political activity must be prepared to walk the plank.

Efficient civil servants, regardless of their own political views, who stuck to the business for which they were appointed and took no part in election activities are in a totally different category; if they are included in the list of officials whose heads are to come off their dismissal is the spoils system in its simplest and crudest form, and will be resented by all fair-minded citizens who fear the introduction of the American political axiom that to the victor belongs the spoils.

A WARNING TO PARENTS.

It is not surprising in view of recent drowning accidents to find the Ontario Safety League has issued a special bulletin to parents pleading with them to protect their children from aquatic hazards.

When it is realized that of the 301 people drowned in Ontario last year no fewer than 92 were children of fourteen years or under, the necessity of such a warning becomes readily apparent.

It is, as the Safety League points out, the plain duty of parents to teach their children to avoid the danger of drowning by playing, bathing or swimming only when some one older and able to protect them is at hand.

To allow small children to play alone in or near water is criminal negligence, and yet right here in Peterborough many little ones are daily permitted by their parents to frequent the river, not only at Inverlea Beach where supervision is provided, but at other unprotected points where the conditions are much more dangerous than at the civic bathing beach.

In many cases these small bathers are only a step or two away from deep water, and under the circumstances it is remarkable that there have not been more fatalities when the chances careless parents allow their children to take are considered.

If children cannot be accompanied by an older person they most certainly should only be allowed to bathe at Inverlea where a lifeguard is constantly on watch.

The difference between the successful and unsuccessful business man, says the office sage, is that while one is out selling the other is selling out.—Hamilton Spectator.

SHOULD NOT BE FORCED.

"The use of liquor was a contributory cause of the accident," says a press despatch reporting a coroner's inquest into a motor accident near Cornwall, in which one man lost his life and another had his left arm torn off. Liquor is a "contributory cause" in too large a number of the serious motor accidents which fill the columns of the daily press. The apprehension which was felt when the legal sale of liquor was resumed are proving to have been too well justified. Nor can the impending widening of the facilities for the sale of beer and wine be viewed with anything but misgiving. Orillia, as a local option town, will not be directly affected; but Orillians will have to share added hazards of motor traffic on the highways. Some leading papers are declaring that the measure has not the support of public opinion in their communities, and are protesting against having the private sale of beer and wine forced upon them. The Peterborough Examiner, for instance, is waging a particularly vigorous campaign against the sale of beer and wine in restaurants, which our contemporary declares to be against the wishes of nine-tenths of Peterborough's citizens, of all shades of political opinion, of all walks of life and of every possible opinion on the liquor fuestion. There can be no question that, at least outside the large cities, there was no public demand for the beer and wine legislation passed at the last session of the Legislature, and it will be a shame if it is forced upon unwilling communities. The least Mr. Hepburn can do is to provide that, in carrying out his promise to "proclaim" the bill, the right of self-determination in communities which do not wish to take advantage of its provision is not outraged.—Orillia Times and Packet.

AFTERMATH IN GERMANY.

Adolf Hitler left Berlin on Sunday for a month's "vacation." On the surface this may seem to indicate confidence, a feeling that with the "blood-purge" over, the Nazi regime is safe again. Yet piecing together the contradictory and always censored news that comes out of Germany, remembering certain financial and economic facts about the Reich's position, there seems ground for anything but confidence.

In the first place, what last week's terror revealed, most of all, is the existence of opposition. And not merely opposition in insignificant quarters. The leaders who were slain, some of them men of eminence, must have represented millions of Germans. It is not reasonable to suppose that these millions, silenced for the moment, have been silenced permanently. Their opposition will remain, will become articulate again, will ultimately make itself felt. That is the history of government by force.

There is the problem of Hitler's Storm Troopers. Numbering 2,000,000, the edict has gone out that they be reduced to 500,000. When that demobilization comes, when Hitler attempts to dispense with 1,500,000 of these people, one-third of them alleged to be Communists, another third made up of the unemployed, what then?

Before the rise of Hitler there were 17,000,000 Socialists in Germany, some 6,000,000 Communists. It is not reasonable to suppose that all of these people, who once constituted a majority of the German electorate, have changed their views in the past fifteen months, that they are now all worshippers of Hitler. A more likely belief is that they constitute dangerous material out of which may be constructed a formidable opposition to the Nazi regime.

Hitler, while being financed by the steel masters, posed as the champion of National Socialism. That was all well and good so long as he could keep up the pretence, give the impression that he was master. It is bound to be a different thing when the masses discover that Hitler is not his own captain, that it is a combination of big industrialists, of Conservatives and Prussian Junkers which really rules.

That, actually, is what has been shown. Hindenburg and Thyssen and the German Army may have believed it expedient to keep a Hitler in the saddle, used him as a weapon against Communism. But when his bombastic oratory and crude Nordic nonsense ceased to prevail, when the hope of molding every German into a standard form subjugating conscience and personality to the needs of the State began to fail, then the position changed. The masters were compelled to disclose their hands.

The consequences are all but inevitable. Millions of Germans, misled by Hitler, will look to him increasingly to "deliver the goods." And when the goods are not delivered—and they can't be—when the Nordic dream turns into fantastic nightmare, what then? Germany's condition, admittedly, is growing worse. Her credit is gone; her exports are falling off; her unemployment grows. Add to this that under Hitler Germany's foreign trade has gone from bad to worse, that the gold reserves of the Reichsbank are exhausted, that the mark is once more in peril, and the position seems plain.

The coming months, therefore, are likely to be tremendous months in the German story. No one may predict what will happen, but when men, women and children become hungry, then oratory is of little avail, particularly in a country schooled to the use of force. Last week's blood-letting may well have been but the prelude of more momentous and desperate things.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

San Francisco is experiencing a situation that closely resembles civil war. It is to be hoped that common sense will prevail before it is too late.

Even racing motorists must obey the law, as Kaye Don, famous British driver, has found to his sorrow.

Restaurants are to remain restaurants, in view of the decision not to grant beer and wine licenses to eating places.

Another Dominion-provincial conference has been called to discuss the relief situation. If all concerned will not attempt to pass the buck perhaps something worth while will be accomplished on this occasion.

Britain is buying less beef from the Argentine and more from the Dominions, another indication that the Empire trade pacts are working.

When Hitler visited Mussolini recently, one of the first things Il Duce did was have his guest inspect the Italian army. Just as a friendly gesture, you know.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

Ramsay MacDonald won't be able to get much rest during his visit to this country if Toronto's obnoxious and persistent special writers and interviewers camp on his trail.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

Mr. Henry might be interested in those glider acrobatics displayed in New York. They demonstrate what a good man can do even without power.—Toronto Telegram.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

HAWAII

"The Lord's Annointed," has recently been released from the press of a new York publishing company. The book has been advertised as a Hawaiian novel. The keynote of the book is a tirade against Christianity. It is being extensively read by the unemployed. In the regions of discontent in the United States the circulation is large. In the mouth of the fair-minded and the just and the constructive citizen it has a bad taste.

A Book With A Circulation But False.

The Bible is the best book friend the troubled and the oppressed can find in the whole world. The church is the only institution on earth that stands for the religious conception of life. It is the only institution on earth that stands for a high estimation of human worth. Its demands for justice has been persistent. It is the only institution on earth that gives an inspiring vision of the future. The effort of The Lord's Annointed is to break down confidence in both the Bible and the Church. The book has been sent forth as, A Novel of Hawaii. The setting of the Novel is not characteristically Hawaiian. It does not smack of the Hawaiian environment. Nor does it read like a book written by a Hawaiian. The natives are dissatisfied with American government control. That is really what the book is trying to get into the minds of the people of the Sandwich Islands.

The book is the story of a group of New England missionaries at work in the islands. Instead of Christianizing the natives, the missionaries proceeded under the cloak of religion to get a hold that could not be broken on all the natural resources of the country. The role of the missionaries was the spearhead of imperialism. A study of the labors of the missionaries, Baldwin, Cooke, and Judd, and Castle, and Alexander are sufficient refutation of the charges made by Ruth Eleanor McKee.

JAPAN

For some years the fisheries question has been the spearpoint of Soviet and Nipponese controversy. At last this vexing issue has been settled satisfactorily to both nations. Seals in the Behring Sea, a few years ago, and the right of hunting them, entangled Britain and the United States in a controversy. With but little friction the matter was settled. The fisheries strife between the Soviet Union and Japan held the elements of a pitched battle. Japan was wise in avoiding an armed clash. Russia was ready. Well trained armies are on the ground. Abundance of army supplies are stored. Russia never before was as ready for a great military struggle as she is now. Japan is more than occupied with the Chinese situation. The amicable settlement of the fisheries controversy has produced a friendliness between the two nations.

Sweet Reasonableness in Place Of Exasperation

More significant still is the resumption of parleys over the Chinese Eastern Railway. The proposal of Japan to resume the parleys came not from a mood of genuine friendliness. The move was politic. Genuine friendliness of the peoples of both nations, would be for all the Far Eastern world, a twentieth century regeneration. Russia and Japan would be the scene of the greatest possible economic revolution. Established peace is the supreme revolution. Alone by the infusion of great principles into the common mind are wrought great social revolutions.

Why has Japan become so approachable? Why does Japan seek to patch up the torn garment of relationship with Russia? The reason is not difficult to find. Japanese encroachments on the Asiatic continent are meeting with reverses. Japan feared that Russia might aid the Chinese peasants in North-eastern Manchuria who are in rebellion against Japanese domination.

THE UNITED STATES

This is the first of three or four articles about one of the Chicago slum districts. The information has come from the pen of Miss Ruth Jameson. She is a graduate of Chicago University. Plenty of pathos in her own personal story colors what will be told in these chapters. None but a lady who had been born in slum environment could so faithfully portray slum conditions. Her story is not a tirade. True at time she grows resentful. But never for herself. She came up from the slums. And by choice she went back to the slum, her own slum to redeem and to new make. Do you think that an easy job? A sodden community is the nearest to despair. The fetters that bind are the most difficult to break. Long time is needed to make an impression for right living. The worker with the devotion to remain and toil on without the least sign of success but with an inward assurance that the toil is not in vain is to be envied. Such a worker is Ruth Jameson. She is gifted with a keen, pronounced, and unusually vivid sensitiveness. She is blessed with sympathy. She feels as deeply for others as she does for herself. But she is not soft. To meet her is to discover a woman with a will. Her cultured mind is like a spear. It goes right to the core of the matter. The slum, her own slum already reflects the sweetness and light of her personality.

A Chicago Slum Worker

The slums have moved right up to the back door of Chicago University. While preparing for a University degree, as she went and came from the lecture room there was the slum. Among the students she won recognition as one of the brightest. Her examination standing was always with honor. But there was the slum close to the University as it was about her home.

What's in The NAME of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

SHELBURNE, N. S.

This town was settled by U. E. Loyalists, principally from New York and New Jersey to the number of about 10,000 in May, 1783, while later arrivals increased the population to a greater extent. The population dwindled as new arrivals scattered to other parts until the population was reduced to about 1,000.

The townsite was originally named Port Rozier by the French, which later was changed to Port Roseway by the English and this name was used until arrival of the Loyalists. They renamed it Shelburne, for the Earl of Shelburne, who was prime minister of Great Britain at the close of the American revolutionary war.

The naming of the town for the parliamentary head of the country to whom they owed allegiance, was a natural action caused by their ejection from the land of their choice.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

OUR NUDIST COLONY.

I used to belong to a nudist colony. Our toes were all stubbed, our knees were lacerated, our backs were red and blistered, we had freckles all over our faces, we were scrawny and noisy and the farmers in the neighborhood were known to complain about our presence—but as I remember it, it was a great success.

It met every day in the summer time on the banks of a little river, right where the Salsipuedes creek flowed into the Pajaro, near a rock where a turtle was always sunning himself until we came along. . . . We had fun. . . . It was a mile out of town by a dusty road, and sometimes we'd catch a ride all the way on the water wagon or we walked along, squishing our toes in the newly watered road. We had to go through a farmer's orchard to get there and the farmer had a couple of dogs who didn't like us, either. But we usually succeeded in filling our shirts with apples as we went through.

Last one in was a nigger baby—and unless you hid your clothes the last one out always found that somebody had chawed beef on him and if you think it isn't possible to tie a kid's shirt into what is practically a Gordian knot then you never had anybody chaw beef on your clothes. . . . We climbed into trees and dived in like frogs. We tried to see who could dive the farthest under water. We got way up the creek and knocked big rocks together under water—and THAT hurts the other fellows' ears something terrible. . . . But most of the time I guess we just lay on the sandy-silty bank and ate apples and threw cores in the creek and watched them float away and smoked wormwood cigarets or cubebs or maybe real cigarets—I was a sissy and wouldn't smoke those—and boasted! Boasted about everything. About where we'd been and what we'd done and how long we could stay under water and how tough we were and what we were going to do when we got out of school. . . . We didn't have any fancy ideas about freedom and the joy of going without clothes and being free of the "intolerable restrictions of civilization". But, except for the absence of girls, it seems to me it was just as much a "nudist colony" as any of those I read about in the papers.

Or maybe we were just naked kids swimming in a creek in the summer time. . . . I won't argue about it.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

WE NEARLY HAD A NEW IRELAND.

On this date, in 1780, the British Government refused the royal assent to a bill to establish a new Ireland in Canada. The governing council of St. John's Island (which it had been from the time of Jacques Cartier) passed a bill changing the name to New Ireland. There was some discontent on the island at the rejection but it had no effect and so the name remained St. John's Island until 1799 when a bill was passed by the British Parliament designating the colony "Prince Edward Island" in honor of Edward, Duke of Kent, father of Queen Victoria, who was then commander of the forces at Halifax.

I have not been able to ascertain who was the originator of the proposal to have a New Ireland on this side of the Atlantic, but whoever he was it would have been a most appropriate name at that time, for the colony was then in the grip of as hard-hearted a bunch of rack renters as ever cursed the south of Ireland in its worst days. Originally, like New Brunswick, part of Nova Scotia the colony was, in 1770, made a separate province; but this was merely a gesture, for three years before the whole island had been granted in a single day to 67 Scottish proprietors, most of whom were absentees and who wholly disregarded conditions of settlement, neither improving the lands themselves or permitting them to pass into the hands of others. It was not until after a century of oppression that, just before the island entered the Dominion, the British Parliament passed an act which enabled the tenants to purchase their holdings on reasonable terms; in fact that act was one of the conditions of union. The land problem had to be settled before Canada would take hold. And it cost Britain $800,000 to buy out the absentee landlors.

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterboroughs Leading Handwriting Analyist for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

Frances M. Craig,

Peterborough, Ont.

This handwriting portrays a versatility which is quite interesting. You seem to be gifted with a splendid capacity for developing new ideas, and should not find it at all difficult to make money, but the drawback seems to be your lack of confidence in yourself, and so you keep yourself far below your station in life. Courage and the knowledge that you are gifted, will do much to assist you in raising your own standard of yourself. You are introspective, and apt to worry over things, and cross many bridges before you reach them. You should try to spend a portion of each day out of doors, and rest your nerves, for they seem to be at a tension just now. You can be very sharp when the occasion demands, but as a rule you are very sensitive and so easily hurt through your own feelings, that you endeavour to spare the feelings of others. You should be deeply interested in objects of charm, and try to accumulate pretty things which will please your sense of the beautiful about your home, for one of your nature starves without beauty. Your 't' bar crossing indicates a propensity to give rather than receive, and is admirable sometimes, but not always, for you will have to sacrifice your own comforts too often if you allow this trait to predominate.

I would advise you to look to your own comfort in future. (Not in a selfish manner) but because you need comfort for the sake of your health. You are a mental type, and must relax as often as possible. Try to avoid eyestrain and learn to know that life cannot be lived in one day, by that I mean don't crowd too much work into every twenty-four hours.

Your number is six. Your birthsign is Gemini the Twins, and this birthsign has a tendency to make people restless, and have a desire to spread out their activities over too large a field in their efforts to gain recognition and success. Mercury is the planet by which you are ruled, and gives you mental intellect. April and August are your most fortunate months. Friday your best day.

Mrs. Amy V. Gregson,
2798 William David Street,
Maisonnouve, Montreal.

Thank you for your confidence as to my ability to analyse your writing. I do hope you will not leave the city before this appears in print. Yes, our daily paper is most interesting and certainly is up to date. Camping must be fun, at this time of the year, and I wish you a delightful holiday. Your writing shows a keen interest in the raising of domestic animals, a love of children and a knowledge of the rudiments as meant for correct living. You are rather too generous, easily excited not over strong as regards health, and your imagination is likely to cause you a great deal of mental suffering, for you flounder about in a helpless manner when your hopes and plans go astray. Don't you? It was kind of your friend to tell you to send your sample of writing to my home, and I quite understand that you hoped to get your reply sooner by so doing, and I am also sure that the Editor will readily appreciate your motive. He is a very busy man, but just and thoughtful so I am sure that he will not mind this time. You do worry too much, and you seem to avoid doing many really worthwhile things, because of a fear that they will not turn out right. Isn't that so? Then you find it very difficult to make yourself complete tasks, because you begin too many at the same time. You do not dot your 'i' at all so I know you are not a positive person. However, you possess many lovable characteristics, and have a fine sense of good humour. I hope you will enjoy your holiday in this part of the country. Peterborough wants to do everything in her power to encourage visitors, and this is the season for tourists, so on behalf of "The Examiner" I would like to bid you a hearty welcome, and hope you will come again next year. Thanking you again for your confidence, let me wish you the best of luck and excellent weather conditions.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN.

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 88c to 91c; oats, 38c to 40c; barley, 45c to 46c; corn, 68c to 72c; rye, 48c to 50c; buckwheat, 58c to 60c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Prices declined on the Montreal produce and dairy market yesterday.

On the butter market, fresh No. 1 brought 18¾ to 19 cents a pound in carlots or less against 19 cents straight. Small lots to retailers were 20 cents a pound for solids and 21 cents for prints. Receipts were 657 boxes.

Cheese was 10¼ cents a pound for Ontario colored, down ¼ of a cent. Quebec cheese was steady at 9¾ cents a pound. Arrivals totalled 2,030 boxes.

Egg prices were generally ½ to 1 cent less, graded shipments in carlots or less being 20 to 21 cents a doz. for A-large, 19 to 20 cents for A-medium, 19 cents for B and 18 to 18½ cents for C. Receipts totalled 1,724 cases.

Potato prices also eased. N.B. Mountains (old) being quoted at 60 to 65 cents per 80-pound bag, down 5 cents, while new Quebec potatoes sold for $1.25 for No. 1, off 20 cts., and $1 to $1.10 for No. 2.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Confronted by an almost record-breaking big increase of the United States wheat visible supply the past week, wheat values averaged lower late yesterday.

An extreme tumble of 2⅛c a bush. from the day's top prices for wheat was witnessed, but rallies were in progress at the last. The week's enlargement raised the total stock of wheat at domestic terminals nearly 10,000,000 bushels and hoisted the supply to within 30,000,000 bushels of the amount on hand a year ago.

Wheat closed nervous at the same as Saturday's finish to ⅝c lower; corn, ¼c to 1c advanced; oats, ½c off to ⅛c up, and provisions unchanged to 5c decline.

Fears of crop damage to corn owing to extreme heat and drought over important sections gave a pronounced upward trend to the corn market throughout the day. Oats were inclined to follow corn rather than wheat.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, July 17. — Light, scattered selling in the last few minutes, among the first of the session, sufficed to erase early advances on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday, as wheat futures prices closed ⅛c to ¼c lower, July option at 82c, October 83⅝c, and December 84⅝c.

The session was the quietest for some time, and traders for the most part stood on the sidelines awaiting a definite trend. An opening gain of nearly a cent slowly was wiped out, and the close was at the day's low points. Most traders showed unwillingness to commit themselves on either side of the market.

Liverpool Strong.

Strength at Liverpool where gains of ½d to ¾d were marked up, provided stimulus for the early advances, but weakness at Chicago, and a limited export demand were weakening factors. Less than 250,000 bushels of wheat were sold for foreign shipment yesterday, and importers generally showed little interest in Canadian wheat.

World shipments of wheat last week totalled 10,000,000 bushels an increase of 1,400,000 bushels over the previous week. North American shipped 3,700,000 of this total. Diversion of an Argentine wheat cargo to Russia provided interesting reading in the day's news.

Real Relief Probe Likely For Ottawa

OTTAWA, July 17 (C.P.). — With Ottawa citizens studying the report of civic relief investigators who condemned the way in which direct relief has been handled here, interest now centres on what action if any, will follow.

As far as the city concerned, no action will be taken until Friday at the earliest. A meeting of the Board of Control has been called for that day, during which the report will be discussed in detail with the two investigators, Frederick A. A. Matatall and Hector Menard. They were appointed by Ottawa City Council last May to make a thorough inquiry into the administraction and cost of direct relief here.

The investigators report contains certain features which border on the sensational. Stating that there appears to have been a tremendous wastage of coal and wood, they recommend a judicial investigation into this section of the relief organization as well as into the sections administering clothing distribution and rent. They found an apparent shortage of 1,800 cords of wood.

CHEAPER GOLDS LEAD ACTIVITY

But Some of Issues Close With Gains After Early Setbacks.

MUCH PROFIT-TAKING.

TORONTO, July 17 (CP).—Traders cashed their paper profits in large numbers today and the result was a considerable shakedown in the price level of the mining section, Toronto Stock Exchange. The main activity throughout the day was in the cheaper gold shares, and although many of these lost their early gains under profit-taking, several, including God's Lake and Gunnar Gold received only a temporary check and were able to advance again in the afternoon and close with net gains.

Quotations on the big gold issues went through the day practically unchanged. Trading was mainly active in Bralorne and Teck Hughes. Little Long Lac hit 7.60 but sagged before the close to 6.30 for a loss of 15 cents for the day. God's Lake closed at 2.75, up 15 cents net and Gunnar Gold moved up sharply in the afternoon to 2.25, a net gain of 15 cents.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

MONTREAL EXCHANGE.

MONTREAL, July 17 (CP)—With no encouragement from any quarter, issues on the Montreal Stock Exchange remained in lower territory at the close today. Volume continued light.

Canadian Industrial Alcohol "A" steadied after a weak opening and was unchanged at 6 1-2. The "B" issue was down 1-2 at 5 3-4. Montreal Power declined 3-8 at 34 7-8. International Nickel at 24 7-8 was off 7-8. Canadian Pacific lost 1-4 at 13 1-4. Fractional losses were suffered by Dryden, Dominion Steel and Coal "B", Bathurst, Steel of Canada and St. Lawrence Corporation preferred.

WALL STREET CLOSE.

NEW YORK, July 17 (AP).—Scattered selling gave the stock market an irregular appearance today. However, price changes were generally small. Metals eased in the late dealings, following forenoon's improvement. U.S. Smelting, Howe Sound and Hudson Motors lost about a point each. U.S Steel was steady, but American Telephone and Consolidated Gas sold a bit lower. Transfers approximated 600,000 shares.

along. The milk to be tested should be obtained directly from the rigs as the men deliver their supply, and not have them dropping bottles into the inspector's office. If necessary the inspector should go right out to the farm and get his sample before the milk is delivered."

Mr. Stapleton explained that the milk men have completed their distribution of milk when they reach his office and there is usually only one or two bottles of milk left in their rigs.

"That's no good," commented the Mayor. "You'll have to stay up all night and get samples, if that is necessary. We want a proper test of this milk, and not have the men handing in any bottle of milk they select."

The result of the city's milk test last month was then produced, but was not read.

Pasteurization Needed.

"Certainly," commented Dr. McPherson, "if this report is anything like an accurate report of Peterborough's milk we should have pasteuriaztion at once. The Peterborough Medical Association recently passed unanimously at a meeting a resolution to that effect."

"When was that resolution passed?" asked the Mayor.

"Some months ago," replied Dr. McPherson. "A copy was to have been sent to the City Council. Didn't you receive one?"

"No, we never got it."

"Well, it was included in the resolution that it be forwarded to the Council."

Reports Prepared.

..On the recommendation of Dr. McPherson it was decided that henceforth the Isolation Hospital monthly report, the report of Mr. Stapleton and all accounts must be prepared for the new Medical Officer of Health, Dr. Murray Fraser, before they are brought to the attention of the chairman. "He should know what is being spent," explained Dr. McPherson, and the Board agreed. .. ..A letter from the Milk Control Board informed the Board of Health that all milk peddlers in the city must have a Provincial license as well as a municipal license to distribute milk... The secretary of the Board was instructed to write the Milk Control Board and learn how many local distributors have Provincial licenses and who they are. ..."We can act on that information later," said the Mayor.

ON TRIAL TO-DAY?

SEATTLE, Wash., July 17 (A.P.) —Although officials of the district attorney's office and the United States customs district declined to make a public statement, the government's $17,000,000 liquor smuggling charges against Harry Reifel and his son, George C. Reifel, Vancouver distillers, was expected to be taken up by the grand jury when it meets here late to-day.

GRILL PEDDLER ON KIDNAPPING

Suspect in New York Case Denies Seeing Child.

TELLS DIFFERENT TALES.

HARTSDALE, N.Y., July 17 (AP). —Federal agents and police, groping for clues to the fate of 21-month-old Bobby Connor, held a conference at 3 a.m. to-day to question an eccentric peddler who plied Hartsdale housewives with his wares the day the curly-haired child disappeared.

The peddler, Harry Lee Forestier, 51, mumbled incoherent answers to the questions, officers said, and gave no information of value. After the grilling he was locked up in the Greenburgh Jail, pending further investigation.

Capt. Philip McQuillan of the Hartsdale police said Forestier admitted he called at homes in the community last Thursday, the day the toddling son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Connor vanished, but denied he had seen the child playing on the Connor lawn or knew what became of him.

The parents continued hopeful the child would be found alive. Said the mother: "I still am sure everything will be all right and Bobby will be returned to us. I have utmost confidence in the ability of all who are seeking him, but where my baby is, I don't know. I can't think of anything—Oh, I try so hard to wait and hope and not to think at all."

Capt. McQuillan said Forestier who was picked up yesterday on Staten Island, told contradictory stories. "He has certainly implicated himself enough to be held further," said Captain McQuillan. "We are going to hold him and continue questioning him."

Funeral Directors To Tackle Publicity

TORONTO, July 17 (C.P.).—The question of unethical publicity by funeral directors will be tackled at the 51st annual convention of the Ontario Funeral Service Association, President Charles H. Hulse, of Ottawa, announced to-day. The convention will be held July 24, 25, and 26. "No profession or business in the country has been raised to a higher standard in so short a time as ours, nor are we finished yet," he said. "The unfortunate thing is that this advertising affects the whole province and not only the community in which the advertiser lives."

BELIEVE DEATH TRUCK IN PASSENGER BUSINESS

MONTREAL, July 17 (C.P.). — Belief the auto-truck which figured in a disastrous collision with a street car early this morning, claiming six lives and injuring nine other persons, was being operated as a quasi-passenger bus was expressed by Kenneth B. Thornton, general manager of the Montreal Tramway Company, in an interview. Mr. Thornton declined to issue a public statement until investigation had been completed.

"The truck was a light model," Mr. Thornton said, "and it carried 18 passengers and the driver. In addition to these 19 persons it was loaded with more than a ton of vegetables, clothes, and furniture.

The company deplored the accident happened to a street car in charge of one man only, in view of a criticism of this type of car by the conductors and motormen "Ten men on that car would not have altered the situation," Mr Thornton said.

LOSSES RULE TORONTO CLOSE

Nickel, Brazilian and Brewing Corporation Issues Heavily Traded In.

OILS ALSO ACTIVE.

TORONTO, July 17 (CP).—The influence of New York put the skids under the Toronto Exchange Industrial Market early today and losses were well represented in the list until late in the day when investment buying came in and the board steadied. Losses were in the majority at the close, however. International Nickel, Brazilian and Brewing Corporation issues, as well as the oil and distillery shares traded in heavy volume.

In the interlisted group, Nickel and C.P.R. lost 3-8 each, Ford A, 3-4 and Consolidated Smelters dropped 2 1-2 to 145. Walkers Common and Distillers Seagrams were offered in heavy volume in the morning session and the former sagged to 28 3-4 but recovered partly to close at 29 1-4, off 1 1-4 net. Distillers lost 3-4 and Industrial Alcohol, 1-8.

HEROIC EFFORT IS MADE TO SAVE DROWNING BOY

last week and was brought down and tied to the private wharf at the foot of Antrim street.

Gerald and Lionel Hewie decided this morning that they would set out on the river in this frail craft and explore the eastern shore, as bold pirates should.

"We got across nicely to the other shore," Gerald told The Examiner. "We were using sticks for paddles. Coming back we found the current awfuly strong. We were both paddling hard.

"In some way Lionel lost his balance and fell overboard. The boat took on a lot of water. I jumped in after him. I caught him all right. And holding him I clung to the boat. He had his arms around my shoulders."

Gerald sobbed out the rest of the story and tears ran unheeded down his wet cheeks. "I could not hold on any longer. My hand slipped off the boat. Lionel slipped down from my shoulders and went down into the river. I paddled with my arms trying to stay up. I was shouting hard all the time. Then Mr. Murphy came and pulled me out."

Mr. Murphy said his attention was attracted to what was happening by the loud calls of Johny Hall, 766 Water street, who was trimming trees in the Oval. "He shouted to me and I knew something was up, so I put out in my boat and then saw the boy just bobbing in the river," Mr. Murphy said.

Mr. Hall saw the boys in the boat and saw them struggling in the water, but was helpless to go to their rescue.

Dangerous Craft Broken Up

Teddy Freeman, Park Hill Road, came aong in another boat a minute later, and brought to the shore the craft the boys had been riding in. It had blown down into Goose Pond. Later this dangerous craft was broken up by Inspector Reid.

Lionel was the third eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Hewie's seven children. The father, employed as a spinner at the Auburn mill, first heard of the drowning as he walked home for his noonday meal. He and his wife were both prostrated by grief.

PLAN FESTIVAL TO HONOR KING

Next May 6 Britain's Ruler Celebrates His 25th Accession Day.

SPECIAL BANQUET.

(By Thomas T. Champion—C.P. Staff Writer).

LONDON, July 17 (C.P.). — Although plans for the celebration next year of the 25th anniversary of His Majesty's accession have received no official confirmation as yet, the general outline of them is already well advanced.

On accession day, May 6, it is proposed there shall be a State procession to St. Paul's Cathedral for a thanksgiving service. It is possible this will be held in the open air, before the west front of the Cathedral. This was the manner in which Queen Victoria attended the Cathedral on the day of her diamond jubilee, June 22, 1897. The function furnished a magnificent spectacle.

On subsequent days the King and Queen will make two drives through London, covering the north and north-west districts on one day and the south and south-eastern districts on another day.

Representatives of the Dominions and colonies and special envoys from foreign countries will be in London for this Royal festival. A special banquet at Buckingham Palace and a gala performance at Covent Garden are almost certain.

Nearly 17,000,000 tons of rice were shipped from China to Panama in the last year.

ABITIBI PROBE GETS UNDER WAY

offer was documentary, and concerned the Department of Lands and Forests. It covered the original grant of the power site to the Hudson Bay Power Company.

Mr. Meighen Called.

First witness called was Mr. Meighen, "not for the real gist of this trial," but for certain preliminary investigations concerning Mr. Meighen's companies.

At this stage a man arose in the body of the court and asked that counsel be appointed for the former Hydro commissioners, since their acts as servants of the people were to pass under review.

"Why should they not provide their own counsel?" asked Mr. Justice Latchford.

"Because as officials of the Hydro, as servants of the people, their acts are under review; it seems so apparently fair, My Lord, that counsel should be provided.

"Are you prepared to place a time limit on the time they should be paid?" the commissioner asked.

Surely a reasonable counsel would be selected" was the reply.

Mr. Slaght said this was the first he had heard of the matter.

"I am not prepared to undertake the province will pay for this" he said.

"I did not expect my learned friend to assent, and that is why I appeal to Your Lordship," the man continued.

"Speaking for myself," said Mr. Justice Latchford, "I do not believe anyone should be protected more than any other witness.

At length Mr. Slaght asked for the man's name.

"My name is Gordon" he said.

Mr. Slaght then asked him to name those by whom he had been retained. He did not think, said Mr. Slaught, their Lordships had the power to guarantee the payments and suggested Mr. Gordon disclose his clients' names and conduct a "watching brief" with permission to participate.

Mr. Henry then rose and referred to Mr. Locke's absence. He read the subpoena he received which called for documents and said it was in this respect he wished Mr. Locke to act for him.

He asked that Col. Greer be appointed counsel for "us."

"I think it fair that a previous government of this province, which carried on affairs of the province in a legitimate way, should be provided with counsel," he said. "I think it but fair, if the commission isn't wide enough, it should be returned to the government."

Senator Meighen said if he wanted counsel to defend his personal conduct he was prepared to pay for it. On the other hand, if his conduct as a servant of the public was concerned, then he should be given counsel.

Mr. Slaght said he had no objection to counsel acting for anyone, but he did not think the Commission could do anything about payment, and the matter rested there. Mr. Heney was asked to have Mr. Locke on hand tomorrow.

Mr. Meighen was called to testify in his "official" capacity as a former Hydro Commissioner.

He declared he had been served with eleven subpoenas in all. Two were served last week and nine today. The latter called for production of documents "which had no connection with the investigation, and would take a week to prepare. The subpoenas had been left with his staff, he said.

He had no connection with the Canadian General Insurance company, but was vice-president and chairman, later president, of the Third Canadian General Investment Trusts in 1932. At present he was a director of the company and "I think I'm vice-president; I don't know for certain but I'll take responsibility for it."

The London and Western Trust Company was another concern in which he was interestd and held office.

"Any other dummy directorates?"

"Never any dummy directorates; they were all real companies," retored Mr. Meighen.

He was willing, he said, to provide every facility to anyone who wished to investigate his companies. An account of the Commission could enter any of his offices with his own accountant and get whatever documents or information were required.

"It is understood we will have to trouble you to return to the witness box at a later stage?" said Mr. Slaght.

"You won't have to trouble me at all; I'll be here" replied Mr. Meighen as he left the stand.

REV. A. L. SISCOE AT MILLBROOK

JESUS' IDEA OF GOD

MILLBROOK, July 17.—The initial appearance in the pulpit of St. Andrew's church on Sunday of the new pastor of the Millbrook circuit, Rev. A. L. Siscoe, drew an unusually large congregation, the special musical number being a trio, "Only Jesus," by Mr. and Mrs. M. McDowell, and W. H. Coombe.

The pastor took for his theme, "Jesus' Idea of God," based on Matthew 10:29-31, dealing with it under three heads: 1. What Jesus says God is—not a blind force, but a personal Spirit who loves, chooses, and directs the affairs of the world, making things lovely in nature, and in human hearts; 2. What Jesus says God is like—a Father, loving, closer than any other relationship, and bringing joy and fellowship; 3. God's attitude toward the individual of the human race—a helper, a good shepherd, a light, salvation, and strength.

In the evening for a few weeks character sketches will be the sermon-theme, the one on Sunday night being "God's Good Man." The Seth Parker Club formed the choir for the service.

LABOR DISPUTES TEAR 3 COASTS,

laundry workers voted to strike, leaving the time of the walkout to be decided to-night. They are asking a closed shop and a 40-hour week.

On the Pacific coast, Los Angeles was the only United States port open. The maritime strikers there were watchfully waiting. There was sporadic violence. Seattle experienced similar tension.

Even in New York and Boston restless labor currents swirled about the piers. The Seafarers' Council of the port of New York, which professes to speak for 19,000 men, announced that a strike vote would be taken unless operators of steamship lines agreed to discuss new contracts.

Leaders of 18,000 knit goods workers in the same city completed preparations for a strike. The day has not been set. Like their fellow workers in the south, they demand pay increases and shorter hours.

No Definite Action.

Boston Longshoremen at a mass meeting expressed sympathy with the strikers on the west coast, but adjourned without definite action. Inflammatory literature led to the arrest of a man and a woman.

Baltimore's union truckers gave the local labor relations panel until late to-day to settle a dispute with one company. A general truck strike was the ultimatum's alternative.

On the Gulf coast, two white men and a negro were accused of slaying three Longshoremen during a strike battle at Houston. Picketing was abandoned at the request of police and independent dockmen resumed work after the killings.

Even the pecan 'shellers struck. The industry was paralyzed in San Antonio, Tex., by the walkout of 8,000 union workers, mostly women. A spokesman said many of them had been averaging 20 cents for a day of 14 to 18 hours.

Tear gas flowed at the Kohler Manufacturing Company's plumbing equipment plant in Kohler, Wis., which six months ago was proclaimed the model industrial community of the United States. The gas failed to disperse pickets.

Refused a 25 per cent. wage increase, 500 employees struck at the Assawaga Woollen Company's plant in Danville, Conn.

TRUCK, TROLLEY MEET HEAD ON

and Stromberg in Ste. Agathe, Que.

It was learned the truck was proceeding along St. Lawrence Boulevard with its headlights on full. As it approached Liege Street, the driver suddenly saw the fast approaching one-man car. He attempted to swerve, but it was too late. The car caught the truck on the side and hurled it several yards, completely demolishing it,

Dying Screams

The air resounded with the screams and groans of the dying. When help finally arrived it was found six of the passengers had been killed outright and others were seriously hurt. The motorman on the car was knocked completely unconscious and the car proceeded a considerable distance before it stopped. One of the three passengers on the street car was slightly injured and a woman witness of the tragedy, Corona Filiatraut, 23, suffered from shock. She was removed to hospital with the other victims.

Some of the dead were disfigured beyond recognition, their faces and heads battered in by the force of the collision. The head of the woman was hurled through the air and was found in the street car.

The motorman of the street car, Leo Dupuis, recovered consciousness later and told how he saw the truck approaching and sounded his bell while applying the brakes. He felt the crash and knew no more until revived by police.

One of the injured, Isidore Stromberg of Ste. Agathe, told police he had boarded the truck at Ste. Agathe and was riding in front alongside the chauffeur. "Just how it happened or what caused it I can't say," he declared. "It happened too fast. It was terrible. The truck had about 15 passengers on board and some baggage."

Scene of Confusion.

Most of the injured were rushed to hospital in police radio patrol cars. As news of the accident was received at headquarters, word was flashed over the radio system and the district patrol went to the scene, closely followed by a second patrol. Calls for ambulances and the morgue wagon were sent out as throngs of the curious gathered around, despite the hour, to catch a glimpse of the proceedings.

The ground was covered with blood. Trunks and baggage were strewn for yards and bodies lay nearby, several of them battered beyond recognition.

Traffic on St. Lawrence Boulevard was blocked for one hour and 15 minutes after the mishap, while remains of the dead were being removed to the morgue. The debris was finally moved away and a crew from the Montreal Tramways Company was sent to take the street car to the shop for repairs.

Police continued their investigations to-day. From what they have learned, the truck was travelling from Ste. Agathe, picking up passengers at different points along the route. It is believed to have carried about 15 passengers, but nothing definite could be learned on that point.

SUSPENSE GRIPS SAN FRANCISCO AS STRIKE HOLDS

Topsy Turvy City Sees Collarless Workmen Parade Ladies' Wear Streets.

MOST CITIZENS WALK.

Others Sit on Rooftops With Glasses Watching, Waiting for Things to Happen.

[By LEONARD MILLIMAN]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17. (AP) Like the man who was all dressed up with no place to go, San Francisco has lots of time but little to do.

The strike-besieged city took on the appearance of a holiday—a parade day in a town that loves parades, but everything seemed topsy turvy. Crowds were where they shouldn't be.

Restless men with the open, tieless collars of workmen walked between the smart stores of Grant street where only a few of the customary modishly dressed women shopped; well dressed men and women stood in line at lunch counters they wouldn't have noticed last week.

Hilltop dwellers spend their time on rooftops watching through field glasses and telescopes for they didn't know what.

Great Exercise

A city of people averse to walking spent the day on foot. Some took it in jest, walking more miles to work than they had walked in a week before. For some—limping on canes, or overworking aged legs unaccustomed to walking—the day was a painful trial.

Automobiles ran at leisure over wide Market street, deserted by its four lanes of clanging tram cars.

By night all had become exceedingly bored. No movies, no dances, no clubs, no refreshments, not even the familiar shooting gallery on Seventh street was open. The Curran Theatre where Jane Cowl was to have played another week in "The Shining Hour" was dark.

On the lips of everybody—the crowds that spent the evening sitting in hotel lobbies or walking aimlessly up and down the streets—was the question: "How long will it last?"

Most frequently it was: "I don't know." Those who turned oracle, guessed anywhere from "a few days" to "maybe months."

TURKS EXPRESS DEEP REGRETS

Sir John Simon Reports Shooting Incident to House of Commons.

INFORMATION MEAGRE.

LONDON, July 17 (C.P. Cable).—While Turkey, through her ambassador to-day expressed deep regret over the killing of a British naval officer and wounding of another off the Turkish coast, the House of Commons heard a brief report of the incident this afternoon from Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary.

Sir John declared he had no information beyond what was contained in the meagre Admiralty report of the case, which had said the officers were fired upon while in a sailing boat off the Turkish coast near the Greek Islands of Samos.

Surgeon-Lieut. J. W. Robinson was wounded and drowned, and Lieut. T. S. K. Maunsell was wounded when they were fired on by Turkish sentries. They were attached to H.M.S. Devonshire.

Sir John, however, emphasized that the Turkish soldiers first had waved the boat away from the shore. The boat had turned away, he declared, but nevertheless the sentries opened heavy fire.

The Turkish Ambassador in London had promised to report to his Government, after the British Foreign Secretary had stressed the gravity of the incident, said Sir John, while the British Ambassador in Turkey had been instructed to approach the Turkish Government.

Outside the House it was learned the Turkish Government had hastened to express its regrets.

Sir John declared he was sure the House would join with the Government in regretting the unhappy incident and expressing deep sympathy with the relatives of the slain and wounded officers.

Canadian Wartime Aviator Impostor Arrested As Vagrant At Indianapolis

TORONTO, July 17 (C.P.). — Captain Roy Brown, one of Canada's foremost wartime aviators and the man credited with bringing down Baron Von Richthofen, was highly amused to-day when he was informed at Rouyn, Quebec, where he is staying for a while, that he was under arrest at Indianapolis.

A report from the American city said that a person who convinced police he was "Captain Royal L. Brown," the Canadian ace, was arrested in the home of a negro woman evangelist and lodged in hospital under detention as a vagrant. He was apparently suffering from a brain concussion. The arrest was made after a negro manicurist reported to the police that she had been forcibly detained in the evangelist's home, where the pseudo Captain Brown was arrested, and two negro women evangelists were questioned.

Captain Brown himself was located at Rouyn. Told the man at Indianapolis had citations and papers to support his claim he was the war ace, Captain Brown laughed and said, "Well, I'm here, aren't I."

REV. JAS. ROSS IS LAID TO REST

Presbytery Took Charge of Funeral Service in St. Paul's Church.

DR. BARR PREACHED.

Representatives of the Peterborough Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church in Canada joined in paying a final tribute to a fellow servant of their church as the late Rev. James Ross was laid to rest yesterday. A private service at the home, 597 Douglas avenue, was followed by services at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church under the leadership of Presbytery Moderator Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr and interment in Little Lake cemetery.

Rev. J. C. Robinson of Campbellford, Rev. James Grier of Lindsay and James Dutton of Peterborough assisted Dr. Barr in the solemn services. Mr. Dutton, as chairman of the Board of Administration, served as official representative of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Many mourners from the Harwood vicinity where Rev. Ross served as pastor of the Harwood Presbyterian Church for twenty-two years, and from Lakefield where he conducted Presbyterian services after union, were in attendance. A profusion of floral tributes testified to the loss the community of Ontario has suffered.

Rev. Grier read the obituary, paying a sincere tribute to Rev. Ross for the service he rendered his church during his long career in the ministry. He outlined the progress of his career through the many years from his ordination to his long connection with the Harwood Church and his work in Lakefield after union.

Dr. Barr preached his sermon from two texts, "We spend our years as a tale that is told," (90th verse, 90th Psalm) and "Thanks be to God Which giveth us the victory," (1st Corinthians, 15:57). He spoke of life as a voyage, quoting the deceased's favorite hymn, "Jesus Savior, pilot me."

With the ordinary tale that is told, life ends in an earthly setting, Dr. Barr said. In the tale that is told of one who is a servant of the church, however, the ending is in a heavenly setting. Two chapters in Rev. Ross' life have yet to be written, he said. One chapter will be written in the lingering memories of the many people who have profited by his services and the other in the records of the invisible church.

Rev. Robinson read the New Testament lesson at the service and James Dutton read from the Old Testament.

A long procession of mourners followed the funeral carriage to the graveside.

FOOD FRISCO'S WORST PROBLEM

Fresh Meat Gone, Staples Being Rationed—Only 19 Restaurants Open.

WORKERS CARRY LUNCHES.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17 (AP). Food was the paramount problem to-day in San Francisco's mass strike. Stores and markets were depleted of fresh meats and other food stocks dwindled rapidly.

Public opinion already aroused by the food shortage, appeared likely to spur efforts toward ending the strike.

The food situation:

Fruits and fresh vegetables: None available except limited supplies of citrus fruits.

Fresh meat: None. Some canned meats, but grocers said they would be in consumers' hands shortly. Cured meats all sold.

Canned goods: Still available at most groceries, although stocks badly depleted.

Staples: Rationing restored to by most stores in order to keep some sugar and flour on hand. Supplies available for a few days more.

Bread and milk: No interruption in deliveries, either to homes or stores, by order of general strike committee.

The 19 restaurants designated by the strike committee to serve the thousands of San Franciscans who depend upon public eating places proved woefully inadequate yesterday, and the committee opened more places to-day.

At most of the 19 places crowds had to wait from 30 minutes to an hour and half for service, and even then found the menu limited and the food none too good.

Dishwashing facilities likewise were overtaxed, and fastidious diners protested in vain against greasy plates and sticky glasses. No one had any time to listen to them.

Many persons who normally would have scorned the practice carried lunches, and even shared them with less far-sighted coworkers. Department stores, which decided to remain open to-day and until further notice rather than throw all their salespeople out of work, closed their public dining rooms but fed all their regular workers in store cafeterias. One store ran out of butter during lunch yesterday, but said it would have a good supply to-day.

SOLDIER'S TRICK FATAL TO SEVEN

Frenchman Tosses Supposedly Dead Shell Among Regiment.

12 OTHERS WOUNDED.

SAINT GERMAIN - EN - LAYE France, July 17 (A.P.). — The explosion of a forgotten trench mortar shell thrown playfully by a soldier at a group of comrades to-day killed seven of them and injured 25 on an artillery training ground.

This was the second accident to French armed forces due to forgotten shells within the past four days.

A shell fired by accident from a destroyer at Toulon killed two sailors on a neighboring ship during cleaning operations.

The motorized Sixth Cavalry Regiment was on the range this morning when a soldier found an 81-millimeter shell, which he thought was "dead."

He decided to scare his comrades. There was a deafening roar and four soldiers were killed outright and three died later in a hospital. Twelve men lost their arms and legs, and further deaths were feared.

Among the victims was the soldier who found the shell.

The range is in the forest of Saint Germain, a favorite picnic place of Parisiens.

Japan plans to increase the power of its broadcasting stations.

GENTRY STARTS $100,000 SUIT AGAINST R. C. A.

Five Directors and Two Officials Named in Writ of Harry Hatch, Trainer.

HARMFUL STATEMENT.

TORONTO, July 17. (CP) Claiming $100,000 damages for libel a writ has been issued at Osgoode Hall against the Incorporated Canadian Racing Associations on behalf of Lloyd Gentry, trainer of race horses for Harry C. Hatch, Toronto sportsman. The writ is also directed at five directors and two officials of Incorporated Canadian Racing Associations.

Efforts were being made to serve the writ yesterday on Albert E. Dyment, George M. Hendrie, John H. Madigan, William R. Woolatt, R. R. Simpson, D. S. Gillies and Miss C. Casserley.

The alleged libel was contained in a statement issued by Incorporated Racing Associations as a result of which the plaintiff claims he has been unable to pursue his trade or calling not only on I.C.R.A. race tracks but elsewhere. He also seeks an injunction restraining the defendants from further publishing the statement complained of or any other libels affecting him in his trade or calling.

The action follows a dispute which involved the refusal of a license to Mr. Gentry to act on I.C.R.A. tracks this year and resulted in Mr. Hatch's horses as well as some owned by Mr. Gentry himself being out of racing for a time.

Chesterfield House In Wreckers' Hands

LONDON, July 17 (C.P.). — Chesterfield House, the early home of Princess Mary (now Princess Royal) and Viscount Lascelles (now the Earl of Harewood), is falling to the pick and shovel of the housebreaker. On its site are to be erected several suites of flats.

There is lively competition for the fine old mantelpieces and other fixtures of great artistic value. Several offers have been received for the grand staircase, which is of marble, and a film company is anxious to secure the state ballroom complete. The door of the anteroom in which Dr. Johnson waited in vain for an interview with Lord Chesterfield — the Lord Chesterfield who wrote the famous "Letters to His Son"—has been bought by an American.

French brocade which was placed on the walls of the Red Room 170 years ago proves to be as fresh as the day on which it was hung, and is being sold for chair covering.

YANKS' WIN CUTS DETROIT'S LEAD TO HALF A GAME

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

ARTHUR HULLCOAT is having the most successful season he has enjoyed in a good many years. When his good plater Barry accounted for the last race on Saturday's card and defeated such good ones as Broadway Lights, Chateagle, Spartan Lady and Semester and only paid slightly over five dollars it shows Mr. and Mrs. John Public are recognizing the horses that the clever Arthur sends to the post. We hear that Relativity is ready to win a race, having turned in some remarkably fast workouts. They are still shooting too high with Finalist, and will have to drop him back to the plater ranks in order to win a purse as he is not of handicap calibre.

Gift O'Gab has let the boys down his last two starts now, and he was carrying tons of money on his nose both times. There is plenty of time to get even on him as he is in grand shape and liable to do the needful on his next start. Feudal Lord the good sprinter belonging to J. E. Smallman picked up a nail in his morning workout the other day and will be on the shelf for a long time. We notice where Chips is back in the Smallman barn again, they having claimed him back on Saturday. They also took Barry whom we mentioned above for $1750.

IT IS A LONG time since Hidden Lore, has turned in a winning performance, and when he does the price will be of box car numbers. He is in smart hands as the capable Jack Hutton is looking after him. The stewards at Detroit don't fool when they think things are not on the up and up. As an instance, the sprinter Lady Menifee had been turning in very dull efforts and suddenly woke up and won easily and paying a wonderful price. They immediately asked the owner and trainer for an explanation as to the sudden reversal of form and when the explanations were not satisfactory to them they suspended them both and have asked the Racing Commission to cancel both their licenses. Needless to say the horses at Detroit have been running pretty well to form since.

There are two mavericks at Empire City that we want to especially recommend to you. They are Wedding Ring and Village Vamp, both of which are all primed to go places. If you happen to notice Character in the Rockingham entries and if the track is a little on the slow side, it will be the signal to get on board. He is in great shape and they are just waiting for a track to suit him. Esperanto is another at the same place who is counted upon to go places shortly. He is a smart piece of horseflesh. From the same source we get a tip that Silverdale has recovered his best form and that means he will win before many moons. He possesses real class and but for a little weak underpinning, which necessitates long rests, he would be moving right along in the handicap ranks.

WALKS IN 9TH GIVES YANKEES 'SOFT' VICTORY

Six Free Passes to First Forces in Winning Counters Against Indians.

FINAL SCORE 7-4.

(By Herbert W. Barker, A. P. Sports Writer)

Due entirely to an almost unprecedented pace of generosity developed without warning by Cleveland's pitchers, New York Yankees were back knocking at the door to the American League lead today.

The Yankees were apparently beaten, 4-3, as pinch hitter Earle Combs opened the ninth with a double but from there on it was a marathon as three Indian flippers handed out six bases on balls, forced four runs across the plate and presented the New Yorkers with one of the cheapest victories they ever have earned, 7-4. This anticlimactic ending to a ball game that up to that point had been a well-played, hard-fought duel, boosted the Yankees back to within half a game of the pace-setting Detroit Tigers who dropped a 10-8 decision to Washington Senators.

Hal Trosky's 18th homer with Earl Averill on base in the 8th had given the Indians a one-run lead that looked good. But after Combs' double at the start of the ninth, Ralph Winegarner, Lloyd Brown and Bob Weiland suddenly found it impossible to locate the plate. Two pinch hitters, Red Rolfe and Tony Lazzeri, as well as Babe Ruth, Ben Chapman, Bill Dickey and Myril Hoag all received free tickets to first base and the ball game was over. Johnny Allen, making his first mound appearance since May 12, received credit for the victory, though lifted for a pinch hitter in the ninth Red Ruffing finished up.

Home runs by Raph Kress, Luke Sewell and Fred Schulte featuring a four-run drive in the sixth, and Joe Cronin's double and Bob Burke's triple which marked a five-run rally in the seventh, enabled Washington to whip Detroit. The battling Tigers went down fighting, however, matching the Senators' quartette of tallies in the sixth with four of their own in the last half, and scoring single runs in the seventh and ninth, the last on Hank Greenberg's home run.

Split Two With Chisox

Boston's Red Sox protected their grip on third pace by splitting two with Chicago White Sox. An early attack on Sad Sam Jones, including a 4-run burst in the opening inning, gave Boston the first game 5-4 despite Zeke Bonura's 20th home run and Al Simmons' 14th. Simmons' 15th homer in the sixth inning of the nightcap broke up a pitching duel between George Earnshaw and Johnny Welch and gave the White Sox a 4-2 victory.

Buck Newsome outpitched Sugar Cain as St. Louis Browns spilled Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics, 3-2. Allan Strange's single drove in the winning run in the sixth. Newsome blanked the A's with seven hits after the first frame.

The National League enjoyed an open date.

NO MORE BOXING FOR HEAVY TITLEHOLDER UNTIL JUNE

Vaudeville and Motion Picture Work Keeps Maxie Baer Busy.

WORK FOR CONTENDERS.

Heavyweight Elimination Series Planned by Madison Square Garden.

NEW YORK, July 17 (AP)—Max Baer, heavyweight champion of boxing, motion pictures, night clubs and vaudeville circuits, formally notified Madison Square Garden yesterday that he's done with the cruder of his arts until next June.

Specifically, he informed John R. Kilpatrick, President of the corporation, through his manager, Ancil Hoffman, in a telegram from Boston, that he does not propose to defend his title until next June. When Max knocked Primo Carnera off the throne, his first thought was to box again this summer, wind up the contract the Garden holds on him for one more match; and give himself over next summer to the promotional efforts of his pal and sponsor, Jack Dempsey.

But so lucrative have become the champion's sidelines, and so small the circle of prominent challengers, that he decided to-day—the last under his agreement with the Garden—to devote himself to other forms of entertainment and money-making until June.

With money rolling in to the champion from vaudeville work and a contract just signed for three motion pictures, the Garden officers gladly took him at his word and went to work on the proposition they've wanted all the while.

Jimmy Johnson boxing manager there immediately decided he'd form a "big four" of challengers—Steve Hamas, Carnera, Art Lasky and the winer of Walter Neusel's bout with Max Schmeling in Germany this month—and from them would develop the next contender.

BISONS LOSE OUT 7-0.

(By the Associated Press)

One of the major reasons why Albany Senators are holding grimly on to fourth place in the International League is Darrell E. (Cy) Blanton, 26-year-old right hander and strike-out king. Smallish as pitchers go—he stands five feet eight and weighs about 160 pounds—Blanton has used a blazing fast ball to deadly effect especially under the floodlights. Twice he has fanned 13 men in one game, the league's best record in that respect this season. He came to Albany on option from Pittsburgh Pirates who bought him from St. Joseph of the Western League. He won 21 games and lost only 7 for St. Joseph last year and won the league strike-out championship by fanning 284 men in 35 games.

Cy pitched his way to a 7-0 shutout over the Buffalo Bisons last night for his sixth victory against three defeats. He allowed only four hits, two of them scratches, fanned eight and permitted only two runners to get as far as third base. This performance brought his record for the season to 67 strikeouts in 13 games. He has pitched 76 innings, allowed 63 hits and walked 48 men.

Sharing honors with him last night was Fred Sington, Albany outfielder, who clouted his 20th and 21st home runs, a double and a single.

Gain On Red Wings

Third place Toronto moved to within a game of the Rochester Red Wings by beating Syracuse twice in a twilight-night double-header, 8-7 and 9-5. The first game, scheduled for seven innings, went before Joe Benes' wild throw on Fred Blake's grounder allowed Harry Rice to score the winning run from second base. The second game went to the Leafs as a direct result of a five-run rally in the last half of the fifth.

The last-place Baltimore Orioles got effective pitching from Max Butcher and turned back fifth-place Montreal, 6-3 in another night game. Butcher walked seven men but allowed only five hits and fanned seven. The Orioles took the lead with a two-run spurt in the second inning and never relinquished it.

Newark and Rochester were idle.

THE SPIRIT OF 1534 CARTIER looks at CANADA TODAY

The fearless, courageous, dauntless spirit that brought Cartier across the high seas 400 years ago, is bringing Canada and Canadians out of the dark days of economic stress. This spirit is exemplified in the "Show Window of the Nations" as this mighty enterprise forges ahead in its capacity as an effective stimulant to the trade and commerce of our Dominion. Canada's Cartier Celebrations, in conjunction with Toronto's Centennial Celebrations, climax on September 4th and 5th at the Canadian National Exhibition in impressive ceremonies in which representatives of Great Britain, France, the United States and Canada, unite in celebration of that gallant explorer's discovery of Canada. The Spirit of Cartier looks on Canada at the Canadian National Exhibition, where the progress of nations is on review.

TENNIS FAVORITES WIN OUT IN PROVINCIAL COMPETITION

Martin and Nunns, Main Toronto Hopes, Advance in Men's Singles.

REACH THIRD ROUND.

By ELMER DULMAGE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

TORONTO, July 17. (CP). Without a major tournament under his belt, the non-playing captain of Canada's 1934 Davis Cup team, Gilbert Nunns of Toronto, loomed to-day as a serious challenger for the singles title at the Ontario tennis championships. The word went around that Nunns was 'hot'.

"We had all better keep an eye on Gil," remarked big Walter Martin of Toronto ,defending titlist and himself the hot favorite. Tennis critics said Nunns was playing the best game of his career despite lack of competitive action this season.

The best forehand in Canadian tennis was working perfectly yesterday as Nunns quickly disposed of B. Young, unseeded Toronto player, 6-1, 6-0 to advance to the third round. Young was unable to extend the Davis Cupper who was seeded at the bottom of the draw.

Meanwhile Martin pushed his way through two rounds to get a jump on the field and earn a rest in singles to-day. He eliminated J. C. Dickson and J. A. McDougall, both of Toronto, and lost only four games in the four sets. The king of the badminton world, Doug Grant, Halifax, also won two matches, beating Brien Doherty, Toronto and Hugh Poole of London, Ont.

To-day's excitement was left to an invading trio from Montreal, Marcel Rainville, Bobby Murray and Laird Watts, who will each play two matches to catch up with the field to the round of 16.

Early play yesterday in women's singles, junior singles and men's doubles failed to produce a surprise winner, seeded players advancing with a minimum of trouble. Diana Pope, promising young London, Ont., star, was forced to three sets, however, before beating Mrs. S. W. Denmark, Toronto, 6-2, 2-6, 6-3.

Deloro vs. Packers To-Night At Six

Arrangements were completed at the meeting of the Peterborough and District Football Association, last night, for the final of the Injured Players' cup between the Canada Packers and Deloro tonight on King Edward Park. Kick off is scheduled for six o'clock prompt.

The player that was ordered off two weeks ago in the C.P. versus Lindsay game was present in person but his case was not dealt with owing to the lack of the referee's report who was confined to his bed through sickness. His case will be dealt with at the meeting arranged for next Monday evening.

All referees were instructed that they must have their reports sent to the secretary immediately after the game.

The secretary was instructed to interview or write persons who have acted as official referees to consider the position open for their consideration.

Games Arranged

Saturday, July 21st—Deloro versus Canada Packers in a league match at Deloro. Kick off at 4.14. Canadian General versus Caledonians in a league game. Perhaps this game can be arranged for Friday evening instead.

Tuesday, July 24.—Canada packers versus Canadian General in a league match.

Resignation Accepted

After a prolonged debate, the executive decided to accept the resignation from the board of Walter Harrington who has been a faithful executive member for seven years. He was relieved of his position so that he can become an official referee.

REQUEST FILED.

SARNIA.—Sarnia City Council to-day had received and filed a request from the Ontario hunger march and congress against unemployment for a grant to pay expenses of local delegates to the proposed assembly in Toronto.

VANCOUVERITE HAS DEPOSITED WHAT IT TAKES TO MAKE BANK HEADS GIVE "YA THE HOWDY"

Looks Like Ross-McLarnin-Canzoneri Mix-up Shelved, But Not For Long.

FANS SURPRISED.

Fight Followers Fully Expected Tony Would Get the Nod After Klick Victory.

BY WILLIAM RITT

The world's lightweight champion is going to get a vacation.

That goes also for the world's junior welterweight champion.

They get this break because the world's welterweight champion has decided to meet Jimmy McLarnin again for no apparent reason than it's a good money bout.

If this doesn't make sense just remember that the world's lightweight junior lightweight and welterweight champions are all the same person—Barney Ross, the Chicago title collector.

When Tony Canzoneri recently licked Frankie Klick, who held a decision over Ross, it looked as though Ross needs must defend his lightweight and possibly his junior welterweight and welterweight titles once more in a bout with Tony.

In fact, fight folks were waiting for announcement of the time and place of the third Ross-Canzoneri bout when the news broke that Ross had decided to give McLarnin a chance to get his welterweight title back.

So, Lightweight Champion Ross and Junior Lightweight Champion Ross will keep those crowns in cold storage for a bit longer while Welterweight Champion Ross goes back to the wars.

Ross Specialty

It's beginning to look as though it's twice or no count in Ross' case. He's rapidly becoming the Return Bout Kid, he's boxed so many sequels with the same fighters.

In his brief career Ross has fought Tony Canzoneri, Billy Petrolle, Johnny Farr and Joe Borola twice and Young Terry three times. Now he's going to fight McLarnin for a second time.

Frankly there seems to exist more reasons why Ross should meet Canzoneri a third time than there is why he ought to give McLarnin a return engagement — outside, of course, boxoffice reasons.

In their New York fight in which he wrested the welter crown from Jimmy's Irish curls, Barney pretty well established that he was master of the hard-punching Mick.

However, in the two shows with Canzoneri, Ross displayed no such advantage. The first brawl, in Chicago, was as close as M and N are in the alphabet and the second setto, in New York, was just a trifle more decisive, if you can call it that.

"Farewell to Arms"?

McLarnin, apparently, is planning to call it a career pretty soon. He never has cared a tremendous amount about his trade and he's got what it takes to make bank presidents bow to you. Sometime ago we chiseled out a paragraph containing the thought that perhaps the fundamental reason James looked so ineffective against Ross in their first meeting was because Jimmy had lost his driving incentive.

After looking over all the angles of the question of whether Ross should meet McLarnin or Canzoneri first (not that it matters, for McLarnin already has the assignment) one comes to at least one conclusion.

And that's this:

Not only is Ross one of the finest fighting champions we've had in many seasons and a very courageous young man to boot but he's also a canny boxing business man.

From his experiences with them he must have learned that for his style, Canzoneri is the stronger foe. So, he'll meet McLarnin first—and then take on Tony.

Hawks' New Moniker Fails Change Luck

Hawks, baseball bantams, changed their name to Habocos but could not change their luck and took a 20-4 pasting last night at hands of King Edward School at the southenders' diamond. Clean hits by the winners and a pile of errors by the losers accounted for the schoolboys, giving but five hits and fanning ten. Foster for Habocos started good but gave way later to Hardy. White played a smart fielding game while Berwick hit a homer and a triple in one inning. The teams:

Habocos: Galley 3b; McDougall, 2b; White, ss; Botnick, rf; Foster, p, lf; Pammett lf; Hardy, p; Baxter. 1b; Cleary, cf; Collings, c.

Everything is now all ready for the tournament to-morrow afternoon and evening. It looks like a good entry, and Peterborough bowlers are asked to be on time—one o'clock.

By defeating F. Brown 19-6, G. Coleman, Sr., practically wins group No. 2. It looks as if Reg. Dyer's rink will capture No. 1 group, although Reg. has one more game to play. The other two groups will not be decided until to-night.

This Penrose clan certainly went wild last night—not only did they defeat Skinner's rink by the largest score this season, but they just helped themselves to an 8 end — just to make sure.

It takes Howard Clegg to upset the dope—the only two games he won this season were from the leaders.

The double-header games will be played to-night as formerly announced.

MENIE WINS FIVE INNINGS BATTLE 12-10

West Seymour's Loss Further Tightens Seymour Softball Race.

HEAVY CLOUTING.

BURNBRAE, July 17 (Examiner Correspondence) — In a thrilling five inning game on Saturday evening Menie defeated West Seymour 12 to 10 to further complicate the race in the Seymour League as the three teams battle down the stretch with only a win between top and last place.

Anderson opened the fray for the losers with a circuit blow while Nicholas and Chadwick each accounted for three-baggers, the latter scoring three runs. The so-called heavy end of the West Seymour batting order only secured two runs.

Roy Oddie went great guns in the field for the winners and offensively was perfect with two doubles and a homer for three runs in as many times at bat. Jack Rannie lead-off man for Menie secured four walks the only ones issued to the Menie batters.

Holmes pitched the fourth and fifth innings for the Westerners and gets credit for the loss. He fanned four and walked a pair, yielding three hits all for extra bases. Anderson walked two, fanned one, and gave eight hits in three innings. Eagleson was steady for the winners striking out two and walking the same number. Only in the fourth were the hits bunched to any extent.

Frazer and Hume made their first appearance of the year and by playing another game will be eligible for the play-offs.

Pethericks, having delayed the schedule on account of illness among the players face the barrier this week with Menie on Wednesday and West Seymour Saturday. Two wins would place the Northerners on top while two losses would put them out. A three cornered tie is quite probable yet in the closest race ever known in this league.

There is an E.P.L. ball game tonight as follows: Fosters vs Cogs at the Exhibition Grounds. It is a fixture of more or less importance, but that in itself isn't important. What is important is that this E.P.L. fixture between Fosters and Cogs will maybe see the Cogs receive a very big surprise indeed. We are told that none of the said Cogs were around down at the Exhibition Grounds one recent night when a Foster team that had shots of something in their arms went to the post and finished a dead heat with C.G.E., much to the chagrin of the said C.G.E. fellows. Now, Cogs are more or less slated for a fall and the new shot-in-the-arm team labelled Fosters may do such a thing to them. If Cogs were wise they would demand the saliva test for Fosters before they paraded in front of the grandstand.

• • • • • •

But for those fans who would sooner see the little ladies than the big fellows perform, there is also an attraction for tonight as follows: Keene gals vs. Westclox over at the Bowl. Now, this too is an important fixture, but regardless of its importance, these two nifty squads full of lasses draw better than a mustard plaster, and it is every man for himself—with women and children looking after themselves—when it comes to grabbing off a nice grandstand seat. Just in order to keep the record straight for these citizens who wish to be technical at all times, we will go as far as to say that Keene and Westclox have only met once before this season, and Keene won it, 16-15. It is so long since they have clashed that it might be a good idea for the umpire or someone to introduce the rival players to each other again.

Fashion-Crafts had a lot of luck in the ninth inning of their softball game with Johnston's Tires last evening, but all of it was bad. The Deck crew ran in six runs in this stanza to grab off an 8-7 verdict, and boyoboy but it was tough onions on the Clothiers! Bill Simons, daddy of them all—in fact, grandaddy—dished 'em off the mound in his oldtime form and had good support till the fatal ninth, but a storm of baseballs then floated a win for the Tiremen. A triple-play, a double-play, and a running catch by Walt Crary in the next county were fielding features.

A week from Thursday, that's the 26th, a dance will be held at the Brock for the benefit of injured softball players, gals and men. Other players—that is the uninjured ones—will sell tickets, and they should get to work and pass out a flock as they may need some dough themselves some time. A prise of two bucks goes to the person selling the most. Injured players to date include two lasses and two men: Belle Thirnbeck, a simple fracture of the ankle; Midge Creighton, injured knee; Foley, a broken thumb; and McQuade, a broken thumb. And we hear Manager Lefty Sturgeon of Brintons is in the hospital today being operated upon for appendicitis—though this does not come under the heading of "Injured while playing softball."

Knotty Lee, though not feeling or looking any too spry yet, superintended the Petes' workout last night. Russ Kitchen was on hand, the big righthander, formerly with the Cogs this summer, having been signed by the seniors over the weekend. He should be a big help to Deyell and Calladine, who had all the burden to carry since Scriver had to lay off. Murray will be ready to play Wednesday in Kingston.

• • • • • •

Houston and Fetter have been signed also by the Petes, the two Milton intermediates, now living here, to be carried as spares. The former is an infielder and Fetter catches. So now the local lineup of senior players consists of Deyell, Calladine, Heckman, Kitchen, Rose, Whatley, Fetter, Ash, Murray, Konopka, Batten, Houston, Burton, Foley, Dallin and Hollingsworth, with Scriver on the sick list. No more players can be added now. We heard today that Oshawa would like to transfer its two future home games with us to Riverside Park, as they're not getting enough customers in the Motor City to meet expenses. This may be arranged later as it's a long schedule, going to Sept. 3rd.

Efforts were being made this a.m. to have Bailieboro, an intermediate team in the Northumberland Baseball League, here tomorrow (Wednesday e'en) to play Herb Ralph's juvenile Terriers in an exhibition game at six in Riverside Park. It should be a good tilt if arranged, the only thing that may stop it is the fact that Leaf bantams and King Edward were billed to play there tomorrow at 5.45. This bantam game can probably be switched to another diamond. We'll know by to-night.

NINTH INNINGS COMEBACK WINS FOR TIRE CLUB

Deck Clan Hits Bill Simmons Hard for 8 to 7 Softball Victory.

LOSERS HAVE EARLY LEAD.

Standings in the men's softball:

	P.	W.	L.
Brinton Carpet	5	4	1
Orphans	4	3	1
Johnston Tires	5	2	3
Fashion-Craft	4	0	4

Spotting the luckless Fashion-Craft outfit a 5-run lead, Johnston Tires unleashed a savage hitting attack in the last of the ninth that enable them to push over six runs and sew up the old ball game, 8-7, last night at Central. The Deck clan hit everything Bill Simmons had to offer in the final frame and when the smoke of battle had cleared away they had batted around and the tying and winning runs were scored after two were down.

Tom Montgomery and Freddie Elliott did the elbowing for the winners and pitched good ball with the exception of the seventh and eighth frames when six runs were batted in. Bill Simmons twirled for the Tailor men and did a splendid job of it till the ninth when Johnston's fell on his delivery and won the ball game.

Anderson and Parsons led the Deck men at bat, the former with three hits for four times at the plate while the latter had three out of five. Ab Delahaye did the heavy slugging for the Fashion men with two doubles for four trips to the platter.

The contest was featured by a triple play made by the winners in the fifth inning, with first and second occupied as the result of two successive singles. Gray, catcher for Fashion-Craft, hit a line drive to Ellis, first baseman for the Tiremen, who caught it, touched Gainey a few feet off the initial sack and threw to second to retire Naish who was half-way to third. Fashion-Craft complete a fast Gainey-to-Russell-to-Clarke double-play in the seventh to nip a promising rally by Johnston's in the bud.

The game was played in remarkably fast time and was a good exhibition of softball.

The teams:

Fashion-Craft: Russell, 2b; Wiley, rf; Clarke, 1b; Delahaye, 3b; Gillespie, cf; Naish, lf; Gainey, ss; Gray, c; Simmons, p.

Johnston Tires: Anderson, c; Dorrington, 3b; Parsons, 2b; Montgomery, p, lf; Elliott, p; Ellis, 1b; Crary, ss; McQuade, cf; McCarroll, lf; Allen, rf.

Score by innings:

Fashion-Craft.	100	000 240—	7 12 4
Johnston Tires	200	000 006—	8 14 1

HASTINGS, July 17 (Examiner Correspondence) — Norwood drew up on even terms with Hastings in the Trent Valley Bowling League on Monday night when they won three out of the four scheduled games before a big crowd, many coming from Norwood to witness these important games. THE SPUN GLASS MYSTERY

A Tale of Scotland Yard

By A. FIELDING

CHAPTER 50

Naylor nodded. There was a little silence. "But Gillian," she resumed, "does realize it. She's a very sensitive nature. I guessed as much when I first saw her at Vichy. And all that she went through with that dreadful nephew of Mrs. de Souza's . . . alone in the flat . . . it broke her nerve, I think. That's why I wanted you to talk to her. Sensibly—as you can talk." The young barrister did not stir. She made a hopeless little gesture.

"I'll see what Lady Tait can do.', But Lady Tait was out.

Upstairs in her bedroom, or rather the bedroom assigned her for a very short time, Gillian Dundas was lying, more than sitting, in an armchair. Without moving she had listened to Mrs. Burnham's words. Even now, when some one came in and stood beside her, she did not stir, nor lift her weary lids.

But at the touch of a hand on her shoulder, she stared up with a cry.

"Gillian." Etta had never called her that before. "I would like to help you. Mrs. Burnham said you want to get away for a little quiet. But she doesn't think you should, or can, go just now. I don't agree. Suppose we slip away together, and I'll help you to get some little place where you can rest—and be at ease. Come! Don't wait for anything. That dreadful chief inspector is off the premises for the moment. Come along, Gillian!" She almost pulled the girl to her feet. "I can't help you if you won't help yourself. Like heaven! And I do want to help you. I'm sorry for you."

Etta Naylor was talking in an odd hurried splutter. As though haste and some other emotion were both at work

Just for a second Gillian hesitated, a look of something like wild hope shot across her features, then she shook her head and sank down again.

"I want to go by myself," she repeated, "I want to get away by myself. To Brussels."

Etta shook her.

"Gillian! Don't be a fool! There's a chance now. Quick! Follow me!" She herself rushed to the threshold, but she was not followed. Gillian had risen, but was staring at her with a white, distorted face, suspicion and terror in her eyes. Her hand clutched the back of her chair as though she were giddy, and overhung an abyss.

"I won't stir," she said finally.

There was something almost menacing in the step towards her that Etta took. Then she stopped. Mrs. Burnham turned the handle and came in. On her face was a look of surprise as the stared from one to the other. Then she went to Gillian, with a little cluck, half-impatient, half-sympathetic.

"I said I wanted you to talk to her, not to scold her!"

"I can't stand people who shillyshally." Etta's voice was of intense anger, and she shot a look at Gillian as though she could have stuck her. "You said she wanted to get away. She doesn't. She refused to budge with me."

"I want to go away alone—to Brussels," Gillian repeated dully.

"But she mustn't go! She can't go!" Mrs. Burnham protested. "Etta, why don't you help to make her understand. I can't put it into words. But if she goes now, the police may think, will think ——" She did not finish the sentence.

"We all know what the police are," Etta agreed. "Nothing but red tape and routine. Even that clever looking chief inspector talks of routine. It's in the blood. Of course, Brussels is out of the question, but if Gillian and I go now, together, at once, we shall be far away in some quiet nook before they know it. And then, it'll be too late to find us."

Mrs. Burnham shook her head.

"But I don't think she ought to go," she murmured helplessly, "I don't think —— Gillian, won't you be sensible and stay on here—just for a little while with me, until all this sadness lifts—for you. I know it's terrible just now. But we must bear things sometimes for others. Won't you stay?"

She looked pleadingly down into Gillian's face. The girl did not lift her head.

"I want to go—to Brussels, if possible, but at any rate, I want to leave here," she repeated like an automaton.

Etta spoke up briskly.

"Then let me have my way, Lucy. I think she ought to go, if she feels like that. I'll take her to—but no, better not tell you. At any rate, it's somewhere where she'll be quite quiet. I'll put my things on." She hurried off. First she went back to the room where her brother still stood. He did not seem to have moved since she had left him.

"Claud, I want 50 pound.s Can you let me have it, and in pound notes?"

"For what reason?"

"In strict confidence, I'm going to take Gillian Dundas for a rest cure before she breaks down. She's very near it."

Still Claud did not stir. Then swiftly he came very close and spoke in a low, level voice.

"I can give you the 50 pound in a moment, but to hand to her to use. You yourself are to have nothing to do with Miss Dundas, Etta. Neither to help nor to hinder."

"My dear Claud! How like the legal mind! But inasmuch, and for as much as I am sorry for her, I certainly shall try and help her."

"This is no case where you should help," he went on harshly. "Leave Miss Dundas alone, Etta. I'm the head of the family, now poor John's gone, and I warn you most seriously to have nothing whatever to do with her. I know what I'm saying, and why I'm saying it." He spoke solemnly. For a moment she stood as though trying to read his tone and manner more than his words. Then she shook her head. Without another word, he let her have the notes from his bureau.

"Thank you, Claud. I wish you'd be frank—I haven't time now, but ——"

He turned away, bleakly but definitely.

Upstairs she found a white-faced but more collected Gillian just pulling her hat on.

"My bag ——"

"You can't take a bag. Come as you are. Remember, we're off to Selfridge's florist department at once."

"But, my dear," protested Mrs. Burnham, looking harassed and upset, "you can't! You mustn't! Gillian, I won't allow it! Why should you act as though you were deaf to everything I say to you? After all, I am your employer. I'm responsible for you ——"

"Not now!" laughed Etta, a curious triumphant laugh. "She's my companion now."

"I want to get away," was all Gillian said, in a thick choked voice.

Mrs. Burnham made a gesture of surrender, and went to her writing table.

"You must have money." But Etta would not wait. She fairly dragged Gillian after her out of the room. A maid on the stairs stepped back to the landing to let them pass.

"Do you want one of the cars, miss?"

But Etta told her that she and Miss Dundas would walk. "It's only to Selfridge's for some flowers," she added in a tone that the man on duty in the hall below could hear.

"And certainly that's the truth," she added to her companion when they stood outside. Gillian seemed to shrink away from her. She shot a strange, swift look up and down the street as though meditating taking to her heels.

Etta instantly laid a very firm hand on her arm. A very tight grip indeed. "Now, don't do anything foolish."

For Wednesday, July 18

According to the planetary configurations bearing rule on the events of this day there should be brilliant opportunities for progress, profit and fulfilled ambitions It is a time for confident and determined effort in the direction of increasing the fortunes, stabilizing and advancing the position as well as enhancing the popularity and prestige.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves confronted by a year of splendid opportunities for stabilizing the fortunes, enhancing the prestige, popularity and standing, with the solid support and friendship of those in places of power and authority. These may be approached with confidence, but it is warned that there are some menaces of fraud, misrepresentation and slander.

A child born on this day should be efficient, ambitious, easily taking its place in the seats of the mighty through its talents and popularity.

Attendance at the Royal Ulster Agricultural Society's Show in Belfast, Northern Ireland, broke all records.

WARSAW.

Mrs. Fred. Campbell and two children are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Payne.

Gordon Bowen, Joe Crowe and some others are away huckleberrying So far few berries have come into the village.

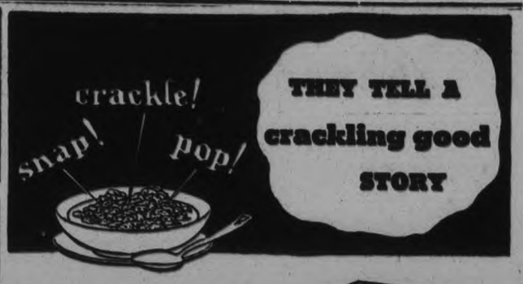
Mr. Higgins resigned from Union S.S. No. 12 and Miss Cavanagh has been engaged.

Warsaw school trustees have decided to have the school revert to a two-roomed school, Mr. Sloan to continue as principal and Miss Vance junior teacher. Miss Lila Burgess, the third teacher, resigned and will be much missed as she was loved by her pupils. However, the taxes were very high and there are not too many pupils for two teachers.

Some of the potato patches are much more loaded with blossom than is usual. There is a question whether the yield of potatoes will be less. Wheat is ripening in patches, apparently without any reason for the uneven maturing. Root crops look likely to be good. Some farmers tell us they are better than usual.

Farmers are working hard to harvest their hay between the rains. The crop is much better than expected until about the middle of June.

The three local butchers have a hard time getting lambs for their customers as many are too light to be profitable. One man reports he can hardly get one over seventy pounds. Roland McCauley kills for his son at Apsley, who is doing well. He also kills for another son to take south to Rice Lake. Mark Lonsberry has a country route and goes to the lake twice a week. Allan Moore also goes to the lake and has a village route.



IN MILK or cream, Kellogg's Rice Krispies actually crackle their story of extra-crispness. Fascinating to children. They love to hear as well as eat them.

Wholesome too. All the nourishment of rice. Plus irresistible flavor, sealed in the patented WAXTITE bag. For breakfast, lunch, or children's supper. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

COMB ST. KITTS IN MURDER CASE

Police Reveal Victim Had Long Record of Crime Behind Him.

WANTED FOR ROBBERY.

HAMILTON, July 17 (C.P.). — Provincial Police have shifted the centre of their investigations from this city to St. Catharines and Welland in their efforts to solve the mystery which surrounds the murder of Frank Sigluono, whose body was found in the rumble seat of his car on a lonely sideroad near Acton on Saturday morning. Sigluono had been shot through the head twice at close range.

Police investigations have so far revealed a tangled skein of underworld adventure. Sigluono had a long record at St. Catharines and Welland and had served terms in the Ontario Reformatory at Burwash. Authorities regarded him as a petty racketeer, and local police admitted yesterday he had been sought for questioning in connection with the Tuckett payroll robbery in this city three weeks ago.

Last night the inquest on Siguono's death opened at Milton under Coroner H. A. McColl, but was adjourned without any evidenec being taken.

The body is still at an undertaking parlor in Milton, the township authorities refusing to assume the expense of a funeral.

FIRE DESTROYED CALLANDER MILL.

Pierce Lumber Mill Destroyed By Fire of Unknown Origin.

SECOND MILL THIS YEAR.

NORTH BAY, July 17.—(CP)—The Pierce Lumber mill at Callander, owned by H. J. Payette, Penetang, was totally destroyed by fire of unknown origin at an early hour this morning.

It had been idle in this and the past season. No other property was lost. Only the boiler stands this morning on the mill proper. The machine shop and office, nearby, were untouched. Owing to the stillness of the night, the lumber yard, across the Ferguson highway, and nearby residences were untouched. According to Cecil Hart, manager, the fire was noticed by Fred Graham, watchman, while eating lunch in the office at 1:15 a.m. It originated in the front part of the structure which borders the highway. Mr. Hart declined to estimate the loss. The mill was erected four years ago. It cut for the Pierce Lumber Company for two seasons.

This is the second saw mill destroyed by fire at Callander this season, the J. B. Smith and Son plant being razed early in June.

Outlaws Too Good For Classy Clerks

HASTINGS, July 17.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The classy Outlaws, all decked out in their new sweaters, which are the same as the Boston Bruin hockey sweaters, snowed the Clerks in under in the first game of the second half of the softball schedule.

The Clapper-led clan played smart ball behind effective pitching of their new moundsman, Johnson. The Clerks were guilty of numerous muffs and were also slow in their efforts to field grounders.

Outlaws—Vincent, c; Johnson, p; Clapper, 1b; Thompson, 2b; McKee, 3b; Bond, ss; Phillips, lf; Radford, cf; Scriver, rf.

Outlaws	245 010 194—26	17 1
Clerks	060 013 030—13	8 7

Umpires—Spooner and Scriver.

M. C. Meigs of Chicago, a pupil of mine, compares swinging a golf club to flying an aeroplane.

Meigs is well qualified to make the comparison for he's an outstanding business man flyer if not the oldest in the country. And he has played golf longer than he'd care to admit.

I was trying to describe the ease with which the swing should be started, the very little strength used in controlling the club when he likened the ease in mention to the comparatively light touch needed to handle the controls of an aeroplane.

The hold on the controls may not be exactly light or loose, but the pilot certainly isn't a good flyer if he allows his muscles to become tense so that his movements are jerky and erratic.

Try to use less strength as you start your swing.

Refrigerators Easy Winners In Playoff

The Refrigerator Department tea swamped the Engineers by the lopsided count of 31 to 9 last night at King Edward Park, in the third game of the play-off series to decide first place in the first half of the C.G.E. Shop Softball Loop, and will now meet either the Office or Engineers after the second half series for the works' championship.

Steady twirling by Ace Powell kept the Engineers off the runways, while his team-mates battered the offerings of Wiklund and Jones, opposing pitchers, to all parts of the park. Ashmore, Howe and Masterson were the mightiest clouters for the winners, while Griffin, Kearney and Vitarelli turned in the neatest fielding performances. The defensive work of the losers was erratic, almost every fielder contributing his share of the misoues. Newson led at bat, with Wiklund, Tracy and Osterland also showing up well.

The teams:

Refrigerator—Vitarelli ss, A. Griffin rf, E. Howe 3b, Weir 2b, Ashmore c, Clarke lf, Masterson cf, Kearney 1b, Powell p, Kearns lf.

Engineers—Gore c, Jones 1b, p, Tracy lf, Newson ss, Williams 2b, Wiklund p, 1b, Osterland 3b, Thomas rf, Price lf, English lf, Emery 2b.

Score by innings:

Refrigerator..	443 312 338—31	22 6
Engineers ...	022 100 211— 9	11 9

GARDEN PARTY AT ST. AIDAN'S

Church Social Well Attended —Supper Was a Feature.

YOUNG'S POINT VISITORS

YOUNG'S POINT, July 17.—The annual garden party of St. Aidan's Church, Young's Point, was held on the church grounds on Friday, July 13, and was a decided success. The event began at 3 p.m. in the afternoon when a number of races for the children were held. Supper was served in the church-shed from 5 p.m. until 8 p.m. Everyone present remarked what a sumptuous and lovely supper was served which consisted of plenty of meat, salads and pie. The tables were prettily decorated with large vases of white daisies.

In the evening the main attraction was the bingo stand and at intervals throughout the evening, snappy music was supplied by R. Wilson, O. McConkey and D. Wilson from the verandah of the rectory.

A large variety refreshment booth was on the grounds both afternoon and evening, also the fish pond and fancy-work booth.

Tickets had been sold beforehand on three valuable articles to be chosen by the winners and at the conclusion of the evening the three draws were made, the winners being: first, Mrs. Val Robson of Toronto; second, Mrs. Wm. Lane of Young's Point; third, Mrs. W. G. Stone of Burleigh Falls. The committee in charge was very pleased with the way in which the merchants of both Lakefield and Young's Point responded to the request for help, and also with the profit realized, while everyone enjoyed a jolly time.

"Hot as Hades"

I'LL wager everyone has heard these or worse words during these early June days, when I am writing. Here is how I heard them. I have a friend who calls himself a farmer—pedigreed stock, etc.,—says "No, not a gentleman farmer, just a farmer," but if he is a farmer I am the Duke of Demerara. Well, on a sunlit, breezeless, somnolent day in June's first week I motored out to see my "farmer" friend. Up the long drive I could see this "farmer" slumped in a lounge chair upon the wide porch, only B.V.D.'s showing above his belt.

From a photograph of Robt. G. Jackson, M.D., at 75. When 50 years of age Dr. Jackson was given but four months to live by the famous Sir Wm. Osler, but through natural living habits and the use of alkaline foods Dr. Jackson is today in his 77th year the embodiment of youthful vigor and endurance.

As the motor suddenly stopped, he opened his heavy lids, his only sign of life, except to say in a lethargic, slumbering way: "Well, I'll be blanked! What in blank brought you here?" "Why, my good steed Auto and the sunny day inviting to the cool country," which words acted like a spark in his cylinder, exploding his pent-up gas. "Sunny day? It's hot as blazes!" That was the 'steenth time I'd heard those words that day. He was hot, physically, mentally and emotionally; listless and breathless, down-and-out, all-in, and he hated to be spoken to. But I spoke on and on, and cracked jokes at his expense, which I know tested his religion, because he refused to talk and the only time he is dumb is when he is "mad". Well, when I had enjoyed myself for long enough I drove away. When the evening cooled, and he had cooled, he called me up and apologized, but I only said "Don't apologize. If it were not that Providence gave me the good sense to live as I ought instead of according to whim and the foolish feeding habits that an ignorant ancestry wished upon all of us, I'd be just like you." And isn't it the truth?

Why was this "bird" so shorn of physical, mental and emotional wings, pumped, slumped, dumped, all-in, almost unable to move or think, because the day was hot? There is only one answer. His living habits, particularly his feeding habits, caused an accumulation of acid and toxic residues in his body, which made his blood "ropy". Copious sweating increased the "ropiness" of his blood. It circulated slowly through heart and other vital organs, while increasing the strain upon the heart to pump the ropy blood through the vessels which carry blood to the organs. The body's energy comes from the blood. Less blood, or slower circulation, means less energy and the all-in, listless condition in which I found my friend.

I am firmly convinced it was not the teasing of my friend that made him "mad," but the fact that I, almost old enough in years to be his grandfather, could feel so chipper, resilient, happy and comfortable on so hot a day. How account for this difference? Easy. If the blood is pure, sufficiently alkaline and vitalizing, the body will be upstanding, vital and mentally and physically resilient always. If it is muddied with all sorts of foreign residues, which it carries as encumbering irritants to every body cell, how can the body be upstanding when is added the depressing effects of great heat or cold?

Now realize that blood is made from foods and the reason for my resistance to heat and cold becomes manifest, also the reason for my friend's exhaustion on hot days and equal suffering on cold days. 80% of one's food intake must be alkali-forming and I adhere to this rule. My friend's diet is the conventional one, only 1½% alkali-forming. The acid and toxic residues thus poured into his blood cause his depleted vitality on hot days, also his equal lack of resistance to cold, as well as colds and other forms of disease, while I defy colds and all forms of disease at almost 77.

My chief resistance-building foods on hot days are Roman Meal, Bekus-Puddy, and Lishus, made into porridge and served off the ice with fruit jelly, honey or maple syrup and cream, and Kofy-Sub, the only alkali-forming grain foods and beverage known. Try these and note how well you can resist on hot days. But there are many other alkali-forming and vitalizing foods, a list of which I shall gladly send free, together with other health Bulletins, to anyone who requests them, but do not write if not really interested in better health. Address Robt. G. Jackson, M.D., 547 Vine Avenue, Toronto.

PONTYPOOL WINS AT JANETVILLE

LARGE ATTENDANCE

JANETVILLE, July 17. (Examiner Correspondence).—The Presbyterian Church at Janetville sponsored a most successful strawberry festival on the community park on Wednesday afternoon. The weather being ideal, a very large crowd attended this annual event. Three long supper tables were attractively laid on the lawn, huge bouquets of roses, peonies and other summer flowers beckoning the crowds from afar. Liberal dishes of luscious berries, with appetizing home cooking made a feast for the guests.

A snappy game of softball between Pontypool and Janetville drew the interest of the crowd following supper. The score was 7-5 in favor of Pontypool.

Seats were arranged on the lawn in front of the club rooms and from the lighted veranda an excellent program was presented. Rev. V. Walker, pastor of the church, acted as chairman and in a few well chosen words welcomed all present, regretfully speaking of the departure of his co-worker, Rev. Smith, who, with his wife, left for Courtice that day.

The opening number was a musical number by Mrs. David Wilson and Mrs. Herman Wilson on Organ and violin, followed by a reading by Miss Jewell of Lindsay. Mr. Archie Stinson received hearty applause for two banjo and song numbers, "Roll on you Mississippi, Roll on" and "The World is Waiting for the Sunrise." The Capstick twins delighted the audience with mouth organ, song and dance selections. "They Never Quarrel" by Miss Jewell, was much enjoyed, as was the song "Second-hand Rose" by Archie Stinson and Harry Thornton. A humorous monologue was contributed by Jean Stinson accompanied by Bessie Howe on the organ. Following a musical selection by Mrs. David and Mr. Herman Wilson, Archie Stinson sang "Wagon Wheels" with banjo acompaniment. "Don't I Wish I Were a Man" was the title of an interesting reading by Miss Jewell. Harry Thornton and Arhie Stinson sang "She Must be a Wonderful Girl", and "You Can't Fool an Old Horse Fly." The National Anthem brought this excellent program to a close.

The gate receipts for the evening amounted to $115 which will be used for general expenses in connection with the church.

WICKLOW REPORT READ AT MEETING

Roseneath W.M.S. Hears of Presbyterial Convention—Young People's Group Mooted.

ROSENEATH, July 17.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society met in the Township Hall on Tuesday afternoon with a fairly good attendance owing to the busy season. The president, Mrs. Albert Nill, ably presided over the meeting. The devotional leaflet was read by Mrs. C. W. Varcoe, entitled "At the Cross." Mrs. Nill read portions of Scripture from Proverbs, 20 and 23 chapters, and gave a prayer.

Considerable time was taken discussing something for the younger people, that a circle or auxiliary be organized, but the matter was left for their Sunday School teachers, Mrs. John A. Nichol to Mrs. Reg. Crego, to interview the girls, and later would call a special meeting to this effect.

Mrs. M. Davey gave an excellent report on the Presbyterial convention held at Wicklow, of which she was sent as delegate.

The corresponding secretary, Mrs. M. D. Brown, reported a letter received from St. James' Women's Auxiliary inviting the Women's Missionary Society to attend their August meeting on Wednesday, the 8th. This was accepted with thanks.

Mrs. Reg. Crego gave a very humorous reading about Mrs. Snoddy's diet, giving a hearty laugh to all present. Miss Gladys Blodgett read the topic on temperance.

The president then called Mrs. (Rev.) Scott, who was greeted warmly upon her first meeting in public and who spoke briefly and said she hoped to do her part in the society when once she became more acquainted.

Miss G. Blodgett continued the program with reading a few verses of poetry, followed with a Biblical contest by Miss Jessie Johnston.

The August meeting will be held at Mrs. Andrew Brown's with Mrs. Lily Turner program committee and Mrs. Nill, Mrs. A. J. Campbell, Misses Hildred Taylor and Mary Braithwaite as lunch committee.

Lunch was served at the close by the ladies in charge.

LONDON — THE BRITISH GOVernment is ignoring the statement of German propaganda minister Joseph Goebbels, that British journalists in Germany have been guilty of "deliberate and systematic poisoning of public opinion."

This was part of Goebbels' blast at foreign correspondents in Germany following the "blood purging" of June 30.

Asked if he would make any representations to the German government about the statement, Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, merely replied in the House of Commons this afternoon that "I consider the reputation of British journalists stand sufficiently high to make any such representations superfluous."

CAMPBELLFORD LAD DROWNED

PUNT OVERTURNS IN TRENT RIVER AS BOYS CHANGE

Douglas Haig is Drowned While "Cap" Kelly Able to Reach Shore.

BODY RECOVERED.

Two Boys Were Attempting to Cross River in Home-made Punt.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 18 —(Staff Special)— Venturing out upon the waters of the Trent river here this morning in a home-made punt, Douglas Haig, aged 13, only son of Mr. and Mrs. George Haig, was drowned when he and a companion attempted to change seats and the frail craft overturned.

The other boy, J. N. "Cap" Kelly, aged 13, managed to swim 40 feet to shore, but he was too exhausted by his exertions to reach safety even to raise the alarm.

A little girl, Betty Church, of Hamilton, who was on her way to a picnic, witnessed the tragedy and ran to the nearest house to raise the alarm.

Within a few minutes a large group of citizens gathered at the scene and many repeatedly dove to the bottom of the river in their heroic effort to speed the recovery of the boy's body. However, the body was not brought to the surface until an hour and ten minutes had elapsed.

Frail Craft

Shortly before 11 o'clock the two boys decided to voyage across the river in the old home-made punt, which was kept tied at a point about a mile north of the traffic bridge. This cockle-shell craft was 16 feet long, pointed at both ends like a canoe, narrow and very tippy.

The boys were using broad sticks for paddles and had almost crossed to the west shore of the river at its widest point. While yet about 40 feet from shore, they decided to change places. One boy made a

LAVISH PARTIES TO BE PROBED

Many Complaints Received on Falls Parks Commission Says Hepburn.

$102,000 DEFICIT.

TORONTO, July 18 (C.P.) — Complaints that lavish entertainments were provided by the Niagara Falls Parks Commission out of the public funds led to the investigation into the commission's operations the Ontario government launched yesterday, Premier Mitchell Hepburn said to-day many such complaints had been received from people in the district.

The province had a $4,000,000 asset in the parks at Niagara, he said, and it was operated last year at a loss of $102,000. This condition should not be allowed to continue at a time when the people were burdened with taxes.

The premier said no action had yet been taken towards closing the office of the Ontario agent general in London but he believed Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, had something of the sort in mind. It was a question of the elimination of duplicate services in the interests of economy and Mr. Hepburn favored the step.

DIONNE BABIES BREAK RECORD FOR LONGEVITY

Quintuplets Enter 51st Day of Life—Precedent in Medical History.

NOW WEIGH 17 POUNDS.

CORBEIL, Ont., July 18.—(CP)—A discordant symphony of faint cries and grunts from a row of incubator homes proclaimed to the little household of Oliva Dionne that his quintuplet daughters today had broken a time-old record for longevity.

The five tiny daughters born to 24-year-old Mrs. Dionne last May 28, entered the 51st day of life today and established a precedent in medical history. Individually and collectively, the quintuplets surpassed the previous record known to science which showed the greatest span previously achieved by a member of such a group to be an even half-hundred days.

The mark beaten by the Dionne girls was set in 1866 at Lisbon, Portugal, by the last surviving girl of a quintette, who died from what medical records ascribe to "intermittent fever." Other quintuplets never have been known to survive more than two weeks.

Gains by three of the Dionne girls boosted the total weight to 17 pounds three and three-quarter ounces. The weights were taken yesterday by Dr. A. R. Dafoe, who delivered the babies, and who expressed satisfaction of progress being made.

Marie Loses.

The doctor made his daily trip to the settler's home and reported the babies continuing their routine. Baby Marie, lightest of the group, recorded a loss in weight from the previous examination. Emilie was at a standstill but the other three, Yvonne, Annette and Cecile all grew heavier.

There was little excitement around the Dionne homestead. The father continued his farm chores and Mrs. Dionne took her daily outing. Dr. Dafoe said the mother was fast regaining her normal strength and was able to assist with household duties.

From present indications the family will remain in the solitude of their Northern Ontario home, as it was considered unlikely the little sisters would be shown to the public at the World's Fair at Chicago this year at least.

Following protests by taxpayers against a decision to pay the mayor $2,000 a year salary, Mayor S. B. Cole of Wood Green, England, has returned all money paid him under the new scale.

Fire Sale!

CHATHAM, Ont., July 18. —. As a result of newspaper advertising, there was such a rush at the fire sale which opened in the Artistic Shop this morning, that police were compelled to control the entrance to the shop.

Following the milling inside the store, three women were forced through one of the plate glass windows and were injured. Mrs. Anna Davies, aged 50, of this city, received cuts on her arms, while Miss Pearl Quinton received lacerations in her face. As she went through the window her hat fell forward on her face, and it is believed this prevented more serious injury.

Another woman whose name could not be ascertained, was also slightly injured. All morning long the police endeavored to control the crowd by allowing only certain numbers in the store at one time.

DOZEN WARSHIPS SENT TO SAMOS

Britain Demands Joint Inquiry Into Shooting of Officer.

COMB SEA FOR BODY.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 18. — (C. P. Cable)—While 12 warships lie off the Island of Samos the British government is demanding all facilities for its naval authorities to conduct an exhaustive inquiry into the shooting of Surgeon-Lieut. J. W. Robinson last Saturday.

Sir Percy Loraine, British ambassador, went to Ankara last night and conferred with the Turkish foreign minister, Tewfik Rustu Bey. It is understood the government regard his request for a joint inquiry as suprising, and official quarters described it as "most unusual procedure."

With Turkish permission, the warships at Samos searched the straits between the isand and the straits between the island and the sentry's bullets he fell overboard and disappeared, though two companions swam to safety on Samos, which is Greek territory. Conflicting reports make it doubtful whether the officers ignored the sentries' challenge or merely turned their pleasure-boat away from the mainland in response to a warning.

The Turkish version is that overzealous guards mistook Robinson's party for smugglers. British Naval authorities insist a joint inquiry is necessary to determine the exact circumstances.

MILLION ATTEND MERSEY RIVER TUNNEL OPENING

King and Queen Officiate at World's Longest Underwater Roadway.

9 YEARS TO BUILD.

LIVERPOOL, July 18 (C.P.)—The world's longest underwater roadway, the giant new Mersey tunnel between Liverpool and Birkenhead, was formally opened by the King to-day.

His Majesty left the royal car at the city boundary, pressed a golden switch which rolled back huge green and gold curtains, and formally declared open what has been called the greatest engineering feat of modern times.

The tunnel has four lanes for vehicles and broad sidewalks for pedestrians.

His Majesty declared it was a great pleasure for the Queen and himself to come to Liverpool to open a thoroughfare "so great and strange."

"Who can reflect without awe on that will and power of man which in our time has created the noble bridges of the Thames the Forth and the Sydney Harbor and has driven also tunnels such as this in which many streams of wheeled traffic may run in light and safety below the depth and turbulence of tidal waters bearing the ships of the world" said the King.

"I thank all those whose effort has achieved this miracle. I praise the imaginations that foresaw, the minds that planned, the skill that fashioned, the will that drove and the strong arms that endured in bringing this work to completion.

"May our peoples always work together thus for the blessing of this kingdom by wise and noble uses of power that man has won from nature."

The tunnel is named the Queensway in honor of the Queen.

Huge crowds gathered for the ceremony, many from distant parts of the country, and it was conservatively estimated that more than a million were present.

The tunnel has been under construction for nine years, outside of the actual boring, the chief difficulty encountered being that of ventilation. The total cost is estimated at $35,000,000. The tunnel contains a three-mile roadway of special cast-iron sections.

Each year the up-to-the-minute developments in agriculture are shown at the Canadian National Exhibition: Horses, cattle, sheep, swine, poultry, goats, pet stock, dairy products, vegetables and grain machinery and the farm equipment make this the outstanding agricultural show of the world.

REVISION MADE ALL DOWN LIST OF REGULATIONS

Sale To-morrow if Hotels Move Quickly on Licenses and Supplies.

NO CELEBRATIONS.

All Areas Under Local Option Will Continue to Remain Dry.

TORONTO, July 18.— (C. P.)—Beer will be on sale in Ontario hotels tomorrow if hotels move quickly in getting their licenses and their supplies it was learned on good authority today. At the same time it was definitely stated sale of beer and wine in restaurants would not be permitted under the new liquor regulations.

The Ontario cabinet today reviewed the regulations to govern sale of wine and beer in open public places which had been drawn up by E. G. Odette, liquor commissioner made a few changes and will meet again later in the day to place its formal approval on them. After that they will be made public.

Discussing the regulations today Premier Mitchell Hepburn said there might be a lot of disapponted restaurant keepers but emphasized there was no finality about the system adopted. The government was determined not to deluge the province with beer and propose to go slowly at the start rather than open sale of intoxicants on too wide a scale. If restaurant sale was later demanded by public opinion it would be permitted, but there was a chance of the pendulum swinging the other way and the public favoring a more restrictive method particularly if licenses were issued too freely at the start or if abuses arose.

Asked if beer would be sold tomorrow Mr. Hepburn said there was nothing to prevent this in some standard hotels if they got their licenses and supplies intime.

REPORT DENIED BY COATSWORTH

Never Resigned as Magistrate But Offered to Quit Police Commission.

"Order Stands"—Roebuck.

TORONTO, July 18.—(CP)—Whether or not Magistrate Emerson Coatsworth of Toronto has resigned will not affect the validity of the order-in-council passed by the Ontario Government yesterday removing him from the post of senior magistrate, Hon. Arthur Roebuck, Attorney-General, stated today.

The government was under the impression Magistrate Coatsworth had tendered his resignation to the Henry government and that it had not been acted upon, he said.

Today Mr. Coatsworth said he never had resigned as senior magistrate but that two years ago he had tendered his resignation from the Police Commission.

Argentine Proposes Higher Wheat Quota

BUENOS AIRES, July 18 (A.P.).—Argentina's Ministry of Agriculture proposed to-day that the nation's wheat export quota be raised at next month's international wheat conference to 150,000,000 bushels. At present the quota is 110,000,000 bushels.

A communique by the Agricultural Ministry stated that the abundance of the last crop necessitates a larger export quota to overcome surpluses.

Four proposals to stabilize the world wheat market were definitely rejected by Argentina. They are: (1) Argentina's adherence to a minimum price; (2) a limitation of exports the second year by agreement to 108,000,000 bushels; (3) a reduction of seeding to regulate yearly exports to 110,000,000 bushels, and (4) an agreement to denaturalize wheat exceeding the export quota and domestic consumption.

Their combined weight is two pounds and a half.

RECOUNT SHOWS SLIGHT CHANGE FOR HAWTHORNE

Gain of Two Votes at Twelve Polls if Doubtful Ballot Rejected.

THREE GROUPS COUNTING.

Judge L. V. O'Connor of Cobourg Presides at Court House.

Judge O'Connor's recount this morning of the ballots cast at twelve of the polls in the riding of Peterborough in the provincial elections on June 19 showed a slight change in favor of James Hawthorne.

Recapitulation of the figures for these twelve polls showed a gain of two votes, loss of two others and one doubtful for T. P. Lancaster M.L.A., Havelock and for Hawthorne a gain of two votes and loss of one. This means a net gain of two votes for Hawthorne if the doubtful ballot from Poll No 69 at Cottesloe should be finally rejected.

This ballot was apparently counted after the poll closed on the night of the elections, but in some way ed after the poll closed on he night among loose paper on the following morning. It was sent to Sheriff F. J. A. Hall, returning officer, in

Wild Electric Storm Rakes Royal Train

MANCHESTER, Eng., July 18.—(AP). A terrific electrical rainstorm bombarded the train in which the King and Queen spent the night, sidetracked at Lowton, awaiting to-day's dedication ceremonies for the new Mersey tunnel.

The storm, one of the worst of the season, raged for hours, thunder roaring like artillery and rain pouring down in sheets.

An equally fierce storm struck Blackpool. At the height of the tempest a fire broke out in the building at the Pleasure Fair. Flames, notwithstanding the deluge illuminated the countryside for miles.

The King and Queen are enroute back to London from Scotland. Yesterday they received one of the greatest ovations of their reign at Manchester which they visited for the first time in 13 years. The King opened England's largest public library here.

The new warehouse will be a wing to the building now occupied by Hood and Cummings' Motor Sales. It will face on Water Street, and will be 36 feet wide and 60 feet long. Although only one-storey, it will have the latest refrigeration facilities in order that the beer may be kept in proper saleable condition.

Tenders for the construction of the building were called for yesterday, and will close Friday night. It is expected to get the work started by Monday. The building has been designed by John T. Hornsby, architect.

HON. G. S. HENRY CALLED TO BOX AT HYDRO PROBE

Senator Meighen Won a Point Before Royal Commission Inquiry.

LETTERS MISSING.

Ex-Premier Tells of His Purchase of O.P.S.C. Bonds.

TORONTO, July 18.— (CP)—Senator Arthur Meighen today won a point in Ontario's Royal Commission inquiry into acquisition by the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission of assets of the Ontario Power Service Corporation when it was agreed to abandon for the moment evidence concerning companies with which Mr. Meighen is associated.

The decision followed Mr. Meighen's challenge that Arthur Slaght, Commission counsel, show evidence of the Hydro Commission's discretion in a resolution it passed recommending the purchase of Ontario Power Service Corporation bonds.

At the same time Chief Justice F. R. Latchford said Mr. Meighen would be required to produce from his books and records only evidence pertaining to the O.P.S.C.

In his plea against evidence concerning companies of which he is a director or associate Mr. Meighen asked if working details of the companies should be "paraded by the press through the country" and "their holdings be made known to their competitors."

He maintained acquisition of the O.P.S.C. was a governmental measure and not one in which the Hydro Commission had discretion.

Morning session of the commission was occupied for the most part by argument over its jurisdiction.

Thereafter however, former Premier George S. Henry was examined by Mr. Slaght regarding his ownership of $25,000 worth of O.P.S.C. bonds.

Evidence indicated after the contract was signed by which the O.P.S.C. was granted power leases and the Hydro Commission was to purchase 100,000 horsepower at $13 per horsepower and private company was to pay rental of $1 per horsepower to the Ontario government. Three months later,

Beer for 1000 Hotels in Ontario by End of Week

BEVERAGE ROOM TO REMAIN OPEN 10 AM -MIDNIGHT

Agriculture Colonization Branch and Ontario House in London Shut Up.

GAME DEPUTY NAMED.

Education Re-organization Started — Judge Coatsworth's Resignation Accepted.

TORONTO, July 18 (C.P.)—Assured it would quaff beer by the glass in dining and beverage rooms of about 1,000 hotels throughout the Province by the end of the week, Ontario to-day awaited announcement of detailed regulations by the Hepburn Government putting into effect the legislation passed nearly four months ago.

The Cabinet yesterday approved of regulations presented to it by Commissioner E. G. Odette, but Premier M. F. Hepburn would not disclose their contents, beyond stating there would be no "deluge" and "we are following the advice of the Minister."

The Globe, however, said today: "Beverage rooms may stay open from 10 a.m. until midnight, daily, except Sunday."

Handling of the beer regulations was only a small part of the business diposed of at a day-long Cabinet meeting. Further administration economies were effected, two new probes were forecast, a pair of new Deputy Ministers appointed, and dates for two by-elections announced.

The Government eliminated the Colonization and Immigration Branch of the Department of Agriculture, which cost the Province $4,875.96 last year; abolished Ontario House in London, England, effecting a saving of $47,240.84; replaced the salaried Milk Board, appointed by the Henry Government, with a new body whose members would be paid $15.00 a day for every day they worked.

Members of the new board are John A. MacFeeters of Toronto, chairman, and John A. Houck, Chippewa.

Re-organization of Ontario's education system and economy in its administration started with the appointment of Professor Duncan McArthur, Queen's University, Kingston, as Deputy Minister of Education, at $7,500 a year. Ultimately he will replace three officials whose combined salary was nearly $20,000. They are A. H. U. Colquhoun, Deputy Minister; F. W. Merchant, chief adviser to the minister, and George W. Rogers, Director of Education. Mr. Rogers would be asked to remain with the Department, it was announced.

ACES BEAT CLERKS 15.14.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 18 (Examiner Correspondence).—In one of the best games of the season the "Aces" defeated the "Clerks" at softball last night on the High School grounds. Bill Blue of Peterborough strengthened the Ace forces along with Charlie Bush, who made a homer in the last innings. Harry Tinney watched the plate, with Charlie Holmes umpiring on bases.

Pig-Colt

SENECA FALLS, N.Y., July 18. (AP)—A freak animal with the body of a colt and the head and nostrils of a pig was born to-day on a farm west of this village.

The animal breaths and snorts like a pig, but has a colt's body and legs. Born to a mare, it is black with a white mark on its long pointed head and nose.

Dr. W. L. Clark, Seneca Falls veterinary, was present when the animal was born and brought it to this village. He said it breaths with difficulty, but apparently will live.

Blue Ribboners

FRANKFORT, Ky., July 18. —C.P.)—There's not much red tape about getting a commission as a Kentucky Colonel — but plenty of blue ribbon.

State records show more than half a mile of blue ribbon has been used by honorary commissions since Dec. 8, 1931, when Gov. Rugby Laffoon took office.

The Governor and Lieut-Governor Chandler have issued 2,764 certificates, each with a foot of ribbon.

MISSING BABY FOUND IN BUSH NEAR HIS HOME

Police Convinced Hartsdale Tot Was Not Kidnap Victim.

JUST WANDERED AWAY.

Lost 10 Pounds in 5 Days Without Food—Has Chance of Life.

HARTSDALE, N.Y., July 18. — (AP). The kidnapping theory in the Bobby Connor case collapsed to-day.

While the little curly-haired son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Connor lay seriously ill in a hospital, to which he was taken after being found yesterday in a bramble thicket near his home, federal agents and police announced their investigations were ended.

They were convinced, they said, that the 21-months-old Bobby, who disappeared last Thursday, wasn't kidnapped at all. All evidence showed, they declared, that he had toddled alone into the woods and had spent the five days there.

Suffering from starvation and exposure, the child is a "very sick baby" but has a "fair" chance to recover, said Dr. Claude W. Munger, attending him at the Grasslands hospital.

Frank Fay, agent of the Department of Justice, anonunced the end of the Federal investigation in woods.

ATTACKED BY CRAZED BULL TOREADOR KNEELS IN SAND

Riotous Throng Sees Juan Belmonte in Arena After Retirement.

SCENE INTOXICATES

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
(Central Press Canadian Writer)

NIMES, July 18.—Today I saw Juan Belmonte, one of the greatest toreadors who has ever thrilled the bullrings of Madrid and Mexico, make a comeback in the famous Roman arena here after seven years of retirement and despite his 42 years. In an agonizing moment of dramatic intensity I saw Belmonte being tossed high into the air by a fierce Andalusian bull and crawl to safety with blood dripping from a wound in his side. Just when the tens of thousands of spectators stood waiting in breathless silence fully expecting the bull to finish Belmonte, the 'glorious" espada raised himself and, although visibly in great pain, made one of the most perfect kills in history of the arena. Then the crowd went delirious with enthusiasm.

Belmonte is particularly famous for his dangerous method of fighting. It is known as "fighting in the cradle of the horns." He gave an amazing performance of it today. With the crazed bull bearing down on him full force, the animal snorting in terrifying manner, its eyes bloodshot with throwing up clouds of dust and ripping to splinters a

LAWYER WARNED IN ABITIBI CASE

Be Removed From Court Says Judge Following Clash With Slaght.

MANY WITNESSES CALLED.

TORONTO, July 18 (C.P.).—Ontario's Royal commission investigation into the deal whereby the Hydro Commission took over the assets of the Ontario Power Service Corporation, will resume here to-day before Chief Justice F. R. Latchford and Hon. Robert Smith, and with numerous witnesses to be called. Among the latter will be former Premier George S. Henry, who will be asked to explain his personal part of the transaction.

The enquiry was formally launched yesterday, with Mr. Henry and Senator Meighen both insisting the Provincial Government should provide them with counsel while the investigation was probing their acts as "public servants." P. H. Gordon also made the same request on behalf of C. Alfred Maguire and Hon. J. R. Cooke, former members of the Hydro Commission. Mr. Meighen resigned from the Commission some months ago.

Arthur G. Slaght, K.C., Commission counsel, intimated the requests would be placed before the Government, refusing to personally pledge the counsel would be paid from the public treasury.

History Outlined.

The entire history of the Abitibi project, from the initial application for power rights by the Hudson Bay Power Company to the payment of a $20,000 rental by the Hydro Commission early this year was outlined in the evidence, as was Mr. Meighen's connection with a number of financial concerns at the time Hydro took the development over.

Large piles of documents, correspondence, contracts, agreements and similar matter were fyled as evidence by Mr. Slaght and it appeared the probe would be a lengthy one.

Along with Mr. Henry, it is expected Mr. Cooke, Mr. Maguire and many other witnesses will be called before the Commission. Strachan Johnson, prominent Toronto lawyer, was subpoenaed and engaged in a brief clash with Mr. Justice Latchford yesterday afternoon when he interrupted Mr. Slaght.

The clash ended with Mr. Justice Latchford informing Mr. Johnson he would be removed from the room i. there were further interruptions.

The value of the land, buildings and plant equipment of the Canadian National Exhibition is estimated at $21,000,000 and that is a conservative estimate.

SAN FRANCISCO BUOYED BY PLAN OF ARBITRATION

Strike Committee Ready to Halt Lay-off Soon as Union Recognized.

RIOTS INCREASE.

Walkout Termed "Bloody Insurrection" by Johnson—30,000 More Quit Work.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 18. (AP) An arbitration proposal gave new hope to-day to San Francisco and the other strike-prostrated bay cities.

The general strike committee called opposing forces in the Pacific coast maritime dispute for a "showdown" voting to arbitrate differences and send all strikers back to work as soon as shipowners agree to recognize the maritime unions.

Though the proposal failed to forecast specifically an end to the general walkout of nearly 100,000 union workers, which has paralyzed the normal service to 1,300,000 people of the metropolitan area, it was quickly hailed as a possible way out of the demoralizing crisis.

The resolution adopted by the committee by a vote of 207 to 180 after seven hours of debate followed a day of increasing tension as 30,000 east-day workers joined in the walkout and raids and riots struck the region. More than 300 alleged radicals were rounded up by police while self-styled vigilante groups stormed known Communist headquarters.

Increasing evidence of federal concern over the spreading strike fire was seen as Hugh Johnson, N.R.A. administrator, branded the general strike a "bloody insurrection" in an address at Berkeley and P. A. Donaghue, chief examiner of the new National Labor

Dairy Notes

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 18. — Cheese offered for grading at Campbellford grading centre last week were as follows: Trent Valley 65, Burnley 49, Brae 24, Roseneath 26, Norham 60, Beaves 23, I.X.L. 29, New Model 18, Rylstone 74, Prince of Wales 44, Trent Bridge 53, Woodlands 29, Crow Bay 43, Kimberley 49, Stanwood 32, Spring Valley 33—total 651 boxes.

Cheese sold on Belleville board on Saturday at 10 1-16 cents.

Finding it impossible to properly diagnose the markings on one lot of cheese last week, Mr. Irwin deferred grading for one week in order that the maker might come in and elaborate a little more fully on the dates.

Close fitting, which at one time was considered a redeeming feature in cheese boxes, is now quite objectionable with many dealers, owing to the fact that large quantities of cheese are now waxed before being stored.

Removing cheese from close fitting boxes is difficult and in many cases the boxes have to be destroyed with the result that buyers of cheese finding this condition general in any lot do not buy that factory brand again.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Working in a garden is one of the healthy occupations of summertime. I have known of physicians advising patients to have their flower beds, and tend the plants themselves in order to restore their good health. I remember one such instance perfectly for the grounds of the home were well known to me. Like all persons who start a garden, her interest became absorbed in the plot, which each year grew in size and in gorgeous beauty. The bloom came back into her cheeks.

* * * * * * *

Another case comes to mind where the woman was frail and did not seem to recuperate well after an illness. The doctor told her it would be beneficial for her to get close to nature, to get her hands into the soft soil of a garden when tending her plants, and to cultivate her innate love of flowers by working in her garden. Her knowledge of plant life grew amazingly. She dug and planted and transplanted with her own hands, and health came back to her.

* * * * * * *

So healthy is gardening that limbs may ache and backs get tired with stooping yet no ill-effects result. As the weariness passes, strength is renewed and vigor restored. This is in part due to the absorbing interest that is aroused in growing plants. The very spirit seems to be revived as well as the physique.

* * * * * * *

Parents do well to awaken an interest in gardening in their children. It is not necessary for them to have their own special plots. Now, when plants are in their prime, help them to appreciate the beauty of color, fragrance and form. Tell them the names of flowers. Let them sometimes gather a bunch of their favorites, perhaps under the eye of some adult who will advise them against picking certain blossoms that may be immature, or not well-suited to bouquet use, or which are grown purely for their out-or-door decorative value. Once get a child's real interest in flowers, and he will never lose it. He will naturally want to putter around amongst the plants, and so have one of the healthiest out-of-door occupations for a hobby later on in his life.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

DANGER SIGNAL UNHEEDED.

I doubt if there lived a bridge player who at some time did not nod, sleepily, doing something in a routine manner which he never would venture were he wide awake. One of Winnipeg's contract experts calls attention to such a slip made by the declarer of the following hand. The opening lead was the only reasonable one. Any other lead would have given game even to a player of moderate ability. Without heeding the warning given by the trump lead, the declarer lost game, instead of playing the hand as Mr. J. J. Cohen suggests should have been done.

South was the declarer. The contract was 4-spades. The opening lead was the 5 of spades. Two leads cleared both opponents of trumps.

An opening lead of a low trump, unless declarer and dummy have bid different suits, then compromised upon a third suit, always should mean that senior has 3 suits headed by tenaces or single high honors, from which it is unsafe to lead blindly. I cannot state that the declarer was aware of the warning given, but he should have suspected that West held both red K's and either the ace or K of clubs. Instead of trying an immediate finesse in either red suit, South should have led a club from his own hand, as it is easier to establish a suit by leading toward it than from it.

As South played the hand he took both red suit finesses, losing 2 tricks to the red K's held by West, plus 2 club tricks, and going down a trick.

Play the hand as it should have gone. Win 2 spade tricks in South's hand. Lead a club. West should not win with his K, as he does not want to make the return lead. East will win with his ace, giving his sice its first trick. East may lead back a card of either red suit. Say he leads a heart, as that is the weakest suit shown by dummy. South should win with the ace, and lead a club. It makes no difference whether West wins with his K or not. Suppose West wins the trick, and takes his K of hearts, giving his side 3 tricks to date. South need lose no more tricks. He can discard both his lowest diamonds upon the 2 good clubs in dummy. If West declines to win with his K of clubs, then the declarer also will go game, losing only 1 club and 1 diamond trick.

BEHIND the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROL

HOLLYWOOD.—A wit off-screen as well as on, Bob Montgomery delivered the squelch elegant to one of those week-end party pests. The nuisance showed up blotto, got steadily worse and ended up by delivering a lecture on Hollywood's effeminatetastes in liquor. Cornering one guest after another, he insisted that no he-man should drink anything but gin. Finally, he came to Bob, who listened for a moment, then politely inquired:

Robert Montgomery.

"I say, old man, do you think you could stick to any one brand? I'd like to buy stock in the company.

"A CONTINUOUS

laughter;show" is the description applied to "Jack Ahoy," the new Jack Hulbert film which opens at the Capitol Theatre today. The story by Sidney Gilliat and John Orton is an admirable vehicle for the popular artistry of Jack Hulbert, and Walter Forde has directed the Gaumont-British picture so cleverly that it scintillates from the opening shot to the fade-out.

The picture is notable for many glimpses of Britain's naval strength. The nautical side of the production had the assistance of the Admiralty who, quite naturally, are not associated in any way with the development of the screamingly funny story, a reticence which is quite understandable.

The full cast is as follows: Jack Ponsonby, Jack Hulbert; Patricia, Nancy O'Neil; Admiral Fraser, Alfred Drayton; Conchita, Tamari Desni; Larios, Henry Peterson; Dodger, Sam Wilkinson.

THE 1934

gold rush roars to life on the screen of the Capitol Theatre, where "Wild Gold" opens today with John Boles, Claire Trevor and Harry Green in the leading roles. The picture has captured the glamour, excitement, drama and human comedy of the second incarnation of the ghost towns of the bonanza days.

Against the picturesque background of the Bret Harte country is enacted a delightful romance between John Boles and Claire Trevor. Boles' portrayal of the engineer stands out as a strong, he-man characterization. Miss Trevor is excellent as the heroine.

Weddings

JORY—WHITE

SEXSMITH, Alberta, July 18. — An event of great interest in the Clairmont and Sexsmith community was solemnized recently at the Manse, Sexsmith, when Miss Elena E. White, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George White of Clairmont, became the bride of Mr. Hilliard Jory of Teepee Creek.

The bride who was beautifully gowned in a long white ruffled dress of silk organdie, wore a wreath of orange blossoms and a long flowing veil. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and fern. Miss Jessie White, sister of the bride was dressed in blue and carried a bouquet of gypsophilia, aquelegia and pinks. The groom was attended by Mr. W. Hall.

To the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March the bride and her attendant entered the parlor and the company present joined in singing "Oh Father All Creating". The Ritual was then read by Rev. R. Simons who officiated. During the signing of the register Mrs. Sears sang Thomson's "Song of Thanksgiving".

Amid showers of rice the happy couple with their guests drove to the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Houseman where the wedding dinner was served. Among those present were: Mrs. G. White, Misses J. and E. White, Mr. and Mrs. W. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. H. Houseman and family, Rev. and Mrs. Simons, Mr. and Mrs. R. Sears, Mr. and Mrs. M. Fraser and son, Miss Conway, Miss Jeffers, Miss Coffin.

Mr. and Mrs. Jory left on the midnight train for Peterborough where the honeymoon is being spent. They expect to return at the end of July and will take up residence at Teepee Creek where Mr. Jory is in charge of a store.

UNSAFE BOATS.

Yesterday's drowning should carry a tragic warning to parents of other local children who may be risking their lives in unsafe cockle shells of home-made boats, not seaworthy enough to warrant their use.

The amateur craft that figured in this latest aquatic fatality is not the only death-trap boat in commission at the present time on the Otonabee, and it would be well for parents to check up on the activities of their families to make sure that they are not facing danger from poorly constructed and unsafe boats.

Certainly no boy who is not an expert swimmer should be allowed to go out on the river in craft of that kind, and even in the case of those who are proficient in the art common sense should suggest that there are safer amusements than travelling on the Otonabee in an unsteady and flimsy boat.

The Examiner has no desire to interfere with the summer recreation of Peterborough's children and fully realizes the attraction the river has for boys and girls, but at the same time safety first principles should be observed.

Little folks should be kept out of boats that are a menace to their safety, and as was pointed out in these columns yesterday, if children are to be allowed to go bathing without an older person in charge they should go to Inverlea Park where there is shallow water for them to enjoy themselves in and where a lifeguard is on continuous duty.

A TEMPEST IN A TEAPOT.

The controversy between Premier Hepburn and Mayor Stewart of Toronto as to the right of hunger marchers to parade through the Queen City en route to Queen's Park is purely a political battle, and Toronto's chief magistrate has been out-manoeuvred in the first stages of the engagement, inasmuch as his attitude has given the Government a chance to accuse the head of the municipal administration of being unsympathetic to the troubles of the unemployed.

As The Examiner said yesterday, while we regard this hunger march as a farce, it would have been wiser on the part of the Toronto municipal authorities to have allowed the trekers to go ahead with their program instead of making martyrs out of them.

In the final analysis, Mr. Hepburn might perhaps have done the leaders of the hunger march a better service had he told the deputation which waited upon him that they could accomplish the same purpose by appointing a small delegation to lay their requests before the Government, but the head of the Government, having not chosen to follow that course, Mayor Stewart would have shown better judgment, in our opinion, if he, too, had decided to put no obstacle in the way of the hunger marchers so long as the latter behaved themselves like law-abiding Canadians.

The whole thing is a tempest in a teapot; it involves the demanding of impossible concessions, and in the long run the things that are to be asked for will have to be refused.

SHOULD NOT BE OPPOSED.

Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests in the Hepburn Government, will have to stand for election to the Legislature in the constituency of Kenora where a vacancy has been created for him by the resignation of Earl Hutchinson, elected as a Liberal-Labor representative at the recent provincial election.

It is intimated that no decision has been arrived at as to whether the well-known Peter will be opposed in the coming by-election.

The Examiner, however, hopes that common sense will prevail, and that the opposition will not make the mistake of nominating a candidate against the Minister of Lands and Forests.

The Hepburn administration has been elected to power with a most decisive mandate to control public affairs in this province for the next four years, and it is the feeling of the vast majority of the people of Ontario that the new Government should have every chance to make good.

Opposition to the election of one of Mr. Hepburn's Ministers, staged merely for the purpose of embarrassing him and with no possible hope of defeating him, would be resented by most electors, and in the circumstances Hon. Peter Heenan should be accorded the honor of an election by acclamation.

If he does not make good or if the Government of which he is a member fails in the test of the next few years there will be opportunities later on for the voters to deal with him and with the Government.

At the present time, however, the public expects a fair deal for the new administration.

THOSE MODERN BATHING SUITS.

It is difficult to say whether the Whitby chief of police should be regarded with sympathy or with envy in the new duties the Whitby Council have just imposed upon him.

The town fathers, having viewed with some alarm the frankness of the 1934 bathing costume, have decided in their wisdom to impose some restrictions upon the amount of bather that is to be exposed to the rays of the sun and the eyes of the onlookers, and accordingly have passed a by-law requiring bathers at Whitby beach to be properly garbed.

They have not gone to the length followed by Burlington which insists on swimmers being clothed from the neck to the knees, but a limit is being put on the extent to which the body shall be uncovered, and the chief of police is to be ordered to go forth armed with these specifications and make sure that no Whitby bather is infringing upon the limit.

It sounds like an interesting job, and if the costumes in vogue are anything like those worn in Peterborough and the surrounding district, like a busy one as well.

If all the wearers of modern bathing suits who disport themselves at Whitby are to be brought before the magistrate, there should be plenty of work for the court in that town.

The Examiner frankly feels that this Whitby campaign is doomed to fail; revealing bathing suits are fashionable, and there is nothing to be gained by trying to battle against the dictates of Dame Fashion.

"DAY BY DAY, IN EVERY WAY . . ."

Day by day in every way, as the forgotten Mr. Coue used to put it, we're getting better and better. Thus when Finance Minister Rhodes returns from fishing salmon he will find (the figures were given to us by Mr. Mathews a few days ago) that revenue has been coming into the treasury five million dollars a month faster than it came last year. In June alone customs returns were up by more than a million, excise taxes by more than two and a half millions; excise duties and income tax by over a half million.

What it means is this: That when Mr. Rhodes comes to balance his books at the end of the year, he will find himself with at least $60,000,000 more cash on hand than he had at the end of last year. Indeed, considering that each month seems to bring improvement, it may well be that Mr. Rhodes will have $75,000,000 more. It will mean a balanced budget perhaps over everything.

For the railways are doing better, too. The Canadian National deficit is now paid out of ordinary revenue, or, as things have been working out, added to the ordinary deficit. Last year the Canadian National lost something like $55,000,000. This year, however, the road has been increasing its net operating earnings at the rate of more than a million a month, so it may well be that its total deficit will not be much more than $40,000,000. Quite possibly, therefore, enough revenue will come to the treasury to take care of the railway deficit and everything else, with a few dollars left over.

There is other improvement. Before the House rose Mr. Bennett gave the cheerful information that "the Government has a substantial credit to-day on the price of wheat." What this means is that if Mr. McFarland, the Government's wheat agent, could sell his wheat at the existing price, he would have a profit. Mr. McFarland, of course, couldn't begin selling all or most of his wheat without depressing the price, but, on the other hand, he is selling a lot of it steadily, and the wheat price prospect gets steadily better.

All in all, Canada's financial ledgers are in a pretty wholesome state; a lot more wholesome than most people thought they ever could be, all the difficulties considered.—Ottawa Journal.

A WORLD OF IGNORANCE.

In ten European countries, with a total population in excess of 300,000,000, an iron-clad press censorship exists. In six other countries, with 60,000,000 people, a less rigorous censorship is in effect.

In all Europe, only the following countries permit freedom of news presentation and comment: Great Britain, France, Switzerland, Czecho-Slovakia, Belgium, Irish Free State, Netherlands, Finland, Sweden, Norway and Denmark. Their total population is 136,000,000.

These facts are presented by Albin Johnson, Geneva correspondent of Editor and Publisher.

Merely denying the public the news of what is going on at home and abroad is the least of the crimes committed by the political dictators in these countries. They go further and require the newspapers to publish misinformation so that the public will believe exactly what the leaders want them to believe. As Mr. Johnson puts it, the crimes of commission are much worse than the crimes of omission in warping the minds of the citizenry.

What is true in Europe is duplicated in other parts of the world. Bruce Bliven, president and editor of the New Republic, summarized world censorship conditions before the American Society of Newspaper Editors this spring. The points he made were these:

Two-thirds of the population of the world are to-day living under rigid and complete censorship;

Eight-ninths of the world's population are under serious restriction on free speech of a governmental character;

Only one-ninth, or roughly some 228,000,000 persons, live in countries where newspapers are without formal censorship.

That these facts reveal journalism in chains is only of incidental importance. What is of real importance is that liberty is disappearing from the face of a very large part of the world. The public is allowed to think only what a few self-seeking dictators wish it to think and it is allowed to say only what these dictators are willing should be said.

Even in the countries that permit the freedom of speech, public opinion is under control to a certain extent. In Canada, the Prime Minister has read the riot act to newspaper men who have dared to criticize his policies. In the United States, no attempt is made to punish newspapers who criticize the administration, but the more positive action of feeding out propaganda to influence public opinion is freely indulged in and government departments have numerous propaganda papers of their own. In France, there are practically no independent newspapers. Most are controlled by groups with personal axes to grind. In Great Britain, a large part of the press has come under the dominance of newspaper barons who, whatever their ability as business men, do not average very high as disinterested public citizens.

But at least in Anglo-Saxon countries, and in France and the Scandinavian countries, people may say what they like and their views will be quoted in some of the newspapers.

A free press is one of the greatest safeguards of our liberties. If, as a part of the price we pay for a free press, we must put up with a great many violently partisan editorials and much sensationally colored news the price is nothing compared with the darkness of a rigidly censored press.—Financial Post.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Beer in standard hotels by Saturday is the announcement from Toronto. So what?

So long as that $5,000 from the Ontario Government is used to transport Canadian athletes to the British Empire Games and not to give officials a trip, there will not likely be a great deal of complaint.

Rumors of a nudist colony at Orono have been promptly denied. Thus Orme Gansby's village escapes a chance of barely getting on the map.

Warfare against Liberal federal civil servants in Ontario as a counter-measure to meet the firing of Conservative provincial civil servants is intimated by Dr. T. E. Kaiser, of Oshawa. "For every Tory head that is chopped off by Mitchell Hepburn," the Oshawa Conservative is quoted as saying, "a Liberal head will be chopped off by the Federal Government at Ottawa." The spoils system at its worst, in other words.

THE QUARREL.

Two who love each other quarrel bitterly. Two men, two women, or a man and woman.

They quarrel over some little thing, some slight offense, some pique of pride, some bit of nonsense that ordinarily would mean nothing at all. But they are tired, unhappy, irritated by the north wind, or the temporary dullness of their lives, and they leap upon this poor excuse, leap as ferociously as the lion leaps upon its prey in the African veldt, and glare at each other and slash with sharp words—and a great fissure opens between these two and divides them, snarling and defiant.

So they go their separated ways, flushed and sullen, hating the one they loved. Defending themselves, abusing that other, most misunderstanding one, bitter . . . And a cloud comes over their hearts and spreads to every cell, to all the tissues of their lives. This quarrel stands between them and all life. Touches all intercourse with strangers, colors all their thoughts and dreams. Wherever they walk this quarrel follows after, like a darker shadow within themselves. Their feet drag, their shoulders droop, their eyes are dull and the blessed elasticity of living goes out of them . . . They speak of their "pride" and their "honor", and they create a wall of steel and stone on either side of the fissure and shut the beloved away, they think, forever . . . And neither has the good wisdom to go to the other and say:

"Why are we quarreling? We two, who love each other. We who are bound closely together in love or in enmity and have understood each other so intimately and are a part of one another?"

Neither does that. Neither will move. Neither will be so sanely wise . . . Or perhaps they do. Suddenly, on an instant, the cloud lifts, the fissure is closed, the walls fade into nothingness, they look and see the other's face and each takes a step toward the other—and they are friends again. Dear fools who quarreled for no good reason and whose lacerated wounds can never heal until these two are friends once more . . . And life is good again!

fence every time it launched one of its lightning-like attacks. Belmonte, utterly calm, never moved more than a few inches, merely shifting the weight from one foot to the other. Even when he was within a foot of the long sharp horns, he remained perfectly cool. Yet he came near falling a victim this time to the age-old fascination of the "blood and sand" arena.

The news that the great Belmonte, who killed 2,500 bulls—today's was his 2,501st—and who was wounded more than 20 times, was to return to the ring attracted thousands of Spaniards to Nimes, led by the Spanish ambassador to London, Ramon perez de Ayala, a well-known afficionado (fan of the national Spanish game) the Spanish painter Zuloaga; the leading bull-fight critics of Madrid, Seville, Bilbao and Jan Sebastian, as well as the correspondents of the great south and middle American newspapers. Some of these senores had crossed the ocean specially to see the show in which Belmonte staged his comeback.

A Tremendous Ovation

Belmonte wore a brilliant scarlet costume adorned with gold embroidery when he entered the ring with his quadrilla. He was given a thunderous ovation. Women threw expensive bouquets of flowers as he walked smiling wistfully, once in a while bowing with his hand on his heart past the great circular grandstand, which the Romans built in this town 2,000 years ago. Nimes, by the way, is the home-town of M. Gaston Doumergue, the prime minister of France and former president of the republic.

It is perhaps little known in Canada and America that bull-fighting is a favorite game in the south of France. It was indeed once prohibited and is still under an official ban, but the practice had to be tolerated in the meridional districts among the Basques, the Bearnais in the Landes and Pyerenees department to avoid riots. It was a great treat to some of us soldiers in the C.E.F. to be permitted to see a bullfight in the town of Dax when we went there on leave in 1918. That time one of our boys, a First Division fellow—I have forgotten his name but I seem to remember that he came from Kingston, Ontario—entered arena, to the applause of the populace, and finished a bull with his bayonet, the only time this has ever been done with the short-arm. The bayonet was not fastened to the rifle, please remember.

Belmonte did not at first, it seemed to me, pay much attention to the bull, which raced around the arena. The picadors were enraging the animal with short stabs and the banderillos deftly placed the beflagged little darts in the furious beast's neck. The bull was of huge proportions, but quiet young and very agile. Sometimes he stopped in his mad career and surveyed the scene around him. It apparently made him angry. The bull needed no prodding as I saw it done in Sevilla some years ago.

Missed By Inches

Suddenly standing at one end of the arena, the immense black bovine caught sight of Belmonte's gorgeous red tunic. His massive head came down close to the ground so that the discharged air from his nostrils blew up the dust-fine sand, and he charged across the arena.

Then Belmonte did the thing that made the crowd hold its breath in suspense. He walked backwards a few steps until he leaned against the talenqueria, the wooden barrier which encloses the colorful and dangerous spectacle, and he deliberately knelt down. The bull missed by several feet, crashing into the fence which he proceeded to rip to pieces with the deadly horns. Presently the bull had enough of this destructive pastime, caught sight of Belmonte again and walked straight for him. Belmonte touched the bull tauntingly on the snout. There was a terrifying charge and the famous matador flew up into the air, came back on the horns and was again tossed high. Women screamed, fainted and bit their handkerchiefs. Every person present rose to his feet.

The bull again tore into the barrier and cut it to splinters. Belmonte crawled to safety, apparently badly wounded. He had crawled about 10 feet, when he rose, signalled for his sword and to the astonishment of everybody present knelt down again. It was a moment of terror. My heart was pounding in my throat. The bull charged. Belmonte leaned forward and in a cloud of choking sand with the sun full in his eyes stabbed the bull through the heart. It didn't take a second. The beast fell on his side—dead.

Then pandemonium broke loose. The thousands of little pillows which you buy at the entrance of the arena, came hurling through the air in a colorful shower. The Spaniards even threw their hats. People danced and yelled and howled. The show had been perfect, everybody told me; plenty of blood and Belmonte, victorious once more.

Forget the Savageness

This is not quite the end of my story. You must let me tell you of my own reaction to this saguinary spectacle. As I walked away and later refreshed myself at a little vine-clad inn on the outskirts of Nimes with a cool glass of rose-colored "vin du pays," I thought of that young man Alypius of whom St. Augustine speaks in his "Confessions." This Alypius had (thanks to Augustine's own teaching) conceived a horror for the then universally popular gladiatorial games. It was a theoretical horror, conceived on principle, for Alypius had always refused to witness a fight and had never seen one. One day, however, in the streets of Rome, he met a party of sporting friends on their way to the games. "They," says St. Augustine, "with a familiar violence hailed him, vehemently refusing and resisting, into the amphitheatre."

The performance began, but Alypius kept his eyes resolutely shut and declined to be a witness of the iniquities going on before him. Then, suddenly, as one of the combatants was wounded and fell, a great howl of ferocious glee went up from the crowded benches. Alypius' curiosity was aroused; he could resist no longer. Uncovering his eyes, he looked.

"But so soon as he saw that blood," writes St. Augustine, "he therewith drank down savageness; nor turned away, but fixing his eyes, drinking in frenzy unawares, and was delighted with that guilty fight, and intoxicated with the bloody pastime."

St. Augustine was right. That's the way it worked on me in Nimes.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

SYDNEY, N. S.

Previous to the first coming of European fisherman in the 16th century, the Indians called the harbor by an Indian name "Cibou" meaning inlet from the sea.

About the middle of the 16th century the Spaniards, French and British fishermen established headquarters on this Cape Breton coast for the prosecution of the fishing industry. The French occupied Louisburg harbor, the Spanish Sydney harbor and the British at St. Anna harbor. Up to 1784 Sydney harbor was known to all navigators as Spanish Bay.

In the year named above, Gen de Barres was appointed governor of Cape Breton island and gave Sydney its name in honor of the colonial secretary, Lord Sydney, who formerly was Sir Thomas Townsend.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, July 19

Excepting for the possibility of some friction or detriment in employment this should prove to be a day of excellent accomplishment in a business way with much of a gratifying, happy and profitable activity in the private affiliations. It is probable that there will be a definite increase in all sorts of real possessions, either through the recognition, by elders or old-established institutions, of a responsible degree of industry, merit, diligence and steadfastness to duties on hand. Stabilized fortunes and happy domestic, social and romantic conditions are assured.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of splendid promise for increasing their possessions, stabilizing their fortunes and securing desirable recognition, support and reward for industry, practical application and merit from elderly persons or institutions. The private affiliations should also flourish and bring much pleasure as well as solid happiness.

A child born on this day should be industrious, studious, faithful and dependable. Also lovable, accomplished and popular in its personal life.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

A UNIQUE WAR MONUMENT.

On this date, in 1860, the people of Halifax had their first good look at a monument which had been unveiled the previous day, and which is probably unique in Canada as the only memorial of the Crimean war. It is not so much a memorial of that war in which France and Great Britain joined forces against Russia as a remembrance of two sons of Halifax, Captain Parker and Major Welsford, who died in the field of battle in 1856. It was not until four years after their death that Halifax recognized the debt it owed to its heroes, but once the project was started it was soon carried to success.

It is a simple but impressive arch of Nova Scotia freestone on the top of which was placed a magnificent lion to represent the strength and power of the British throne, the creation of the stone animal being assigned to George Lang, a world famous stone carver. At the base of the plinth on which the lion stands, is the word "Sebastopol". Below on each side are the words "Alma" and "Redan", and below the names of the two heroes. The Earl of Musgrave conducted the ceremony of unveiling on July 17, 1860, in his capacity as lieutenant governor of Nova Scotia. There are Russian guns at various points throughout Canada, but this monument at Halifax is, I think, the only Crimean war memorial in Canada.

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterboroughs Leading Handwriting Analyist for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

Doris Watley,
Campbellford, Ont.

Your writing shows progressive instincts. You simply must forge ahead. You desire new and untried things, ideas, clothing and food. You are quite impulsive and rather too exuberant. Enthusiasm soon wanes as you become tired of your task.

Those "y" loops indicate the ability to do things with a grand gesture. The long upper and lower loop attendant to the capital "J" in July, show graceful motivation, love of dancing, swimming or sports. You are artistic as regards color schemes, but detest being told what you shall wear to this and that affair.

The writing as presented, illustrates youth, so no doubt you will learn to appreciate the kindly motive of your elders in offering you sound advice instead of resenting it as you appear to do now. However, you are jolly and humorous, full of fun and the joy of living.

If your writing does not change in the next few years, you will make an excellent housewife, congenial hostess, and loving friend. In the meantime, clerking or selling could interest you, especially if you had a business training.

Mabel Quinlan,
184 Dalhousie St.

Your handwriting shows a nervous temperament, and indicates that you require more rest and fresh air than you are in the habit of allowing yourself. I admit you are persistent in some ways, but this characteristic is not being led in the right direction just now. Don't try to "drive" yourself when you are tired. The world will get along just as well without your help when the time comes for you to "rest", so why not begin now to spare the body which the "Creator" has given you?

Your imagination is too vivid for comfort. Your 't' bars delineate only a small share of will-power, but as all the above noted characteristics are due to health, which is under par, I hope you will not feel upset about them. You are kind, rather too generous with material things and physical energy. I would advise you to put yourself in the hands of a good doctor and have him teach you the correct manner in which to build up your health, before you endeavour to undertake mental work of any nature. Otherwise there is a tendency to dramatize yourself, and this means continually undermining your already nervous constitution. Here's wishing you every blessing in the future.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN.

TORONTO, July 18. — Approximate prices track shipping point:

Wheat 88c to 91c, oats 38c to 40c, barley 45c to 46c, corn 68c to 72c, rye 48c to 50c, buckwheat 58c to 60c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, July 18. — Corn crop losses of almost incredible magnitude reported by a foremost trade authority gave an exciting upward whirl to all grain prices yesterday.

In dealings on a big scale, corn and rye both outdid the season's previous top record quotations, with corn and wheat each showing an overnight maximum rise of 3 cents a bushel and with wheat surpassing any heights reached in more than a month. Impairment of corn yields in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, and Nebraska was unofficially estimated as totalling 283,000,000 bushels so far during July because of prolonged torrid heat and abnormal drought.

Rushes of selling to realize profits led to late reactions, but the close for corn was relatively strong notwithstanding, ⅞c to 1⅛c above Monday's finish. Wheat closed nervous, 1c to 1½c up; oats, unchanged to ⅛c higher, and provisions varying from 2c decline to an equal gain.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Potatoes took a sharp turn downward in price on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday, other prices remaining generally steady.

Butter sold for 18¾c to 19c a pound for fresh No. 1 in cartons or less, unchanged from Monday's level. Small lots to retailers were 21c a pound for solids and 21c for prints. Receipts totalled 1,424 boxes.

On the cheese market, Ontario colored remained steady in price at 10c to 10¼c a pound, while Quebec cheese was ⅛c off at 9½c to 9¾c a pound. Arrivals were 2,979 boxes.

Egg prices were unchanged from their former levels. Graded shipments in cartons or less were quoted at 20c to 21c a dozen for A-large, 19½c to 20c for A-medium, 19c for B and 18c to 18½c for C. Arrivals totalled 2,490 cases.

The potato market experienced one of the sharpest declines in price in some time. New Brunswick Mountains (old) were off 15c, being 40c to 60c per 80-lb. bag, while New Quebec potatoes No. 1 were 75c per 80-lb. bag and No. 2 brought 70c per 80-lb. bag, representing a decline of 50c for No. 1 and 40c for No. 2.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, July 18. — A strong bull movement that had prevailed for most of the session received a check near the close on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday, the wheat futures prices slipping from the high points to close 1⅝c to 1¼c higher, July 15 83⅝c, October 84⅛c to 85c, and December 86¼c.

Support offered by export sales of 1,000,000 bushels of wheat, buying from Southern interests and speculators earlier had run values up more than 2½c above the previous close, but the late selling, generally attributed to the Government agency, nicked large fractions from the advance.

Purchasers took their cue from the strong tone of outside markets, Chicago moving up sharply, and good gains recorded at Liverpool. Actuated by advancing Argentine offers and further reports of unfavorable Australian crops, Liverpool prices closed 1⅝d to 1d higher.

MACHINERY FOR TAYLOR MINE

WILLIAMS LAKE, B.C., July 18 (Special) — The Straub Ball mill destined for the Taylor-Windfall Gold Mining Company with property on Taseko Lake, has arrived at this point and will be taken into the property by plane landing on Taseko Lake.

Manager Chisholm Fraser states that he will have the mill set up and in operation early in July. A crew of twenty-five men are at work on the property and a development plan of diamond drilling was started this week. It is reported that after penetrating the rich surface showing, good commercial values were found at a depth of thirty feet although details and values are not available at this time. Some phenomenally rich samples from the surface have been brought out and are exciting considerable interest. The samples that have been shown are of a dark brown conglomerate, and are literally "shot full of free gold." Assays as high as $1500.00 per ton have been reported.

DIANA POPE WINS FROM MRS. COOKE

Defending Champion Mrs. Gilbert Nunns Upset Ottawa Player in Tennis Championship.

TORONTO, July 18 (CP)—Diana Pope, fair-haired fighter from London, Ontario, staged a brilliant third set rally at the Ontario Tennis Championships to overcome the veteran, Mrs. E. F. Coke, of Toronto, and reach the semi-finals of the ladies' singles.

Trailing 1-4 in the third set and apparently well on the road to defeat, the youthful Western Ontario champion pulled the match out of the fire by winning four straight games. She finally won by scores of 6-1, 4-6, 7-5.

Other semi-finalists won with less difficulty. The defending champion, Mrs. Gilbert Nunns, of Toronto, the former Bea. Symons, upset Mrs. L. H. Beer, of Ottawa, in straight sets, 6-2, 6-2. She will face Miss Pope in one semi-final tomorrow.

Montreal's leading women players, Effie Billing and Mrs. W. D. Patrick, filled the lower bracket. Miss Billing overcame Jean Burritt, of Toronto, by scores of 7-5, 6-3, while Mrs. Patrick, the former Dorothy Gillespie, of Vancouver, downed Mrs. O. G. Gray, of Toronto.

Miss Pope's triumph stood out above any other achievement. The 18-year-old London girl rattled off the first set with ease and Mrs. Coke instantly drove over the baseline from both forehand and backhand. But it was a different story in the second set.

Mrs. Coke began to find the range with flat forehand returns of Miss Pope's favorite soft mid-court shots Placement after placement sent the Ontario Player into retreat. It was almost too late before she started to hit out and prevent Mrs. Coke from scoring at will.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

TORONTO EXCHANGE.
Mining Section.

TORONTO, July 18 (CP).—Several gold shares boomed along today on a burst of heavy buying and these spread confidence throughout the mining list. The close was higher with only a few exceptions. Metals and the big gold were slow, while Eldorado starred for the silver group, advancing 30 cents to 2.72 on heavy volume. The day's turnover was better than a million shares.

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, July 18 (AP)—Quiet firmness characterized stock market dealings today. Prices were higher from the opening and gains in the late trading ranged from fraction to two or more points. U.S. Smelting got up four while Du Pont rose three. General Motors, U.S. Steel, Santa Fe, Case and American Can advanced around a point or more each. Transfers approximated only 375,000 shares.

While many stocks recovered fractions to around a point or so, the trading activity was still of the drab pattern which has marked recent sessions. Only a sprinkling of diffident customers was to be seen in the boardrooms and most professionals found their seats on the sidelines quite comfortable. Bonds steadied and International dollar rates were somewhat higher.

Shares of Phillip Morris reached another new year's high with the gain of a point. Others up about as much included Chrysler, Columbian Carbon, American Can, Du Pont, Case, Johns-Manville, Western Union, McKesson, American Sugar Refining, Santa Fe, N.Y. Central, U.S. Smelting and Bethlehem Steel.

Dome was steady while modest improvement was registered by Canadian Pacific, McIntyre and International Nickel. On the curb, Hiram Walker regained a fraction of yesterday's loss while Lake Shore was barely steady. Dominion Government 4's were a bit higher.

TORONTO EXCHANGE
Industrials Section.

TORONTO, July 18 (CP).—The industrial market turned up today on active buying support which was attracted by the technical strength developed on the smart decline which had extended over two or three sessions. The distillery group, Canadian Wineries, the interlisted leaders including Brazilian, Ford A, Nickel and C.P.R., were all on the up side at the close. The bulk of the trade was in the distillery and oil shares and Brazilian.

Industrial shares firmed today on the technical strength created by two days of falling prices, the distillery shares particularly exhibiting a more cheerful tone. Volume was better than the summer average in the first three hours, with the turnover heaviest in the liquor stocks, nickel and Brazilian.

There was no rush to accumulate the brewery shares despite the announcement that beer sale by the glass would be a reality before the end of this week in Ontario, the Brewing Corporation shares lost some ground and the other issues of the group were unchanged.

The power shares were moderately lower this afternoon in slow trading.

New York, N.Y., July 18:

Eventually this market is bound to stage a breath-taking advance, but it is hard to find anything in the day to day picture to justify any important move over the next several days. Meanwhile, one can rest assured that declines are not going far nor lasting long. While the public as yet does not realize how far we have gone toward money inflation and does not yet see any urgent need for converting capital into commodities and stocks nevertheless it would be difficult to force sales of stocks since most owners of securities are maintaining their holdings at this time if for no better reason than a hedge.

American Smelting, Howe Sound, and Kennecott are issues that offer very marked advantages over the utility and rail shares to those investors and speculators who are anxious to protect their capital and possibly increase it. Lehigh Valley Coal Pfd. has moved thru to a new high for the year and is quite likely to score further sharp gains in response to the marked improvement in the Company's earnings.

BROKERS' OPINIONS.

Muir & Co:—"We reiterate the belief that while further irregularity may be witnessed, improvement seems likely in the near future."

Paine Webber & Co:—"Regard stocks as still definitely in a buyers market."

T. E. Barney:—"The technical position of the market has been improved and a minor rally seems possible."

Chicago, July 18th (10:00 a.m.):

Scorching temperatures brought further damage to the corn crop in the southwest states yesterday and induced speculative revival which was reminiscent of the big markets of other years. Other grains followed corn. The intense heat in certain sections of the southwest states has been prolonged and temperatures readings of over 110 degrees were reported in places. Chicago Tribune.

Dr. G. Rogers To Stay On Education Staff

The medical fraternity of Peterborough has received an acquisition in the person of Dr. Robert F. Nott of Toronto who has opened an office at 176 McDonnel street. He graduated from the University of Toronto in 1932, and since then has been doing post graduate work in Toronto and the Maritime provinces.

"Of all the places I visited, Peterborough made the strongest appeal to me, and I decided to open an office here in my residence on McDonnel street, here I am beginning a general practice of medicine and surgery."

NEWBERRY, S.C., July 18. — (CP)—Tom Ellison missed a mule colt on his farm and started a search.

The last place he looked was in the house—and there was the mule asleep in Ellison's bed.

Said Ellison, "He'd eat at the table with us if we'd let him."

RECOUNT SHOWS SLIGHT CHANGE

a separate letter by the deputy returning officer, Joseph Bleakley.

If this ballot is rejected, Lancaster's majority at these twelve polls is reduced from 32 to 28. His majority as officially reported was 24.

Facilitates Recount.

Sheriff Hall produced the big wooden crate in which the sealed envelopes have been locked since they were received from the deputy returning officers. Judge O'Connor of Cobourg agreed to a suggestion by W. F. Huycke and J. F. Strickland, K.C., to expedite the recount by sharing the responsibility with representatives of Mr.Lancaster and Mr. Hawthorne, comprising two other assisting groups.

By this means three envelopes were opened at a time. Their ballots were counted by Judge O'Connor, Mr. Strickland, representing Mr. Lancaster, and Mr. Huycke, representing Mr. Hawthorne, at a separate table; and at an adjoining table the two other groups were Jack Harstone for Mr. Hawthorne and D. J. Lawrie for Mr. Lancaster acting together; and T. J. Carley for Mr. Hawthorne and E. F. Sheehy for Mr. Lancaster.

By this method twelve polls were disposed of up to the noon luncheon. Mr. Lancaster was preseit at this morning's session.

Lancaster Gains One.

At Poll No. 14, H. Dunford's house Brock Street, Lancaster gained one; and a ballot marked for Hawthorne was set aside for further consideration. The original count was, Hawthorne 50, Lancaster 89, and Sutherland 16; and the recount figures are: Hawthorne 50, Lancaster 90, and Sutherland 16

At Poll 10, R. J. Miller's house, 275 Sherbrooke Street, one ballot marked for Hawthorne was rejected on Judge O'Connor's ruling. The upper arms of the "X" were in the white space opposite Hawthorne's name, and the lower half was on the adjoining black space. The recount at this poll was: Hawthorne 54, Lancaster 81, and Sutherland 17; and the original returns were: Hawthorne 55, Lancaster 81, Sutherland 17.

Poll No. 19 at 541 Gilmour Street, Lancaster picked up another vote. This ballot had been marked for Lancaster with a soft pencil and when folded the pencilled "X" left a similar but fainter impression on the space for Sutherland. For that reason evidently, it had been originally rejected, but was allowed in the recount.

The recount totals at this poll were: Hawthorne 92, Lancaster 71, Sutherland 20; and the first returns were: Hawthorne 92, Lancaster 70 and Sutherland 20.

Hawthorne Gains Two.

At Poll No. 34, Hill's house Robinson and Mark Streets, three rejected ballots were allowed. Two were for Hawthorne and one for Sutherland. A fourth was set aside for argument.

The original figures were: Hawthorne 92, Lancaster 49, and Sutherland 27; and the recount: Hawthorne 94, Lancaster 49, and Sutherland 28.

At Poll No. 83, Orange Hall, Douro a Lancaster ballot also marked for Sutherland was rejected. The recount figures are: Hawthorne 99, Lancaster 80, and Sutherland 22. The original returns were: Hawthorne 99, Lancaster 81, and Sutherland 22.

At Poll 54, Havelock, Lancaster dropped one vote. His original return being reduced from 80 to 79. Hawthorne's figure was unchanged at 31.

Ballot on Floor.

Sheriff Hall, as returning officer, presented a marked ballot for Lancaster from poll 69, Cottesloe, with a letter from the deputy returning officer, Joseph Bleakley, explaining that he had found this ballot on the floor among waste electoral papers on the morning after the election. Mr. Bleakley said it had been counted. Cottesloe is in Dummer Township. The original count was: Hawthorne 56, Lancaster 30, and Sutherland 9. If this ballot should be rejected it would reduce Lancaster's vote there to 29.

Correct Returns.

The recount showed correct returns from polls 58 at Norwood, 49 at Young's Point, 78 at Post's School, Chandos, 84 at Rush Point, Belmont, 17A at Kent's house, King Street.

Continuing, he told of the finding of the bodies of John and Joseph Bradley in the afternoon in a stable and hen house, a short distance from the house.

FRISCO STRIKE NOT A.F.L. AFFAIR

No National Significance States Labor President William Green.

ISSUES STATEMENT.

CHICAGO, July 18. (AP). William A. Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, today asserted that the general strike at San Francisco was neither ordered nor authorized by the A.F. of L. and has no national significance, as far as organized labor was concerned.

Green explained that there had been some confusion in the public mind and he believed some explanation from him to clear up the situation was in order.

The text of this statement follows:

"The strike in San Francisco is local in character, possessing no national significance. It originated with the workers directly involved. Through an assumption of authority growing out of certain autonomous rights conferred upon local organizations. Their representatives ordered the strike and must accept full responsibility for this action.

"The American Federation of Labor neither ordered the strike nor authorized it. At no time has its counsel or advice been solicited or its services requested. But even though the American Federation of Labor is not directly involved, its officers and members are deeply concerned over the existing situation and are hoping for a speedy and satisfactory settlement.

"While, unfortunately, the public mind is confused regarding the issues involved in this strike, labor generally knows and understands that if the workers who are engaged in the purely sympathetic strike win, they gain a moral victory, but if they lose they lose all.

"When working people are engaged in an economic life or death struggle, it does not seem appropriate for their friends to engage in comment which might be used against them by their enemies. At the moment, therefore, when the intense struggle is approaching a climax, it is not so much a question of the wisdom or the unwisdom of the action taken. Instead, an honorable settlement of the industrial conflict upon an equitable basis, should be the question of supreme concern to all fair, just and social minded people."

REVISION MADE ALL DOWN LIST

As far as he knew, he said, it might be on sale in St. Thomas tomorrow when the monster victory celebration is being staged by the people of Mr. Hepburns' home county of Elgin.

Unofficially the new regulations were stated to provide for sale of beer alone by the glass in the beverage rooms of standard hotels.

Standard Hotels Only

No beverage room licenses will be issued to any premises except standard hotels. Sale of beer and wine will be permitted with meals in hotels dining rooms, on boats, on trains and in certain clubs.

The regulations have been drafted with great care and involve practically a revision of the whole set of regulations formerly in force in order to provide for the effective operation of the amendments to the Liquor Control Act passed at the last session of the legislature. Every precaution has been taken to ensure that beer will make its re-entry on the Ontario stage without fuss and without celebrations. Final approval will not be placed on the regulations until late this afternoon and will be published at once in the Ontario Gazette.

Many areas in Ontario, of course, will not have beer sale as they are under local option and will remain dry. Toronto hotel keepers are busy getting their applications in for licenses as this city has no local ban on liquor sale.

On Sale Here Saturday.

Although the sale of beer and wine in standard hotels is to be legalized to-morrow, it is not considered likely that Peterborough hotels will have it for sale before Saturday or the first of next week. Hotel owners and managers queried this afternoon said they were absolutely in the dark as to the regulations by which they will have to abide and the details involved.

With one or two exceptions, no move to provide facilities for the sale of beer and wine have been made in the local hotels. All have been waiting for definite information from the Liquor Control Board before spending any money. It is understood that the original applications for licenses made on forms sent out from the Board in June are to be accepted as satisfactory and the seven local hotels have all sent these in.

The details of providing even temporary facilities for dispensing beer and securing a supply may cause a delay of one or two days even after the licenses have arrived in the city, one of the hotel men opined this afternoon. It is presumed that the source of the Peterborough supply of beer and wine will be, for the present, the Brewery Warehouse.

PUNT OVERTURNS IN TRENT RIVER

misstep, and within an instant both youngsters were struggling helplessly in the water.

The Kelly boy, a poor swimmer, after a desperate struggle managed to climb out upon the bank. He was so exhausted that he was trembling violently and his legs would not sustain him. However, he lay panting on the bank and tried to shout encouragement to the other lad.

Douglas Haig, who could not swim at all, had been successful in seizing hold of the overturned punt. Desperately he clung to it, while his friend from the shore shouted, "Hold on tight Dougie, hold on! I'll get help."

However, the boy's grip on the boat weakened. He gave a convulsive lurch, through up his arms, and disappeared beneath the water.

When the alarm was spread, every available boat and all pikepoles and grappling hooks were rushed up the river to assist in recovering the body. Harry Blecker and Kenneth Cairns, Hydro employees, succeeded in bringing up the body with grappling hooks.

Many young men refused to delay the effort of searching for the body until boats and grappling hocks arrived. Dick Ramsden was passing along the road in his car. Informed of the drowning, he left his car and, fully clothed, dove into the river. Later he donned a bathing suit and continued diving.

Other young men who dove time after time after the body were: Don McArthur, Charles Couch, Mervin Malcolm, Don Myers, John Harmer, George Smith, Bill Blue and Louis Garrison.

Passes Entrance.

To-day the drowned boy had just received word that he had successfully passed his entrance examinations. His father was away berry-picking and did not know of the fatality until after the body was recovered.

The boy's body was removed to Bennett's undertaking parlors. The tragedy has cast a pall of sadness over the whole town, since the boy was most popular with everyone.

REV. JOHN MOIR PASSES IN CITY

Brother of Dr. A. Moir Retired From Pastorate in Priceville in June.

IN FAILING HEALTH.

Rev. John Alexander Moir, B.D., LL.B., prominent Presbyterian and United Church minister, died at his home here to-day after an illness of two years, at the age of 64 years.

Up until June 1, Rev. Mr. Moir had conducted his United Church charge at Priceville, Ontario, but failing health, which commenced two years ago as the result of an accident, forced him to retire, and he moved to this city.

He was born at Luther, Ontario, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Moir. He was a graduate of the University of Toronto and Knox College, and had pursued post graduate studies at Glasgow, and Hartford Theological Seminary.

Previous to church union he was a pastor of the Presbyterian church. He had served with marked success in churches at Port Arthur, Woodbridge, Hartford, Conn., and Priceville, Ontario.

He is survived by five sisters, Miss Kate, Miss Mary Ann, Miss Bella, Mrs. Porteous, Mrs. Turnbull, of Canfield, and one brother, Dr. A. Moir, of this city.

The funeral will be held from his late residence, 580 Gilmour street, at 8 p.m. Thursday, and the body will be conveyed to Dunnville, where a funeral service will be conducted at 3 p.m. on Friday. Interment will be made in the Dunville cemetery.

The premier said the Dominion government maintained a complete service of trade commissioners in England and elsewhere to which Ontario contributed heavily in taxes and to whose attention Ontario was entitled. There was no need of the province maintaining an independent organization at great expense although it might be a nice thing if the government could afford it.

SAN FRANCISCO BUOYED BY PLAN

Reference Board, arrived here by aeroplane from Washington.

United States Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, author of the original Labor Disputes Bill, hurried to Portland, Ore., where a general strike threat was held back by a union "strategy committee" pending action he may take.

Secretary Collapsed

The San Francisco general strike committee's "peace" call came from a turbulent meeting of the members at the Labor Temple at which John O' O'Connell, secretary of the Central Labor Council, collapsed and was taken to his home in a serious condition.

In its resolution stating the offer, the strike committee called upon the 27,000 marine and dock workers of the coast to submit to arbitration by a Federal Board appointed by President Roosevelt.

Employers likewise were asked to place issue in dispute in the hands of the President's Board and the entire proposal was made contingent upon employer recognition of all the 10 maritime unions whose strike has crippled shipping since May 9.

The longshoremen's demand for complete control of hiring agencies, which has been a stumbling block in mediation attempts thus far, was Maritime union members of the committee came from the meeting obviously angry, and Harry Bridges, militant longshoremen's representative, declared the proposal "will never be accepted by the men."

Immediate consideration of the olive-branch offer by water front and shipping employers, however, was announced by Thomas G. Plant their authorized spokesman. He said the proposal would be taken up at a meeting to-day.

"Labor has done its part," declared Edward Vandeleur, president of the Central Labor Council and the chairman of the general strike committee. "The matter rests entirely with the shipowners now."

At Spokane, a boycott on all business with California concerns until troops are removed from the San Francisco strike area was announced by the Central Labor Council through Albert Leslie, the secretary.

Will Deport Radicals.

The police and "vigilante" raids against the alleged Communist in the San Francisco region, brought a promise from District Attorney Matthew Brady that efforts would be made to have all radical aliens caught in the round-up deported.

Dozens of men were injured, four arrested and scores scattered in a street flare-up last night which occurred as police attempted to disperse crowds listening to an asserted Communist orator. men Rosselle Dunckel and Jerome Hogan. The federal agents' statement quoted the opinions of Dr. Munger and staff physicians of Grassland Hospital that the child could have survived the five days—without water or food—in the woods.

Dr. Munger estimated the child had lost from 10 to 20 pounds. His stomach was swollen from lack of nourishment. At the hospital it was determined he had eaten quantities of grass.

Policeman Dunckel explained that he and Hogan found the child by looking "where nobody else had looked." They carried Bobby to a police car and, with siren going, raced to the Connor home.

"My baby! Oh, my baby!" cried Mrs. Connor when they brought her her child.

Then she collapsed and Bobby was rushed to the hospital accompanied by his father.

Customary $10 00 fine was imposed.

Yesterday the hen laid an egg of unusual size and on opening it, Mr. Lynch found a smaller but perfect egg inside it. The original egg weighed eight ounces, measured nine and a half inches around lengthwise, and eight and a half inches around the middle. When broken open it was found to contain a large yolk, three-quarters of a cup of white albumen, and another perfectly shelled egg. C. C. F. LAY DOWN NEW PROGRAM OF FOUR POINTS

Immediate Objectives Cover Labor, Agriculture, Finance and Peace.

PREPARE FOR ELECTION.

Hope to End System That Makes Poverty, Insecurity in Land of Plenty.

By SAM G. ROSS

Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG, July 18 (C.P.)—Preparing for the next Federal election, the second annual national convention of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation to-day debated a four-point program of immediate objectives.

Covering agriculture, labor, finance and peace, the immediate program included socialization of all finance including the newly created central bank; reduction of farmers' debts and rural credits to aid agriculturists and legislation for control and processing and distribution of farm products.

A mass housing scheme to be financed by public credit under direction of a national housing corporation, national regulation of hours in industry and social insurance were included in the labor section of the program. The peace section declared for refusal to send Canadian soldiers to fight in wars in foreign countries.

Preparedness Key Word

Introducing the program, J. S. Woodsworth, Winnipeg, national chairman, declared the program "was not, strictly speaking, an election program." He thought the Federal election might still be a year distant, but believed preparedness should be the watchword of the federation.

Based on the 14-point manifesto adopted at Regina a year ago, the immediate program outlined the objectives the federation should seek in the immediate future.

"A C.C.F. government will release the community from control of banks and financial magnate by the socialization of all our banking and financing machinery, including the central bank," the financial section declared. "It will use this publicly-controlled system to begin at once an extensive program of public works and services financed by the national credit."

Protection for Farmer

Dealing with agriculture, it promised protection of the farmer against foreclosure by creditors and from exploitation by packers, millers, dairy corporation and others. Planned extension of markets for farm products was proposed and encouragement was promised all consumers' and producers' co-operative.

"The C.C.F. will bring to an end the system which makes poverty and insecurity the prevailing condition of the workers in this land of plenty,' 'the labor section declared. "We will initiate an immediate large scale program of public works, including especially a mass housing scheme. The set-up of the proposed national housing corporation was not disclosed.

The national regulation of hours in industry would be achieved even if amendment of the British North America act were necessary.

C.C.F. Delegates Turn To Study Resolutions

Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG, July 18.—(CP)—Formalities and the first bits of business finished, delegates to the annual convention of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation today swung into the study of resolutions.

Patiently awaited was the political program and platform of the Federation which will be used for the basis of campaigns in all provinces in the next federal election. It will have its foundation in the 14-point manifesto adopted at the first national gathering in Regina last year.

Late last night the platform was being given its final touches by the national executive and it was believed it might go before the delegates late today for consideration. It was also under consideration during the week-end pre-convention meetings of the executive.

Registration of accredited delegates went over the anticipated mark. The total so far is 218, with approximately 50 of them women. Western representation is strongest but there is a large delegation from Ontario and a group from Quebec.

Labor troubles in America are accentuating the gloomy silk situation in Japan.

N. Dakota Governor Orders Martial Law

BISMARCK, N. D., July 18.—(AP)—Governor William Langer today ruled North Dakota by military force in defiance of a State Supreme court order ousting him from office.

He clung tenaciously to his office, placing the entire state under martial law in a move to prevent Lieut. Gov. Ole H. Olson from taking over the duties of governor.

Service of a writ of quo warranto on the governor was necessary to complete the Supreme Court proceeding in which the justices ruled, four to one, last night that Langer's conviction of a conspiracy to solicit political contributions from federal relief workers disqualified him from holding office.

SISTERS OF ST. JOSEPH WIN APPEAL-EXEMPTION GRANTED

Judge Robert Ruddy Delivers Judgment in North Monaghan Case.

APPEAL AGAINST $28,800

By his decision, announced yesterday, Judge Robert Ruddy of Whitby has granted the appeal of the Sisters of St. Joseph against the 1934 assessment of their propery in the township of North Monaghan.

The appeal was heard by His Honors in his chambers here a week ago. The evidence adduced the facts that the Mount St. Joseph property was valued by the township's assessor, Bert Sanderson, at $158,000, representing land and buildings, that he had exempted the chapel and other sections of the Mount to the extent of $130,000 on the ground that should be classed as a seminary of learning.

J. R. Corkery, solicitor for the Sisterhood, argued that the property could not be separated in this way for assessment purposes, but should be embraced in its entirety, within the meaning of the Assessment Act, as a seminary of learnin. The appeal before Judge Ruddy was against the remaining assessment of $28,800.

Fourty-four acres comprise the farm lands at Mount St. Joseph.

Judge's Decision

Judge Ruddy's decision is quoted in part as follows:

I find that the appellants maintain and operate on the said property a seminary of learning for philanthropic and education purposes within the meaning of R.S.O. chapter 238, section 4 (4), and that such operations extend to certain benevolent and charitable institutions in the city of Peterborough and province of Ontario.

I find that the whole profits derived from the operations of such institutions are devoted to the purposes of the institution only and that all said grounds and buildings are and were actually used and occupied by the appellants except the dwelling house known as the Stewart property, which I find is occupied by a tenant who pays rent.

There are at present ninety members of the community, fifty-two of whom are in training as novices, and there are twenty teachers doing duty in the Separate schools of the city of Peterborough and vicinity. The remainder are engaged in educational and executive matters in connection with the institution.

The value of the whole property including the buildings, according to the evidence of the assessor, for assessment purposes is $158,800. The assessor has exempted certain parts such as the chapel and certain parts of the main community building to the extent of $130,000, and has assessed the other parts such as dining-room , kitchen and reception rooms, also bedrooms, the dwelling house, farm lands and out buildings at $28,800; and it is against this assessment that the community appeals.

On the authority of the Assessment Act it seems clear on the evidence that the whole of this property other than the Stewart dwelling house, assessed at $500, is exempt.

I therefore allow the appeal except as to said dwelling house, the assessment of which is hereby affirmed, and I direct the clerk of the municipality to reduce the said assessment to $500 and to amend the assessment roll accordingly."

ROBERT RUDDY,
Acting Judge.

TRYING TO BREAK ROCKET ALTITUDE

Chicago Man Seeks to Shoot Projectile to Record Height.

CHICAGO, July 18.—(CP)—A rocket may shoot skyward out of Chicago this summer in efforts to go higher into space than any man-made thing has gone before.

Dr. Larwin O. Lyon, physicist and rocket expert, announced a new rocket was being constructed at New York which he hopes will break the present rocket altitude record of 31,680 feet.

The projectile will be about 40 feet high, propelled by a powerful explosive and fused in a secret process. When the first charge is exhausted its carrier drops off, igniting the second, which at the end of its impetus releases a third. The last, attaining its height, releases a parachute-supported tip which is intended to carry scientific instruments back to the earth.

He said when the projectile was completed he expected to make his experimental shot from here.

NEW YORK, July 18.—(AP)—The band played "Mighty Lak a Rose" in the mid-town fish market yesterday and the sale of flounders advanced "something tremendous."

The occasion was the first of the fish market concerts, sponsored by the Departme: of Markets to encourage New Yorkers to buy more fish.

Soon the fish market will hear opera singers during the marketing hours.

HON. G. S. HENRY CALLED TO BOX

however, rental of $130,000 was remitted to the company.

Mr. Henry said he could give no explanation for the remission, not being familiar with "all the details."

When he bought the bonds of the company, he said, he had received a letter from the firm which sold them to him asking if he wished to have them registered. He said he replied in the affirmative but registration was not accomplished. When the time came for him to turn them over for bonds of the Hydro Commission, he explained, he merely handed them to his broker.

During the morning session Horace Wallis, Deputy Minister in the Premier's office, said two letters from the Ontario Power Service Corporation and the Abitibi Power and Paper Company were missing from the fyles in the Premier's office.

When the probe was resumed Russell Locke, representing former Premier George S. Henry, was not present and it was agreed Mr. Henry should go on the witness stand and that Mr. Locke be supplied with a transcript of the evidence.

P. H. Gordon who sought information yesterday whether the government would appoint counsel for Senator Arthur Meighen and others named in the investigation asked Mr. Justice Latchford if he had reached any conclusion regarding payment of counsel for former members of the Hydro commission.

Mr. Justice Latchford replied: "I have no conclusion to reach."

Arthur Slaght, K.C., Commission Counsel said the Attorney-General of Ontario could find no reason for such payment. At the last Hydro Inquiry, he said, no such action had been taken.

"The government did not retain its own counsel at the last inquiry," said Mr. Henry.

"It paid Mr. Tilley (W. E. N. Tilley, K.C.)" Mr. Slaght said.

Mr. Meighen challenged the power of the Commission. "We have no objection to any officer of the government looking into our own affairs—they have a right to do so," he said, but he objected to affairs of "our companies being investigated and printed in the press of Canada" when, he claimed, they did not concern matters of interest to the investigators.

It should be shown clearly, he said, how the part the companies played affected the public business.

He maintained it was the duty of "anyone who desires to produce his evidence showing there was any restraint on the public business."

Delving Into Records

Mr. Meighen said a government official was now in offices of companies of which he was a member, delving into his records.

Long before he was connected with the companies, he said, they had contracts and dealings with the Hydro Commission and it was these bonds that were being probed.

"There is nothing the Hydro Commission can do which would affect the value of these bonds, he said.

If all these things were to be investigated he continued, "we could not do business at all. We could not hold a Dominion Government bond." He said such an investigation had "never been done in any British company."

If any of his acts as a Hydro Commissioner had affected his companies, he said, it was his duty to disclose his connection to his colleagues.

He challenged Mr. Slaght to produce evidence that any act of his companies affected in any way the conduct of public business.

He said he was charged with having subordinated his duty as a commissioner in order to profit personally. Until this was proved, he declared, there could be no fair investigation.

Quoting from a published speech of Mr. Slaght, Mr. Meighen read he was accused of using "inside information he received as a Hydro Commissioner to purchase bonds at low price."

"If I did that I have no qualification for public life and should be reprimanded, said Mr. Meighen.

But these charges, hurled throughout the country, were not made in the proper way, he said, and he had been invited to "take the stump." He had sought an investigation repeatedly and finally when a Federal investigation was pending, "with haste never before shown by any government, another inquiry "was hurled into the field."

He contended transactions of his companies as dirdectly connected wih Hydro should be invesigaed, but declared Hydro had not sought the Ontario Power Service Corporation deal but had recommended it at the request of the Provincial government.

Ontario guaranteed us against loss; guaranteed the whole thing," he said. "The whole transaction was over, completed. We had no discretion. I ask my friend to show where we had discretion when he shows that ,and not before, he has a right to investigate these companies."

Companies with which he was connected might be investigated if it was shown "Hydro could exercise any discretion in this transaction; Mr. Slaght has got to show first there was a time when we could exercise it."

Onus on Mr. Slaght

"This thing of parading the fact Mr. Meighen had some bonds is simply a means of pulling the wool over the eyes of the public" he went on. "Does any one say a minister should not hold Vctory Bonds? The onus is on Mr. Slaght and it is a very heavy onus, indeed."

The company which held $3,000 bonds was bought in 1920, he said. But at that time, "I owed a lot of money and the bonds were in the hands of New York brokers."

Mr. Slaght at this point objected, declaring Mr. Meighen was making a "political speech"

Mr. Meighen declared he wished to point out many of the charges had been made by Mr. Slaght, who was now commission counsel.

Time after time the Senator arued there was nothing to stop Mr. Slaght from even "investigating the religion of my children."

"My companies have rights, and if I have failed in my duties it has been to my companies," he said.

He did not intend, said Mr. Justice Latchford, to impose any restriction on counse for the commission as to the method he used in conducting the investigation unless he departed from recognized practice.

Mr. Meighen then appealed to Hon. Mr. Smith, and the latter said he would make no decision until both sides were heard.

"Misstatements."

Mr. Slaght charged Mr. Meighen with "misstatements" when he said no act of his as a Hydro commissioner had affected value of the bonds. The Power Commission Act stated clearly the "Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, on the recommendation of the Commission" could carry out such transactions, he said .The O.P.S.C. bonds came under this Act, he maintained and Mr. Henry and his counsel must have this recommendation "to do what they did." Mr. Meighen he charged, had been at a meeting and had recommended this transaction.

The "good bonds of Hydro had been exchanged for the worthless bonds" of the O.P.S.C., he said. "They flung out to this Province $18,000,000 worth of these bonds and he was not a party to it. Why did he not protest? Without his consent it could not have been done unless he was voted down by his associates, and I'll produce evidence to show he never raised his voice in protest."

Mr. Slaght quoted decisions of Justices in the York County Children's Aid Society probe as to the powers of Commission and Mr. Meighen said they were not relevant to the present inquiry.

"The Government is not the owner of Hydro; it is the banker," he said.

Hydro acted for the municipalities only, he said. "Can anyone suggest the Government cannot make a purchase with its own funds, on its own responsibility, with the recommendation of Hydro? Can anyone seriously suggest that? The Government is supreme. The Premier wrote a letter to Hydro saying what was to be done."

An Act of Government

He said the government had simply told Hydro it was the instrument by which a thing was to be done and had indemnified it against loss. "We never made the slightest inquiry, none whatever. It was none of our business. May I ask if my friend has established the onus on us. Has he shown where we had any discretion? It was an act of government. Am I responsible for an act of the government? Should the affairs of these companies be paraded by the press through the country? Should their holdings be made known to their competitors? This is governmental; it isn't Hydro at all."

Mr. Meighen challenged Mr. Slaght to show in the resolution passed by Hydro recommending the purchase that there was evidence of Hydro's discretion.

It was finally decided Mr. Meighen's companies would be left until this action was done.

Then Mr. Meighen protested against having too "dig" through all the books and records at this time.

"Mr. Justice Latchford said only evidence pertaining to the O.P.S.C. was necessary.

Horace Wallis, former deputy premier, was then called to the stand. He identified correspondence between Mr. Henry and Hon. J. R. Cooke, former Hydro commissioner, regarding the O.P.S.C. deal. The letter asked the commission to take "such steps as it deems fit" in taking over the Abitibi Power and Paper Company to Mr. Henry, could not be found in the fyles, Mr. Wallis said, although they were shown on the index fyles.

A thorough search had been made in the former premier's office but the letters had not been found, he said.

Henry Testifies.

Mr. Henry was then called. He became Premier on December 16, 1930, and resigned July 10, 1934, he said. He had had dealings with Hydro during this period. Previous to that he was Minister of Highways and Public Works for eight months. In 1926, when the lease was issued to the Hudson Bay Power Company, he was a Cabinet Minister, he said. In that year Hydro had a total of 1,339,000 horse-power under contract.

The correspondence relating to the power lease fyled yesterday was recalled to Mr. Henry, and he said he was Acting Minister of Lands and Forests temporarily when he recommended granting of the lease. At that time Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of the Department, was out of the city.

The lease called for sale of 100,000 horse-power to Hydro at $13 per horse-power, under a 40-year contract. This was in April, 1930. There was a definite contract whereby O.P.S.C. would have paid $1 per horse-power rebate to Hydro.

Under an amendment three months later, the private company was released from this obligation of $100,000. He had no recollection of why this step was taken, said Mr. Henry.

From the fyles, said Mr. Slaght, it appeared the company had asked to be released of this $100,000 per year, and it was done. "Was there any visible reason?"

"I was not closely enough connected to the transaction at that time," Mr. Henry said. "Then, although you recommended the contract and were a member of the Cabinet, you knew little of the returned $100,000?"

"Very little. I was not fully acquainted with the details."

In the original lease he had regarded the terms as reasonable and fair to the private company.

Questioned by Mr. Slaght as to any "business reason or justification of the passing out of what might be called a bit of a plum to the lessee of $100,000 relief," Mr. Henry insisted he had none; that he knew little of the amendment which gave the company the right to drop the payments.

McADOO DIVORCE MAY BE PROBED

Presiding Judge Wants to be Sure All Processes Duly Followed.

5-MINUTE CASE.

LOS ANGELES, July 18 (A.P.).—The divorce of Senator William Gibbs McAdoo and Mrs. Eleanor Wilson McAdoo, daughter of the late President Woodrow Wilson, faced an inquiry to-day by Presiding Judge Frank C. Collier of the Superior Court.

Mrs. McAdoo was granted the divorce by Superior Judge Allan B. Campbell in a hearing lasting about five minutes yesterday—within 20 minutes after she fyled suit.

"It would be possible for a complaint to be fyled and go through the regular processes in the time which this action took," Judge Collier said, "but I want to know that all the processes were duly followed in the case."

The Washington weather and differences of interest were blamed by Mrs. McAdoo for the divorce, obtained on grounds of incompatibility.

"As a Senator, Mr. McAdoo is obliged to spend the larger part of each year in Washington," she said in a statement. "The climate does not agree with me, and it is impossible for me to live there. I have and always shall have the greatest admiration and affection for Mr. McAdoo."

The Senator, who did not contest the action, said she "correctly stated the reasons for the separation."

The court approved a property settlement, which was not made public, and awarded custody of the children, Eleanor, 19, and Faith, 14, jointly to the parents.

Cogs Hold E.P.L. Victory Record Intact

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

TOMORROW IS the big opening of the Grand Circuit trotting meet at Thorncliffe. There are over 400 horses on the grounds, most of whom arrived by special train from Toledo, Ohio over the week-end. The same day also marks the closing of the Fort Erie fourteen day meeting, which was a success in every way. They had only two bad days from a weather standpoint during the entire session.

Trainer Lloyd Gentry threw a bomb shell into racing circles yesterday when he issued a writ against the five members of Canadian Racing Association for one hundred thousand dollars. He claims they have taken away his livelihood by steadfastly refusing to issue him a license and have impaired his standing with jockey clubs across the line. If this case is not settled it is liable to wreck the foundation of Canadian racing. We think in fairness to Mr. Gentry the C.R.A. ought to make public the reasons, if any of why they will not grant him a licence. In the meantime the public who pay for the entertainment are penalized as the powerful Hatch Stable of horses are not allowed to start at any C. R. A. track.

DARK MISSION is back in winning form again as he proved on Monday when he led home a nice field. He will repeat this effort next time out. There is a horse up at Fort Erie called Hayfire that is bound to win one of his next few starts. When he belonged to the Seagram Stable he was a consistent winner but this season for some reason or other he does not seem able to get started, but each successive effort shows improvement over the previous start so keep your weather eye on him.

Tullihoo is another ex-Seagramite who has been in the money in all his last few starts but cannot seem to be a winner. It will not surprise us greatly if he pops down in front any day now. They have a horse down at Rockingham called Kibitzer, but who should be named Rip Van Winkle as he is a pronounced sleeper and is going to wake up with a bang any day now. He does the same thing about four times a year and what a price he always pays as the boys get sick and tired waiting for him, but from now you will not have to wait very long, or we miss our guess. Grace Blotter, a smart sprinter is quartered at the same place, is ready to partake of the gravy. Conny Smythe, whose horses have been conspicuous this year by their absence from the races, had a starter the other day at Detroit in Exhibition. This one is a real horse and cost Conny a lot of money last year in Kentucky where he purchased him.

WINNERS SCORE FOUR COUNTERS IN BIG SECOND

Lefty McIlwaine Hit Hard in This Frame as Cogs Cinch E.P.L. Victory.

14 HITS IN ALL.

E.P.L. standing to date:

Team	P.	W.	L.	T.	T.P.
Cogs	9	8	0	1	4
C.G.E.	9	4	4	1	4
Fosters	10	0	8	2	4

One big inning—the second when four runs were scored—gave Cogs a 5-1 win over Fosters in their E.P.L. game at the Exhibition Grounds last night. A small crowd saw the Clubmen keep intact their record of no losses so far this summer in a good ball game. Outside of this one frame, the teams played on even terms.

Lefty McIlwaine started again on Fosters' mound but was hit hard in the second and again in the fourth, being derricked in this stanza in favor of Lefty Dunkerley who held Cogs in subjection the rest of the way. McIlwaine allowed seven hits and three walks, while Dunkerley was nicked for but one hit while he issued one free base. They had no strikeouts. Casey Masterson went the route in good style for the winners, fanning five, walking two and being touched for six scattered hits.

Fair Fielding.

While the fielding was good for the most part, and only two errors apiece was chalked up against the rival teams, several scratchy hits were counted when fast fielding would have helped the pitchers. B. Bailey and Dinesen of Fosters, and Padgett and Masterson of Cogs went good defensively. Three double-plays were pulled off. Maudsley led the losers at bat with two in three times, and Dinesen hit a double. For Cogs, Masterson and Billingsley each hit safely twice, Casey's both being doubles, with Billingsley and Mein hitting a two-bagger apiece. Rogers got a hit in one official time at bat.

Cinch Win in Second.

Cogs got four in the second on a walk, singles by Rogers and Vannest, three pilfered sacks and doubles by Masterson and Billingsley. They got their other one in the fourth when Mein doubled, was sacrificed and tallied on Billingsley's single. Fosters got their lone marker in the fifth, McIlwaine being safe on an error, stealing second and racing home on Dinesen's double to left.

SIXTH FRAME SPLURGE WINS FOR DETROIT

Tigers Strengthen Grip on First Place as Yankees Lose 13-5.

BOSTON SOX TRIUMPHS.

(By The Canadian Press)

In the American League the Tigers and Yankees returned to the point at which their "crucial" series ended two days ago when the league leaders beat out the Senators 4-3 and the Yankees took a 13-5 drubbing from the Indians.

Despite his wildness Carl Fisher pitched six-hit ball for Detroit and escaped trouble when his mates gave him superb backing after scoring three runs in the sixth on four hits and an error. Cleveland's batters hit practically everything offered by Johnny Broaca, Danny MacFayden and Burleigh Grimes as they piled up 17 hits for their victory.

Wesley Ferrell picked up a share of the day's pitching laurels when he limited the White Sox to six hits and chalked up his seventh victory for Boston against a single defeat. The score was 6-2.

Connie Mack's Athletics equalled a major league record when three of them—Bob Johnson, Jimmie Foxx and Pinky Higgins—hit successive homers off Jack Knott in the fourth but they couldn't win a ball game from the Browns, who came out on the long end of a 7-4 score. The blows were the 28th of the season for Johnson and the 27th for Foxx.

GIANTS HOLD 2-GAME LEAD OVER CHICAGO

New Yorkers Take Opener 5-3 But Drop Second Game to Cubs 2-1.

PHILLIES BLANK REDS.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr. (Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York Giants—the club which has an amazing habit of coming through in a pinch—moved into the final game of their duel with Chicago's second-place Cubs to-day with the same two-game lead which they had at the start and with even better reason to believe they will stay at the top.

The extra reason came from Leroy (Doc) Parmalee, the sturdy young pitcher whose feats of hurling and hitting gave the Giants an even break in yesterday's double-header. Parmalee, who hadn't won a game since April 19 and who had been inactive a long time because of an appendicitis operation, not only held Lonnie Warneke even in the mound duel but broke a tie game by socking a home run with the bases full. That clout, after Warneke had passed Gus Mancuso to get the pitcher, gave New York a 5-3 decision in the first game.

The second game told a different story as young Bill Lee got the better of Carl Hubbell by a 2-1 count. But even in taking his sixth defeat of the season Hubbell showed the 45,000 fans the kind of hurling that usually wins. He gave only five hits in seven innings he worked but Billy Herman made two of them and turned each into a run while Lee spaced the seven Giant blows effectively.

Cards Drop Chance

The third-place Cardinals lost a good chance to overhaul the leaders when they dropped a 7-6 decision to Brooklyn on circuit drives by Jim Collins and Joe Medwick had helped overcome an early Dodger lead. The Phillies completed the National League program by trouncing Cincinnati 7-0 for their fifth straight victory as Curt Davis pitched seven-hit ball. Pittsburgh and Boston had an open date.

Australia reports that practically every phase of trade and industry is expanding.

C.G.E. Beaten Out Of Play-Off Berth

Westclox pushed C.G.E. out of a play-off berth in the first half of the Ladies' City and District Softball loop last night when they played their last scheduled game, defeating Keene, 21 to 19, in an eight innings game, before the biggest crowd of the year.

At the end of the seventh frame the teams were tied eighteen all, but Keene coming to bat in the first of the eighth pushed one across and looked well away until the Clockmakers in their half put a runner on first and second, on an error, a walk and an infield out. Gladys Mortimer, fourth batter, conked a triple and scored on an overthrow to give the locals three counters, and when the next batter popped out, the game was called on account of darkness.

Mary Hall started for the winners, but retired in the fourth in favor of Barb Blade when Keene garnered five counters in that frame. The latter hurler finished the game but was hit hard, especially in the seventh, when Keene walloped out six clean bingles, including a double by Irene Short and a triple by Lois McCarthy. Marilyn McCarthy was the starting pitcher for Keene. She fanned six, walked eight and allowed twelve hits before she was replaced by her sister Mary in the sixth. She fanned three, walked one and was nicked for one hit.

PACKERS GAIN ONE GOAL WIN OVER SMELTERS

F. Todd Gets Only Counter in First Half—Visitors Unlucky Around Goal.

INJURED PLAYERS CUP.

Last year's Injured Players' cup holders—Deloro—lost possession of the silverware to Canada Packers, in the final game, last night, by the odd goal in a regular cup tie fixture that was full of thrills during the ninety-minutes play. F. Todd, getting the only goal of the tussle.

The visitors were without the services of Dick Smith who was unable to travel, also their brilliant outside left, Gordon Stewart who had his spine injured in a baseball game against Coehill, last week, and the doctors has instructed him to give up all sports for the year.

At the conclusion of the game, Alderman Cotton, on behalf of the donor, presented the trophy to Captain Buchan. Deloro held the cup last year.

Opening Stages Fast

Deloro won the toss and decided to play with the sun at their backs. The Packers forced the issue immediately to find the visitor's full backs unbeatable and compelling them to shoot outside the danger zone. An individual effort by Brown carried the attack of Deloro into Chamberlain's charge who punted clear or diverted the ball out of play. From the resultant flag kicks, the visitors hemmed the Packers into goal but they couldn't get an opening anywhere although the play of Wm. Hart, at outside right, caused the Packer's many anxious moments, while Brown then Brooks would rattle hot drives into goal. Newt Downer popping up at the opportune moment to save his goal-keeper from disaster. They kept up the pressure to be unsuccessful. Buchan trapped the ball near the goal and dribbling his way clear, he sent his left winger away down the field. Downer split the defense to test O'Neill, custodian, who clutched the ball before it went into the goal. Then again he saved a rocket drive from the foot of Colbran. Hart, full back, playing a superb game along with T. Cousins Bradley finally transferred the play to mid-field where Brown trapped it quickly to send Brooks away up the centre. Chamberlain clearing from the scrimmage that ensued. Deloro peppered the Packer's goal from all angles until Buchan broke up the attacks to send his forwards away. They kept swinging the ball from wing to wing until F Tood connected with the first timer that found the far corner of the net. Keen excitement prevailed at both goals for the rest of the period with the defense holding the situation well in hand.

Half time—Canada Packers 1, Deloro 0.

Deloro Unfortunate

On resuming, Deloro opened up the second half with more vigor than ever and fested Chamberlain at close range. Brooks went right through on his own to pick the far corner of the goal post, the custodian threw himself the full length to divert the ball out of danger. From the flag kick Brown shot directly in below the bar to witness Chamberlain pulled it down to save his charge. A break away by Hart, on right, left W. Smith at inside right in possession who made Packer's goalie pull off a spectacular save. Play run from end to end at a rapid pace without anything tangible transpiring, except off side creating a questionable dispute but the official ruled otherwise. On one occasion, George Downer went through the defense himself and with only the custodian to beat, shot pass. The visitors tried out Hart, from left full back, in place of S. Smith at outside left, in an endeavour to get the equaliser but the breaks didn't come their way while the local boys held on tenaciously to the meagre lead also breaking away time and again to be repulsed within the goal area. Play was in mid-field when time was announced. Canada Packers 1, Deloro 0.

Deloro—N. O'Neill, goal; T. Cousins and W. Hart, full backs; James Sproul, E. Bradley and P. Grey, halves; W. Hart, W. Smith, G Brooks, W. Brown and S. Smith, forwards.

Canada Packers—T. J. Chamberlain, goal; N. Downer and A. Downer, full backs; Art Downer, J. Buchan and A. Bromley, halves; F Todd, J. Colbran, A. Todd, T. Foster and G. Downer, forwards.

TORONTO LEAFS SWEEP SERIES WITH CHIEFS BY 7-0 VICTORY

Gene Schott Chalks Up His Eleventh Win, Allows 8 Safeties.

BALTIMORE WINS 5-3.

(By the Associated Press)

The International League lead Newark Bears have held without interruption since June 8 had dwindled to a mere half game today.

Tripping the pace-setters for the third time in the three-game series yesterday, 4-3, Rochester Red Wings at the same time time pulled themselves to within a half game of the top.

Toronto's Maple Leafs, in the meantime, stopped Syracuse Chiefs again, and trail Rochester by only one game to make the pennant chase a three-club battle.

Tony Kaufman outpitched Walter Brown by a wide margin as the Red Wings complete their sweep of the Newark series. He allowed only six hits and one earned run, the other two tallies by the Bears coming in the third on errors. Rochester raked Brown for 11 hits, scoring three runs in the opening inning and what turned out to be the winning run in the fifth on Estil Crabtree's double.

Gene Schotz allowed only seven hits, never more than one in any single inning, and Walked none as Toronto blanked Syracuse, 7-0. Tim McKeithan's error contributed to the scoring of two Toronto runs in the third and bobbies by Foots Blair and Eddie Cihocki, plus 4 hits, gave Toronto three more runs in the seventh the second frame were earned. Joe Morrissey and Murray Howell led the Toronto attack with three hits each, the latter's string including a double and a triple.

Pitcher Bill Lohrman' double in the 14th driving in two runs, gave Baltimore a 5-3 win over Royals. Clifton, and Melton and Orillin Collier, the starting pitchers, both were driven out of the box with nobody cut in the first innings, Lohrman relieving Melton and John Pomoraski taking up Collier's duties after which each team had scored three runs. From there on it was a marathon duel. Lohrman gave six hits in the 14 frames he worked, Pomoraskie was rapped freely, giving up 16 safeties but was effective until the 4th.

Ken Ash pitched Buffalo Bisons to a 7-3 victory over Albany in a night game at Buffalo. Ash allowed 10 hits but kept them well-scattered except in the second when the Senators scored two runs. Buffalo drove Ed Chapman to cover with four run spurt in the first and kept up the firing on Johnny Milligan. Ash faned Alvi (Jake) Powell, the league's leading hitter, three times.

Regatta Notes

In The Examiner's report of the Jacks' Regatta on Saturday, the name of Alderman Fred Tuggey, one of those most active in organizing the regatta, was inadvertently omitted. Mr. Tuggey supervised arrangements and canvassed the city to secure the fine array of prizes awarded.

Donators of prizes were as follows: A. Wander Company, J. J. Turner and Company, E. F. Mason, L. Johnston, Canadian General Electric Company, James McClenaghan, Mr. Smith, Canadian Department Stores, Standard Brands Company, Jack Orde Barber Shop, Maple Leaf Milling Company, Empress Hotel, Peterborough Bread Company, Ruth Sutton and friend, Elite Cafe, Chris. Graham, Gordon Hill, Mrs. W. H. Lacey, Reg. Turner.

Bailieboro Team Takes Double Win

BAILLIEBORO, JuJly 17.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The local ball clubs played two games of ball last week and were victorious in both games. On Friday evening the girls played an exhibition game at Cobourg with the Cobourg Ontario hospital girls and won by a close margin. The final score being 17 to 16. A return game will be played on the local diamond next Monday evening.

On Saturday afternoon the local boys motored to Fenella and played a Northumberland League game with the Fenella nine. At the end of the ninth inning the score stood 10 to 7 in favor of the Bailieboro nine. Home and home umpires were employed and general dissatisfaction was felt at many of the decisions.

The local boys have found difficulty in getting their team lined up this season and up to date have lost four games and won only two. They hope to add two more victories to their credit when they meet Baltimore and Roseneath in the final games.

CLEVER HURLING DECIDES TITLE

Knox Outfit, 1933 Champions, Beaten in Final Game of Series by 15-2 Count.

HEAVY CLOUTING.

George St. Juveniles won the championship of the Church Soft ball League last night by beating Knox, champions last year, 15 to 2. Both teams were minus regulars, but it was pitching that decided the title. The George Streeters sprung Wildman, one of their bantam hurlers, on Knox and he stood his opponents on their heads, allowing but six hits and leaving a dozen stranded. It was the best pitching seen in the juvenile section this summer. He also had good support. Graham was wild for Knox and walked eleven. Williams replaced him in the fifth and went good except for the sixth when McClelland hit a homer with the bases loaded. Their support was not so good.

Galley and Parnell led the hitters with three each, while Andrews got two of the Knox safeties. Weese walked six times and scored five runs. Laing and Parnell looked good in the outfield.

The winners' shield was presented to Capt. Art Stinson by Sec. Don Charlton of the Church League. George St. in the past two years have been finalists in eight different softball, hockey and basketball series, but this is the first time they won out. Their present advisory board of Mac Gordon, Hec Ford, S.S. teachers, and Coach Don Lewis was largely responsible. The teams:

George St.—Wildman, p; Weese, 2b; Parnell, lf; McClelland, 1b; Galley, c; Allison, cf; Stinson, 3b; McInnis, ss; Stewart, rf.

Knox—Williams, ss, p; Graham, p, ss; Whatman, c; Johnson, 1b; Laing lf; Andrews, 3b; Lucas, 2b; Penrose, cf; Todd, rf.

Cogs practically cinched first place in the E.P.I. race by trouncing Fosters, 5-1, last eve. They have four possible games—two scheduled ones, a tie-game and a rained-out one—to play yet and might possibly lose them all. Sure, just like N'Yawk Giants might possibly lose to say, Napanee! And C.G.E. could, if the Electrics won their four remaining games, then tie Cogs for first place. Pretty remote but we had to point it out just to be mathematically correct. In the same way, Fosters still have a mathematical chance to tie C.G.E. for second place. But we doubt if Fosters are strong on arithmetic. At least they haven't shown it so far. So, it looks like Cogs and C.G.E. in the playoffs starting the week after next.

• • • • • • •

The Foster clan didn't look too bad at all last p.m., but Cogs jumped them for four runs on hits—some of 'em as scratchy as a doughboy in the trenches—in the second canto to grab enough to win out. Fosters have signed Collins, Marrocco and McIlwaine, and may hit a winning streak the rest of the way; but they've cut themselves out a real job. They play C.G.E. Friday and that will be the turning point one way or the other.

• • • • • • •

As for yesterday's game, it was a pretty fair number with fielding not too bad, runners not too nervy on the runways, pitching by Dunkerley and Masterson fair—well, a good but not a great game throughout. Lefty Billingsley didn't feel so hot, having an attack of indigestion that made it painful to play. But the team was short-handed and Lefty had to toil in the garden. At that, everytime he came up to bat, nine guys on the other side got an attack of indigestion or something. Anyway, they didn't feel so hot, either. He got a double and single in four. Some of Lefty's teammates might try eating four slabs of berry pie late at night and see if their batting averages didn't jump, too. That's if they were alive for the next game.

Westclox gals went to town before the biggest crowd of the year last night at the Bowl and beat Keene, 21-19, to knock C.G.E. out of a playoff berth in the first half of the Girls' Softball Loop. There was much argument after the tussle as it was called before the eighth inning was completed The count was tied at 18-all going into the eighth, and Keene got one run in their half. Then Westclox got three in the last half of the eighth and the umps called the game with two out, on account of darkness. Keene claimed the score should revert back to the last couple innings—thereby making it a tie game.

• • • • • • •

But this would be incorrect. The right score is the total number of runs made by each team in such a case. Here it is number Rule 22, section 6, of this year's softball rule book: "It shall be a regulation game if any time after seven innings have been completed, the umpire shall call it in accordance with Section 3" (that is for darkness, rain, etc.) "of this rule, and the score shall be that of the last equal innings played; except that if the team second at bat shall have scored in an unequal number of innings more runs than the team first at bat, or if the team second at bat is at bat when the game is called, and has scored in the incompleted inning the same number of runs, or at least one run more, than the side first at bat, the score shall be the total number of runs that each team has made."

Nine little Orphans got slapped around with a 16-5 score at Central last gloaming, the big bad Brintons dishing it out. Shine, for a change, didn't shine on the losers' mound and his teammates didn't give him as much support as a safety pin. They kicked the ball all over the landscape in a slow and sloppy lah-de-dah, wth Brintons having the edge muchly in runs and hits scored but losing, 8-1, in the errors chalked up. Abbott and H. Dormer did the most damage with the wagon-tongue, more even than Percy Harrison could do with his tongue. Currie was jittery at the go-in but settled away shortly to fling a neat game.

Bailleboro Intermediates play the Terrier Juveniles in a baseball game tonight at six in the Exhibition Grounds. Herb Ralph couldn't get Riverside Park for this e'en, there being a bantam tussle listed, so he borrowed the Grounds ala Exhibish from the E.P.L.-ers. It shapes up as a tidy tossup and ought to draw a crowd. McIlmoyle will probably start for the classy local juveniles, who incidentally start their O.B.A.A. playdowns in about three weeks in Oshawa. Field, Anderson and Grant Clark are the other Terrier throwers. Don't lay too many frogskins on the intermediates tonight as it may be a bit chilly for wearing a barrel home.

Belleville snuck up to just a game behind us in the C.O.B.L. by nosing out a 6-4 nod over Oshawa in the Quinte ball orchard yesternight, Smith and Casey outpitching Ogden and Knox. The Nats now have seven wins and five headshakes while the Petes are still singing in the canary's perch with eight smirks against four reverses. The Ponies are on the ground floor with four wins and five losses, and the Dukes are down in the cellar with eight losses in eleven starts. The Petes play in Kingston to-night, while on Saturday Belleville is here and Kingston goes to Oshawa for a double-header.

Havelock Albions Beat Norwood 13-3

HAVELOCK, July 18 (Examiner Correspondence) — Havelock Albions were easy winners last evening in a scheduled game of the Kawartha Softball League with the Norwood nine in the local park It was a clean-cut victory from the outset with the clubmen taking advantage of every break, while the boys from the mill pond town made errors at every turn. The final tally showed locals leading by 13 runs to the visitors' 3, which was a fair indication of the play throughout the nine innings.

The teams:

ORPHANS FALL TO CARPETMEN

Poor Hurling and Many Errors Pave Way for Lopsided Victory.

FINAL SCORE 16-5

Brintons got back into their winning ways, at the expense of the Orphans last night at Central, lambasting them by a 16-5 score. Shine, on the mound for the losers, had one of his very few off nights and this, coupled with his mates' many errors, paved the way for the defeat.

Currie went the full distance for the winners and settled down after a rather shaky start to twirl some very nice softball, which, coming with his team's lusty slugging, greatly helped in the defeat of the Waifs. The game itself was a free hitting affair with Brintons batting all around in the fourth and ninth frames, six runs resulting in each case. Bill Abbott and Harold Dormer did most of the heavy hitting for the Carpetmen, Abbott having four hits for five tries and Dormer with the same number of hits for six tries, both helping considerably in the two big innings. Freddie Jones was the Orphans' only big gun offensively having two hits out of four times at bat, one a triple.

The loose fielding by the Orphans led to their downfall, Board on first having four misplays charged against him, which led to the scoring of several unearned runs by the opposition, who, after obtaining a big lead as a result, played safe and won handily.

The game was a slow moving affair as a result of so much hitting, together with time being called on several occasions by Umpire Batley to clear the players benches of spectators.

The teams:

Brintons: H. Dormer, 2b; Smith, 1b; Playford, cf; Calladine, c; Weir, lf; Newson, 3b; Currie, p; Abbott, rf; Bradshaw, ss.

Orphans—Jones, rf; Wilshaw, 2b; Weese, 3b; Cadd, c; Fleming, ss; Miller, cf; Board, 1b; Hope, lf; Shine, p; Heffernan, p.

Score by innings:

Brintons	101 601 106—16 23 1
Orphans	020 200 001— 5 9 3

TORONTO, July 18 — An announcement in the Detroit edition of a United States racing publication that his stable would be raced at Stamford Park was denied by H. C. Hatch, Toronto sportsman and breeder, whose former trainer, Lloyd Gentry, on Monday took action through Rowell, Reid, Wright & McMillan, against the Incorporated Canadian Racing Associations its five directors and two officials, for an alleged libel, seeking $100,000 damages.

Mr. Hatch stated on Monday that he was compelled on account of the circumstances confronting Mr. Gentry to make other arrangements concerning the care of his horses on race-courses and at his extensive breedlig farm. Yesterday he announced that C. M. Yaeger, formerly a foreman, had been promoted to the position of trainer and would asume Mr. Gentry's duties.

The retirement of Mr. Gentry which Mr. Hatch intimated was forced on him by circumstances over which he had no control, possibly gave rise to the report that he was returning to the Incorporated Canadian Racing Association courses and that his colors would be seen at Stamford Park.

Millbrook Defeats Port Hope Squad 7-3

MILLBROOK, July 18.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Under flood lights a hard-fought game of box lacrosse, in the inter-county series, was played between Millbrook and Port Hope on Monday at 9 p.m., the home team topping the score in a total of 7-3. A big crowd of fans filled the bleachers and lined the fence in all available space round the Cosmos rink enclosure.

Three twenty-minute periods were played, the honors going to Henry Gray, Millbrook, who scored four goals, the first one in the first half-minute of play, immediately following the face-off in the opening period, and repeating this performance in the final period. Gray scored twice again in the first period, Edmunds, Scott, and Nattress completing the list of those who poked the ball into the net for the home team; for Port Hope, D. Cansilla and Johnston got past the Millbrook goalie, the former twice, for a score. The line up was:

Port Hope: Goal, E. Isaac; defence, Hagerman, Sneyd; centre, Johnston; wings, F. Cansilla, Young; rover, Marshall, D. Cansilla; subs, Symons, G. Isaac, L. Groome.

Millbrook: Goal, J. Larmer; defence, Creighton, Lebarr; centre, Richards; wings, Scott, Nattress; rover, Gray; subs, Donnelly, Ingram, Brown, Edmunds, Freelove.

Referee—B. B. Dawson.

Score 7-3 for Millbrook.

THE SPUN GLASS MYSTERY

A Tale of Scotland Yard

By A. FIELDING

CHAPTER 51

Gillian trembled, but she said nothing.

"No one's following us. We're safe. Now, then, Gillian, I want you to trust me. I'm your friend, remember. No matter what the trouble is into which you've got yourself, I want to help you." But the grip on the arm did not relax.

Gillian suddenly quickened her step. Just round a corner hung a sign, "Public telephone." It was a grocery shop and postoffice combined. "I must telephone." Gillian wrenched her arm free and darted inside. Etta followed, looking darkly angry. But Gillian was inside the single telephone booth. Etta stood in the doorway biting her lip. A man passed in with a civil apology. He stepped to the counter.

"May I use your desk telephone for a minute? I'm in a fearful rush." He spoke fluently, and the damsel across the counter pushed the instrument over, in exchange for a sixpence and a "keep the change, miss." Down the phone went the number of an ordinary office in Piccadilly. When he got the connection, as he did instantly, he said one word which meant Scotland Yard, and then went on: "I'm speaking from 193 Upper Berkeley street. Is Mr. Pip in?" Apparently he was not, for with a disappointed, "I'll ring again later, then," the man hung up and pushed back the instrument before he went on out.

His inquiry had meant that any message now being sent from the same office would be instantly duplicated to Scotland Yard as well. The message was to a house near Victoria Station and was as follows, in a swift rush of Gillian Dundas' voice:

"Are you there? Are you there? Thursday."

"Speaking," came in an almost equally swift reply. "May ninth."

One was the day of the week, the other the date. Evidently a protective signal. Then came again in the hard clear treble:

"Likely girl is a dead cert."

There came a sharp exclamation from the man and then in a rush, "At once!" in tones both urgent and reassuring, not at all the voice in which the name of even the most certain winner is usually received. This was a request for assistance of some kind, a plea for help on her part, which was instantly responded to by him.

Meanwhile the girl telephoning from the public booth peered out at her companion. She saw that for a second Etta's attention was distracted by a little cocker who had just rolled in with his mistress, and she slipped like a shadow out of the booth, behind the counter, and out of the door. But swift as she was, a young woman waiting in a taxi a little farther along, got out, motioning to the driver to follow her. Pointer's orders were that Gillian Dundas should not be left alone.

Gillian doubled back down a side street and got a taxi just as Etta Naylor was looking incredulously into an empty booth. For a few seconds Etta stood waiting, thinking Gillian must be consulting a directory somewhere, but after a while, a question or two told her that the only one hung inside the kiosk. She went to the door and looked looked up and down the street. No sign of the girl. A taxi-driver told her that he had seen a young lady nip out and down the next street "like billy oh." Etta Naylor went first white, then red, then with a flame in her eye told him to drive her to Gillian's studio.

At the studio she found no one in. She spent another 15 minutes waiting at the door. Surely Gillian Dundas would come on here, even supposing she mistrusted her—Etta's—offer to help. Where else could she go?

The young woman who had followed Gillian could have told her that Gillian was making for a dilapidated apartment house—a house that Claridge had once entered. To the same place Strange had already been followed by what looked like a newspaper boy wheeling a motorcycle.

For 10 minutes Gillian and Strange were together, then they came out walking towards a very sporty-looking sports car with a streamline that promised 80 with the wind. Strange was apparently trying to persuade her to do something . . . to go somewhere. . . .

The newspaper boy was reading the address on his parcel and admiring the car's bonnet.

"If you don't come with me, it's the police," he heard Strange say finally, in a tone low enough, but so charged with anger that it carried like a shout. "Take your choice."

Evidently the girl found this difficult. Terror and hope seemed to be struggling inside her as she looked at the car—the man—the street. But she was shrinking away from the car—and the man—when a taxi buzzed round a corner. Yet another taxi appeared behind it, but to pass on—and stop out of sight around a bend. Mrs. de Souza leaned forward. She was in the first of the two.

"Miss Dundas!" she called, as though in great surprise. "How lucky to have run across you! I've heard of such a good post for you. Do come and lunch at Harrod's with me while I tell you all about it. You'll love it."

Gillian did not look as though she loved anything in the world as she moved away from the young man's car. Strange looked sullen. His lips were moving, urging the girl to jump in and let him show what his car could do. But Gillian turned to Mrs. de Souza, and now looked steadily into the other's plump, cheerful face.

"Yes, I'll come. Thank you very much." And with what looked like a sudden spurt of resolution, she opened the taxi door, jumped in, and slammed it shut on the two of them. Mrs. de Souza, still smiling, gave the order to the driver and they were off. The newsboy, too, had gone on, this time mounting his bicycle, and the taxi waiting round the corner moved off. Yet another taxi, the one that had followed Miss Dundas—made for Harrod's and arrived there at the same time as the one in which Gillian sat. The fare jumped out, said a word to an errand boy peering in at the first big window, and then talked for a minute with the cab-driver who had followed Mrs. de Souza. He drove off.

Meanwhile Strange, muttering oaths in keeping with his name, had leapt into his car. For a short distance he was followed by the same boy who had shadowed him to the apartment house, then, when an empty furniture van pulled out from the curb and took the road alongside the sporting-car, the boy stopped and returned to the house where Strange and Gillian had met, and where she had finally left him.

He was kept waiting a long time at the door, but finally it was opened by a slovenly-looking man with a puffy, lined face, the face of an habitual drinker.

"Mr. Strange? He's gone out." He put out his hand.

"When'll he be in?"

"Can't say." The man shook a tousled head. "Keeps any old hours."

"But he lives here, doesn't he?" The boy looked startled.

The servant nodded. "If you can call it living. He comes in every now and then for letters and so on."

"When do you expect him back?"

"No saying. Never no saying. May be hours, may be days, may be weeks, see?"

"Do you forward packages for him?"

Again a shake of the head.

"He calls for them. If there are any. Very few come for him here. Lives in the country, does Mr. Strange, and just drops in here every now and then for convenience."

"How about that lady I saw just now drive up, stoutish, middle-aged party? Doesn't she live here either? I don't like to leave me parcel just to no one."

"You mean his aunt? No, she doesn't live here. Comes to see him every now and then."

The detective decided that he could ask no more for the moment. His orders were to be exceedingly careful.

Jury Is Selected In Bradley Case

CAMPBELL'S BAY, Que., July 18 (CP)—Trial of Michael Bradley, 42-year-old Allumette Island farmer, for the murder of his parents, his brother and sister, and uncle, was continued to-day before Mr. Justice Philemon Cousineau in Court of King's Bench. The murder took place a year ago at Demers Centre, a small hamlet on Allumette Island, which lies in the Ottawa River, opposite Pembroke.

The case opened yesterday with the selection of a jury, addresses by counsel and the hearing of half a dozen witnesses. The testimony was of a routine character, having to do with indentification of plans and photographs of the Bradley home, the finding of the bodies and discovery of shells in garments declared to have been worn by Michael Bradley.

The crime was committed on July 21, 1933, when five persons were shot to death. These were Joseph and Mary Bradley, parents of the accused: Thomas and Johanna Bradley, his brother and sister, and John Bradley, his uncle.

DISMISSED.

BRANTFORD, Ont., July 18 (CP). —Charges and counter charges were hurled in a legal battle waged in city court here. There were two of assault and two of using abusive and indecent language.

"I'll have to dismiss the case, for both sides are so absolutely contradictory, that it is impossible to determine who is telling the truth," declared Crown Attorney W. M. Charlton, K.C.

MARTIN RANKS TOP FAVORITE

No. 1 Canadian Ranking Player Faces Tough Opposition as Championships Dwindle.

GRANT EASY VICTIM.

(By Elmer Dulmage, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

TORONTO, July 18 (CP)—The fastest field ever went to the barrier in the Ontario tennis championships had dwindled to 15 singles players in the men's singles division to-day with the chief outstanding question still far from settled. The question was whether anyone of 14 players was sufficiently primed to defeat Walter Martin.

Crowded by the ranking racqueteers of Ontario, Quebec and Jamaica, including three Davis Cup mates and a couple of others who have beaten the cupmen, Martin looked as good as his No. 1 Canadian ranking warranted in advancing to the quarter-finals. He will rest to-day while seven other brackets are filled.

Pitted against wiry little Doug Grant of Halifax, king of the country's badminton stars but by no means a member of tennis royalty, the big champion from Toronto and Regina demonstrated there are few flaws in his armour. He ousted Grant in a quick 20-minute affair by scores of 6-1, 6-0.

To retain his title Martin may have to defeat Laird Watt, Montreal, Marcel Rainville, Montreal and either another Montrealer, Bobby Murray of Montreal, Quebec champion, or Gilbert Nunns of Toronto. There were stumbling blocks at every turn, not only for Martin but for Watt, Rainville, Nunns and Murray.

Watt is Victor

Watt, who swept through two rounds yesterday, defeating Jack Vanstone of Toronto, 6-2, 6-1 and Bill Powell, Rochester, N.Y., 6-1, 6-4, played Maurice Margesson of Toronto to-day for the right to face Martin. In the bracket immediately below, George Leclerc of Ottawa faced the Jamaican ace, Harry Dayes.

Leclerc pounded out a convincing win yesterday over J. M. McAvity, Toronto, 6-1, 6-4, but Dayes had to bring his game up to its highest pitch to eliminate young Gordon Robinson of St. Catharines, Ont., former Ontario junior champion. Scores were 7-5, 6-4.

Rainville put out B. Hill, Toronto in two love sets and then set down E. V. Stafford, Niagara Falls, 6-2, 8-6. The little Frenchman faced Gordon Shields of Toronto, a terrific hitter, to-day.

Nunns, Murray, Roland Longtin of Montreal and either Don Leahong of Jamaica or Ross Wilson of Toronto were favored to reach the quarter-finals in the lower draw. The Leahong-Wilson match was expected to provide the contest.

Sawyer Beaten

Yvette Sawyer, promising Montreal girl, was left behind before the eights were reached yesterday in the women's singles. The veteran Mrs. E. F. Coke of Toronto eliminated Miss Sawyer in a three-set struggle, 6-8, 7-9, 6-3. The Montrealer went to the finals in the eastern Canadian championship last week.

PERFECT SCORE QUEBEC MARKSMAN

Private P. J. Martinson Progressing in Opening Stages of King's Prize Shoot.

BISLEY CAMP, Eng., July 18 (C. P. Cable)—Private P. J. Martinsen of La Tuque, Quebec, posted perfect scores at the two-thirds mark of the opening stage to-day in the King's Prize, the classic of empire rifle shooting.

Martinsen, a newcomer to Bisley, had a possible 35 at 200 yards and another possible at 500 yards. The last distance of the first stage, in which close to 1,000 of the empire's best shots competed, was being fired later in the day.

Lieut. Neal Dow of Saint John was second among the Canadians at the two-thirds mark with 69, including a possible at the 500 yards mark. Two more had 68's out of 70 at this stage — Corporal B. W. Beaumont of Vancouver and the veteran George Emslie of Toronto.

Vegetable Growers Meet New Minister

A joint committee including C. F. Kitney of Peterborough, president of the Ontario Vegetable Growers Association, and representatives of the Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association and the Ontario Market Growers' Council, were given a half-hour hearing by the Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, in Toronto yesterday. The immediate activities of the organizations were laid before the minister.

It is understood that the interview was for the purpose of getting acquainted with the new minister and drawing his attention to fruit and vegetable growers' problems. Although no result of the interview was revealed, the fruit and vegetable growers are awaiting anxiously information on the extent to which their organizations will be affected by the Department of Agriculture shake-up.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

The other day I saw an old experienced player take his regular position over the ball and then make a practice swing with the clubhead striking the grass several inches inside the ball.

After such a swing he'd swing away at the ball.

This is a decidedly harmful habit. It means that the player is deliberately practicing a contracting swing.

The tension that generally exists in a player's starting position will be enough to cause him to contract and pull in as he swings at the ball. Certainly there's no need to rehearse this contraction.

The correct swing is a whirling motion or expanding proposition where the muscles stretch out instead of shortening.

Always strive for an expanding motion in your practice swings.

Swine Club Leaders Named In Lakefield

John Murphy, Roland Darling and B. Q. Dench, all residents in the vicinity of Lakefield, were named club leaders as the Lakefield District Boys' Swine Club held its regular meeting this week. Twenty-two members first gathered at John Murphy's farm and later adjourned to the Memorial Hall in Lakefield to complete the meeting.

Two classes of hogs and reasons were given at the Murphy farm. At the Memorial Hall, H. L. Ford of the Dominion Livestock Branch, gave the boys a talk on the rail grading system which has been put in force at the Canada Packers plant in Peterborough.

Agricultural Representative A. D. Runions, discussed a number of feeding and management problems with the members and outlined the plans for the club exhibition which is to be held in connection with the Lakefield Fair on September 12.

CAMPBELLFORD MAROONS HERE ON THURSDAY EVE

Campbellford Maroons are scheduled to play an O.A.L.A. game at six o'clock in Riverside Park tomorrow (Thursday) evening against Kiwanis. The local lacrosse team defeated the Maroons in Campbellford the only game they played them this season, but the Hydro squad is expected to be stronger to-morrow and should put up a stiff argument. Kiwanis have won four straight games so far and appear to be going places. They will try hard to keep their victory-sheet intact Thursday.

Local lovers of the gutted stick sport have not had much chance to see this game here since two years ago when the Petes went to the Ontario finals. The games then were played in the Brock, but at this time of year, outdoors is the better spot for box lacrosse. And in Riverside Park, the players and fans have an ideal location. If the weather is right and both teams are at full strength, the fans should be shown a lively, exciting number with the isue in doubt throughout. The Whitton-Ingram-Hendy aggregation, when at full strength, is a mighty classy team. But so is the local outfit.

DUBLIN, July 16.—(CP)—Plans have been made by Frank Aiken, Minister for Defence, for the establishment of a munitions factory here so that the Free State may be independent to a large extent of external suppliers. It is expected rifle and revolver ammunition will be made in the new factory as well as other explosives.

The water provided interest for the young people before several games of varying types were run off. Mr. and Mrs. Seeney were in the car at the time, backing out of the garage, and as the little lad leaned out to watch, the door opened and the child fell out.

QUEBEC GIVES WARM GREETING TO MACDONALD

British Premier and Daughter Arrive for Two Months' Rest.

IN MARITIMES.

Tells Press Talk of Imminent General Election in Britain is "Rubbish."

BY C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC, July 19.—(CP)—Seeking health and relaxation in Canada's maritime provinces, Rt. Hon. J. Ramsay MacDonald and his daughter, Ishbel, arrived here today on the liner, Duchess of Richmond, and told interviewers that talk of an imminent general election in Great Britain was "rubbish." He had divorced himself from political activities for two months the British Prime Minister said, and would sojourn in the Maritime provinces without any fixed itinerary.

Rt. Hon. J. Ramsay MacDonald

The 67-year-old Prime Minister appeared in excellent health and spirits as he greeted Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister of Canada, who was the first to board the liner. The voyage has been restful and most beneficial, Mr. MacDonald said, and he was looking forward with great anticipation to a

POLISH FLOOD TAKES 300 LIVES

(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

WARSAW, Poland, July 19.— (A.P.)—Bodies of 120 victims of raging floods in Southern Poland have been recovered, an official report said to-day, with 180 missing and believed to have perished.

A new flood menace was feared at Cracow as a crest of water from the mountain region, roared down into the valleys.

More than 55,000 were without food and shelter as swollen rivers continued to leave their banks after days of continuous rain.

An airplane survey revealed that of the affected provinces, Lwow, Lielce and Cracow, the last was the most heavily struck. A death toll of 43 was reached at Mowry Soncz.

A national relief commission, headed by high government officials, is setting aside a large sum for the stricken.

Toronto Girl's Body Is Found In Ravine

TORONTO, July 19 (C.P.).—The body of a girl about 16 years old was found to-day in a bush off a footpath on Blythewood Road, near Bayview. Police believe she may have been the victim of foul play.

Children playing in Sunnybrook Park discovered the body and called Jim Brooklyn, of Keewatin Avenue, who summoned police.

There was a bruise over one eye of the girl and her legs were also bruised but not out. The body was covered with a summer-weight topcoat.

The girl wore a pink dress of some light material, ankle socks and no shoes.

Police, along with North York officials and Dr. E. R. Frankish, medico-legal expert, are investigating.

State Railways of Chile have just ordered 10 American locomotives.

TORONTO POLICE COMMISSION HAS 2 NEW MEMBERS

Roebuck Fires J. R. L. Starr and Judge Parker for Opposing March.

HEPBURN AGREES.

Frank Denton and Judge W. T. Lee Expected to Rescind Ban on Parade.

TORONTO, July 19 (C.P.).—Two new appointees of Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn's Liberal Government will be sworn in as members of Toronto's three-man Police Commission to replace the two members deposed by Attorney-General Arthur W. Roebuck. Mayor W. J. Stewart is chairman of the commission.

The new commissioners, Frank Denton, K.C., and Judge W. T. J. Lee, of York County Court, are expected, soon after being sworn in, to rescind an order banning a demonstration by "hunger marchers" on July 30. It was for their support of the Chief Constable's suggestion the parade and demonstrations should not be permitted. J. R. L. Starr, K.C., and Judge James Parker were dismissed from the commission.

"It can hardly be expected," said Mr. Roebuck, "that appointees of the Government shall remain in office while defiantly announcing a procedure openly contrary to the settled policy of the Government."

Dismissal of the two members was the Government's reply in an open verbal battle with Mayor Stewart, who said the commission would uphold "law and order" and would not permit a march through Toronto streets of the men the Premier said should be treated with courtesy.

"I concur absolutely in the action taken and the statement of the Attorney-General," said the Premier. "In a country that fought to make this world safe for democracy we will see that people can express an honest opinion, particularly when they are victims of this man-made depression."

Throughout the discussion, Mayor Stewart made it clear the commission was not attempting to prevent the marchers from interviewing the Government, but decreed the city would not tolerate any demonstration in its streets or park.

24 Public Work Jobs Been Let Since July 1

OTTAWA, July 19 (C.P.).—Contracts exceeding $300,000 have been awarded since July 1 on the Government's $400,000,000 public works scheme. Twenty-four in all have now been let, of which 21 were in Ontario and one each in Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

Hon. H. W. Stewart, Minister of Public Works, has recommended 14 more. These await the formality of sanction by the Governor-in-Council.

In accordance with the undertaking given by the Minister, contractors are obligated to employ local labor and to give employment to "a reasonable quota" of ex-service men, "where competent."

A further program of electrification of its lines is planned by the German State Railway.

Canada Has Won Trophy Eight Times in 44 Years' History of Competition.

BISLEY CAMP, Eng., July 19.—(C. P. Cable)—Canada won the coveted MacKinnon Challenge Cup, one of Bisley's two great Imperial team trophies, this afternoon.

The MacKinnon was fired for by teams of 12 men at the Long range, for service rifles, of 900 and 1,000 yards. Canada had a lead of 12 points at the halfway mark and although they slipped a little at the longer range, wound up with a seven point margin of victory over England.

The aggregates were: Canada 1,080 points; England 1,073; Scotland, defending, 1,062; India, 1,059; Wales 1,046; Ireland 1,017, and the Channel Islands 99.

Canada's score was 40 points below the record set by Scotland last year.

WORLD WHEAT YIELD SCANTY

Leading English Trader Sees Both Canada and U. S. Far Short.

OUTLOOK WORST 40 YEARS

By GEORGE HAMBLETON.
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, July 19.—(C. P. Cable.)—The prediction that during the next 12 months, starting with the new crop year Aug. 1, the world demand for wheat will be sufficient to take care of the potential supply, was made to-day by Sir Herbert Robson, leading English grain trader, who is president of the London Corn Trade Association.

"I venture to state," he said, "that during the past 40 years there has never been a season when crops have been so disastrously affected by adverse weather conditions."

He described the situation in a letter to the Times. In the United States, he said, the wheat crop "has largely failed. Her very large surplus will be barely sufficient to provide a normal carry-over at the end of the season. It is quite possible she will have to import Canadian or Argentine wheat."

The Australian crop looked like being a partial failure, yielding 120,000,000 bushels compared with 215,000,000 in 1932-33, he added.

Owing to the drought, Canada would have a poor crop, yielding between 300,000,000 and 320,000,000 bushels, he estimated, with a carry-over of about 180,000,000 bushels, bringing the total to 480,000,000 or 500,000,000 bushels.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 19 (C. P.). — There wasn't enough water in the north-west for a herd of 150 thirsty cattle—but plenty here!

The barge of which they were being taken to pasturage sank in the Mississippi River; the cows gulped the water contentedly, and swam ashore.

FINAL RECOUNT LIKELY REVEAL TORY ELECTED

81 Polls Out of the 137 Have Already Been Counted By Judge O'Connor.

16 BALLOTS SET ASIDE.

Few Changes Are Found With Tabulated Figures of Returning Officer.

Ballots from 81 of the 137 polls in Peterborough city and county had been counted up to noon today by Judge L. V. O'Connor and his assistants.

Sixteen ballots have been set aside for further consideration at the conclusion of the routine counting and a few minor changes affecting the final totals were regarded as being about equally divided between T. P. Lancaster, M.L.A., and James Hawthorne the Liberal candidate in the elections who was defeated by 34 votes.

The report from the court house was to the effect that no substantial differences had been found by comparison of the recount tabulation with the figures previously published. J. F. Strickland, K. C., representing Mr. Lancaster told The Examiner that apparently the recount would confirm his election with slight change in the original majority.

The recount continued this morning by three groups under the direction of Judge O'Connor, and at the present tiresome pace the last envelope should be disposed of probably by noon Friday.

The personnel of one group presented new tabulators this morning, Jacob Low replacing T. J. Carley in Mr. Hawthorne's behalf, and Herbert Bradburn substituting for Emmett Sheehy, representing Mr. Lancaster.

The other assistants to Judge O'Connor are W. F. Huycke and John A. Harstone for Mr. Hawthorne, and Mr. Strickland and D.

Fast Thinking Saves Doumergue Cabinet

(By Stuart Moroney—A.P. Foreign Staff).

PARIS, July 19 (A.P.).—Premier Gaston Doumergue was believed to have averted the wreck of his Cabinet to-day by spreading the words, "The boys must be good."

The veteran statesman made a lightning decision at a railroad station last night and sent his friends to tell former Premiers Andre Tardieu, Edouard Herriot and Camille Chautemps and party leaders that Tardieu's charges that Chautemps and Radical Socialists knew the late Serge Stavisky was swindling the country must be limited to a controversy between Tardieu and Chautemps, without involving parties.

Resignation of Herriot and other Radical Socialists from the Cabinet was threatened because of Tardieu's charges, which they claimed broke the political truce under which the Doumergue Cabinet was created in the grave days of last February.

Doumergue then boarded a train for a vacation at Tournefeuille, smiling as ever and refusing any comment on Cabinet friction.

Because he has the whiphand threat of dissolution of Parliament, for which deputies are not ready, Doumergue is expected to maintain the truce between the parties.

FORMER PREMIER SAW NO REASON TO HOLD PROBE

Ex-Premier George S. Henry Continues to Give Evidence at Inquiry.

HUDSON BAY CONTRACT.

Meighen Did Not Tell Premier of His Companies Holdings.

TORONTO, July 19. (CP)— The Ontario Royal Commission inquiring into the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission's acquisition of Ontario Power Service Corporation bonds continued this afternoon with cross-examination of former Premier George S. Henry by J. C. McRuer, K.C., Hydro sector.

The former Premier already had testified all morning and for four hours yesterday. He started to discuss the contract of April 10, 1930, under which the Hydro Commission purchased 100,000 horsepower from the Hudson Bay Power Company, later the O.P.S.C. Mr. Henry said the Government approved the plan because it wished to obtain as much power as cheaply as possible for companies' development.

He was not personally familiar with the details as he was not then Premier, he said. Mr. McRuer asked if Mr. Henry could remember a re-sale of Hudson Bay Company parent body of the Power Company. He maintained the property of the O.P.S.C. had been bought by the Government for less than it was worth. He said shrdvbgkqjxfl%% hr rdl w mc mf the government sought to buy the property at as low a figure as possible, but said it had offered no lower figure than the purchase deal.

Former Premier George S. Henry, who was examined yesterday for more than four hours, testified again. It was during his government's regime, in 1933, the deal was concluded. When the hearing adjourned yesterday, Commission counsel Arthur G. Slaght, K. C. was seeking to establish responsibility in the deal of the Hydro Commission through conditions of the $18,000,000 bond flotation and exchange through which the deal was effected. He was reading the conditions of sale and guarantee from a sample bond.

Hydro Backed By Gov't,

He continued discussing the bond today. It contained a guarantee of principal and interest payments by the Ontario government. Mr. Henry acknowledged a holder might have enforced his rights to collect from assets of Hydro. He added there was an agreement whereby the Hydro Commission cared for the deal with the guaranteed back of the government.

Mr. Henry said the bond was issued in relation to the particular property as the government's trustee and that the set-up was not the same as in the case of other Hydro enterprises. Hydro funds were usually guaranteed by the government, he said.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, resigned Hydro Commissioner, explained most of the bonds were backed by the province, and Mr. Henry said he knew of no Hydro bonds issued which were not guaranteed by the government.

Mr. Slaght drew attention to an

Odette Takes Over L.C.B. Manager's Job

TORONTO, July 19 (C.P.).—The Toronto Star says to-day:

"Hillyard Birmingham, former manager of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, tendered his resignation to me this morning and it was accepted and takes effect at once," Commissioner Edmond G. Odette stated to the Star to-day. "He will not be replaced. I shall take over his duties myself.

"This will effect a saving of $9,000 a year," he continued, "that being Mr. Birmingham's salary in the past. We do not need his services as we have a purchasing agent and I shall direct the work of the board myself.

"Sale of beer and wine under the new regulations cannot begin until Tuesday," announced the commissioner. "The authorities will not be issued by this office until Monday. I don't see how it can begin earlier than Tuesday."

THREE LICENSES TO COST HOTELS TOTAL OF $150

$50 Each — Wine in Dining Room—Beer, Dining Room —Beer Only, Beverage Room.

NO PRICE PER GLASS YET.

TORONTO, July 19 (C.P.) — Three classes of $50 fees under authorities granted for sale of beer and wine were explained to-day by E. G. Odette, Ontario Liquor Control Commissioner. Total cost to a standard hotel selling beer and wine in its dining room with meals and beer in its beverage room would be $150.

The first classification, said Mr. Odette, deals with sale in beverage rooms of beer only. For this the authority fee is $50.

The second category is that for sale of beer only in dining rooms with meals at another authority fee of $50.

The third class is for sale of wine only in dining rooms with meals and this fee is likewise $50.

Beverage room sale is limited to beer.

Mr. Odette said that since brewers had not yet fixed prices to authority holders, it could not be stated what the price per glass would be. An announcement may be made to-day. He said the Liquor Control Commission was concerned with the issuance of authorities and the fixing of fees—and that no forecast could be made of cost of beer by the glass to the consumer.

From inception of the new regulations, with actual sale probably

FARMER'S BODY FOUND IN WELL

Frank Brisbin Missing From Home Near Roseneath Since Wednesday.

IN POOR HEALTH.

ROSENEATH, July 19 (Examiner Correspondent). — Discovery of his body at the bottom of a well one hundred yards from the house this morning solved the mystery of the disappearance of Frank Brisbin, 53-year-old farmer, from the Brisbin Homestead, one mile east of Roseneath. The tragic find was made by Clifford Nixon, a farm hand, while going about his morning chores.

The absence of Brisbin was first noticed about noon time yesterday. While uneasiness was felt by his wife and family, no search was made, as it was thought likely that he had merely gone on an overnight visit somewhere and forgotten to leave word at the home. Death was caused by drowning in water at the bottom of the 25-foot excavation, but the exact manner in which the tragedy occurred has not been determined. Brisbin was in poor health for the past two years and suffered a melancholy state of mind.

He was the youngest son of the pioneer founder of the Brisbin Homestead, and spent his entire life on the property. He leaves a widow, two daughters, Mrs. W. Major of Toronto and Kathleen at home, and two sons, Glenn at home and Neil in Harwood.

Dr. Samuel Ryan of Roseneath was summoned when the body had been raised from the well and he revealed that life had been extinct many hours. Coroner Ferris of Cobourg investigated. Whether or not an inquest will be held is not yet known.

WAVE OF DEATH SWEEPS ACROSS PRISON CAMPS

Massacres Beyond Human Imagination Taking Place Says Ex-Official.

2,000 MEN, WOMEN SLAIN.

Hitler Said Virtual Prisoner—Doomed Moment Prestige Slips.

NEW YORK, July 19.—(A.P.)—Johannes Steel, former German official who fled from the Reich because of his opposition to the Nazi government declared in a copyright story in the New York Post today that "a quiet wave of murder is sweeping the concentration camps of Germany."

The writer said that the prisoners at the camps "have according to a secret order of General Goering (Premier of Prussia), been cut off completely from the outside world."

"Their relatives," writes Steel, "have been without news from these prisoners for three weeks. It seems that massacres have taken place which are beyond human imagination.

"The toll of deaths has been put by absolutely reliable sources at no less than 2,000 men and women."

The writer, said "A life and death race between Communism and Conservatism had begun," and added: "The odds are six to four for the Conservative solution."

Steel says: "The army, during the last week, has been able to consolidate its position and the military dictatorship is complete. (Vice Chancellor Franz) Von Papen at this moment is the man who runs everything. He has come out on top."

Steel says Hitler "is the absolute prisoner of the Reichwehr (army) which watches every move he makes and is waiting for the moment when Hitler's prestige has dissipated to such an extent that he can be put away safely."

Bradley's Testimony To Coroner Barred

CAMPBELL'S BAY, Que., July 19 (C.P.)—Trial of Michael Bradley, 42-year-old Allumette Island farmer, for the murder of five of his immediate relatives on the morning of July 21, 1933, was continued before Mr. Justice Philemon Cousineau, in the court of King's Bench here to-day. The victims of the slayings were Joseph and Mary Bradley, parents of the accused, Thomas and Johanna, his brother and sister, and John Bradley, his uncle.

Yesterday's evidence closed with a ruling of His Lordship that statements made by the accused while he was under the jurisdiction of the coroner would not be admitted to evidence. Testimony centred on the discovery by Detective J. F. Dalpe of a .32 Winchester repeater in Michael Bradley's cow-shed. This was alleged to be the weapon with which the victims were shot down.

Francois Caron, prosecuting attorney, will call 13 more witnesses, who will be followed by a number of witnesses for the defence. There is little likelihood of the trial closing this week.

Slip Delays Placing Beer On Sale This Week

TOPIC OF SALE IN RESTAURANTS NOT DEAD ISSUE

New Regulations Allow 'Phone Orders for Home Delivery.

25 CENT TOURIST PERMIT.

Vendors Pay $100 for License —Hard Liquor Permit Remains.

TORONTO, July 19 (C.P.).--Ontario's new liquor law, under which beer may be consumed in hotel beverage rooms, on trains and boats, will be in full operation early next week, with a slight possibility a few hotels may be dispensing drinks on Saturday.

Previous announcement that sale would start before the end of the week failed to take into consideration the fact that the new regulations must appear in the Ontario Gazette. The earliest this can be done is Saturday and consequently hotels and clubs will not start operations until Monday.

License fees will be $100 for a beer beverage room and $100 for an authority to sell beer and wine in dining-roms. If an hotel desires to sell beer and wine in more than one dining-room on the premises the same $100 fee covers these privileges. Railway dining cars and steamers will be able to dispense beer and wine for similar license fees.

Still a Live Issue.

The question of beer and wine sale in restaurants is far from being a dead issue, it was clearly indicated by the Premier. Speaking to the temperance deputation, he de-

CANADIAN CORPS RALLY AUGUST 4

Stirring Program Scheduled for 20th Anniversary of War's Outbreak.

NOTABLES TO ATTEND.

OTTAWA, July 19. (CP).—When the veterans of the Canadian Corps assemble in Toronto on Aug. 4, the 20th anniversary of the outbreak of the Great War, their first acts will be to proclaim their loyalty to the King, to greet their only surviving corps commander, Baron Byng of Vimy and to remember the Empire's million dead. Arrangements have been completed for ceremonies to take place at the cenotaph in Whitehall and in the Memorial Chamber of the Peace Tower in Ottawa; and these will usher in the reunion of the veterans.

Ill-health prevents Baron Byng from depositing a poppy wreath in the name of the Canadian corps at the base of the cenotaph, but his place will be taken by the next senior surviving officer of the corps, in London, Lieut. General Sir Henry E. Bursall, K.C.B. Sir Henry commanded the 2nd Canadian division in Frace.

Borden to Pay Tribute

In Ottawa a wreath will be laid on the alter of sacrifice in the Memorial Chamber by Canada's war-time Prime Minister, Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Borden. He will be accompanied by Lieut. Colonel L. R. LaFleche, D.S.O., past Dominion president of the Canadian Legion, and Major Milton F. Gregg, V.C., M.C., sergeant-at-arms of the House of Commons and honorary Dominion treasurer of the Legion.

The corps reunion will be held on August 4 and the two succeeding days. A considerable number of infantry battalions, artillery batteries, engineering and machine gun companies, and administrative service units will stage their annual gatherings in the Queen City on the evening of the 20th anniversary of the War. For three days Toronto will be "turned over" to the ex-troops.

A review of the veterans by Sir Edmont Allenby, conqueror of the Turk in Palestine will be held on the afternoon of August 4. On Sunday a monster church parade will take place at Riverdale Park, while on Monday the corps sports —a replica of the Olympics staged at Tinques, in France, on Dominion Day, 1918—will be held.

Worms By Air

CHATHAM, Ont., July 19 (C. P.). — Here's once where the lowly earth worm came high. Despairing when all other baits failed and worms could not be got, fishermen at Rondeau Park telephoned long distance to Lieut. N. Thompson, air pilot. He agreed to bring them bait, and later in the day, two quarts of worms thumped to the ground. But they came high in another way, for the pilot charged the fishermen $2.00 a quart.

GOVERNORS' WAR TURNS SERIOUS IN NORTH DAKOTA

Legislature Believed Ready to Vote Wholesale Impeachments of State Officials.

FARMERS ENTER FRAY.

Lieutenant - Governor Calls National Guard Out to Back Orders.

BISMARCK, N.D., July 19.—(AP)—Wholesale impeachment proceedings threatened to throw North Dakota farther into political chaos today as two claimants for the governorship battled for control of the state government.

Ole H. Olson, lieutenant governor named acting governor by the Supreme Court, occupied the strategic seat of one approved by the judiciary and backed by the military.

On the other hand, the state legislature prepared to meet today at the call of the man it recognizes, William Langer, who was deposed by the state Supreme Court after his conviction on a federal criminal charge.

Reports circulated throughout Bismarck that hundreds, perhaps thousands of farmers were headed for the capital, determined to support Langer in whatever action he may demand. Both Olson and Adjutant General Earle R. Sarles recognized the seriousness of the situation by maintaining National Guardsmen on duty throughout the night. Instructions were sent to the commanders of two companies to "stand by" in the event of disorders.

Wholesale Impeachments

Observers professed to believe that the legislature would vote wholesale impeachments of state officials, possibly including members of the Supreme Court who voted to oust Langer on the ground he was disqualified to hold office because of his conviction on a charge of soliciting funds from federal relief workers.

The court ordered Langer to deliver to Olson "the office of governor and all state documents."

Langer continued to claim he was the legal governor and informed legislators to disregard any orders from Olson.

Threats against a federal official brought a trio of infantrymen to guard the home of E. A. Willson, relief administrator for the state, who a few days before had been manhandled by striking relief workers. Willson was informed by local police that definite threats had been made to tar and feather him.

Fatal Camp Fight Leads To Inquiry

PERTH, Ont., July 19 (C.P.).—The inquest into the death of John Foss, native of Woodroffe, near Ottawa, who died yesterday in the Perth Memorial Hospital from injuries received at the Masinaw Lake Construction Camp, will be resumed next Wednesday. Coroner A. W. Dwyer of Perth last night opened the inquiry and heard medical evidence given by Dr. H. C. Hagyard, who had attended the deceased since his admission to hospital on Friday last.

When Foss was brought to hospital, those accompanying him told of a fight between Foss and another worker in the camp. In this altercation Foss had been struck over the eye and, falling, had hit his head against a bed. Foss had made no statement regarding this while he was in hospital, although he was conscious for the greater part of the time. Death, according to medial evidence, was due to cerebral hemorrhage.

FRISCO'S STRIKE EASES, BUSINESS MOVING AGAIN

Strategy Committee Announces Vote To-night on Ending Walkout.

AGITATORS TO GO.

Street Cars Begin to Move, Food, Gasoline Services Nearly Normal.

By NORMAN BELL

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19 (AP)—Wheels of business in San Francisco's metropolitan area moved again to-day under relaxing brakes of a general strike.

Under pressure from federal, state and city governments, the general walkout gave indications of collapsing rapidly.

The strike "strategy" committee of Alameda County, in which 500,000 of the area's 1,300,000 residents reside, announced a vote would be taken at Oakland to-night on a proposal to end the walkout.

Resumption of East Bay (Alameda County) transportation service controlled by the key route system, including its ferryboats on the bay, employing a total of 900 men, was announced for to-morrow by the carmen's strike committee after a meeting with officials of the company.

More street cars rolled through San Francisco's streets shops reopened and food and gasoline service neared normal, apparently without hindrance, but officials remained, alert for danger signals.

The Pacific coast maritime strike, key issue of the mass walkout in San Francisco Bay cities, remained a problem which officials admitted, still was loaded with dynamite.

Lad Cuts Leg Badly At Round Lake Home

HAVELOCK, July 19 (Examiner Correspondence). — Kenneth Williams, ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Williams of Toronto, met with a painful accident at their summer home, Round Lake, on Monday afternoon. Playing with some of the youngsters from nearby cottages, he ran into the water near his home, lost his footing and fell against a sharp stone, cutting his left leg very badly.

The wound was very deep and bled profusely, and his mother collapsed after going for assistance. After applying a tourniquet to stop bleeding, Kenneth was rushed to the hospital here, where he was attended by Dr. Holdcroft. It required eight stitches to close the wound, and the boy remained overnight in hospital. He is progressing favorably at his Round Lake home.

BARNES CIRCUS COMING TO CITY FOR AUGUST 7

Some Questions Asked When Circus Visits Every Town.

IT'S A HARD LIFE

By CLIFF MCDOUGALL

There are three or four remarks that a circus man hears continuously. Whether the big show is exhibiting in the Canadian Northwest or adjacent to a Southern cotton plantation in Georgia, the question the showman hears from outsiders are identically the same. These remarks are:

"What do you do in the winter; travel in Florida, I suppose?"

"Why do you have mostly gray horses?"

"It must be a hard life; when do you sleep?"

"Where do you go from here?"

Maybe it is because the circus has the fundamental qualities it had fifty years ago. It is the old time perennial bloomer. That is the reason we know to a mathematical certainty what you millions of townspeople like best in the Big Show, and what you are curious about.

Now regarding "mostly all gray horses," for instance. Circus owners know you are interested in the wild animals, the horses, the elephants and the old moss back "it must be tough on you when it rains." I have been asked a thousand questions about the "gray" horses.

Not Always Smiles.

You see a slip of femininity cavorting on the back of a horse, executing poses, and throwing a smile now and then. The fair rider is perfectly at ease when sitting on the steed's broad haunches, for she is only letting the horse get its gait and at the same time, get her own "wind" and courage. When the rider gets ready to turn a somersault on the galloping horse, there are no smiles. It is a mighty serious business. Intuitively they know just how to throw their bodies to make a perfect landing. It takes years of practice and study and innumerable falls.

A Hard Life

You make no mistake when you said the life was hard. There is hardly any other kind of existence just like it. For twenty years I have been associated with the circus as advance man. It is my duty to herald its coming. I have made some pretty broad promises to the public as to just what they are to see. Each year we are on the road 40 weeks and during my two decades of association with the "white tops," I figure I have slept in just about 5,000 different beds in an equal number of different cities and towns and have traveled about 400,000 miles.

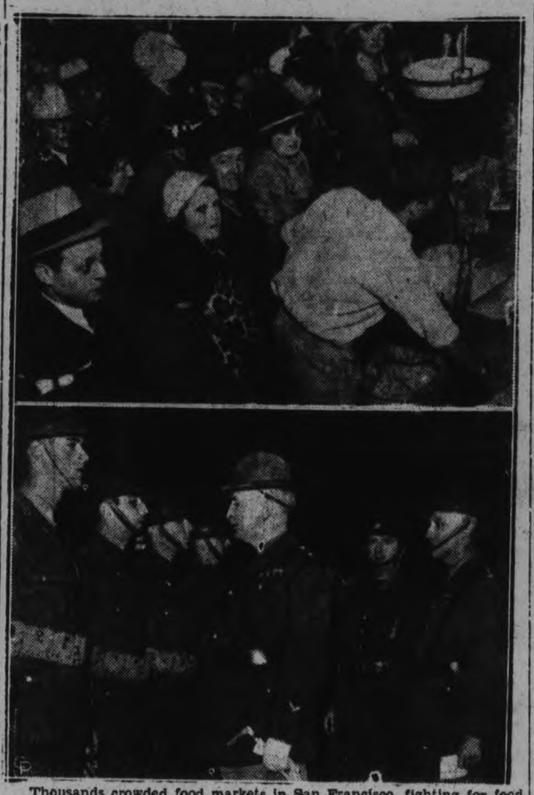
Did you ever go down and see the circus come in? Hundreds of people do. Many of them haven't failed to see the circus come in since they were kids. They get up at 4 a.m. to greet the show trains. It used to be my job to meet the trains and point out the different crossings that had been prepared for unloading. You would be surprised to see not only the men, real captains of industry, but hundreds of women. Yes, when it's circus time there is many a dirty dish in the kitchen sink.

Now, getting back to the "gray" horses with a circus. It is just one of those things. When one thinks of a circus horse, he naturaly thinks it must be gray, and so it is for the most part. But the bareback horses, commonly called the rosin backs, are white. For a rider to maintain his balance on a galloping horse, there must be plenty of rosin sprinkled on the animal's haunches. On a white horse the rosin is invisible; on a black horse it shows, thus the question is solved.

Where do you go in winter? It is only the performers, musicians and working men who leave the circus when it disbands in the far South late in November. The winter season is the hardest time of the year. New wagons must be built, new seats, equipment, etc. Circus property is highly perishable and must be replaced, for the most part, after a strenuous season. New routes must be laid out and considered, new acts engaged. Getting ready for circus day, to the men who have millions invested, means days of hard work. The performers, many of them, rest for the winter. Some find profitable employment in vaudeville and European music halls.

The great Al G. Barnes Circus will exhibit in Peterborough, Tuesday, August 7, at 2 and 8 p.m.

Food Panic In General Strike



Thousands crowded food markets in San Francisco, fighting for food supplies as other unions called a general strike supporting the striking longshoremen. Above, part of a throng at one of the stores is shown. Below, Maj.-Gen. David Prescott Barrows (with riding crop) inspects a unit of the California National Guard assigned to strike duty in the San Francisco district.

Outpost of Empire

By H. G. M.

Able to enjoy the benefits and protection of a great empire without having to pay for them thanks to the close proximity of a friendly power, which is also her natural market, Canada hardly understands the position of an 'outpost of empire' such as Australia. Canada's best and natural market during normal times is right next door to her; Australia's is twelve thousand miles away. Canada leaves her sea-coasts undefended confident that the two mightiest fleets in the world will defend them for her, and boasts of having the longest undefended land frontier in the world. Australia has a longer sea-coast than the U. S. A. and has to be prepared to defend it, for she knows that the nearest great sea power will one day use that power to make an attack.

To have undefended frontiers is a laudable ambition, and as long as your neighbour is friendly, speaks a similar language, works along similar economic lines, has sprung from similar stock, and shows no inclination to hurl his fighting machine across your frontier, it is not hard to abstain from spending all your money and keeping practically all your able-bodied men under arms along your frontiers; especially when that neighbour is about twelve times your size and has a good deal of spare room left in which to expand, and has a similar standard of living.

Powerful Sea-Power.

Australia has a neighbour who is a powerful sea-power, too, but unfortunately that neighbour is of a different colour and creed, speaks a totally different language, has a standard of living that is one of the lowest in the world in comparison with Australia's that is the highest, and has looked with envious eyes on the vast stretches of unused land that lies within Australia's borders. And Japan has a large and ever growing surplus population, who, having been shut out from most of the markets of the world, are hungry for land; and there is a lot of unused land in Australia.

The Eastern part of the world has awakened and is steadily growing in importance. It contains about two thirds of the people of the world, but they are nearly all coloured, and Australia is not only the empire's outpost in the midst of these coloured Eastern people but that of the white races; and anything that takes place among these people of the East affects Australia.

As a protection against the threat of the sea-power of Japan, Great Britain, at the instigation of Australia and New Zealand, built the Singapore Naval Base at a cost of $150,000,000, parts of which cost the Dominion and the Commonwealth more. To both Great Britain and Australia the Suez Canal is of more importance than the Panama is to the U. S. A., and the Singapore base is simply the fortification at the other end of the Suez.

Takes Empire Seriously.

Australia takes the Empire seriously and works in co-operation with the Mother Country in all things, not the least of which is Empire defence, claiming as her right the privilege of sharing in this. Wherever possible she supports British trade and industry, and after India is Britain's best customer. She keeps as large and up-to-date navy as she is able to afford, which includes besides destroyers, light cruisers, submarines, and smaller craft, first-class, capital ships that work in conjunction with the Imperial Navy. She quite realizes that one day she will be called on to defend the land upon which so far no war ever has been fought, and in order to be ready she is building up a modern air force, while every able-bodied man is forced to do a certain period of military or naval training for defence purposes. But she is preparing not merely to defend Australia, but a part of the Empire that is being saved for the future use of the white people in general and the British people in particular; and she fully expects that Great Britain will fight a major fleet action thousand of miles from her own shores in order to protect Australia; realizing that at present Australia is a continent held by a corporal's guard, for the population of Australia is under seven millions.

In addition to her own coast-line, she has colonies and mandates in the Pacific for which she is responsible, and feels that she is the representative of Great Britain in the Pacific; and there are times when she talks to Britain about matters going forward in the Pacific as if she were the senior.

Australia had hoped for Anglo-American co-operation in the East, to foster which she had helped persuade England abandon the Anglo-Japanese treaty; but she has had to give up all hopes of such co-operation. America rushed in to the Eastern market with hopes of a quick profit, made a mess of things and got out. Now Australia sees her hoped-for friend having less and less to do with the East, while her potential enemy is fast assuming the lead that it was hoped England and America would hold. But Englishmen and Americans do not work well together; they know each other too well.

Losing Interest.

Australia sees herself as the outpost and senior partner in the Pacific of a great empire in which all but she is losing interest. She sees the other partners making a great show of sentiment, waving flags, making speeches, and talking about the 'dear old empire' but doing nothing practical and making no preparations to keep 'the dear old empire' together. Great Britain is losing interest herself, and turning her eyes from an empire that offers little in the way of profit but much in the way of responsibility, to her own little island. And the less interest Great Britain takes in the East the more Australia shoulders, for she has no intention that the partnerships of the empire shall be allowed to be disbanded.

The Mother Country is tending more and more to keep her money at home and improve her own small land, but Australia is loudly calling for a strong and progressive empire policy; the policies of the Die-Hard Tories are what she would like to see, and she is ready to make sacrifices in order to carry them through. But she finds a very dubious willingness on the part of the other partners to make any sacrifices now. The others appear only too ready to talk about the grand old empire and drink maudlin toasts to it, but when it comes to planning for its future and sinking some money in it, they seem to look on it as a defunct thing.

Australia wants to see a strong, united empire not only because that is the only chance of white dominance in the East, but because she believes in the British Empire, and because she relies on it for her existence. She sees the war clouds gathering over her—the Japanese invasion of Manchuria was of vital moment to Australia—and the day is fast approaching when those clouds will burst. When the deluge comes, unless she has the backing of Great Britain and a strong empire, not only she, but all hopes of a white man's dominion in the East will be gone. And Australia is making a strong bid for an empire policy that will enable her to hold for the British one of the most glorious countries in the world.

People Not Grumbling.

The task is a heavy one, but the Australians are not grumbling on that account for they are a proud race who are inclined to think that they have been chosen by divine right for the task; and they are surveying the rest of the world from Olympian heights. But after all it is only 146 years since the first settlement was made at Sydney Cove. Perhaps the words of Arthur Phillips, who led the landing, are in a fair way to come true. 'Now do I doubt,' he wrote, 'that this country will prove the most valuable acquisition Great Britain ever made.'

But this year Australia is dressing her front window and asking the world to come and look and the empire partners to come and take note and join in. For the centenary celebrations being held at Melbourne this year are something far more momentous than the celebration of Melbourne's founding.

Only a hundred years ago next November, Edward Henty, one of seven boys who had left England for Western Australia, sailed into Portland Bay on the southern shores of what is now the state of Victoria. Without any authority he annexed as much land as he needed for his flocks of merino sheep that he had brought with him. The following year another man, John Batman, came over from Van Diemen's Land (now Tasmania) at the head of an expedition to settle some of the fertile land round Port Phillip. He put up a few huts on what he considered a good sight for a village on the banks of the river Yarra; and this year a Prince of the House of Windsor will visit, on behalf of His Majesty the King, the city of a million inhabitants that has grown up on the sight Batman chose for his village.

For five months beginning next October the Victorian centenary will be celebrated. There will be a series of functions, social, sporting, political and scientific in the setting of the garden state of Australia during an Australian spring. The celebrations will be marked by more brilliance than has ever before been known in a Dominion centenary. The gala occasion will be inaugurated by an air race in which pilots and machines from many countries will take part for the prizes of £15,000 pounds, and from then on there will be no let up in the proceedings.

From Great Britain besides the government representatives business and industrial houses are sending anything from a shingle to a hundred representatives to look over the ground where they do so much business and have so much capital invested. For it is estimated that there is over 600,000,000 pounds of British capital invested in Australia. The other Dominions will all be represented, besides which diplomats from all over the world will be there, for it is an event of international importance. It is Australia asking the world to come and look over the country about which so little is known, and asking them and the empire in particular to come and see what it is that she is determined to retain for the white man. And if they have eyes to see there will be more willing shoulders at the wheel next year than there are this year.

THURSDAY, JULY 19, 1934

CANADA'S FIRE LOSSES.

While Canada's fire losses last year were high enough to indict the whole population of carelessness, the annual report of Dominion Fire Commissioner J. Grove Smith shows the lowest total since 1927, and for that improvement there is reason to be thankful.

The total of property fire losses in Canada in 1930 was $32,676,314, as against $42,193,815 in the previous year, while the number of fires also decreased, being 46,166 compared with 47,853 in 1932 and 49,284 in 1931.

Of the total value of the fires reported property losses insured amounted to $26,451,633 and the uninsured losses to $6,224,681, the latter figure being somewhat greater in proportion than in the previous year.

Residential fires constituted far the largest number in the list, totalling 34,329; stores were next with 4,043; miscellaneous property, 3,635; farm properties other than dwellings, 2,918; manufacturing risks, 793, and institutional buildings, 448.

It is interesting to note that the per capita loss last year, $3.15, was the lowest in the past ten years.

With their greater populations, Ontario with $11,250,182 and Quebec with $10,862,250, had the largest property losses, and were also well up in the list of per capita losses.

Manitoba was the lowest in this respect with a per capita loss of $1.64, while New Brunswick had the doubtful distinction of having the highest, $5.36 for every man, woman and child in the province.

ANOTHER HOME-MADE BOAT TRAGEDY.

Tragically enough, the drowning accident that shocked Peterborough on Tuesday was repeated in almost every detail by a similar aquatic fatality at Campbellford yesterday.

In this case, as in the local accident, a home-made punt figured, two boys equipped only with sticks for paddles were involved, and the younger boy who could not swim was the victim.

This second accident within twenty-four hours of the first tragedy adds emphasis to The Examiner's warning against small children being allowed to go out on the water in crazily-built boats or rafts, particularly when they are unable to swim.

It is pitiful indeed that two young lives should have to be snuffed out before public attention could be directed to the dangerous craft in use on many Ontario rivers, but now that the situation has been brought out into the open it is to be hoped that parents will make sure that their children are kept out of such boats and are repeatedly warned against playing or bathing in dangerous places.

Probably the authorities would be justified as a safety measure in taking stock of some of the makeshift boats that are in commission, and in warning parents that if they permit their children to risk their lives in such apologies for boats they are helping to send them to their death.

Little folks who cannot swim and who are too young to realize the risk they are taking should be protected against their own lack of experience.

PROTECTING OUR FISH AND GAME.

The story that all the game wardens and deputy-wardens in the employ of the Provincial Government were to be dismissed has been denied.

To those who realize the importance of protecting Ontario's fast-dwindling reserves of fish and game the rumor that the whole field force was to be done away with was almost impossible to believe.

Our tourist traffic is built up largely upon the angling facilities offered by the rivers and lakes of Ontario, and the revenue obtained from non-resident fishermen and hunters more than covers the salaries of the officers engaged in the protective service.

Under those circumstances it would be the rankest folly to dispense with game wardens unless some other form of protection was adopted in their stead.

The supply of fish and game in Ontario has been steadily decreasing, and the time has come not only to safeguard what remains but to take some effective steps to restock many of the favorite fishing rivers and lakes; if these things are not done nothing is more certain than that there will be a marked falling off in the number of American visitors each summer and a corresponding decrease in the money put into circulation in the province each tourist season.

We believe that the new Deputy-Minister of Game and Fisheries, D. J. Taylor, himself an enthusiast sportsman, realizes the situation clearly, and that he is not in the least likely to recommend the removal of the present protective service unless he has in mind a new policy that would prove a more effective safeguard.

MORE DRUNKEN DRIVING.

With freer beer and wine sale now authorized in Ontario, the effect of the repeal of prohibition in the United States becomes a matter of some concern, and it cannot be said, particularly with regard to highway safety, that the American record in the half year following the return of legalized sale is very reassuring.

For example, the Travellers' Insurance Company, after a careful examination of automobile fatalities in the first six months of the present year, reports that the number of persons killed in motor accidents increased 20 per cent. throughout the United States during that period, that arrests for drunken driving jumped by 42 per cent., and the number of drunken persons hit by motor cars increased 60 per cent.

The Washington police department declares that in the first quarter of this year arrests for drunkenness increased 50 per cent. and the number of drunken drivers apprehended increased 42 per cent., while the Chicago Tribune, one of the leaders in the fight against prohibition, admits that drunken driving has increased in Chicago by 300 per cent. in the first six months of repeal. Similarly, the Los Angeles Times, another newspaper which was in the forefront of the campaign for repeal, asserts that drinking is the most common factor in motor car accidents in Los Angeles.

These figures and statements are significant; they should convince us that, now that we are making it easier for people to secure a drink, we should make it harder for them if they try to drive a car afterward.

Freer beer will mean more drunken drivers, if the American record means anything, and it will be therefore up to the authorities in Ontario to see to it that those who persist in drinking and then driving shall lose the privilege of operating an automobile.

We do not want the sharp increase in automobile fatalities that the repeal of prohibition has created in the United States.

DIRECT RELIEF.

It is satisfactory to learn that the Dominion Government proposes to continue its direct relief assistance to the provinces for another month, and that a Dominion-provincial conference has been called for July 30 to discuss the whole situation.

In the meantime the Dominion will cut its contribution of one-third of the total to 25 per cent., thus increasing slightly the burden carried by the provinces. The arrangement in effect for several years has been one-third from the national treasury, one-third from the provinces and one-third from the municipalities. In many instances, however, the latter have been unable to contribute anything, so that the load on the provincial treasuries has been a heavy one.

It is out of the question, it seems to us, for the Dominion authorities to even suggest stepping out of the relief picture at this time. The Dominion, after all, has many opportunities for raising revenue that are denied to the provinces and municipalities, and its obligation in the matter of relief is just as great as that of the others.

It is desirable, of course, that relief lists should be continually revised, eliminating persons who are imposing on the public treasury, and making every possible effort to provide employment so that direct help can be cut down. We may as well face the fact, however, that welfare, in some degree, is going to be a permanent condition, one that must be reckoned with and provided for in all our national, provincial and municipal financing indefinitely.—Border Cities Star.

GERMANY'S PURGING AND PERIL.

Germany's latest chapter, one of the most amazing in modern history, appears to have sharpened the very "menace" which the purging was aimed to eliminate.

According to impartial opinion, the threat of communism, which was not acute before Hitler took power, may now become very real before the year is out.

Hitler's terrible purging of his party has shocked the whole civilized world. Perversion and corruption within the party were officially admitted and even pleaded as an excuse for the recent ruthless action of the Nazi ruler.

The world has been given apparrently authentic stories of firing squads without trial. It has been told how Captain Roehm, Hitler's friend, was executed when he refused to commit suicide; how Kurt von Schleicher and his wife were shot down in their apartment; how Heines of Breslau and Ernst of the Berlin Brown Shirts died.

Estimates of the dead have ranged from 50 to 200, and apparently the work of the firing squads is not yet done.

The ostensible cause of it all was a projected plot of the radicals under Roehm to depose Hitler. But beyond that there has been no full explanation. The charge against Von Schleicher that he conspired with a foreign power has proved to be baseless, as it obviously must.

Hitler is, to revive, in form at least, the Parliament of Germany on Friday and explain to it just what he has done. The puzzled world will await his explanation.

Meanwhile he says he has purged his party. But he has solved none of Germany's economic troubles by his dramatic and ruthless drive. He has therefore not removed the underlying causes of discontent against his regime.

Observers now trace Hitler's rise to the Versailles treaty. That treaty, they say, drove the industrial leaders into organized action. They planned future policy. It was to be about like this:

Germany would be submissive, convince the world of her good faith. When war phobias had subsided she would gradually reassert herself, drop reparations, rearm, renounce the war guilt and generally work to resume her economic place.

That program was broadly followed. Germany borrowed from other nations, paid reparations out of the loans until the time came when she could announce the end of reparations. Then finally she declared a moratorium on the money she had borrowed.

Her favorable trade balance had disappeared and an adverse balance this year took its place. She clung to a gold standard, though her gold coverage went down to 2 per cent.

Hitler came in last year with a regime of great promise. But the promises were not fulfilled; the economic stress remained; the public grew restive; forces of discontent plotted. Then came the explosion.

Germans were betrayed by their war lords in 1914, disappointed by their Weimar republic in the post-war years, and have now been totally disillusioned by Hitler.

He has cleaned political house for the time being. But he has shaken world confidence. This he is now busy trying to restore by peaceful gestures, by disarming the Storm Troops, by abandoning his projected union with Austria, by placating France and by other means.

The world will listen to Hitler on Friday, not for sympathy with him, but for sympathy with the German people. For the world realizes, even with the meagre explanation it already has, that Germany's economic affairs are desperate, and that this is no time for picking a quarrel even with Nazi violence.

The face-saving of Hitler has suddenly become unimportant. It is the nation-saving of Germany that matters now.—Vancouver Sun.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

If Mr. Hepburn continues to authorize commissions and inquiries, the "long vacation" usually enjoyed by the bench and the bar will be only a myth in Ontario this summer.

Germany is not the only quarter of the globe where "heads are rolling in the sand." Fortunately in Ontario the decapitations are bloodless—even although painful.

It will be surprising if a great deal of electricity does not develop during the progress of the Hydro inquiry.

"Show Me the Way to go Home" will be sung an hour later than in the old days of the open bar, sale until midnight being authorized under the new provincial regulations.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

A MACKENZIE KING MILESTONE.

On this date, in 1900, William Lyon Mackenzie King was sworn at the first deputy minister of labor of Canada. To those of us who had almost daily contact with him as editor of the Labor Gazette, the appointment was a matter for congratulation both to the country and to Mr. King personally. We had not seen much of him in the Press gallery, he was too busy laying the foundation of the Labor department which was his own creation, although Sir William Mulock was the first minister, and had been sympathetic towards the movement, probably more sympathetic than any previous Postmaster General.

Sir William does not take the personal credit for the creation of the Labor Department which other politicians might have done. If you look in the Parliamentary Guide you will see in Sir William's sketch that that step was taken "on the advice of W. L. Mackenzie King".

Few of us then imagined that "Billy" King would become Prime Minister in a little over 21 years. We knew that he was highly thought of by Sir Wilfrid and it did not come as a surprise when eight years later (in 1908), he resigned from the civil service to enter politics. His election for his native county was popular and it was not long before the young M.P. of 34 made a reputation in the House of Commons as a forceful upholder of Laurier's policies. By the time we knew that he was destined for big things, and were proud of him, for had he not been a newspaper man? Yet if any one had bet that Mr. King would be called upon to fill Sir Wilfrid's shoes and be twice prime minister of Canada, with a very good prospect of heading the government for a third time, he would have found it hard to get takers.

But William Lyon Mackenzie King believed in himself and his destiny. He had been well schooled by Mulock and Laurier and when his hour came he was ready. I wonder if he recalls the congratulations from the newspaper boys on this date 34 years ago? They were simple but they were sincere; but, oh, it makes one feel old to think of the time that has since elapsed!

THE MOON

All hail, new moon, all hail to thee
I prithee, good moon, reveal to me
This night who shall my true love be;
Who is he, and what he wears,
And what he does all months and years.
—From Aubrey.

The story of the Moon reads like a lover's story. There are loves as deep as real, as binding as the love of the human for one of her kind. The story of the craters of the Moon has held many a gazer through the hours of the night as spellbound as the lines quoted above.

Close to the South-eastern border the Shickard crater can be seen in sharp outline. The diameter is 134 miles. The walls rise to 10,000 feet in height. Clavis is another wonder filling crater. Look for it near the southern edge. In length it is 143 miles. The depth is so far down that to look into it is like looking into something without a bottom. Drop a plumb into it and the cord holding will descend two and a half miles before the bottom has been reached. The walls rise to a height of seventeen thousand feet. If you were standing on the top of one of its peaks your heart would beat five times as fas as it does in Peterborough. Surrounding this vast crater are a multitude of smaller craters. The sight reminds one of the crown worn by Queen Victoria with that great diamond from Africa with its attendant and lesser brilliants.

On the eastern boundary of the Mare Procellarum you can trace the outline of one of the largest wall surrounded plains on the Moon. Astronomers have given it a fitting name—Grimaldi. From north to south the length is one hundred and forty-eight miles. The area is 14,000 square miles.

Voice of the People

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner Office by 5 p.m. on the day before insertion. All letters must be signed by the writer, although a pen-name may be used when inserting non-controversial subject matter. Letters over 400 words will be cut down at discretion of the editor.

COUNTRY CHANGES

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir: Electoral changes by which rural districts are united with populous centres, are a mistake. As this practice increases the interests of the farmer will become entirely subordinate to the city man's. This is going to breed trouble. It may seem strange to discuss a question in the general interest, and not for the benefit of particular interests, as has now become the vicious custom, but we have made so many mistakes that it would be well not to make this one. It would surely be better to promote unions of farmers.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

HESPELER, ONTARIO.

Someone with a peculiar sense of humor chose "New Hope" as the name of the settlement which is now known as Hespeler. This was prior to 1859. In that year Jacob Hespeler settled in the district and in a short time became its leading citizen. He built a saw mill, a grist mill, a woollen mill and distillery. It was only natural, therefore, that a man who dominated the business life of the district should be honored by having the town named for him.

The village was incorporated in 1859 and the town in 1900.

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterboroughs Leading Handwriting Analyist for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

Margaret Snowden,
R. R. No. 3, Bowmanville.

Your handwriting portrays a pleasant, friendly nature, but I am afraid that you are very much inclined to let things worry you a great deal.

The terminals of your last letters reveal a propensity to accomplish whatever tasks you allow yourself to commence, and this characteristic will benefit you greatly as you become more mature.

The lower loops attendant to your script, designate grace, beauty, and culture, with a desire for physical perfection. Neatness is revealed in the upright even formations of the small lettering, and I should say that you were a person with a most discriminating taste in clothing.

Your 't' bars illustrate normal will power, and show keen discerning qualities.

Your capital letters delineate an artistic portrayal, which should be most helpful to you as you journey through this life. It will give you the courage of your convictions, because knowing one has a definite talent helps to instill confidence, and confidence as a rule means courage.

Your health should be very good, but care will have to be exercised in order to spare your nervous system from shocks. Try not to borrow trouble, look on the bright side of things, and I venture to suggest that life will hold much happiness for you.

Any work of an artistic nature, such as hairdressing, beauty culture, designing, dressmaking or millinery should appeal to you, but business of a secretarial designation could be equally successful.

Miss Madeline Charlton,
Kawartha Park, Ont.

Thank you so much for your kind letter of appreciation, it is always nice to hear that one's efforts are interesting, and what a nice old world this would be if a few more people realized the part that the living require compliments and flowers, far more than do the dead.

You asked for your lucky number, but omitted to give me your year of birth. However, you may ask me for it when I return from my vacation if you wish.

Your writing illustrates activity, ambition and independence. You are persevering, diplomatic and have a good business head on your shoulders. You are kind-hearted, loyal and can be secretive when necessary. This is an excellent attribute for one of your nature because it prevents you from telling things which are essentially secrets. You seem to be careful with money, but could cater to your expensive tastes if you were not so sensible. Your personality is magnetic, and should draw the correct type of friends to you. You are undemonstrative in affections, though sincere and loyal. Your word is your bond.

Your health is fairly good, but you should exercise care in order to guard against rhuematism in the lower limbs.

Your birthsign is Capricorn the Goat. You are ruled by Saturn. March and November are your most fortunate months. Tuesday and Saturday your best days. Many designers and milliners are found born under your sign, but with your type of writing, I suggest a thorough training in commercial rudiments.

Mrs. Amy H. Watley,
Post-office,
Campbellford, Ont.

Your handwriting designates you as sensible, kind, thoughtful and most appreciative of the little deeds of love and respect as shown to you by others.

You should be interested in medicines and all manner of healing properties, even if only 'mental' in some cases.

You are affectionate, graceful and a great lover of beauty. You are quite artistic in many ways. Quality always appeals to you, but you detest anything of a cheap, gaudy nature, whether it be of material things or a person's character. Your own character is excellent. You are fond of out-of-door recreation, but it must not be too strenuous. You tire easily, more so physically than mentally, because your mind is keen and penetrating. Mental people are very seldom as strong physically as those less well equipped, though frequently try to hide their personal suffering while endeavouring to bring comfort and happiness to others. Usually people who demonstrate your type of writing, develop spiritually and have the power to sooth and heal. Literary ability is noted throughout your letter, and I sincerely hope it will bring you monetary compensation.

Your birthsign is Taurus the Bull. You are ruled by Venus. Friday is your lucky day. May and July your most fortunate months. Your number according to birthdate is seven, and creates wisdom, ingenuity and keen mental intelligence. Your type as a rule dislike routine, but have the will-power and ability to carry it out when necessary. Taurus people make excellent hosts, but worry lest their hospitality is not abundant enough to supply the needs of their guests.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN.

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 88c to 90c; oats, 35c to 38c; barley, 45c to 46c; corn, 74c to 77c; rye, 48c to 50c; buckwheat, 58c to 60c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Prices were unchanged on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday.

Butter maintained its former level, fresh No. 1 being quoted at 18¾c to 19c a pound in carlots or less; small lots to retailers brought 20c a pound for solid and 21c for prints. Receipts were 1,004 boxes.

On the cheese market, Ontario colored sold for 10c to 10¼c a pound and Quebec cheese was 9½c to 9¾c a pound. Arrivals totalled 327 boxes.

Egg prices were steady, graded shipments in carlots or less commanding 20c to 21c a dozen for A large, 19½c to 20c for A medium, 19c for B, and 18c to 18½c for C. Receipts totalled 495 cases.

Potatoes were unchanged yesterday after Tuesday's weakness, New Brunswick Mountains (old) being 40c to 60c per 80-pound bag, while new Quebecs sold for 70c to 75c per 80-pound bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Higher quotations on all grains formed the rule yesterday, with corn and rye reaching new top records for the season, but with buyers increasingly cautious.

The principal fresh upward impetus for values came from Canadian reports of severe damage to wheat crops of the Prairie Provinces largely as a result of widening drought and excessive heat. Unofficial estimates yesterday placed the 1934 probable production of wheat in these Povinces as low as 228,000,000 bushels, against an expectation of 350,000,000 bushels a few weeks ago.

Wheat closed firm, ⅝c to ¾c above Tuesday's finish, corn also ⅝c to ¾c up, oats unchanged to ¼c higher, and provisions at 5c to 10c decline.

Corn, oats and other grains reflected knowledge of unabated heat and drought southwest and west, with no relief in sight for the corn crop of that region.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, July 19. — Wheat futures prices marked up another advance on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday, a late rally enabling values to retain most of an earlier gain. At the close July option was at 85½c, October 86¾c, and December 87½c, a net advance of 1½ to 1¼ cents.

Weather and an official Canadian crop report was the base on which yesterday's upturn was stages. Temperatures over the 100-degree mark in Manitoba and Saskatchewan were reported on Tuesday and a pessimistic outlook for the new Canadian crop was expressed in the Government forecast.

A holiday in the Liverpool market curtailed foreign interest and export sales were estimated at less than 500,000 bushels of wheat. Reports continued to be received of further damage to grain crops over North America, due to hot weather.

Cash grains trading was slow and spreads generally closed unchanged. Action in coarse grains futures closely followed that of wheat opening advances being pared in later trading.

Arrangements Made For Branch Picnic

MILLBROOK, July 19.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. David Lunn entertained the local branch of the Women's Institute for its July meeting at her home, Distillery street, on Saturday at 8 p.m., the president, Mrs. T. G. Harkness, in the chair. Arrangements for the district picnic were discussed, this event to be held on the Mansion grounds, Millbrook, on July 26, with each of the East Durham branches responsible for a fifteen-minute period on the program.

A letter from E. A. Summers, Agricultural Representative, asked that the W.I. make arrangements for the girls' coaching class to be held here on July 19, with Miss Edith Hopkins as instructress; the final in the competition will be at Hampton, when the team from Durham will be chosen to go to the Royal Winter Fair, and to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. Clothing, nutrition and house furnishings are the three divisions.

The sympathy of the branch was extended to Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, recently bereaved through the death of her mother; on motion, it was decided to withdraw the August meeting, the invitation of the president to hold the September meeting at her home being accepted.

The hostess, who is convenor of the Standing Committee on Home Economics, took charge of the program, her little daughter, Betty Lunn, reciting "A Winter Scene"; Mrs. Will Armstrong gave a paper on "Milk in the Diet", and Mrs. J. W. Hilton spoke on "Our Kitchen", Mrs. D. Olan further enlarging this topic with a paper on "The Farm Kitchen." Mrs. Lunn finished with an excellent paper on "Clothing", like the others full of constructive suggestions, and at the close a treat of candy was served.

Mrs. J. L. Byam, past president, reported the sale of two quilts for $5.00; two new members, Mrs. S. Elmer and Mrs. W. Lunn, were received, and the vote of thanks to Mrs. Lunn was sponsored by Mrs. G. Fallis and Mrs. R. J. McKnight.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

SAVE YOUR PITY.

"Poor, old man!" I heard somebody whisper.

And I looked to see "the poor, old man" they pity so.

Poor, old man, indeed. I know that poor, old man better than the pitier knows him and I find no pity in my heart for him. . . . Neither would you if you knew what his life has been, what it is.

Yes, he is old. I grant you that. Very old, indeed. And he walks with a stick and he is not strong and he may have but a few months to live upon this earth and breathe this air and feel the dews of evening and the glorious morning sun. . . . But look into his heart and you will find a world of richness there. He is weak in body, to be sure, but he is strong in spirit. His hands tremble. Any one may see that; but no one can look within and see how his heart is steady and unafraid.

The years have nourished this man and he feeds upon them. He has been brave, he has been unselfish, he has let himself adventure far and deep. Been foolish many a time, been widely reckless, reaped failure out of audacity, paid his debts manfully. Tears have coursed down those leathery old cheeks, but lightning has flashed from those old eyes. He made many friends in his life-time, and all the old ones have been gone these many years. He grieved for them. He sighed for the instability of all things mortal, but did not weaken beneath the bludgeons of fate and circumstances. Stubborn, enduring, he went his way.

You pity him? I do not. I have heard him say that much as he loves life, he likes to think of how, when he is unbodied, the part of him that dies will make a rich mulch somewhere in the earth and he will serve Nature then as he has always served her in this life.

So save your pity for that old man. He has no need of it. . . . If he knew you pitied him he would be furious. He would pity you for your blind foolishness, straighten his shoulders and pour his scorn upon you, ask you to withhold your pity from every man until it is asked for. . . . But you pity him because he is BLIND, you say? You pity him because you put yourself in his place and try to imagine how you would feel if YOU were blind? . . . O save your foolish pity, man! This old, blind man has clearer eyes than you.

Indian River Wins From Elmwoods 13-7

Indian River defeated Elmwoods on the former's grounds, 13-7, Tuesday in the first game of the East Peterborough Softball League play-offs. Good pitching and snappy fielding, featured by Jim Clark's doubleplay and a running one-hand catch by Mike Doherty, aided the homesters with the win. Jack Walsh and R. Walsh went good on the mound, the latter having poor support. The teams:

PROFIT-TAKING CUTS EARLY MINING GAINS AT TORONTO

God's Lake Closes With an Advantage of 20 Cents After Morning Advance of 75.

LIST CLOSES WEAK.

TORONTO, July 19 (CP).—The mining market tore along at a mad pace for three hours today, led mainly by God's Lake and Eldorado and then settled down in an apparent effort to consolidate its position. Profit-taking however, ate into the gains set up by God's Lake and out of an advance of 75 cents in the early part of the day it had less than 20 cents at the close. The general tone throughout the day was strong though the list closed with losses showing a margin over gains.

Again the big gold shares and the base metals were slow, heaving the fireworks to the cheaper golds and the silvers. Only Eldorado and Bear Exploration aroused interest in the white metal group. Eldorado hit 3.20 and closed at 2.93 for a net gain of 13 cents. It turned over in heavy volume. Bear Exploration ran up from 22 to 45 and closed at 38, up 16 cents for the session. White Eagle advanced 2 1-2 to 25 1-2.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET CLOSE.

NEW YORK, July 19 (AP)—Heaviness in the metal category led the general stock list lower today. Volume continued light. Alaska Juneau, Cerro de Pasco and U.S. Smelting dropped around 2 to 3 points each. Homestake Mining, however, staged a sharp rally moving up 13 points. U.S. Steel, United Aircraft, Santa Fe, Western Union and a number of others were off around a point. Some specialties resisted. Transfers approximated 600,000 shares.

Fractional Losses In Industrial Trade

TORONTO, July 19 (CP).—The industrial section of the Toronto Exchange chose to take things easy today and prices sagged narrowly under the light accumulation of buying orders. Distillery stocks lost early fractional gains, foods were off with one or two exceptions and construction and steel stocks closed lower. A gain of three points for Consumers Gas was the only buoyant note in the utilities.

In the oils B.A. and Supertest ordinary boarded gains against small losses for Imperial and International Pete. A generally soft tone on the New York Market weakened the interlisted group and Nickel's early gain was cut to 1-4-point while Brazilian, C.P.R. and Ford A were all down at the close.

THREE LICENSES

the first of the week, Mr. Odette said, licenses issued would be good until Oct. 31. At that time a survey could be made to determine a fair annual fee beginning Nov. 1.

No Rush to Prepare.

Ontario's hotel-keepers were preparing to-day for the coming beer-by-the-glass sale which they expect will help them overcome the depression. As yet, however, there has been no rush to prepare for Monday, when the Government's regulations permitting the 'loosening-up' will go into effect.

At Sarnia, two hotels will make application for licenses, but no beverage rooms have been prepared. Two others are considering the matter and awaiting official text of the regulations before taking definite action. It could not be learned of the Canadian steamship lines intended securing licenses for beverage rooms on its passenger steamers.

Kingston hotelmen were apparently well pleased. All but one of the city's nine hotels have applied for licenses. The lone hotel management announced it did not want to handle beer. Peterborough hotel-owners expressed themselves as "well satisfied," although some thought the extra $100 license for beer and wine in dining-rooms was pretty "steep."

"We are getting a break that has been long overdue," said Belleville hotel-owners, who thought drinking would be reduced rather than increased. Four St. Catharines hotels will have licenses.

Kitchener hotelmen appeared pleased with the new regulations, although restaurant owners weren't quite in agreement. "I realize they are only starting on this thing and that revisions may come later, said one restauranteur, "but we had certainly expected we would be given the privilege of selling."

Brantford hotelmen are waiting for official word from the Government or for the license application form before they take definite action. They expect to be selling beer and wine early in the week.

FINAL RECOUNT LIKELY REVEAL TORY ELECTED

J. Lawrie, representing Mr. Lancaster.

Tabulation of the vote by poll was begun this morning by W. B. Gordon, and at the conclusion of the actual recounting of the ballots, the figures will have to be run through an adding machine as on election night.

Then the ballots which have been set aside will be considered by Judge O'Connor with argument by counsel.

Gains and Losses

Two gains for Hawthorne in this morning's progress of the recount were offset by changes in favor of Lancaster.

The Hawthorne gains at several city polls were nullified by the loss of two votes at Lakefield which were submitted to Judged O'Connor and rejected by him.

Another ballot for Lancaster which also bore two naughts in the spaces opposite the names of Hawthorne and Sutherland was transferred to the doubtful list. A Hawthorne ballot marked with a 'Y' went to the same category for further consideration.

A young woman living on Water Street voted for Southerland and wrote her name on the face of the ballot, which was rejected.

At poll No. 12, a woman marked her 'X' for Hawthorne, and added her name for no good reason. That cost Hawthorne another vote. Another Hawthorne paper that was set aside had an 'X' written before and after the name of the candidate.

A ballot that had been counted for Lancaster was rejected because is also had a mark opposite Hawthorne's name.

Some voter at poll 41 put his initials on the back of a Lancaster ballot which was therefore rejected. Of four rejected ballots at this poll one was allowed for Hawthorne, one for Lancaster, a third was definitely rejected, and the fourth was set aside.

These circumstances, some favorable to Lancaster and some to Hawthorne, explain the statement from the Judge's chamber that the final result of the recount is unlikely to change Peterborough's representation in the Legislature.

By-Elections Set For September 24

OTTAWA, July 19 (C.P.)—The date of the Federal by-elections for North York, Frontenac-Addington, Elgin West and Toronto East were decided by the Cabinet yesterday, it was learned last night, and will probably be announced to-day. It is stated the voting will be on Sept. 24, with nominations on Sept. 17. The constituency of Kenora-Rainy River was not dealt with, it is learned. Three of the vacancies were caused by deaths, Hon. E. B. Ryckman, in Toronto East; Dr. William Spankie, in Frontenac-Addington; and Lieut.-Col. T. H. Lennox, in North York. They were all Conservatives. The vacancy in Elgin West was caused by the resignation of Mitchell Hepburn to lead the Ontario Liberal Party to victory. The vacancy in Kenora-Rainy River was caused by the resignation of Hon. Peter Heenan to join the new Provincial Government.

SKUNK'S MISERY HERMIT IS BACK IN JAIL AGAIN

CHATHAM, Ont., July 19 (C.P.) — Orval Shaw, famous hermit of Skunk's Misery, extensive bush in the eastern part of Kent and one of the most colorful characters this country has produced, is again in custody.

Shaw, who once had police in all parts of Ontario searching for him after his sensational escape from the county jail with Pete Brennan, a vagrant who was shot and killed during a man hunt at Bolsover, was taken into custody last night at his blacksmith shop at Arner, which he has operated since he got out of Kingston Penitentiary a year and a half ago.

He is charged with robbery of the C. W. Reynolds blacksmith shop at High Gate.

advertisement appearing in newspapers of Aug. 6, 1932, giving notice of the $18,000,000 bond deal. The advertisement, said Mr. Henry, was issued by the Hydro Commission at the request of the government. The former premier verified appointments to the Hydro Commission June 9, 1931, at his recommendation.

On Aug. 2, 1932, Mr. Slaght stated, the resolution was passed by the Hydro Commission authorizing the bond deal.

Keep Hydro Out of Politics

Mr. Henry said the policy of Sir Adam Beck, late Hydro knight, was to keep Hydro out of politics. He had known Senator Meighen for 40 years and was glad to obtain his services as a Hydro Commissioner, he said.

Commission counsel asked the former premier if he had sought from former Attorney General W. H. Price any advice regarding the financial capacity of Mr. Meighen. The question, Mr. Meighen interjected, was irrelevant, and he demanded the relevancy, if any, be shown.

Mr. Slaght replied he had seen a document in the Attorney General's fyles indicating Mr. Meighen was "not fit for a position of trust, and Mr. Meighen replied the statement was "contemptible."

Mr. Slaght then asked if Mr. Meighen disclosed, at the time of his appointment to Hydro Commission, he was a director of six companies owning O.P.S.C. bonds and the senator again objected, declaring Mr. Slaght was trying to put evidence in the witness' mouth.

A further argument ensued when Mr. Meighen objected to recitation of a report tabled in the legislature listing those who owned O.P.S.C. stock. Finally the report was brought admitted. The senator again objected, declaring Mr. Slaght was trying to show holdings of companies with which he was associated.

List Was Worthless

He maintained the list was worthless. It included several companies with which Mr. Meighen was associated. Mr. Justice Latchford said it was for Mr. Slaght to establish the connection of the list. Mr. Henry declared Mr. Meighen did not disclose to him that he was associated with the companies or that the companies owned O.P.S.C. bonds. He acknowledged at that time the O.P.S.C. had a contract with Hydro, and Mr. Slaght asked if Mr. Henry thought Mr. Meighen would would have been a fit man to hold a seat on the Hydro Commission if any dispute should have arisen between O.P.S.C. bondholders and the Commission.

Mr. Henry replied he would not change his view that Mr. Meighen had no reason to reveal his company associations, and said when Mr. Meighen was appointed to the Senate he raised no objections. He He was asked by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, he said. His first knowedge of Mr. Meighen's association with the bondholding companies and his own holdings was when a question was asked in 1933 in the Legislature.

Mr. Slaght asked if there was any reason why the names of the bondholders were not revealed sooner in reply to the legislature question and Mr. Henry replied they were not available earlier. He did not reveal Mr. Meighen's holdings because he did not know them, he said. The former Premier charged Mr. Slaght was seeking to build up a case to agree with his previously-formed judgment.

Political Inquisition

Applause broke out in the room and Mr. Justice Latchford said if a repetition occurred he would have those responsible ejected. Russell Locke, representing Mr. Henry, said the inquiry resembled a "political inquisition."

Mr. Slaght proceeded with a question regarding an interview between Mr. Henry and Mr. Meighen prior to revelation of the bondholder's list. It was decided to wait until the record was obtained. Mr. Henry said his discovery of Mr. Meighen's holdings had not prompted him to request the Senator's resignation from the commission. He said Mr. Meighen asked an inquiry by the Ontario Government into his position as Hydro Commissioner and officer in companies holding O.P.S.C. bonds.

He read a letter from Mr. Meighen asking for a public investigation into his conduct. The letter was dated Oct. 30, 1933. It quoted a news story from Chatham appearing in newspapers of that day quoting Mitchell F. Hepburn, now Premier, as accusing Mr. Meighen of using "inside information" to profit by the O.P.S.C. bond deal.

Inquiry Not Needed

Mr. Henry said the government did not feel an inquiry was needed, "knowing the facts as we did."

He said he and Mr. Meighen had discussed the Senator's resignation on several occasions. There was no question of bonds discussed or any question of the Senator's relations with private corporation.

Mr. Henry said he sold his Hydro bonds exchanged for O.P.S.C. bonds for between 90 and 92, at a loss. He recalled a loss of interest which occurred in the exchange because of O.P.S.C. had defaulted its interest before the transfer.

In May, 1932, when the government decided to buy the O.P.S.C. bonds, Mr. Henry said, he could not recall the price of the bonds on the market. He said the government did not learn the trading volume of the bonds at that time.

Mr. Slaght asked why the commission published the bond offer on Aug. 6, before the order-in-council had been a matter of form.

Mr. Henry said he collected dividends in January, 1932, and that he learned subsequently the company was in financial difficulties. That was in March.

TRAFALGAR LONG LAC LIMITED

"Tight buttoned"

Have You, The "Can't Afford It" Habit ?

THE use of that phrase does not suggest the inability to buy so much as the desire to practice rigid economy ... to save ... to deny yourself needed and necessary commodities.

But Man, oh Man, and you, too, Madam, how better and more effectively can you practice economy and thrift than to buy when prices are at their lowest ebb in years? How more certainly can you insure economy than to replace worn or out-of-date furniture than when new is selling for one-third of what it sold for 15 years ago? Or to stock up on food products when they are 40% less than at any time since the war? Or clothing when $53 to-day will buy you what you paid $100 for in 1912?

What you really cannot afford to do is not buy because you cannot afford to miss to-day's low levels . . . prices that are an actual boon to reduced incomes . . . to the practice of sensible, far-sighted economy.

GOVERNMENT ABOLISHES OFFICE OF DISTRICT HEALTH OFFICER

Economy Program Cut Off $38,000 in Department of Health.

SEVEN DISTRICTS.

Because Premier Hepburn considers District Officers of Health nothing but relics of the "horse-and-buggy days", he yesterday signed the official papers dismissing Ontario's seven District Officers of Health, including Dr. N. H. Sutton, of Peterborough, and wiped out this branch of the Provincial health service completely. Premier Hepburn estimated that this scratch of his pen saves the province approximately $38,000 annually.

Interviewed by The Examiner Dr. Sutton said he had no comment to make just at this time.

Some of the seven District Officers of Health will receive superannuation benefits. Their annual salaries have been $4,000.

Discussing his latest action, Premier Hepburn said, "We've been expending nearly $40,000 a year on this service. Its a long time since we passed the horse-and-buggy stage in Ontario. There's a Medical Officer of Health in every municipality and they can easily keep in touch with Toronto. In the event of an epidemic we can have officials on the scene, by car or airplane, in plenty of time.

"The district officer has outlived his usefulness. In no case will he be replaced."

Dr. J. Albert Faulkner, Minister of Health, explained some of the reasons behind the dismissal of the district health officers.

"I believe that the expenditure is more than the province can afford at the present time," he commented. He expressed the belief that the local health officers were qualified to administer the Health Act, with the efficient assistance of the Department at Toronto.

"I am trying to co-operate with Premier Hepburn's promise that our administrative expenses will be cut 50 percent, if at all possible and when it will not interfere with the public good."

Dr. Sutton has been District Officer of Health in Peterborough since February, 1923. He was in charge of the Central Ontario district from Whitby to beyond Belleville. He graduated from the University of Toronto in 1903, and after practising in the north, entered general practice at Omemee for six years. Later he moved to this city where he conducted a practise. In 1915 he went Overseas with the Canadian Medical Corps.

QUEBEC GIVES WARM GREETING TO MACDONALD

tour of the only part of Canada he has not heretofore visited.

"I have said in previous occasions" Mr. MacDonald said, "that Canada was very dear to me. Now I am proving to you that I meant what I said." He left by motor for Sherbrooke where he will board a special car attached to the Saint John train and will be in Digby, N. S., at noon tomorrow. Questioned with respect to his hopes for the achievement of a world peace accord, Mr. MacDonald reminded interviewers that he was out of touch with international affairs. "But it is a great and splendid objective and I am always hopeful," he added. "We must have faith."

Accompanied by Guard

Mr. Macdonald was accompanied by his daughter, Ishbel, and a stalwart secret service man, Inspector Allum of Scotland Yard. The Prime Minister was in a real holiday mood and was kept busy saying good-byes to the many passengers who had enjoyed his companionship during the voyage. He had presided over the ship's entertainment for the benefit of the seamens' funds and Miss Ishbel had distributed the prizes.

"I have not brought my golf clubs, Mr. Macdonald said, regretfully.

"My eyes have been troubling me and I cannot follow the ball in its flight. I can see to hit it and that's all. There will be no golf. He would leave his plans open to permit taking advantage of whatever the climate and country offered in the way of diversion, the Prime Minister said. In travelling through Nova Scotia he will stay wherever his fancy dictates and if he finds a congenial spot he will make it the base for his vacation visit. He expects to visit Newfoundland and possibly to sail from there for home at the end of his holiday.

Leaving the ship Prime Minister Macdonald motored to a hotel where an impromptu reception was held, prior to the start for Sherbrooke, about 120 miles away. Premier L. A. Taschereau and members of the provincial government, paid their respects.

"How is your circulation?" Mr. Macdonald asked a reporter, "is it keeping up alright these times?" The reporter assured him that the newspaper business was flourishing.

"One of the mysteries of life is how the people keep on buying newspapers," Mr. Macdonald observed. "But that is only a British observation," he added, laughing.

The captain and many of the liner's officers were at the gangplank to say farewell to the Prime Minister and his daughter and to express the wish that he would return with them. Throughout the voyage both Mr. Macdonald and Ishbel had been most active in deck sports and they had been on deck every morning for exercise at seven o'clock, officers stated.

Posing for a news picture at the head of the gangplank the Prime Minister, Ishbel and Mr. Bennett found themselves somewhat obscured by a flag draped over the passage. "It's alright," said Ishbel. "It is a red flag and we don't mind that."

"I am afraid I will have to differ with you," observed Mr. Bennett, as the flag was rolled back.

Soon after Mr. Macdonald's arrival the threatening clouds disappeared and brilliant summer weather conditions for the distinguished visitor's first day in Canada.

THREATENS TO FIRE CHIEF OF POLICE

Slot Machine Controversy Continues in London—No Action Taken.

LONDON, Ont., July 18. — Mayor G. A. Wenige's ultimatum that he will move to get a new Chief of Police unless all slot machines in operation in London are seized within 36 hours failed to budge the police as far as could be learned to-day.

The Mayor has made the same threat several times during the slot machine controversy, which resulted a couple of weeks ago in seizure of half a dozen test types. Two kinds were declared illegal, but others were found within the law by Magistrate T. W. Scandrett, K. C. Regardless of the question of legality, the Mayor demands the immediate seizure and removal of all kinds.

In his letter to the Chief, the Mayor quotes the opinion of T. G. Meredith, K.C., city solicitor, as given to the Police Commissioners when they demurred. Mr Meredith quotes Section 641 of the Criminal Code, which empowers police to execute a search warrant in any premises suspected of being a disorderly or gambling house. They have the right to seize all gambling or lottery devices found therein if believed to be operated contrary to Sections 235 or 236 of the Code, but the police balk on the last line which states that the offender and his apparatus must be thereafter dealt with "according to law."

Chief Down refused to discuss the matter to-day.

Behind War Scenes

FRITZ THYSSEN

Economic king of the industrial Ruhr district of Germany, Fritz Thyssen holds in his hands momentous decision for war or peace in Europe. Close political observers say Thyssen, financial angel of the Nazi party and a power in Chancellor Hitler's councils, is being driven toward war by economic forces stronger than himself. The iron of Lorraine, upon which use of the Ruhr coal depends, is controlled by a French trust. Germany also needs an outlet for other Ruhr industrial products, reviving the old German 'Berlin-to-Bagdad" ambition.

PICNICS HELD BY SOCIETIES

While W.M.S. Members of St. James' Church Hold July Meeting in Parsonage.

PLEASING REPORTS.

The W.M.S. and its junior organizations, Circle and Band, of St. James' United Church, keep up their work in many ways during the summer months, and that there may be change in setting and a variety in programs, the committees use much initiative.

The regular meeting of the Auxiliary, in charge of Mrs. M. H. Drysdale and her staff of helpers, met at the parsonage on Tuesday evening and presented a fine program. A good attendance answered to the roll call, despite the fact that many members were on holidays. An impressive devotional service opened the meeting, Mrs. Gillespie offering the prayer. A fine report was heard from the secretary of Christian stewardship, Miss Kidd, and the treasurer, Mrs. English, gave a very optimistic report covering the second quarter of the year's work. In a very interesting manner the study book chapter from "Living Issues in China," was told by Mrs. W. Casey, and a season of silent prayer for the missionaries adopted by St. James' W.M.S. was followed with prayer by several members for the work in general. Readings of a devotional nature were given by Mesdames Rose and Dunbar, and a delightful vocal duet was contributed by Mesdames Church and Cuff. Reports were also heard from the supply secretary, Mrs. Payne, and the Associate Helpers' secretary, Mrs. Casey, and the members were reminded by the president of the self-denial meeting to be held in September. This meeting, after a vote of thanks to the hostess, Mrs. Moorhouse, was brought to a conclusion with the benediction by Mrs. Mann.

Mission Band Picnic.

The Mission Band held a jolly picnic on the church grounds, with a fair crowd present. Games and races were the chief attraction of the afternoon. After the prizes were bestowed upon the happy winners, all joined in a picnic supper, in charge of the Band superintendents, Connie Wagar and Muriel Moorhouse. Besides the Band members, several W.M.S. ladies lent their support to this pleasant annual event.

Mission Circle.

Yesterday afternoon the July meeting of the X.L. Mission Circle took the form of a picnic, held in Nicholls Park, with a good representation on hand, to enjoy the delightful outing. The sports were arranged by a committee, which included Misses Gladys Langton, Nina Andrews, Connie Wagar and Mrs. Van Ness. The winners of the races were: Bean race—1, Mrs. W. Rose; 2, Gladys Langton. Balloon race—Miss A. Rose. Straight race — 1, Miss J. Hammond; 2, Miss Zetta Wood. The hunt race—Miss Marjorie Hogan. Several games and contests of a more quiet nature tested the skill of the participants' wits and memory, and provided a merry half-hour. The supper hour proved to be a time of feasting and social enjoyment, and concluded an unusually successful picnic.

Elected President

A. L. Ainsworth has been elected president of De Forest Crosley Limited, the new sales company for De Forest Crosley radios manufactured in Toronto. He has been identified with the old company for many years, latterly as vice-president.

Australia has a boom in rural construction work.

Leon Trotsky Sees Japanese Supremacy Waning—Soviet Army Strengthened.

CHINA IS HOSTILE

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN, Central Press Canadian Writer.

PARIS, July 19.—"Japan will lose the war." This is the conclusion reached by Leon Trotsky at the end of a masterful discussion of the Far Eastern military situation, which appears this week in the Deutsche Hefte, a weekly published by a group of German Liberals here in Paris. Trotsky's series of articles, written in that crystal-clear style of his, which makes him one of the greatest writers of the epoch, was followed with breathless interest. I understand, by military chiefs in several countries, for , in addition to being an author of extraordinary talent, Trotsky proved himself the military strategist of unusual ability who succeeded in welding a powerful army out of dispersed and straggling mobs of hungry, ragged, ill-equipped and undisciplined irregulars and with that force crushed or expelled eighteen counter-revolutionary and interventionist armies in the civil war period.

"One year ago," says Trotsky, "Japan had the overhand in the Far East and could have defeated the Soviets and ousted Russia from the Amur province. Now it is too late. Japan's historical opportunity has passed. . . . Every week that passes increases the Soviet government's preponderance. . . . Vladivostock is now more difficult to take than Verdun was in 1916, and it can be done only from the landslide, but, even so, it will take the sacrificing of twelve Japanese divisions. . . . Yet, even the capture of that city by the Japanese would disturb no vital centre of Soviet life. The nearest vital centre is seven thousand kilometers away the Kuznets iron ore basin and the new steel mills there."

In one of his articles the one-time associate of Lenin examines the aerial equipment of the two opposing groups and finds that Japan, in addition to being outdistanced technically, her great industrial centres and her populous cities lie within a few hours' flying from the Soviet bases on the mainland at the mercy of "the magnificent aerial armada of the Soviets." Whereas Tokio, Nagasaki, Yokohama are exposed, Moscow is virtually unreachable by the most powerful Japanese aeroplanes. "Even the nearest big centre in Russia, Kuznets, seven thousand kilometers away from Manchuria, cannot be reached without a landing half way," he points out.

Twenty Million Soviets.

We learn from Trotsky that in a war of long duration the Soviets could put under arms a force of twenty million men "perfectly equipped." He underlines the importance of the vast improvements that have been brought out in the transportation system and the new railway nets now under construction in Siberia, but he does not minimize the difficulties with the food situation "which has not been conquered yet." A grave warning at the address of Moscow from a man who knows.

Without being led into any fantastic speculations on the attitude of China in an eventual Russo-Japanese war, Trotsky makes it clear that the populations of Manchuria, Korea and North China remain "extremely hostile to the Japanese." "There is no question," he says, "that important Soviet-Chinese armies would go on the march, but if this happens, the thing no longer concerns Japan and China alone, but becomes a world affair. A world war now," says Trotsky, "may well be the pitiless end of our combined civilization."

Yet the man who predicted the world war with amazing accuracy as far back as 1905 says: "The economic condition of Japan is inexorably driving her to war. Even as the economic condition of Germany leaves that country no way out but war." There are several great powers, he adds, who would utilize this historic inevitability to drive Japan and Germany against Russia. This is a veiled reference to the British diehard Tories of the stamp of Mr. Winston Churchill, Lord Lloyd and Sir Austen Chamberlain, who launched the idea of an anti-Soviet crusade by all Europe years ago.

"Does this materialize," says Trotsky, "it will mean an extermination of the peoples of Europe."

A New Relationship.

Translate here a few paragraphs of Trotsky's essay on the subject of the red army: The character of the red command and of the whole army cannot be understood without taking in consideration the great historical events which have changed the psyche of the whole people, or, more correctly, of the family of nations.

"The old Russian soldier, brought up in the patriarchal relationships of the village 'mir,' distinguished himself chiefly by a blind herd-instinct. What the western world, half in praise and half contemptuously, called "the Slavic soul" was a reflection of the formless and barbaric Russian feudal period. The 'Christ-loving army,' which once laid the aureole of power around czarism, was an army permeated with the spirit of chattel-slavery. In the days of long ago, in the half-feudal conditions of Europe, such an army may have had the advantage of being the perfect sample of where. Suworoff, the generalissimo a type (of army) prevailing every- of Katherine II, and of Paul, was the uncontested master of such an army of chattel-slave soldiers. The great French Revolution, however, once and for all liquidated the old military art of Europe. Since that time the history of czarism does indeed show some gigantic land-grabbing expeditions, but vanquishing a civilized nation was no longer possible.

Guided By Culture.

"A chain of devastating defeats and upheavals was necessary in order that in their fire the national character could be melted and tried like a noble metal. Only on these new social and psychological foundations could the red army assume substance. The red soldier differs more sharply from the czarist soldier than the Napoleonic grenadier form the warriors of the Bourbons. The cult of passive resistance and peaceful capitulation before obstacles was exchanged for the spirit of political storm and stress and for American technique. Of the 'Slavic soul' nothing remains today but the literary memory.

"The new popular energy shows itself in the cultural growth of the Soviet Union. The insignificant percentage of illiterate recruits is decreasing rapidly; from the ranks of the red army not a single man comes back illiterate. In and outside the army a tumultuous unfoldment of all kinds of sports is to be noted. In Moscow alone 50,000 workers, office men and students obtained the highest possible disinction for sharp-shooting last year. Practically the whole army is now equipped with snowshoes, which were unknown before the revolution and which are of enormous military significance because of the climatic conditions. In the realm of parachute jumping, motorless gliders, football, fencing and marksmanship the youth makes enoromus steps forward. The Soviet record into the stratosphere lies fresh in the whole world's memory. These peaks designate the whole mountain chain of achievement."

JULY MEETING HELD AS PICNIC

Miss L. Jackson is Hostess to Bailieboro Branch of Women's Institute.

HONOR PRESIDENT

MILLBROOK, July 19.—(Examiner Correspondence)—The Bailieboro branch of the Women's Institute enjoyed a delightful social occasion on Tuesday afternoon when Miss L. Jackson, secretary of the branch, extended the hospitality of her home and grounds for the out-of-doors gathering, the July meeting taking the form of a picnic.

The large and nicely-shaded grounds, with the many flowers which were in full bloom, made a most attractive gathering place for the outing, the main feature of which was to do honor to Mrs. T. A. Skitch on the completion of her twenty-fifth year as president of the Bailieboro Womens Institute. The 'silver jubilee' anniversary was fittingly observed when Miss Lucas, on behalf of the branch, presented Mrs. Skitch with a handsome solid leather, seal-grain purse, with complete fittings including a leather-bound shopping-list with pencil attached, Miss Jackson reading the following address:

Dear Mrs. Skitch:

We, the members of the Bailieboro Branch of the Women's Institute, are privileged this afternoon to do honor to you who for twenty-five years have successfully and faithfully fulfilled the duties of president of our W.I. We hold in very high regard the cheerful and willing manner in which these many and varied duties have been executed.

For the instruction offered from time to time, the young women of the community acknowledge their gratification to you, and the W.I., through whose efforts it was made possible. As a slight token of our esteem and good wishes we ask you to accept this gift, trusting that you will continue to be our president for many years to come.

Signed on behalf of the W. I. members: Mary E. Lucas, Blanche Dawson, Margaret Armstrong.

Taken completely by surprise, Mrs. Skitch found reply somewhat difficult, but expressed her appreciation in a few well-chosen words, the afternoon being completed with races for all ages from the children to the grandmothers present. Tables for the abundant tea served were laid on the lawn, the hostess and her committee looking after the service of the meal.

Over seventy guests were in attendance, and the fact is worth recalling that the guest of honor had not only reached her twenty-fifth milestone as president of the Bailieboro branch, but for practically as long a period was the chief executive of the East Durham Women's Institute, relinquishing this office at the district annual some three years ago. The purse presented has, on its opening flap, Mrs. Skitch's initials in raised silver.

Outlaws Tighten Hold On Top Place

HASTINGS, July 19 (Examiner Correspondence) — The Outlaws strengthened their hold on first place in the local softball league, when they defeated the Dramatics on Wednesday night 23 to 6 before a large following on the sidelines.

Manager Clapper took the opportunity to try out his two twirlers, Johnson and McGee and both boys pitched good ball and were backed up by air-tight fielding by their teammates. "Gordie" Gibson for the losers pitched a brand of ball that deserved a much better score but his support was the weakest shown here so far this season.

ROBERT MYERS ALLOWED BAIL

Sum is Fixed at $5,000 Following Charge After Fatal Cycle Crash.

IN LINDSAY COURT.

LINDSAY, July 19 (Examiner Correspondence). — At yesterday's session of the Police Court, Robert Myers, a local young man, was given a preliminary hearing on the charge of criminal negligence in connection with the death of Jack Fowler, another local youth. He was remanded until July 29, bail being fixed at $5,000 . C. G. Frost is representing the accused. It will be remembered that Myers was the driver of the British-American Oil truck that figured in the accident near Reaboro on June 30, in which John Fowler, motorcyclist, lost his life. The case will, in all probability, be tried at the Fall Assizes. The recent finding of the jury at the inquest into the cause of Fowler's death was that death was purely accidental. The jury was not unanimous, however. It is understood that a civil action for damages on the part of the parents of John Fowler is also pending.

While returning home from Greenhurst last night, a car which had as occupants four local youths, Ross Baker, Melville Brisbin, Bob Harpur, and Fred Williams, turned over in the ditch on the Bobcaygeon Highway. Harpur and Baker suffered nasty cuts on the forehead, necessitating six stitches respectively. The others sustained a severe shaking up and bruises. The car was badly damaged.

TOPIC OF SALE IN RESTAURANTS

clared that there was no finality in regard to sale in restaurants though there was no thought at this time of permitting it. It is believed that extension of sale to restaurants will take place by November 1, after the public has become accustomed to the new system.

All details of the new law, passed under the former Conservative government, are complete and only a few technicalities remain to complete full regulations of sale and consumption.

The new legislation, discussed at length at a cabinet council meeting yesterday, will not permit sale in restaurants, as permitted under power of the Act. Only in hotel dining and beverage rooms, clubs, steamboats and trains may the lighter liquors be served.

Greater Temperance

Prior to announcement of government regulations, Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn and Edmond G. Odette, Commissioner of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, met representatives of the Ontario Temperance Federation, formerly the Prohibition Union, which urged full observation of local option privilege. The Government gave this assurance and expressed the belief the new law would tend to a greater measure of temperance.

Sale will be permitted every day of the year except Sundays, holidays and election days, from 11 a.m. to midnight, but the Liquor Board retains power to effect an earlier closing if desired by any community.

Decision to confine sale to hotels, trains and boats is in keeping with the government's determination not to "deluge the province with beer." The Premier, however, made it clear there was no finality about regulations which would be altered if demanded by public opinion.

Close Inspection.

Inspectors from the Commission will maintain close supervision over sales and all persons granted "authorities" to sell, will be required to keep books open to the Commission. All purchases of wine and beer by sellers must be made from Government liquor stores or beer warehouses on Ontario wineries.

In hotel beer rooms only beer may be sold and meals need not be served, though it must be served to persons seated at tables and consumed there. In dining-rooms either beer or wine may be served with meals and dining-rooms include special rooms where special meals such as banquets are being served, and in private rooms when meals are served to guests.

No permits will be required to purchase beer from liquor stores or brewery warehouses, but will be required for purchase of 'hard' liquor.

Clubs will be granted permits but to prevent establishment of "drinking clubs" such institutions must be in operation for one year before authorities for sale will be granted.

Concession To Tourists.

In addition to abolishing the one dollar beer and wine permit, the Liquor Board proposes to make a concession to the tourist trade by substituting a single purchase permit system for the existing $2 permit at which many tourists protest vehemently. It is understood the cost of this permit will be 25 cents and will cover the one purchase of hard liquor.

A new feature of the regulation is that persons will now be able to telephone to a brewery and order beer to be delivered to their homes. This privilege has long been a part of the Quebec liquor laws.

HUCKLEBERRY PICKERS BUSY

Plains at Twin Lakes Dotted With Campers From Far and Near.

BUYERS DRIVE IN.

HAVELOCK, July 19 (Examiner Correspondence). — The huckleberry plains at Twin Lakes, about twenty-five miles north of Havelock, are now dotted with camps of various kinds, the temporary abode of pickers who come from far and near to this isolated spot, about midway between Havelock and Apsley.

Each summer about July 15 sees the anual trek of small groups of young and old, children and aged folks also, who combine pleasure and profit, pitching their tents on the shores of one of the lakes and spend a few hours each day gathering the delectable blue berries

The fruit in a great many cases is sold to buyers who drive in, two or three times a week, and who return to the villages and small towns nearby and sell to the stores and busy housewives.

Messrs. Howard Dafoe and Archie McIntyre of Havelock conduct a small store at the plains, supplying the campers with staple articles of food.

The evenings are spent in music and dancing at a small pavilion, where the violin played by volunteers among the crowd furnishes the music for square dancing.

WOOD - JOPLING CLOSE WINNERS MEN'S TANDEM

Three Lengths Separate First From Last as Field of Five Crosses Finish Line.

SUCCESSFUL REGATTA.

Cardwell, Couple, Lillian and Pat McClellan Win Honors for Rice Lake Contingent.

(By a Staff Reporter)

GORE'S LANDING, July 19—A formidable delegation of paddlers and swimmers from Chemong Park made its seasonal debut in the annual battle for aquatic honors by annexing a bushel or two of the prizes offered at the Gore's Landing regatta yesterday afternoon. It was the first regatta of the summer for the Peterborough region and opened the yearly series of the Rice Lake Aquatic Association.

Bright sunshine along with a cooling breeze combined with the natural beauty and convenience of the Gore's Landing waterfront to make the regatta a memorable event. The competition was not particularly heavy from the standpoint of the number of contestants but the presence of many youthful regatta veterans among prize seekers resulted in many closely-fought battles. A crowd of more than four hundred persons watched the eighteen events on the card.

The regatta was sponsored by St. George's Anglican Church of Gore's Landing. Officials in charge of the meet set an example for organization and direction which might well be followed at the regattas to come during the next few weeks, running off the events in quick order with no delays. The officials were Rev. L. Smith, former rector of St. George's Church, announcer; T. D. McGaw and H. Shepherd, judges; A. E. Farmcombe, starter; and H. Hastings, clerk of the course.

Chemong Crew

Art Wood and three Jopling brothers, Frank, Jack and Bob, were the ring leaders in the group from Chemong, but Doug. McPherson, and Madge and Phyllis Jopling also did well by themselves in this contingent. Faced with this expert competition, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Cardwell of Wallace Point and Pat and Lillian McClellan of Hiawatha strove mightily to save something of the day for the Rice Lake Aquatic Association securing a commendable number of firsts and seconds. Other outstanding contenders were Pat Perrin of Bewdley, Zack Smoke and Frank Gray of Alderville, and Ruth Sutton of Peterborough.

The men's tandem canoe over a one-mile course was possibly the feature of the card. Not more than three lengths separated the first from the last as the field of five crossed the finish line.

Up to the half-mile point, it was anybody's race but then Art Wood and Frank Jopling began to nose away. Jack Jopling and Gordon Clark, neck and neck with Zack Smoke and Frank Gray, pushed them hard but never closed the lead. Smoke and Gray dropped back a half length into third money in the last few yards. The two other entries were right on their heels.

Upset Race

Canoemanship of a high grade was displayed in the upset canoe race which Herb. Cardwell won handily. All entries chose to dump their frail craft immediately at the sound of the starter"s gun. Cardwell had his canoe emptied and was aboard several seconds in advance of the other six in the race. But Nelson Stanger of Peterborough won a close race for second money with Bill Taylor, also of Peterborough, and Frank Jopling.

Mrs. Cardwell and Ruth Sutton overhauled Pat and Lillian McClellan in the last five feet of the course to win the quarter-mile ladies tandem race. It was a finish which brought the spectators to their toes. Phyllis and Madge Jopling placing a good third, proved the most formidable of the other three entries. Mary and Pat Perrin were still going strong at the finish although not in the money.

Five men battled it out over the quarter-mile course in the men's single canoe race. The race settled down to a contest between Frank Jopling, Frank Gray and Art Wood after the first hundred yards. Jopling crossed the line with a half-length advantage over Gray and Wood followed in third place, bested by a length.

Nine Entries

Quarter-mile mixed tandem canoe race made it a good event. Mr. and Mrs. Cardwell were given a hard race all the way by Frank and Madge Jopling. Frank Gray with Pat McClellan, Jack and Phyliss Jopling and Sam Patte with Pat Perrin were others who figured prominently.

One of the most popular incidents of the afternoon was the cutting of the regatta birthday cake. The cake, a great piece of confecionary weighing seventy-six pounds, marked the seventeenth anniversary of the regatta, the twenty-fifth anniversary of the opening of the present St. George's Church building and the eighty-sixth anniversary of the parish. Rev. T. F. Summerhayes of Harwood, a former rector who had much to do with the erection of the present building, officiated at the cutting.

for publication after the conference, it was intimated some of the union leaders had expressed willingness to propose an end to the walkout before the general strike committee.

Mayor Angelo J. Rossi announced a pledge to run every "communistic agitator" out of San Francisco.

No Quarter for Reds

The pledge, announced through an emergency citizen's committee said,

"I pledge to you that I, as chief executive in San Francisco, to the full extent of my authority, will run out of San Francisco every Communistic agitator, and this is going to be a continuing policy in San Francisco."

The mayor advised the committee, the announcement said, that he would refuse to recognize the right of any one, including unions, to issue 'permits' to merchants to do their business. The proposal to end the strike in the East Bay cities of Oakland, Alameda and Berkeley (Alameda County) was announced by William H. Spooner, secretary of the Central Labor Council. The question to be voted on, he said, will be for return of all union members to work tomorrow.

Dr. G. Rogers To Stay On Education Staff

TORONTO, July 19.—(CP)—Although the resignation of Dr. George F. Rogers as chief director of education for Ontario has been announced his services will be retained by Hon. L. J. Simpson, new minister of education.

Dr. Simpson said Dr. Rogers' knowledge of the secondary school system and his great experience made it highly desirable to keep him. In the reorganization of the department provision will be made for continuing the services of the chief director.

Two other veteran officials of the educational department were retired Tuesday, A. H. U. Colquhoun, deputy minister, and Dr. F. W. Merchant, chief adviser to the minister. Dr. Simpson paid enthusiastic tribute to the work during the long years they had been with the department. The new deputy minister, Prof. Duncan McArthur of Queen's University, will perform the work of the two former officials in the reorganized department.

THREE LICENSES ARE TOO MUCH HOTELMEN SAY

Dining Rooms Will Likely Not Carry Beer and Wine.

ONE MODERATE FEE.

Clubs Have Not Decided on Course—Summer Resorts in Dry Area.

Dissatisfaction over the three fifty-dollar fees to be charged by the Liquor Commission for the privileges of selling beer and wine in hotel beverage rooms and dining rooms was expressed by Peterborough hotel men this morning. The requirement of three fees was regarded as an imposition by several of the proprietors.

"One moderate fee should cover the privilege for the entire hotel," Arthur Johnston of the Windsor Hotel declared, voicing an attitude which seemed to be general in the city. "I think even a hundred dollar fee is pretty steep considering that the licenses are to be good only until the end of October. We should be charged only a percentage of the fee on the basis of the four months remaining."

Mr. Johnston said he would endeavour to secure a beverage room license but had not yet decided to seek a dining room license.

O. L. Dalgleish of the Grand Hotel objected to the regulations against the sale of beer and wine on holidays. It is reasonable that the sale should be prohibited on Sundays and election days, but there is no need for the restrictions applying to such statutory holidays as New Year's Day and Dominion Day, he maintained. It would be on those days that the public would benefit most from the privilege, he said. Referring to the license fees, Mr. Dalgleish characterized the fees as "just another source of revenue for the Government."

Not Worth Securing

Gus White of the White House expressed doubt that the licenses for dining room sale will be worth securing. "In many years of hotel experience before prohibition and liquor control I never knew of much drinking of wine or beer at hotel tables," he said. "Canadians don't drink wine or beer at their meals to any great extent," he said.

Mr. White said that, on the whole, he had no complaint concerning the regulations as far as he was acquainted with them. He contended that a fee of some kind is necessary to put a certain restraint on the sale.

None of the hotel men has yet received any formal information from the Liquor Commission. All are ready to make the property renovations required by the new regulations but are awaiting for definite word.

No decision as to whether they will seek club licenses has yet been reached by any of the executives of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club, the Kawartha Golf Club or the Peterborough Club. Reports were that "no one is losing any sleep over the matter."

In view of the fact that Peterborough County is under a dry option leaves the cases of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club and the Kawartha Club in doubt. It is thought possible that, as private clubs, they will not have to govern themselves by the optional dryness of the county.

As far as is known at present, the dry option of the county will prevent the licensing of hotels at Stoney Lake and in other sections.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

500 NEW PLANES IN NEXT 4 YEARS IS BRITISH PLAN

Work Will be Spaced So as Not to Overburden Estimates Says Baldwin.

MUST EQUAL BEST.

Time Has Arrived When England Can Continue to Disarm No Longer.

(By George Hambleton, C.P. Staff Writer.)

LONDON, July 19 (C.P. Cable) —The British plans for huge expansion of the Royal Air Force were outlined in the House of Commons to-day by Stanley Baldwin, Acting Prime Minister, who declared the force would be increased by 41 new squadrons, or about 500 machines, to be spread over the next four years.

The rate at which this expansion can be carried out in the five years contemplated (including the current year) must depend upon various considerations, including finance "which I cannot specify now," said the Acting Government head.

"We hope, however, to so space out the work as not to make an unmanageable addition to the estimates in any one year." This increase is additional to the moderate increase already authorized in the current estimates. At present the Royal Air Force has about 890 first-line aircraft. The expansion follows repeated declarations of Government leaders that Britain must have an air force equal to any within "striking distance" of these shores.

"Of these 41 squadrons," said Mr. Baldwin, "33 will be allotted to home defence, raising the existing squadrons at home to a total of 75.

"The remaining squadrons will be for service with the fleet air arm, or abroad."

Disarmed For 9 Years.

Mr. Baldwin prefaced the declaration of policy with the following statement:

"Ever since the war, successive governments of this country have actively pursued a policy of international disarmament. In our efforts to further this policy by example as well as precept, we have reduced our own armaments to a dangerously low level in the hope others would follow our lead.

"But the disarmament negotiations have been drawn out longer than any one anticipated. The preparatory commission lasted from 1926 to December, 1930. The disarmament conference opened on Feb. 2, 1932, and pursued its labors ever since. During these 8½ years serious misgivings have arisen from time to time in many quarters at the increasing accumulation of deficiencies in our defence services, particularly in view of increased expenditures on armaments in many other countries.

Time To Prepare.

"The Government policy remains one of international disarmament and we have by no means abandoned hope of reaching some limitation. As mentioned in the debate of July 13, we are even now making fresh efforts to break the virtual deadlock that exists at Geneva. Unfortunately, however, particularly in view of past experience, we cannot count on an early result, and in view of our commitments under the covenant of the League and the Locarno treaty, the many symptoms of unrest in Europe and elsewhere, and the failure of other governments to follow our example by comparable reductions, we have for some time felt the time has come when the possibility of keeping our armaments at their present low level must be reconsidered.

"This is the situation which I believe the leaders of all parties have foreseen that sooner or later must be reached."

Situation Reviewed.

In the light of all these considerations, the whole question of Imperial defence, and the part to be played in it by the three defence forces—naval, military and air—had been under review for some months by the government, said Mr. Baldwin.

"It is not necessary to-day to give any account of our enquiries, or of the detailed conclusions at which we have arrived. The deficiencies which it is necessary to make good are largely deficiencies in equipment and stores which have grown up owing to the financial stringency and the discussion on disarmament.

"In these respects the results of our enquiries will be reflected in the estimates for future years, and can be more conveniently discussed when these estimates are debated."

WITS BUSY

LEXINGTON, Ky., July 19. (CP) Wits in the Bluegrass country, mindful of Governor Ruby Laffoon's sponsorship of the new three percent state sales tax, have christened the tax coins "rubies."

Among the new and striking exhibits at the Canadian National Exhibition this year is that from Ceylon in which the Ceylon Tea Board displays not only the product of its tea gardens but rubies, spices, handiwork of the native silversmiths, etc. The exhibit will be manned by natives in costume.

TIME LIMIT ON REWARD.

HAMILTON, July 19 (C.P.). — Amateur detectives had better get busy. The $500 reward for arrest of the Tuckett Tobacco holdup men will be withdrawn on July 20, Morden & Helwig Limited, insurance adjustors, have advised local police.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

The prevention of ringworm infection of the skin is easier to accomplish than its successful treatment after it once has become implanted on the body. The most important form of prevention is individual prophylaxis—prevention of an infection from one part of a person's body to another.

It is easy to see that if you have an infection of the foot in the form of athlete's foot, and if it itches and you scratch it, it is very easy to get the fungus, which is the cause of the eruption, underneath the fingernails or on the fingernails. Then, if one rubs other parts of the body with hands thus contaminated, the infection is spread to those parts. In this way, an infection on the foot may cause an eruption on the hands and under the armpits and in nearly any part of the body.

The hands always should be carefully washed after they have touched such an eruption, and scrubbed with a scrub brush, which is then put for a moment or two in boiling water or allowed to soak in alcohol. Socks which have come in contact with ringworm eruption on the foot should be separated from other clothing and washed in a separate receptacle.

Soap is a good antiseptic for many things, but not for this particular fungus, and it often is advisable to dip the hands in alcohol or a 10 per cent. formaldehyde solution after washing them.

The commonest method of spread of ringworm infection of the foot, or athlete's foot, is in the locker rooms of country clubs, golf courses, and especially in the shower baths near swimming pools. The fungus grows very well on moist surfaces, and one person with such an infection on the foot coming out, may spread it around the entire border of the pool.

In preventing such cross infection, it is necessary to insist that every one entering the pool or shower bath shall first disinfect the feet. This is done by dipping them in a solution which destroys the fungus, or standing on a rubber mat saturated with such a solution, until the bottom of the feet and the spaces between the toes are moistened.

In selecting the solution, it is desirable to remember that swimming pools usually are disinfected with chlorine. An antiseptic formula used for disinfecting feet in locker rooms is sodium thiosulphate, but sodium thiosulphate is a reducing agent, and if a 10 per cent. solution is carried on the feet into the swimming pool, it rapidly reduces the available chlorine content of the pool.

For this reason the best substance to use is a hypochlorite solution, which will augment rather than reduce the chlorine content of the pool. A solution containing five thousand parts per million available chlorine as a foot bath, and a solution containing five hundred parts per million available chlorine for disinfecting mats, walks and other equipment, is available on the market in the form of a calcium hypochlorite solution, sold under the trade name of H. T. H.

BE BEAUTIFUL

Historians claim that the titian-haired, violent tempered Queen Elizabeth of England put a strict ban on the use of cosmetics when she came into power. Elizabeth refused to allow the English belles to enhance their charms with artificial aids. Yet she herself used her own methods of preserving the loveliness of her complexion. Elizabeth always washed her face daily with a mixture of eggs, wine and milk. And she considered it most excellent as a complexion beautifier.

Personally, however, I really don't think that good Queen Bess needed the wine and milk in that mixture. Of course, you know as well as I that both wine and milk have astringent properties. But an egg alone is as excellent a skin beautifier as anyone could desire. And a properly administered egg mask can do a great deal to keep a gal's skin looking smooth and fine-textured during the hot summer months.

Judging from my recent mail, however, there seem to be quite a few gals who are ignorant of the proper method of administering an egg facial. They do not know whether to use the white of the egg or the yolk. And they are dubious as to the most effective method of applying and removing the pack.

Personally, I've found that the egg mask is most effective when both the white and the yolk of the egg are used. Before applying the pack, the skin should be thoroughly cleansed with soap and water, and then with cleansing cream. If the skin is very dry, a thin film of cream may be permitted to remain on it under the mask. The white of an egg should then be beaten to stiffness, and applied thickly over the entire face. When this first application has dried, a second application of the egg white should be used. This second application should also be allowed to dry thoroughly also, and then the beaten egg yolk should be painted over it.

This egg mask should be permitted to remain on the face for about an hour. Then, when thoroughly dry, it can be easily removed with tepid water and a soft cloth. If the mask seems drying to the skin, a bit of cold cream may be used after its removal. Try this mask, and I'm sure you'll find it most helpful in keeping your skin clear, soft and fine-textured during the hot summer months.

Boiled Dinner
Fresh Vegetable Salad
Washington Cream Pie Coffee

Even in warm weather we need substantial food to keep us going. So I am suggesting this boiled dinner for a day when the thermometer is not too ambitious. The meat and vegetables left may be made into a meat pie, on the following day, with the meat cubed and a baking powder biscuit crust. Garnish the Washington cream pie with berries.

Today's Recipes

Boiled Dinner—Use three or four pounds of beef from the chuck. Corned beef may be substituted. Sear, add water nearly to cover, with two onions, salt, pepper and a few stalks of celery. Simmer until tender, from three to four hours. Three-quarters of an hour before done add small, whole carrots, 15 minutes later sections of cabbage. Pour off part of the broth and in it cook whole new potatoes. Sometimes boiled beets are cooked separately as well. Arrange the vegetables about the beef on a platter and garnish with parsley.

Washington Cream Pie— One-third cup butter, one cup sugar, two eggs, one and three-fourths cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half cup milk. Cream butter, add sugar, cream together and add well-beaten eggs. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with the milk. Bake in two layers in round tins at 375 degrees. Cool, spread the following filling between, dust the top with confectioners' sugar and cut in wedges.

Custard Filling— Three-fourths cup sugar, one-third cup flour, two cups scalded milk, two egg yolks, one tablespoon butter, one teaspoon vanilla. Mix the sugar and flour thoroughly and add to scalded milk. Stir constantly until thick, pour over beaten egg yolks and return to cook three minutes longer. Add butter and vanilla and chill before spreading on cake.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Cleans Celluloid.

How to clean celluloid windows on car curtains. Wash the celluloid with clear cool or warm water, but not hot. Dry off the surplus water with a sponge or chamois skin. Apply common vaseline with a very soft rag or cotton. Spread it on as thin as you can. To promote spreading, warm the vaseline slightly. Wipe off all you can with a dry rag until it shows no grease or stroke marks. The reason for washing before using the vaseline is to prevent the celluloid from being scratched by any dirt or mud that may have been present. Try to wash them with as little friction as possible to prevent scratches.

Peach Salad.

Peach time is coming, and here is a peach salad. You can use either fresh or canned fruit.

Two halves peaches, one-fourth cup chopped celery, one-fourth cup chopped cottage cheese, one-fourth cup marshmallows, three tablespoons salad dressing, two pieces lettuce. Chill ingredients. Arrange lettuce on salad plates, top with rest of ingredients.

Somebody said to me the other day, "Dont you think you completely neglect the little ones in your column?" Well, maybe I have but it isn't that I do not think their clothes are just as important as mother's, or even grown-up sister's—for they are more so. To the wee girl clothes are usually the most important thing in her life. And how her feelings are hurt if the little girl next door has a new dress which is the last word in color and style, and she hasn't.

One very lovely model for the small miss we admired in one of our stores the other day was in a lovely shade of pink with blue piping on the edges. The material was a fine voile. It would be cool, comfortable, easy to launder, and the prettiest dress we ever remember seeing. Another smart little model was of the sailor type that is so new this year. It was white linen trimmed with blue on the square collar and cord lacing. It would be so nice for a little daughter who is vacationing at the lake or seashore.

Cut glass is returning to favor. It may be said that it has always been in fashion since very light cutting has been in style during the many years when deep cut glass was demode. But the cutting was so very delicate that it made little impression on the surface of the glass. It is with a distinct feeling of a really new mode that we welcome the new cut glass. We saw a lovely new shipment while shopping, and the goblets were very alluring. Can you just see them on your table under the gleam of the chandelier. The collection comprised many designs and styles that belong to the new vogue.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

There are three ways at least of packing frocks to keep them free from wrinkles. Each has its followers who insist that their way is best. Since almost everyone takes a vacation in the summertime, whether for a long or short period, it is a good idea to know these three ways. Then you can decide for yourself which one you like best. Or you can try them all a few times and find which is the successful one for your own purposes.

* * * * * * *

One method is to fold garments with great care so that they have the fewest possible wrinkles in them laid in the suit case or trunk. It is wise to use tissue paper to lay between folds, and to crinkle and stuff in light pads in shoulders so that pressure against the garments is eased. Fold the frocks as few times as possible. Lay the dress on the bed front down. Fold each side over onto the back, turning the sleeves to lie flat and smooth. Remember the tissue paper. Fold the upper part back over the skirt portion and gently smooth out creases, straighten pleats, etc., and lay in the suit case or luggage.

* * * * * * *

Another method is to use a good sized square or rectangular piece of cardboard (a stiff box cover will do) and fold the frock about it with tissue paper over the cardboard and between the folds of the frock. Lay one such folded frock above another, without pressing them down too hard and they will come out with a minimum of wrinkles after a trip.

* * * * * * *

The third method of packing is to roll the frocks and pack these tubular parcels where they will fit into the luggage best. Do not press them too closely nor let them be squeezed by the other things. Be sure to make a roller of crushed tissue paper, not a large roll but one which forms a cushiony surface about which to roll a frock.

* * * * * * *

Do not make the mistake of packing luggage lightly or loosely. The articles will shift as moved, in transit and be a mass of wrinkles when unpacked. When a trunk or suit case is stood on end, as it is sure to be sometime, the articles will all sink toward the lower end, and will not again resume their original position. Pack luggage so that it will not shift, yet without cramming into the suit case or trunk.

AUGUSTA, Me., July 19. (CP)—Michael C. Burns of Eagle Lake was defeated for the Democratic nomination for representative to the legislature in last month's primary election, but his name will be on the ballot at the September election just the same. The Republicans nominated him. It was like this: The Republicans had no candidate of their own but preferred Burns to the regular Democratic nominee. So they wrote his name on the ballot as their nominee.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

THE FORCING SHIFT

Although the opportunity to use the latest kind of forcing bid does not appear often it is invaluable when usable. The type is a powerful 2-suiter on which you would make an opening bid of 2. The opportunity to use it appears when the opponent at your left makes the opening bid and your partner overcalls with a minimum suit declaration. You may hold either your partner's suit and another suit, for your two long suits, or you may be weak in your partner's suit and be very strong in both unbid suits. Your type of hand is shown by bidding one trick higher than required to overcall partner. This informs partner that you have a powerful 2-suiter, and demand that he respond, either by supporting, rebidding or naming a second biddable suit or bidding no trumps, even without strength in opponent's suit. The following hand, appearing last May, illustrates correct procedure:

Bidding went: South, 1 diamond; West, 2 clubs; East, 3 spades, to inform partner that a 2-suiter was held worth an opening bid of 2; West, 4 clubs, being unable to support spades or show another suit and preferring to show a reasonably good minor suit than to shift to 3 no trumps; East, 4 hearts. Up to that moment West had not known whether his partner held spades and clubs or spades and hearts. Of course West passed.

The opening lead was the king of diamonds, followed by the ace. East ruffed. The third trick was taken with declarer's king of hearts, the next by dummy's queen of hearts, then finding that trumps did not fall in two leads, the declarer's ace won the fifth trick.

East led his only club, and South's ace won. South led a diamond. The declarer discarded dummy's lowest club, and ruffed with his last trump. Two spade tricks were won with declarer's ace and king. Dummy's last heart ruffed a third round of spades. Dummy's king, queen and jack won the last 3 tricks of the hand, giving the declaring side 5-odd, or one trick more than called for by the contract.

To further illustrate proper procedure by second bidder, suppose he holds one of the 3 hands shown below, and has bid 1 spade over opponent's 1 heart. In answer to fourth hand's force of 3 clubs, second hand will reply as indicated.

PONIES BLANK PETES AT KINGSTON 3 TO 0

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

THE BOYS at Fort Erie have been warring lately in a claiming sense. No fewer than seven claims were dropped in the box on Tuesday of this week for Happy Hopes from the R. S. McLaughlin Stable when he was entered for $800. George E. Miller, the western flash, was not long making good our prediction that he would win, as on Tuesday he crashed down in front and paid over twelve dollargs. Charley Jaeguer has left his position with the Riverdale Stable and gone back to his old employer Harry Hatch. He has taken charge of the Hatch division that are quartered at Detroit and will sneak over a few long shots just to show that he is no green hand at the game.

Friday will be an off day in Canadian racing circles. Stamford Park at Niagara and King's Park at Montreal will each open a meeting on Saturday. The former course has made a number of improvements to their plant and now compare favorably with any mile track in Ontario. All the jockeys now plying their trade at Fort Erie will be at Stamford with the exception of Frankie Mann who is going to the fashionable Saratoga meeting with the McLaughlin string. Arthur Hullcoat claimed Bald Crest the other day so you can jot this one down for a win right smartly. Our old friend Comstockery, at one time a real handicap performer, is over at Detroit running in cheap claiming events. He will run away and hide on those kind, one of these fine days.

CALGARY KAY finished third on Tuesday at Rockingham and paid over nineteen dollars, two dollar show bet. The next start will see him in the winner's circle and no mistake, so govern yourself accordingly. Prince Tokalon is also down there and will connect in the near future. Palmer Wright the well known secretary of the Ontario Jockey Club is at Arlington Park, Chicago these days combining a holiday trip with business. He is trying to interest American owners to ship their charges to Woodbine for their autumn session which opens in September.

It may be a surprise to some readers to know that the charter under which the meetings at Stamford Park are held is that which belonged to the Belleville Driving and Athletic Association, of Belleville, Ont. It was purchased by the Niagara officials some years ago. Blue Damsel is all set to gather in a distance event at the coming Stamford meeting. This one is in real shape and is just raring to go. A real small daily double was hung up at Fort Erie on Tuesday of this week when Linesman and Bubbling Out two hot favorites won. The sum of $11.10 was the price for a double ticket.

GRANITE ROCK is all primed for his usual win at Stamford and Top Hattie is another that fancies this track. Acajou always collects purse money at Niagara and this year will be no exception. He is under the wing of Fred Schele who also has Crofter and Miss Gormley ready to do their stuff. We expect to see Omareen in a winning mood very shortly and when he wins the price is usually on the generous side. We get word from Arlington that Pairbypair is all set for another winning effort so don't miss him. This fellow goes with the most select company too. At the same track is a plater called Fire Star who is just being nursed along for a nice tidy winning effort.

JAMIESON HOLDS LEE SWATTERS TO 3 CLOUTS WHILE TEAMMATES CONNECT FOR 6 OFF CALLADINE

Konopka, Whatley and Batten Only Local Swatsmiths to Favor Offerings of Kingston Hurler—Foley Robbed of Homer in Third When Scrutten Picks Off Mighty Drive In to Deep Centre.

KINGSTON, July 19—(Special to Examiner).—Behind superb pitching of "Yammy" Jamieson, Kingston Ponies stepped back into the limelight of the C.O.B.L. picture here last night by taking Knotty Lee's Peterborough team into camp by a shutout score of 3 to 0. The game was played in an hour and thirty-five minutes and was a peppy affair from the first to the last inning.

Kingston showed a reversal of form from some of their more recent performances and collected hits at opportune times and ran the bases with results being obtained. Kingston got six hits from Calladine who went the route for Peterborough, three of which were in the first inning. The first three men up, Arniel, Scrutton and Foxton singled with Arniel scoring from second on Foxton's single. After that Kingston's hits were scattered, Quinn getting a two-bagger in the fourth which didn't mean anything, and a single in the sixth but he was thrown out at second on Webber's grounder. The other hit was a two-bagger from Scrutton's bat in the seventh which resulted in Arniel, who had reached first on Murray's error, scampering across the plate with the third run.

Three Off Jamieson

Peterborough collected only three hits from Jamieson, all of which were scattered. Konopka got one in the first, Whatley one in the second and Burton one in the fifth.

Jamieson got out of two bad situations, especially in the fifth inning when Peterborough had three men on and nobody out. The fourth batter, Konopka struck out, Batten hit to short and Burton was thrown at third on a double play. Again in the seventh Peterborough had three on and one out, but Konopka breezed again and Batten flied to centre. Scrutton robbed Foley of a home run in the third when he ran into deep centre to pick off Foley's drive. It was a mighty clout and a beautiful catch.

Kingston contributed four errors to yesterday evening's game, Stone, having two and Joyce and Quinn one each. Batten, Murray and Ash each contributed an error.

Phillies' Winning Streak Shattered by Reds With 9-8 Setback.

(By Canadian Press)

The National League's "crucial" series between the Giants and the Cubs wound up in something of an anti-climax as New York won the final game 8-6 and increased its lead to three games, one more than it held at the start of the five-game set. A six run outburst in the third, which included Mel Ott's 22nd homer with one aboard, settled the game but the league leaders had a hard time remaining ahead when the Cubs jolted Fred Fitzsimmons out with four in the seventh.

The Braves took another nasty crack at Pittsburgh's hopes by beating the Pirates in both games of a doubleheader. They won the first duel 3-1 when Hal Lee doubled with the corners crammed in the eighth, then smacked Eddie Holley and a couple of successors for a 7-5 victory.

The Reds celebrated their release from Philadelphia by winning their first game in Baker Bowl this year, 9-8. It was a 33-hit slugging match terminated by Harlin Pool's single in the ninth. The Cardinals, led by Joe Medwick, drew a bead on young Johnny Bamich and belted out a 5-3 victory over the Dodgers to keep Brooklyn in seventh place.

RUTH PAINFULLY HURT.

Tommy Bridges Hurls Detroit Club to 4-2 Victory Over Senators.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr. (Associated Press Sports Writer)

Things in general—and those in particular which concern the American League pennant race—appear to be getting very bad for the Yanks. All their road tours have been rather dismal for the Yanks this season and the current tour of the west, now barely over a week old, has cost them the league lead and the services of their biggest drawing card, Babe Ruth.

After losing first place in Detroit, Joe McCarthy's club took another nose dive in Cleveland, dropping a pair of decisions and winding up 2½ games behind after 15-14 trimming yesterday. And the worst blow of all came in the third inning of that slugfest when Ruth was struck on the leg by a hot drive off Lou Gehrig's bat. He suffered a severe contusion— or as medical terms might be translated into the language of the ordinary fan—a doggoned painful bruise which is expected to keep him inactive for two weeks.

As for the game, it was a swatting match from start to finish, winding up when the Yanks scored five runs in ninth to go ahead and the Indians came back with three to win the game and hand Lefty Gomez, the 11th pitcher to toe the slab, his third defeat of the season.

The Tigers took advantage of this opportunity to increase their lead by beating Washington, 4-2 when Tommy Bridges pitched seven-hit ball despite seven passes while Detroit batters hit Earl Whitehill hard and often.

The third-place Red Sox continued their pursuit of the leaders by humbling the pale hose of Chicago 16-3 as they opened with a nine run burst in the first inning. Seven of the tallies resulted from homers by Roy Johnson and Bill Cissell.

Jimmie Foxx clouted his 28th circuit swat in St. Louis to tie his teammate, Bob Johnson for the major league lead, but the Athletics still couldn't beat the Browns, going down 3-2 before Bump Badley's five-hit flinging.

ROYALS WIN FROM TORONTO BY 5-2 COUNT

Montreal Outhit 13 to 9 in Opening Game of Series at Leaf Stadium.

RED WINGS LOSE 8-5.

Bears Retain International League Leadership by Victory Over Birds.

(By the Associated Press)

Rochester's string of triumphs over Newark which put the Red Wings back into the thick of the International League race had a good effect upon the club's attendance figures but with the shift of scenery at the end of the intersectional series the streak failed to carry on to its first-place objective.

Ten thousand fans turned out last night to witness the end of the four game winning streak as Buffalo Bisons pummeled John Berly for six runs in the third inning and won 8-5.

Newark, returning home, already had turned back the cellar dwelling Baltimore Orioles 7-3 in the only daylight game on the program so Rochester's defeat put the Wings' a game and a half out of first place. And just to make the day entirely profitable for the Bears, Montreal Royals turned back Toronto's third-place Maple Leafs, 5-2, keeping them a full game to the rear of Rochester.

Turn Back Chiefs

Albany Senators were the only other first-division winners and they had to go 10 innings to turn back Syracuse Chiefs 9-8 after scoring six runs in the third. Joe Mowry's single broke up the battle, scoring pitcher Ray Prim.

Berly's wildness and some equally wild work by the Rochester fielders caused the downfall of the Red Wings, who outhit their rivals 14-7. Berly and Pete Appleton gave up three hits and three walks in the big third and two errors were made behind them.

Frank Makosky, who had a delegation from his home town of Boonton, N.J., to cheer him on, pitched Newark to victory, giving only six hits in his first full game of the season. His teammates gave him sturdy backing, poling three home runs, including Vince Barton's 19th of the season.

Wildness Costly

Montreal, like Buffalo, profited by the failure of the opposing pitchers to find the plate. Outhit 13-9, the Royals forged to the front in the sixth when Bert Cole loaded the sacks with a hit and two walks and Keith Frazier, who relieved him, walked two more batsmen to force in a pair of runs.

Fresco Thompson contributed an earlier run with a homer while Harry Smythe's steady flinging protected the Montreal lead.

Jerry Walker As Misunderstood Ty Cobb Still Point Of Controversy Among Fans

Gerald Walker's suspension by Manager Cochrane for running bases in what Cochrane thought was the wrong manner has ended, but the controversy over Walker among Detroit fandom is far from finished.

The question it seems, is this:

Is Gerald Walker another, but misunderstood, Ty Cobb, or does he just think he's Ty Cobb?

Cochrane, for one, is unable to see any of the genius of the great Georgian revealed by Walker's batting and base running.

"Walker has every chance," Cochrane has been quoted saying, "but he won't try to play ball rightly. Sent up to bunt he tries to get a hit and bounces into double plays.

"Gerald breaks up rallies getting picked off base trying to boost his stolen base average. He won't listen, respects no one, and thinks the American League is run only so he can put on a one-man act, and it is a lousy act at best."

Up to the time of his recent suspension Walker had stolen 14 bases, three of which materialized into runs. He was thrown out three times and picked off base eight times, which events, in a majority of cases, ended Tiger rallies.

There's no hint of Cobb-like quality about that, but Gerald, at this writing, is once more back in the game, so, before judging the aggressive young Tiger outfielder, let's see what happens.

ELECTRICS SWAMP OMEMEE NINE 22-5

Locals Pile Up Large Score on Flock of Errors and Five Hits in Late Frames.

C.G.E. started the second half of the Ladies' Softball Loop with a decisive victory last night at the Ashburnham Bowl when they swamped the Omemee girls by the one-sided count of 22 to 5 in a game that produced snappy ball for six frames when the Electrics were leading ten to five but in the seventh the visitors hit the ceiling and the locals packed in twelve counters on a flock of errors and five hits.

Omemee had just a full team and two of these Ev Bigelow and Roberta McQuade had injured hands. Jean Hickson started on the slab for Omemee, and fanned eight in seven frames, three being in the first but walked ten and was nicked for twelve safeties. Phyllis Bigelow finished the game which was called in the eighth. Marg Snowden struck out three, passed two and allowed eight singles in seven innings for C.G.E., and Helen Newson pitched the last frame.

The teams:

Omemee: Rehill, c, cf; McQuade, ss; Reddick, 3b; Pickett, 1b; Magee, rf; Fisher, 2b; P. Bigelow, lf, p; Hickson, p, cf; E. Bigelow, cf, c.

C.G.E.: DeCarlo, lf; English, lf; M. Snowden, p; Byers, 2b; V. Snowden, ss; Gates, 3b; Hodson, cf; Millar, c; Todd, 1b; Self.

THIRTY RINKS FROM DISTRICT MAKE UP SUCCESSFUL TOURNEY

Ovaltine Cup First Major Competition Cairs Has Won on Local Greens.

Large Cobourg Contingent.

(By Herb Martin)

Under weather conditions that could not be improved upon, George Cairns of the local bowling club was successful in skipping his rink to capture the Ovaltine trophy at the mixed tournament held on the Peterborough club greens yesterday afternoon and evening. Thirty rinks from all over this district made up what will go down in the history of our club as not only being a record entry but the very best and most successful tournament ever staged by the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club.

× × ×

When receiving the cup from S. Lowe, chairman of the games committee, George said that it was the first time in his bowling activities that he had ever won a major competition on the Peterborough greens and also stated that he would not have been successful this time if it "had not been for the ladies."

× × ×

The Cobourg contingent headed by President Les Wilson were here with four rinks and it is many a day since this club failed to reach the charmed circle. Lindsay sent three rinks down and they too, like Cobourg, failed to reach the prize list. Only one rink from outside was successful and that was W. J. Brownlee of Oshawa, who captured third prize.

Probably the best bowling of the day was witnessed between Cairns and Freeman in the finals. Going into the last end they were all square and when Freeman went to play his first bowl, Cairns was laying three—all within 10 inches from the kitty. Freeman elected to play a running shot and he was successful in clipping out two of the opponents bowls but going out himself—leaving Cairns still with one shot. On his second bowl he was a little short and narrow and the game was over giving Cairns the cup and first honors by one shot.

KING EDWARD DEFEATS LEAFS

Winners Score Twice in Final Frame to Cinch the Victory.

EIGHT HITS IN ALL

In a sparkling bantam ball game at Riverside Park last night, King Edward nosed out Maple Leafs, 4 to 3, with the Leafs rallying to score twice in the final frame. The K.E. twirlers, Castle and Todd pitched superb ball to limit Leafs to two lone hits, one by each, and fanned eleven between them. Curtin on the other mound restricted the winners to six bingles and had good support. He drove in one of his team's runs and scored twice himself. Some good fielding was dished up by the rival squads. Passed balls by Jay figured in a couple of the East City team's counters. A Curtin-to-Bradshaw-to-McCormick doubleplay was a fielding feature. The teams:

Leafs: McCormick c; Curtin p; Hoy, 3b; Bradshaw, 1b; Weese, 2b; Williamson, ss; Heffernan, cf; Spencer, cf; McInnis, rf; Copperwaite, lf.

King Edward: Platt, ss; Todd, 3b, p; Castle, p, 3b; Bernwick, 2b; Lawson, cf; Jay, c; Ridley, 1b; Hopcroft, lf; Mackness, rf; Williams, rf.

CENTRAL LOOP LEAD AT STAKE

Petes' Loss at Kingston Wednesday Cuts Margin to Half a Game.

MEET NATS SATURDAY

The leadership of the Central Ontario Baseball League will be at stake here Saturday when Belleville and the Petes clash at three o'clock in Riverside Park. The locals' loss in Kingston yesterday cuts their margin to half a game over the second-place Belleville team. The Nats, by knocking off Knotty Lee's gang here this week, can move over the Liftlockers into the top hole. The Petes have been going like a million dollars lately and are expected to snap back and grab this home game, though it should be a battle.

Chief Williams, the loop's outstanding southpaw, will be the Belleville hurler in this tussle. He has been saved for this game, both Smith and Casey having pitched already this week. The big Indian won his last start here and the Nats expect to repeat with him on the mound. Either Russ Kitchen or Archie Deyell will get the hurling assignment here, and it should be another pitchers' duel, marked with fine fielding and plenty of disputes in the oldtime Belleville-Peterborough manner. A huge crowd is looked for at this game.

FOSTERS HAVE CHANCE OF PLAYOFF POSITION

Fosters have a mathematical chance of getting into a playoff berth in the East Peterborough League, but they must win every game from now on starting tomorrow (Friday) evening when they clash with C.G.E. at six in the Exhibition Grounds. If Fosters lose this tilt, they are out of the running. If they win, they still have an outside chance of displacing the Electrics who are now perched in second place. The schedule will be over within two weeks. Tomorrow's game is a highly important one to both teams and they will be in there battling from start to finish.

Manager Darcy Foster has stated he would likely pin his hopes for this victory on either one of his ace southpaws, McIlwaine or Dunkerley. Manager Doug Hatton may start either Armour or Hetherington. Both squads will be at full strength, the newly-acquired Foster players being on deck. With so much at stake, and the possibility of its being the last contest in this league before the playoffs, a good crowd of baseball fans will likely attend. It should prove a real good game.

Tennis players with a yen toward getting a crack at a city tennis title here should look lively and get their entries in no later than next Saturday, July 21st. The fee is half a buck for each person and each event, to be forwarded to J. M. Kirkwood, 320 Maitland Ave., phone 3482; or Max Cotton, 208 Reid St., phone 1603. The events, to be played on the courts of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling and Tennis Club, are: Ladies' singles, ladies doubles, junior ladies' singles, mixed doubles, men's singles, men's doubles, and junior men's singles. The City Championship Tennis Tournament last year produced some surprisingly fine play by the netters, and this year's should be even better.

C.G.E. gals got away to a flying start in the second half of the femmes' softball schedule by smacking over Omemee last eve, 22 to 5. 'Twas a nifty number for six spasms but then hit the greased skids and went for a buggy ride over the rough roads, the O's being oh-oh! To give the comely lasses from out the Lindsay highway credit, they didn't have enough players on deck and had to use two who had injured mitts. This damsel, Mary Pickett, first-sacker for the losers, played a swelegant game.

The Church Softball League is all finished up for another year. Mark St. copped the senior title from Knox; St. James won the junior championship for the second year, knocking off Lakefield; George St. grabbed the juvenile shield from Knox; and St. Paul's took the bantam series from Mark St. There were some twenty-six teams in this loop this season and they dished up good softball and the players all had plenty of fun and exercise, credit being due the officers. Mark St. Seniors and St. James Juniors will now play a two-out-of-three series to see who is best, starting sometime next week. At this time, we wish to point out that the publicity given the Church League was due chiefly to Don Charlton, secretary. Our thanks to him.

Yammy Jamieson was too much for the Petes in Kingston last e'en, and the Ponies eked out a 3-0 win to stop the Petes' record of road victories at five. He only gave the locals three measly hits, though Bill Calladine was right behind him with a six-hit performance. It was a good battle, but each side booted a few. With the Petes unable to lay the gad onto Yammy's deliveries, they were seldom in the hunt, though a couple of times they looked like they might come through. At any rate, Hewitt Smith's terrific slugging was abruptly stopped.

This loss cuts the locals' margin to half a game over the Nationals who play us here Saturday. It means that the leadership of the league is at stake, the Nats taking the top run if they win. They've been saving up Jack (Chief) Williams for this struggle, so it should be a dandy. Archie Deyell or Russ Kitchen will go on the homesters' slab, and the biggest crowd of the season may be on hand, seeing as it's such a smart race and the teams are dishing up fine ball games. Kingston goes to Oshawa for two games and if they should win both would be right in the thick of the fight again.

Fosters get another chance tomorrow to keep in the E.P.L. running when they meet C.G.E. at the Exhibition Grounds. If Fosters win, they still have a man-sized job of work ahead of them with the cards having to run perfectly the rest of the way to let 'em in the playoffs. But if Electrics cop this one tomorrow, the Foster fellows can hang up their spikes and go fishing in their spare time the rest of the season, or else drop around and watch C.G.E. and Cogs in the playoffs. But they will likely put up quite an argument Friday before letting Doug Hatton's hopefuls do 'em dirt.

The following letter from Harold Dunk, secretary of the Campbellford Lacrosse Club, was sent to Pete King here yesterday: "Dear Sir—I am instructed by the officials of the Campbellford Lacrosse Club to notify you that it will be impossible for us to get a team to go to Peterborough on Thursday. Last night we could only field seven men and of course we have no money to bring in players from neighboring towns. So we are forced to cancel all our games. We are sorry to have to do this but the players won't turn out and we can't make them. The old regulars are all playing softball and we can't even get them out to practise. Yours very truly."

• • • • • • •

And so we have no lacrosse game here this evening. And so Campbellford now—as well as Cobourg—has dropped out of the league. And so only Belleville and the locals remain. And so what? Well, these facts have been sent to the O.A.L.A. and no doubt something will be heard shortly. Perhaps the Aajmaa Club of Belleville and Kiwanis of Peterborough will meet in a five-game playoff or something along this line. We aren't surprised at the Maroons dropping out, particularly when they were losing games. Some of the players there will only play for a team that's winning. This O.A.L.A. group had two strikes on it from the start and seemed to think a schedule was just another scrap of paper, failing to show up for billed games at will. It might be a break all around to whittle the group down to two trustworthy teams.

Grab-bag: Kingston Ponies have finally found out that they needed a coach and so they've dug up Joe Daley—a smart hombre—again . . . . Sonny Green is leading the Belleville batters with a .392 mark for 12 games . . . . Next in order are: Mills .276, R. Smith .268, Williams .261, Kerr .260 and Utronki .255 . . . . City Tennis Tourney will start next Tuesday afternoon . . . . Local O.A.S.A. juniors will likely be drawn against Kingston first, while the intermediates go in against Lindsay . . . . Umpires Colling and Johnston will officiate at the Belleville-Petes' game here Sat'day.

$70 IS REALIZED AT GARDEN PARTY

Successful Event Sponsored by Women's Association of Millbrook Church.

MILLBROOK, July 19.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—Over seventy dollars was the gate receipt taken in at the annual garden party sponsored by the Woman's Association of St. Andrew's church, and held on the lovely and spacious grounds surrounding the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. O'Brian on Tuesday afternoon and evening.

Flags and bunting made an attractive decorative scheme, and the verandah, enlarged with a platform in front of the west side and with the wide French doors giving access to the drawing room in the rear, made an excellent stage for the program, gasoline lanterns providing plenty of light. Mrs. F. J. Smith, president of the Woman's Association, had a general oversight of the proceedings, an army of willing assistants looking after the service of the abundant menu supplied at the tea hour, from five o'clock until all were served.

The community orchestra, under the leadership of G. E. Burnham, played during the program, the Cavan Dramatic Club presenting the five-act play, "The Fruit of His Folly," to the great pleasure of the audience. The caste included: Jack Munning, a victim of his own folly, W. H. Swayne; Percy Ogden, a true friend, B. A. Sutton; Ashley Drayton, a man of the world, R. Sutton; Hiram Boggs, owner of Cowslip Farm, George Cobley; Clifford Elliott played the dual role of Henry, the hired man at the farm, and the bell boy at the Tremont Hotel; Dorothy Dunning, Jack's wife, Mrs. Milton Carr; Alice Grandon, a society pet, Dorothy Cobley; Matilda Jane Boggs, from Juniperville, Mrs. Jas. Douglas; Sarah, Hiram's wife, Miss Albert Tinney; Polly Flinders, a black diamond, Verda Braithwaite.

The booth on the grounds was in charge of Miss Martha Earle, and Mrs. F. A. Kidd, and W. G. Hetherington and A. J. Brown, looked after the sale of tickets. Assisting the host and hostess in receiving their many guests and looking after their enjoyment, was the daughter of the home, Miss Marian O'Brian, and Mr. O'Brian's two sisters, Miss May, and Mrs. Verta Leach, of Vancouver, B.C., who is visiting at the homestead after an absence of thirty-one years, and whom many of her former friends were pleased to have the opportunity to greet. Another Millbrook girl, born and brought up in this community, who was present on Tuesday evening and warmly greeted by a host of friends of previous years, was Mrs. (Dr.) G. F. Metzler, of Ottawa, who is spending her vacation visiting relatives in Peterborough. Before her marriage Mrs. Metzler was Maud Nugent, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Nugent, life-long residents of Millbrook. She has been absent, however, twenty-six years.

Olympic games competitors of various nationalities will appear at the international track and field meet at the Canadian National Exhibition. The track meet at the "Ex" is Canada's oldest and largest gathering of the spiked shoe brigade. Stars of both sexes have forwarded their entries.

THE SPUN GLASS MYSTERY

A Tale of Scotland Yard

By A. FIELDING

CHAPTER 52

Pointer himself, meanwhile, had received word that Mrs. de Souza and her maid had both left the flat in Mount street. This was the first time since he knew of the lady's existence that the rooms had been deserted. The maid, his watcher phoned him, had gone off in the opposite direction to her mistress. Pointer hurried to the building. It was a flat which had been taken furnished for six months, and as he had learned, there had been no workmen in it since she took it. In other words, he did not think it likely that there was any secret hiding-hole fitted in to wall or floor or ceiling. A question to the owners, put apparently by a dealer trying to please a collector, had negatived the idea that he possessed any article of furniture or old picture frame with a secret drawer or concealed space in it. All this might not have been true to the house in Palace Green, and Pointer determined to do his best to avoid having to search it too. He had already sent a window cleaner, and a gas inspector to look over the flat, but each had found the maid beside them all the time of their round.

It was a stormy day threatening to grow worse. As he pulled up, he saw lights in the flat above Mrs. de Souza's, belonging, as he knew, to a young actor-manager. Asking for him, he and his companion were allowed to pass up. A luncheon party was on. Pointer decided he could chance it. So he and Inspector Watts walked up the stairs and stopped at the floor below. A twist with his master key, and he stepped into the flat and shut the door behind them. He had a search warrant, but he did not want to use it. The two men worked swiftly and carefully. After an hour and a half they looked at one another. They had found nothing. It was possible that Mrs. de Souza, supposing her to be the supplier of the poison as Pointer did might have kept her stock in some other place, but he expected it to be within easy reach. The flat was not abandoned. Nor was it difficult to search. Something about the paucity of personal belongings suggested that mistress and maid were more or less prepared to leave quickly. He knew from the expert that the poison would probably be in powder form, putty-colored powder with a faint smell as of horseradish. He did not waste time going over the furniture a second time. If he and Watts could not find it the first time they would not the hundredth. He stated, head bent, eyes on his shoes, deep in reverie, while Watts stood by the door listening for footsteps. Pointer was swiftly running over the objects in the rooms before his mind's eye again. Suddenly he took a step forward. He remembered a smart scarlet inkstand in the dining room with penholders of jade and blue. The ink was red, so were the nibs. The sort of thing that is for decoration, not for use.

"Did you look in the inkwell?" he asked Watts.

"Yes. Full to the brim," was the reply. Pointer went to it, inserted a pencil and felt the smooth glass sides and bottom. It was shallower than one would have expected. He lifted it out. It too was of opaque scarlet glass, and fitted exactly into the silver holder. The bottom must be unusually thick. He poured the ink into a tumbler, and as he inverted it, out fell a flat capsule about an inch thick, the exact size of the bottom of the well. Drying it carefully so as not to let a drop fall, he found the box had a screw lid fastened with a narrow strip of surgical plaster, the latter of quite recent date. The inside of the glass was full of putty-colored powder with a faint horseradish smell. Pointer emptied it into a glass box of his own, wiped it, and put back into it a powder similar in appearance and smell, but harmless as chalk, of which it was made. He had with him quite a little beauty parlor of complexion powders of shades which ranged from cream to nigger, and he was careful to mix what he wanted to the exact tint of that in the glass. Everything put back, the two men hurried out of the flat and sauntered down the stairs, looking at peace with all the world. The powder was carried at once to the expert analyst. It was the poison described by Dr. Angelli and found in Tait's dead body.

While waiting a few minutes for this, Pointer was told that Miss Dundas had left the house in Great Cumberland Place with Miss Henrietta Naylor. That seemed all right. The sharpest scrutiny that had been possible in the short time since Tait's death had failed to find any hidden acquaintanceship between any member of his household and the three around whom the Yard's suspicions gathered. As long, therefore, as Gillian was with any of the Naylors she should be safe, and Pointer wanted to save her, if that was possible. But he did not like the emptiness of Mrs. de Souza's flat. He could now ask for a warrant against her, and Lady Ida, and Strange, and he intended to do so at once. They would not wait long, he feared, that clever trio. Though another death would not do, coming directly after Tait's death by poison, he believed that, had that passed as heart failure as they had expected, Gillian Dundas would not be alive now. They held her silence, it was true, because of the threat of disclosing the fact that she had taken part in blackmail, but if, as Pointer felt sure, Mrs. de Souza was in that too, for Gillian Dundas was really too stupid to have found out by herself what men to blackmail, and how to set about doing it, even Gillian must know that they could not use that weapon without themselves being cut in using it. She had complicated matters, from their point of view, by going to the same house as their victim Tait. That was clever of her, so clever that is struck an odd note. . . . Every hour she was in Lady Tait's house must be an hour of terror for the three. But though he did not think she would be killed in the house itself, he was afraid that, by some means, she would be decoyed away, or kidnaped, in order to take her to some place where she would "disappear." He would have liked to arrest her, but he had nothing on which to get a warrant. He decided to try again for a talk with her. Though he could not promise her immunity from punishment for blackmail, the punishment she so richly deserved—for Pointer was certain in his own mind that because of her Lord Mills had shot himself—yet he could assure her that the police would do their best to see that the fact that she had helped them to bring the poisoners of John Tait to punishment, would be taken into account. There must be good in the girl. He would get the warrant, execute it as soon as Mrs. de Souza was within reach, and then try for a word with Gillian.

A message came for him on the telephone while he was at the Yard getting the warrant. It was of first-rate importance. Pointer had had all errand boys questioned who were known to have delivered parcels in the street around the hour when Tait had collapsed. Working through their own clubs, and the shops, he had succeeded in rounding up quite a number, and two of these had undoubtedly seen Tait. One had noticed a big dark man, overtake him, stop him and light his cigaret at Tait's cigaret. As the wind was strong, he had had to come quite close for this. The boy could not swear that he had touched him, but he thought he had put a hand on his arm. As to identifying the man, his back had been to the boy, who had also not noticed whether he wore gloves or whether there was a boutonniere in his coat. This might or might not be useful, but the time was just a few minutes before Tait collapsed, for the clock was striking three. There was more to come. Another boy had seen a gentleman whom he had identified from his pictures as Mr. Tait, standing still. It was just after the hour has struck, therefore just after the other boy had seen the man lighting his cigaret. Mr. Tait, this second boy saw, was fumbling in his pocket—he had no gloves on—and after a second, with a jerk as though something had hurt him, had flung an envelope into the gutter.

The boy had picked it up, and found inside a very pretty artificial sprig of lily-of-the-valley. It was slightly damaged. He had not touched it beyond drawing it out by its silver stalk, intending to wear it next Sunday. He let the Yard man have the whole for half-a-crown. So Pointer now had his proof that it was by means of one of the pretty little Ricci boutonnieres that the poison had been given, for a careful test showed that the whole sprig had been thickly coated with it after it was made up.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, July 20.

According to the lunar transits predominant on this day there is quite likely to be a sudden and unforeseen upheaval, bearing a far-reaching influence on the future destiny. This may precipitate entirely fresh interests and connections, with change of environs and associates. The opportunity presented will be attacked with splendid vigor and initiative, under high urges of the forces and faculties into constructive and original lines. There is fine initiative, enterprise and energy ready to meet such openings. A bereavement may have something to do with such affairs.

If it is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves on the eve of a year of high adventure and enterprise, with new projects, fresh associations and strange environment demanding all the potencies and latent energies for constructive and skilful initiative. These may seem to arise "from out of the blue" or may be instigated by a death or other bereavement.

A child born on this day may be bold, energetic, original, constructive and adventurous. It should have a life of important affairs and achievements.

On the average, nearly 90 telephone conversations take place in the United States every second.

HENRY ADMITS PRIVATE FIRMS AFTER ABITIBI

Knowledge of Company's Act Not the Best Ex-Premier Says.

DEALINGS EXPLAINED.

Should Have Disclosed Holding of Bonds to Members of Cabinet.

If Premier Henry had been aware of certain provisions of the company law of Ontario he would have disclosed to his Cabinet his holdings of $25,000 of Ontario Power Service Corporation bonds at a time when the Province was negotiating for their purchase ,he admitted before the Latchford-Smith Abitibi deal probe at Osgoode Hall yesterday.

Calm, collected, and even jovial, in marked contrast to Right Hon. Arthur Meighen's rather peppery attitude on occasion, former Premier George S. Henry testified as to his ownership of $25,000 of Ontario Power Service Corporation bonds during his conduct of purchase negotiations.

Henry Explains Dealings

In even tones he summed up his Abitibi dealings and his maintenance of silence before Cabinet colleagues in respect of his bond holdings in order that they might pass judgment on the deal with free and open words, and concluded: "I am satisfied I did what was right."

After telling the Commission that he was not familiar with company law which required a director to divulge his interest and prohibit him from voting upon a matter affecting his own interests, the former Premier jokingly told the court he was "not as familiar with company law then as I am now."

"I take it," asked Arthur G. Slaght, commission counsel, "if you had been aware of this provision you would have disclosed it to your Cabinet?" A.—I would.

Facing Mr. Slaght, one of his chief election critics, at a distance of not more than fifteen feet, the defeated Prime Minister reiterated his Legislature declaration that at the outset of the Abitibi purchase negotiatons he had forgotten that he had the bonds. He was first reminded by his secretary, to whom he said: "That hasn't any significance to me. I have taken an oath of office to protect the public to the best of my ability. And the matter of having $25,000 invested in this (O.P.S.) stock was not what was a concern to me. I was seeking to make the best I could of the purchase for this Province."

"An Error," He Says

Almost, fiercely, Mr. Slaght verbally pursued the Premier in respect of a statement issued by himself to the effect that "the Government, with the approval of the Hydro Commission" had finally decided to offer $18,000,000 of Commission 20-year debentures for the desired bonds. The former Premier contended it was 'an error' or at least loose language in the statement, because the Hydro Commission, other than Hon. J. Robert Cooke, as member of the Government, and Hydro engineers brought in for engineering counsel, had not considered it. This was considered by Mr. Slaght to be an important point in the testimony, but Mr. Henry urbanely maintained his attitude to the finish and did not even get angry—as Right Hon. Mr. Meighen had earlier in the day—when asked if the statement were a "false" one.

"I would not say that" replied the former Premier. "I would say it was an error."

Once when Mr. Slaght cut short a declaration that the Abitibi dealing was "to all intents and purposes a Government undertaking" with, "We have heard that several times" Mr. Henry answered warmly: "Well, you are going to hear it again.' As to the Hydro recommendation for the Order-in-Council which eventually passed, Mr. Henry explained: "This was a Government undertaking, and there was not power within the statutes of the Province to take care of it."

He undertook to justify the deal by declaring it in the best interests of the Provinces; intimated that private interests were seeking to complete the canyon project to which Hydro was tied up; and declared that a Clarkson proposition preliminary to the final arrangement had been thrown out by the Government because Abitibi bankruptcy seemed imminent, and, in fact, did shortly occur.

Weddings

CRAWFORD—LYNCH

St. Mary's Church, Campbellford was the setting of a pretty wedding on Tuesday morning, July 10th, when Rev. C. J. Phelan officiated at the marriage of Agnes Loretta Lynch and Eugene Crawford.

The bride given in marriage by her father was lovely in a gown of bridal white suede lace with a white baku hat with flange of georgette. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

Miss Frances Lynch, who was her sister's bridesmaid chose powder blue lace and tulle with lace mohair hat trimmed with pink maline and blue velvet. True-lovers' knots in pink showed through the tulle of her gown and she carried pink roses and baby's breath.

Mr. Joseph Crawford of Marmora was his brother's best man.

Following the ceremony members of the immediate families of the bride and bridegroom were guests at a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents.

The happy young couple left amidst the best wishes of their many friends by motor for Montreal, Quebec and points east. The bride travelled in a suit of beige triple sheer with brown taffeta hat and brown accessories. On their return they will establish their home in Perry, New York.

Obituary

MRS. LOUIS MOORE

MILLBROOK, July 19 (Examiner Correspondence).—The death of Mary Jane Lackey, following a lingering illness, took place at her home, Fifth Line, Cavan, on Sunday, July 15, in her sixty-ninth year. Deceased was born at Centreville, and was a daughter of the late Hamilton Lackey, and his wife, Sarah Mahood, practically her entire life being spent in this vicinity.

The marriage of Miss Lackey, and Louis Moore who survives his wife, took place on November 10, 1909, and their entire wedded life has been spent on the homestead east of Millbrook. Mrs. Moore was a member of St. Andrew's United Church, and of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary, and as long as health and strength permitted was faithful in attendance, support, and interest.

She was a devoted Christian, and her long period of ill health, attended as it was by much suffering, was borne with fortitude and cheerfulness, and an undimmed faith Besides the bereaved husband the immediate surviving relatives include an adopted son, Nelson, of Cavan; one sister, Mrs. H. E. Smith, of Cavan; and two brothers, James in Monaghan, and Hamilton, in Cavan; one sister, Mrs. McFee (Isabella), and two brothers, Hugh and Edward, were previously deceased.

The funeral took place from the family homestead on Tuesday at 2.30 p.m., Rev. D. N. McKenzie of Centreville, a former pastor and the minister who officiated at the wedding of the deceased and Rev. Archer L. Sisco, of St. Andrew's United Church, Millbrook, conducting the service. Among the many beautiful floral tributes laid in loving memory on the casket was a sheaf from the Boneka Bible Class, of St. Andrew's Sunday School, of which Mrs. Moore was a member. The pall-bearers were six neighbors of years' standing: J. H. Might, Stewart Hall, Samuel Reid, R. Thompson, T. W. Belch, and Jas. Hutchison. Interment was in the Centreville cemetery.

FORMER TRENT RIVER ROAD BOY W. B. JOHNSTON BACK FOR VISIT

Went West to Alberta 30 Years Ago—Times Not So Bright There Now.

MAY RETURN EAST.

HAVELOCK, July 19 (Examiner Correspondence) — William B. Johnston of Castor, Alberta, a former resident of the Trent River road, who for the past thirty years has been in the Canadian West, on a visit to his boyhood home, and while a guest with his niece, Mrs. Wesley Johnston of Trent River road, favored The Examiner with an interesting interview. Mr. Johnston will be eighty-two years old the latter part of August and is a son of the late John Johnston and Elizabeth Rae, pioneers of Belmont, who took up a homestead in the south west part of the township, the property now owned by Mr. A. A. Wilde.

Seated on the verandah of Elmview on the Trent River road, Mr. Johnston indicated the spot about one quarter mile west, where once stood the comfortable log house built by his father in which he, his brothers and sisters were born. His father died when he was only four years old and was buried near the centre of where the village of Norwood now stands. There was no cemetery in those days.

The home which he himself built and occupied for a number of years, is on ehe Trent River road south of Maple Grove cemetery, the home lot and indeed the entire farm bordered by stately maples which he planted. This place is now owned and occupied by Mr. Andrew Buchanan.

Though a prosperous farmer before going West, and thoroughly satisfied with his home and surroundings, Mr. Johnston answered the call to the new country, for the sake of his two sons then in their teens, who were anxious to explore the great country of which there was so much talk in those days, where fortunes were to be made in a few years. It was at the insistence of his wife the former lElizabeth Burgess, who could not bear the thought of her sons alone in a new country, that Mr. Johnston decided to move west.

Bright in the West

At the time, they did not intend to make a permanent home there, but only remain long enough to see the boys established in places of their own. However, conditions were so very bright at that time, that in two years they decided to remain, and Mr. Johnston disposed of his property here, selling to Mr. John Scott.

Mrs. Johnston died one year ago on June 16th. Their two sons now in the forties, Bruce of Castor and Fred of Fawcett, Alberta, are married and each have two sons. Mr. Johnston is alone on an eight hundred acre tract of land, which adjoins the eight hundred acres of his son Bruce. This land for which he paid fifteen to twenty dollars per acre cannot now be sold for five due to the shortage of money.

Commenting on the changes of the past thirty years, Mr. Johnston said that the greatest surprise for him had been the growth of the trees which though saplings when he left, are now veritable giants.

The growth of Toronto was also a matter of surprise to him. Peterborough has not changed to any great extent since he lived here.

Social conditions are much better east, and he has found his old friends here unchanged except in looks. He has also made a number of new friends during his visit, and believes that after all there is no place like home. Home is in Belmont where he was born and spent the best years of his life. When he returns to Castor which he expects will be almost immediately, he will make some arrangements about the disposal of his property there, and as soon as possible will return east to spend his declining years.

LONE CIVILIAN RAIDS BARRACKS FREES PRISONER

Sentry and Eight Other Officials Are Cowed by Unknown Man.

PAIR FLEE IN ROW BOAT.

Militia Startled at Daring Coup, Soldier Captive's Second Escape.

NEW YORK, July 20. (AP) — Boldly cowing several soldiers, an unidentified civilian "stormed" the governor's island post of the United States army and executed a daring delivery of an army prisoner to-day.

The prisoner was Melvin Blanton, of Camden, O., interned at the disciplinary barracks.

Blanton, who had twice escaped, from Fort Thomas, Ky., and once from Fort Benjamin Harrison in Indiana, was working with two other prisoners at the southernmost end of the island.

Sentry Stephen F. Grezegorek stood on guard, armed with an automatic shotgun, when the civilian approached, drew a pistol and said to Frezegorek:

"Drop that gun or you'll get hurt."

The sentry dropped the gun; the man picked it up.

Just then, an army truck with two soldiers and a chauffeur arrived. The invader forced them to get off the truck and stand with the other two prisoners.

Another Interruption

Next came a passenger automobile bearing two members of the island detachment of the civilian conservation corps. The civilian took command of this development abruptly. The corps members took their place in the line-up.

ENGLAND ENDS FIRST INNINGS

Homesters Dismissed With Total Score of 200 Runs in 4th Test Match.

AUSSIES 39 FOR 3.

LEEDS, England, July 20 (C.P. Cable)—England was dismissed for a first-inning score of 200 runs and Australia, commencing a reply, had tallied 39 for loss of three wickets as the first day's play closed this evening in the season's fourth test cricket match.

The present match may be decisive, for in the previous tests each has won one, the third being drawn.

The bowlers assumed the mastery as the wicket dried out during the day. A good crowd that mounted to 30,000 in the afternoon saw the English "tail" collapse, the last four English wickets going for 32 runs.

The Aussies fared little better when they got in to bat less than an hour before the close. Thirty-seven runs were put on the first wicket, but then W. A. Oldfield and the stalwart captain W. M. Woodfull both lost their wickets for a duck.

C. F. Walters of Worcestershire led the English batting with 44 runs, Wally Hammond aiding the cause with 37. Clarry Grimmett took four of the English wickets for 57 runs and W. J. O'Reilly got three more for 46.

William Bowes, Yorkshire's six-foot-four fast bowler, proved highly troublesome for the Aussies, getting all three of their wickets before the close.

Grierson's objective is Ottawa. He attempted a similar flight last August, but his machine was wrecked at Reykjavik, Iceland.

No War for Years

ROME, July 20 (A.P.).—There will be no general European war in the near future, Premier Mussolini told Bishop Miguel Dandrea of Buenos Aires to-day.

LEG BIRTHMARK ON QUINTUPLET PROVES TUMOR

Marie, Smallest of Dionne Babies, Suffering No Trouble Says Doctor.

SPECIALISTS CALL.

CORBEIL, Ont., July 20 (C.P.).—A birthmark on the left leg of baby Marie, smallest of the 53-day old Dionne quintuplets, was confirmed to-day as a naevus type of tumor.

The infant is suffering no ill effects, said Dr. A. R. Dafoe, the north country physician, who has attended the quintuplets since birth. Until Marie grows stronger, he said, nothing will be done, but later on radium treatments may be used as a precautionary measure.

Dr. Dafoe said he recognized the birthmark as a naevus after the infant's birth and had been watching it closely. Its growth has been slow.

Dr. Thomas S. Cullen, professor of gynaecology at Johns Hopkins University and Hospital, Baltimore, Md., and Dr. James S. Freeborn, of Magnetawan, Ont., examined the tumor to-day when they accompanied Dr. A. R. Dafoe, the Dionnes' physician, to the little country home to-day.

The naevus, or tumor, is composed of large blood vessels of the left leg at the present time. The tumor is about 1¼ inches in diameter and is gradually enlarging. The child is not being troubled.

August Christening.

CORBEIL, Ont., July 20.—(C.P.)—Some time in August the formal christening of Corbeil's quintuplets will take place in the church here, with Rev. Father Routhier officiating. Ten Godparents will be required to sponsor the five babes and Mr. and Mrs. Alex Legros have already been requested to act.

In about two weeks, it is understood here, the infants will be sufficiently strong to undergo the ceremony.

CANADIANS WIN SECOND MAJOR CHALLENGE CUP

Fifteenth Victory for Canucks Since Match First Fired Back in 1871.

10 POINT MARGIN.

Dominion to Have Ten Men in King's Cup Finals Saturday Afternoon.

BISLEY CAMP, Eng., July 20.—(C. P. Cable) —Sharpshooting Canadians today added the historic Kolapore Challenge Cup to the MacKinnon Cup, making a clean sweep in the two great team trophies of the Imperial meeting of the National Rifle Association.

The Canadians, sweeping irresistibly towards the climax of the big meet, recovered the Rajah or Kolapore's Imperial Challenge Cup from the Mother Country, which had taken it from Canada last year. It was the 15th win for the Canadians since the match was was first fired back in 1871. They took the MacKinnon yesterday.

The glorious victory by a margin of 10 points over the Mother Country in Bisley's greatest team shoot came on the heels of a Canadian challenge in the second stage of the King's prize, fired earlier today, that brought Private P. J. Martinsen of La Tuque, Quebec, within a point of the silver medallist, Sgt.-Maj. W. R. Clarke of Bombay. Canada has eight, perhaps 10 men, in the King's finals tomorrow.

BRIDGE TUMBLES OVER, 30 DROWN

Eleven of Polish Military Engineering Squad Are Among Victims.

FLOOD SWEEPS ON.

WARSAW, July 20. — (A.P.) — Thirty or 40 more persons were believed to have been drowned in floods to-day whe na bridge over which many persons were passing collapsed at Sandomir.

While water was receding on the Carpathian slopes the crest of the flood was just reaching cities along lower reaches of the rivers.

The most menacing situation today was near Sandomiers, where the Vistula river had inundated 30 villages. Soldiers and citizens were working desperately to strengthen levees.

The Vistula was expected to reach its maximum level near Warsaw tonight. Authorities said the suburbs on the right bank may be flooded.

Eleven members of a military engineering squad were reported to be among the victims.

Soldiers plunged into the Vistula river, spanned by the bridge, to save peasants struggling in the swirling water.

Many of the farmers were drowned, according to advices received here, because they persisted in trying to save livestock in the stream. Many had to be removed forcibly.

Official information on the collapse of the bridge was incomplete.

Seattle's Strikers Routed By Tear Gas

SEATTLE, July 20 (A.P.). — Mayor Charles L. Smith's 300 strike police, with floods of tear gas, swinging clubs and charging horses, routed 2,000 striking longshore pickets from the waterfront to-day in a spectacular battle. Scores were hurt, but none believed seriously.

Strikers fought back, hurling rocks, catching gas canisters before they could explode, and throwing them back at police. Virtually every one of the 2,300 combatants was affected to some extent by the gas.

Weather Beard

HANCOCK, N.H., July 20.—(C.P.) — Ephraim Weston's whiskers are so doggone dry they're curling up—a sure sign of a prolonged dry spell.

Ephraim is Hancock's weather prophet and the townfolk say his predictions are just about 99 per cent. correct.

He bases his weather forecasts on his full growth of alfalfa beard, which dries and curls up prior to and during spells of drought, and dampens up a bit and straightens out during the rainy sessions.

TORONTO GIRL'S MURDER LEAVES POLICE BAFFLED

Victim Assaulted, Beaten to Death, Thrown Into Lilac Bushes on Sideroad.

BODY IS UNIDENTIFIED.

TORONTO, July 20 (C.P.)—Toronto's "lilac bush" murder was no nearer solution to-day despite a steady stream of people parading through the morgue in an effort to identify the body. One man who went to the morgue to-day thought the girl was the mother of a child he and his wife had adopted some time ago, but a number of others were equally positive the body resembled that of persons they had known.

The Attorney General's Department, anxious to make complete and satisfactory indentification, to-day ordered the embalming of the body and this was done.

TORONTO, July 19. (CP)—The body of a slim young woman lay among her tattered clothing in the morgue to-day, awaiting identification by someone who knew her before she was assaulted, beaten to death and tossed beneath a lilac cluster on a north Toronto sideroad.

Police admitted they were baffled by failure to identify the body of the woman, described as being between 23 and 25 years of age. No one of her description was reported missing and police said there was no means of identification on her clothing, torn from part of her bruised and scratched body.

A postmortem performed by Dr. E. R. Frankish, medico-legal authority, revealed the woman died from concussion of the brain as the result of a sharp blow over the right eye, probably from a stone. Her shoe was found some distance from the body, indicating to police she had been killed before her body was taken to the spot for disposal and scratches on her legs were ascribed to the body being dragged from a car to the bush.

Officers said she had been brutally ravished and it was believed by police the slayer had sought to

FRENCH CABINET BADLY SHAKEN

Herriot and Tardieu Likely to Quit, Latter at Doumergue's Request.

OVER STAVISKY CASE.

BY STUART MARONEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, July 20. — (AP) — The "political truce" cabinet appeared badly shattered today with the resignations of Edouard Herriot and Andre Tardieu, both former premiers and now ministers without portfolio, likely.

Tardieu is determined to "fight it out" with members of the Radical Socialist party, but Herriot's friends said he is ready to leave in order to force Tardieu out "to avoid endangering the country's financial restoration."

Premier Gaston Doumergue was said by friends to be "furious" at Tardieu's violent attack on the Radical Socialist, headed by Herriot, and ready to demand Tardieu's resignation if peace is not reached tonight.

Tardieu charged Radical Socialist leaders knew of swindles of the late Serge Stavisky long before

MERCURY AT 93 EQUALS SUMMER RECORD IN JUNE

Slumped to 57 for Thursday's Low—New Advance To-day.

90 DEGREES AT NOON.

Two Men Killed and Extensive Loss in Last Night's Storm.

Private thermometers set out on a heat march up the torrid heights yesterday keeping pace with the official register at Walter Peters' home, 681 Reid Street, where the advance for the day halted at 93 degrees.

The evening's timely rain tempered the heat that had reached every accessible corner, bringing the day's low mark down to 57 degrees.

"We equalled the high mark for heat set on June 4," Mr. Peters said to-day, "and at noon to-day we were back to 90. Yesterday's rain was .21 of an inch and more is needed, for the total this month so far is .99, just slightly less than an inch."

Some of the domestic mercuries moved out in the procession ahead of the official pace-setter, for reports from citizens indicated that some of their thermometers had reached the 95 mark.

Warmer Spot?

The Peters home at 681 Reid Street may be properly located for registration purposes, but that is fairly high and breezy ground up in the north-west rim of the city's bowl as compared with some of the sizzling spots down at the very bottom, including the corner of George and Charlotte Streets, and many another corner where the public believes the Peters instrument could turn out a hot tune with a lot of frills it hasn't yet heard about. That mark of 93 degrees is peppery enough for Reid Street residents but those who are under the moist impression that they are taking more than that object to the feel-

Nazi Heads Sidestep Execution Reports

BERLIN, July 20 (A.P.) — The man on the street said and officials denied to-day that trials are going on night and day in Munich for persons involved in the political smash of June 30.

Rumors have it that a Nazi courtmartial is trying at least 2,000 defendants there.

Some of the trials are supposed to be under way in the Dachu concentration camp, said to be jammed with prisoners, and others were supposed to be held in the famous "brown house," the Nazi headquarters.

The so-called courtmartial is reported to be a party tribunal composed of three persons constituting a "court."

Persistent efforts to obtain authentic information failed. Declaring, "We can say nothing," the special Reich ministry of justice referred an interrogator to the secret police as competent, adding however, "but the figures, I am sure, are exaggerated."

The word "obey" has been barred from the wedding service by 1100 Methodist ministers in England.

Nervy Theft

PIKEVILLE, Ky., July 20.—(C.P.)—A four foot rattlesnake, 13 rattles and all, is the object of an official search.

ROAD WORKMAN FATALLY HURT AT CAMP NO. 1

Watford Man Dies After Being Admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital.

SETTING CHARGE.

When a charge of dynamite exploded prematurely on the new Burleigh Falls highway late yesterday afternoon, Edward Tait, middle-aged married man, of Watford, was so badly injured that he died a few hours later in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Tait was experienced in the use of dynamite and was employed as dynamite man at Camp 1, two miles above Bureigh Falls.

When the accident occurred he was engaged in setting off two small charges to spring a piece of rock. He had set the charges and was lighting the fuses. He had lit one fuse and was in the act of lighting the other when the explosion took place.

Tait was thrown off his feet by the blast. A stick of wood was imbedded in his neck, his left hand and right thumb were blown off, and his body badly burned by the explosion.

First aid was administered to him and later Dr. A. T. Moore, medical officer of the highway camps, ministered to him and ordered his removal to hospital.

Tait never regained consciousness and he passed away at 7.30 from the severe shock he had received.

This is the second fatality from dynamite accidents during the course of the construction of the new road. Coroner Dr. J. C. Smith of Lakefield has ordered an inquest.

DOUBLE ATTACK FOR AIR SCHEME

Labor Claims Enlarging of R. A. F. Means 200 Seats for Them.

LIBERALS FEAR ARMS RACE

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 20.—(C. P. Cable) —The government's decision to add 41 new squadrons to the Royal Air Force, announced yesterday, will face a double attack in both Houses of Parliament.

In the Lords and Commons alike the Labor party has put down motions of censure. On the other hand Conservatives who have been pressing for action attack the program as inadequate and dilatory.

At the same time Sir Herbert Samuel the Liberal leader, told the annual meeting of the Liberal Social council today "we find ourselves again in the full tide of international competition in a race of armaments. We shall soon find ourselves back in the pre-war world from which he had hoped mankind had emerged, having learned a lesson from the results of the last catastrophe."

The Labor party claims the government's plan means Labor will gain 200 more seats in the next parliament. "It may even give us a chance for a complete majority," said one authority.

Cost of the plan is unofficialy estimated at between 100,000,000 and $125,000,000. The Air Ministry is now preparing elaborate plans for new aerodromes, extension of training, and improvement of air defence.

A chain of searchlight and anti-aircraft gun emplacements, it is predicted, will stretch from the English channel to the Scottish border.

FRAIL WITNESS TELLS OF VISIT BRADLEY HOME

Circled Scene of Death After Hearing Burst of Rifle Fire.

TALKED TO MICHAEL.

Claims Accused Asked Him if His Uncle John Had Done the Shooting.

CAMPBELL'S BAY, July 20 (C. P.)—A story of hearing rifle fire at the quiet and peaceful homestead of Joseph Bradley at Demers Centre, in the early morning hours of July 21 last year which startled the entire neighborhood, was told from the witness stand here to-day at the county of Pontiac criminal assizes as the murder trial of Michael Bradley entered its fourth day.

Narcisse Vailancourt, nearest neighbor of the victims, gave a detailed account of what had taken place that morning. The frail and weak farmer had to be given a chair shortly after he took the witness stand to relate to court how he heard the shooting, which frightened him so much that he went into his home with his mother and stayed there for half an hour until everything quieted down again.

Then, he testified, he made a wide circle around the homestead where the burst of rifle fire spelled death for five members of the Bradley family to the home of Michael Bradley where he saw the accused.

Joseph and Amam Allard, neighbors of the victims, described hearing shots and seeing a woman run into the Bradley house with a man after her. Later they said they saw a man going from the house to the barn with something over his head.

Prisoner Looks Worried.

The accused looked worried as he entered the court this morning. He was unshaven. As witnesses described the scenes around the Bradley homestead on the morning of the shooting, the accused hung his head apparently in deep thought.

Again there was a large crowd in the court-room despite the humid atmosphere.

Mr. Vailancourt told how, about half an hour after the shooting, he went in a roundabout way to the home of Michael Bradley. Here, he said, he asked Mrs. Bradley where Mike was, to which she said he was changing his clothes. Continuing, witness said he told Mrs. Bradley of rifle fire he had heard. Then Mike came out and asked me if it was his uncle, John, who had done the shooting. "I said I didn't think so."

At the point witness became weak

On the occasion of the last burglary $36 was extracted from the register.

50,000 Welcome Premier M. F. Hepburn to St. Thomas

GREATEST RALLY EVER IN ANNALS OF ELGIN COUNTY

Premier Introduces New Cabinet—Predicts Federal Victory Next.

ALL ONTARIO REPRESENTED

Different Justice in Courts, More Consideration for Unfortunate, Promises Roebuck.

BY FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. THOMAS, Ont., July 20.—With the cheers of 50,000 followers still ringing in his ears Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn is at home today where the folks call him "Mitch". Last night what was described locally as the largest political gathering ever held in Ontario joined with the premier in celebrating the first Liberal victory in Ontario in 30 years.

Exactly one month after he won his convincing victory at the polls and upset the Conservative government of Hon. George S. Henry the Liberals of his native Elgin county held their triumphal celebration for Premier Hepburn. It took the form of a long parade and a night meeting in Pinafore Park.

It appeared as if the whole population of St. Thomas and most of the population of Elgin County turned out to honor the native son who became premier at the age of 37 years. But thousands came from outside the county, large groups from Western Ontario cities and individuals from all parts of Ontario. Premier Hepburn introduced every member of his cabinet to the crowd and made a short speech.

Presents His Cabinet

Each of the ministers spoke and Mr. Hepburn was presented with an address by the Elgin County Liberal Association and was congratulated publicly by the warden of the county E. S. Livermore, and the mayor of St. Thomas, A. W. Johnson.

Liberal triumph would not stop with Ontario, Mr. Hepburn told the crowd. The day was not distant when Prime Minister R. B. Bennett would go to the people and then the Liberal party would take over control at Ottawa. He looked forward to the time, he said when he would be able to sit down with Rt.

Turned Wool Crop Into Real Profit

MONTREAL, July 20.—(CP).—Here is a story of resourcefulness from Canterbury, Que.:

Industries pertaining to farm life are among the principal interests of the Women's Institutes, so Mrs. Mary Smith decided to see what she could do with wool. She had her wool clip made into cloth and yarn at a mill. During the evenings she knitted men's socks, mittens, girls' caps and golf stockings, and sold the remaining yarn. Out of the cloth she tailored a two-piece suit for a man and sold it.

"I feel that I sold my wool crop at a profit," says Mrs. Smith. "Any of our members who wish use their hands can, I am sure, knit many articles of clothing and anyone who wishes to sew can make the cloth into comfortable garments for the whole family."

Battered Body Young Girl Reveals Murder

A brutal murder was revealed at noon on Thursday with the finding of the battered body of a young girl, aged about 25, hidden under a lilac bush just north of Toronto. The find was made by four small boys, aged 7 to 10 years, who had hurried under the bush for protection from the rain. Police are working on the theory that the girl was murdered at another point. The picture above shows the position of the body when found by police. Her right temple was crushed in and there was a large blood-covered stone under the head. Her light summer dress was badly torn and a piece of it, together with her white shoes, were found 20 feet, 8 inches away in a clump of grass. Her underclothing was ripped, and there were bruises on the body and the bare legs. Police are checking the records of missing girls with a view to learning her identity. Provincial Coroner Dr. M. M. Crawford and Dr. E. R. Frankish, provincial medico-legal expert are assisting provincial, city and township police in the investigation.

OVER 50 DEATHS BLAMED ON HEAT

Nowata, Okla., Registers 115 Degrees—Crops Wither Fast in All Sections.

WATER RUNS SHORT.

CHICAGO, July 20 (A.P.).—Sizzling midsummer heat left death and devastation in the United States today from Texas to New York and Georgia to Nebraska.

The death list numbered more than 50. More crops wilted. Some sections had acute water shortages.

Kansas City, where the mercury shot yesterday to 108—the highest ever registered there—reported 10 deaths. Temperatures topped the 100-degree mark at numerous other spots over the country. Nowata, Okla., was the hottest spot with 115 degrees.

St. Louis reported seven deaths, St. Joseph, Mo., five; Oklahoma City five; Dallas four; Jefferson City, Mo., four; Arkansas three; Houston, Tex., two; New York two; Memphis two, and Washington, D.C., Indiana, Fort Worth, Tex., and Atlanta one each. Nebraska listed 10 deaths within the last few days.

Chicago baked under a temperature of 96, Lake Michigan breezes being absent. It was 88 in New York.

There was no immediate relief in sight in the weatherman's forecast for the torrid area.

Farmers in the grain states renewed their cries for rain. The corn crop was badly damaged in many of the northern states.

At Falls City, Neb., the flow of the Nemaha River was reduced to a dribble, and water had to be hauled from a nearby lake to supply restaurants and other public establishments.

cover this crime by sealing the lips of his victim.

Consider Auto Theory

Authorities believe that she drove to the spot with the murderer in an automobile. She may possibly have been unconscious or semi-conscious in the car. At any rate she was dragged into the corner of the vacant field from the driveway off Blythwood Road about 100 yards west of Bayview and hit on the forehead with the stone.

It may be that after she was struck she was dragged into the corner of the field and dropped behind the lilac bush, because one of her shoes was found nearly 30 feet away from the body, and probably fell off while she was being dragged.

When Chief Constable Roy Riseborough of North York Township police, and officers from North Toronto police station arrived at the place of the murder, they found the girl stretched on her back, with her arms and legs in unnatural positions. A large stone with blood smears on it was found a few feet from the body.

The stone was examined for fingerprints, and carefully wrapped up by the police for future reference.

Body Found by Boys

Three boys caught in the rain about 11.30 a.m. yesterday as they were on the way along Blythwood Road to Sunnybrook Farm ran for the shelter of a row of bushes. They were aghast at finding the evidently dead body of a young woman behind one bush less than five yards from the road.

Frightened, the boys, Donald MacDonald, 12, of 104 Soudan Avenue; George Kaake, 8, and Charles Kaake, 7, both of 2519 Yonge Street, ran eastward along Blythwood Road to Bayview Avenue, where they stood under a tree.

James Brooklyn, 15 years old, of 414 Keewatin Avenue, joined them under the same tree. He was going swimming and had stopped under the tree with his bicycle.

"We just saw a woman dead up there," one of the boys said.

Brooklyn refused to believe them. The youngsters appeared scared and refused to talk about it any more. Brooklyn asked some more questions and they told him to go up and look for himself.

Apparently the three boys who first saw the body were so bewildered they did not know what to do. The rain had stopped temporarily and he rode his bicycle up to the sideroad a short distance away and saw for himself. He rode to a house nearby and telephoned the city police.

Toronto Livestock Review

TORONTO, July 20 (C.P.). — Heavy daily runs of fresh cattle that came on a market which opened with 600 head of holdovers from the previous week resulted in dull trading on the cattle division of the Toronto livestock market throughout this week and dropped prices 25 to 35 cents on all grades except fed calves. Some 900 head were still unsold when the market closed Thursday.

Though feed and water supplies are reported short in some parts of the province, market officials believe many of the cattle could have been held on the pastures to good advantage. Beef trade is badly glutted and if price declines are to be stopped, runs will have to be much lighter, officials said.

Hogs showed the only gain for the week, advancing 35 cents in the first two days. But with only 100 head on the floor on Thursday, a loss of 15 cents was made and bids on week-end deliveries were still lower. Calves, under a slightly lighter run, dropped 50 cents, while lambs lost 25 on good grades. Sheep held steady.

Common to medium weighty steers sold generally at $3.50 to $4.25, with good and choice weighty steers going at $4.50 to $5.50. The top for the week was made on Monday at $6 for a few primes. Butchers sold from $3.25 to $4.25, with closing tops of $4.75. A few thin boners went down to $1.50. Butcher cows closed weak at $2.50 to $2.75 for choice and at $1.00 for canners.

Good butcher bulls went at $2.75 on most sales, while bolognas brought $2.25 to $2.50. Fed calves, the only grade to show firmness, changed hands at $6 to $6.50 for choice and at $5 for plain. Western butchers sold at $4 for heifers and at $2.75 for cows, with some of each grade unsold at the close. Stocker trade was very slow at $2 to $2.75 for lightweights and up to $3.40 for those averaging 1,000 lbs. Milkers and springers were hard to move at $20 to $35 each.

Calf receipts of 1,900 head were 700 fewer than the previous week. The division opened steady at $5 for tops, but dropped 50 cents on Tuesday and closed the week at $4.50 for choice vealers. Common sold down between $3 and $4, while some grassers made $2.50 to $2.75.

Light receipts on the hog market shoved the price up at the start of the week and the only reactionary move was seen on Thursday when off trucks, the only kind on the floor, went 15 cents lower than the previous day. Closing price on off trucks was at $9.25 or on a basis of $9.00 f.o.b. and $9.50 off car. Week-end delivery bids were at $9 off truck.

Lambs dropped 25 cents to $8 for good ewes and wethers on opening day and sold at that level for the balance of the week. Some lambs off truck, having a greater fill than the car lambs, sold at $7.50 to $7.75. Bucks sold generally at the $2 discount, while culls went to $5 to $5.50. Sheep were steady on a small supply at $1 to $2.50 cwt.

SHERIFF GIVES COURT SURPRISE

Claims Bradley Told Him Joseph Cantin, Demers Centre, Committed Murders.

TRIAL PROCEEDS.

CAMPBELL'S BAY, Que., July 20 (C.P.)—The trial of Michael Bradley, 43-year-old Allumette Island farmer, for the murder of his aged parents, his brother and sister, and his uncle, entered its fourth day with prospects of a session on Saturday. Mr. Justice Philemon Cousineau, the presiding judge, indicated yesterday that a sitting to-morrow might be necessary if the trial is to finish this week.

Late yesterday a sensation was sprung in court when Sheriff Dominic Sloan of Pontiac County testified the slayings were done by Joseph Cantin of Demers Centre. This statement, said the sheriff, had been made voluntarily by Bradley last year about 10 days after the murder when Bradley was in custody.

Other statements allegedly made by Bradley while in custody were not admitted in evidence.

So far 19 witnesses have been heard for the prosecution. Several more remain, following the hearing of whom the defence will call a number of witnesses.

WOMEN'S COURT CHATTER DRAWS IRE OF PRIEST

CAMPBELL'S BAY, July 20. — (C.P.).—The chattering of women and young girls in the court-room during the trial for murder of Michael Bradley, 43-year-old Allumette Island farmer, came in for some scathing comment by Rev. Denis J. Harrington, Roman Catholic curate. The reverend father believes that the distaff side would be better at home than at a murder trial.

Father Harrington, while awaiting his turn to testify, delivered himself of withering criticism of females attracted to the trial by nothing more than morbid curiosity.

"Their presence at the Assizes," said the curate, "tends to lower the dignity of British justice. Why, they don't even listen to the evidence but chatter among themselves and look at each other's hats."

The men were nearly in the same box, said Father Harrington, declared that among the omissions were names of residents who had been registered regularly in previous years.

Probe Charge 500 Names Left Off List

SMITH'S FALLS, Ont., July 20.—(C.P.).—Four town councillors will act as a committee to investigate alleged omission of close to 500 names from the Provincial voters' list. The committeemen are Councillors J. J. Bradley, John Bolton, George K. Swane and M. L. Perry. They were appointed last night.

A desire to evade paying poll tax had resulted in many young people refraining from putting their names on the list, said Mr. Bradley. This was countered by Mr. Perry, who

SAMOS SHOOTING AFFAIR CLOSED

British Accept Turkish Version Officers Mistaken for Smugglers.

SERVICE AT SEA.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 20 (C. P. Cable)—Great Britain and Turkey have reached a friendly settlement with regard to the Samos shooting affair, according to an official communique issued by the foreign minister to-day.

When Surgeon-Lieut. J. W. Robins was shot by Turkish sentries near the island of Samos on Saturday, the British government demanded an exhaustive inquiry be conducted jointly by Turkish and British officials, and sent 12 warships to search for the body of the lost officer in the straits between Samos and the Turkish coast.

Robinson was accompanied on his tragic pleasure-trip by two fellow-officers, both of whom survived though one was wounded. British authorities held sentries opened fire when the men were turning their boat toward Samos, which is Greek territory. The Turkish version was that they had been mistaken for smugglers when they ignored a challenge.

The communique states a funeral service for Robinson will be held over the scene of the incident. A Turkish battleship will take part in the ceremony and as a mark of sympathy a wreath will be thrown into the sea. Thereafter, the incident is to be considered as closed.

Ousted Governor Schemes Showdown

BISMARCK, N.D., July 20 (A.P.).—William Langer, ousted as Governor, but still full of fight, looked for a vulnerable spot to strike back at his political enemies to-day, confident the Legislature will restore him to power.

His chief opponent, Acting Governor Ole H. Olson, held the upper hand, temporarily at least. He occupied the executive offices, with the backing of the State Supreme Court, which ousted Langer after his conviction on a Federal charge of misuse of relief funds, and had full control of the North Dakota National Guard.

Threatening Olson's position, however, was the State Legislature. The Legislature convened under call of Langer Thursday and recessed until this afternoon, and may attempt the impeachment of Olson and Supreme Court judges if a quorum can be mustered of Langer-controlled members.

WINNIPEG, July 20. (CP). — Measures declared to be infringing on rights of citizens as British subjects met with condemnation early to-day as the second national convention of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation came to a close.

Declining to pass over any unfinished business, the 200 delegates from all parts of Canada kept at their task started last night and wound up their work in a final five-hour session.

Retirement of Norman F. Priestley, Calgary, as national secretary, was announced. Holding office since formation of the federation August 1, 1932, Mr. Priestley was forced to seek relief from the post because of other pressing work, chiefly in his office as vice-president of the United Farmers of Alberta. His successor has not yet been named by the national executive, elected yesterday with J. S. Woodsworth, Winnipeg, again national chairman.

Recent legislation passed by the Quebec legisature controlling distribution of circulars was protested by the convention and repeal asked. Quebec spokesmen saw the legislation as a curb on activities of the .C.C.F.

Action of the Regina public school board in passing a by-law aimed at preventing school teachers and other employees from participating in public affairs as candidates or campaigners was termed by the convention an infringement of the rights of citizenship.

'FRISCO STRIKE RANKS RETURN TO THEIR JOBS

Street Railway Continues Tied Up, However, Despite Majority Rule.

JOHNSON KEPT BUSY.

Danger Point of Maritime Conflict Now Shifts to Portland.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—(AP)—The danger point of the Pacific Coast Maritime conflict shifted to Portland, Ore., today as the general strike relaxed its grip on the San Francisco Bay cities.

As the back to work ranks of union labor in the bay area swelled to nearly their full force of 100,000, reports of a threatening situation came from Portland where the labor "strategy" committee voted to call a general walkout if National Guardsmen, mobilized by orders of the governor, are moved onto the waterfront.

Gov. Julius L. Meier of Oregon had ordered the mobilization of 1,100 National Guardsmen to "prevent loss of life and bloodshed" when shippers attempt to open the strike-bound Port of Portland today.

The mass back-to-work movement in the San Francisco Bay area was virtually completed last night when the executive committee of the Alameda County Building Trades and Central Labor Councils declared the strike ended

Railway Fails To Operate

In San Francisco, the major service still crippled was the Market Street Railway Company system whose American Federation of Labor union workers were declared still of strike by S. W. Douglas, secretary.

Douglas declared the union men, who made demands for recognition and arbitration of grievances when they left their cars a day before the mass walkout, will refuse to work until "the company corrects the deplorable conditions under which we work."

Cars were operated on half a dozen of the lines of the system yesterday but were placed in barns last night. Samuel Kahn, president of the Traction concern, which provides approximately three-fourths of the city's street car service, said another attempt to resume full operation will be made today.

The 3,700 teamsters of San Francisco and the East Bay, while returning to their trucks generally still debated the question of whether to move freight to and from the troop-guarded waterfronts. They went on strike four days before the general walkout in protest against the presence of National Guardsmen and the use of non-union truck drivers on ship cargo movements.

Mediation Board Job

General Hugh Johnson, NRA administrator, continued to give his attention here to the maritime dispute, and said he was attempting to win consent of employers and workers for arbitration by President Roosevelt's Mediation Board.

The Joint Maritime Strike Committee here set a meeting for 10 a.m. to consider the mediation proposal.

"We are still on strike and will carry on," Ralph Mallen, publicity chairman of the committee, declared. He expressed the opinion that the general strike had weakened the cause of the maritime unions but added: "We will show we can take it."

Police roundups of alleged radicals, in line with Mayor Angelo J. Rossi's pledge to a Citizens' Committee to drive out all "Communistic agitators," brought five more arrests last night. Among the five were Harry Jackson, said by police to be "one of the three most powerful Communist organizers in the nation," and Elaine Black, woman secretary of the International Labor Defence here, and alleged financial backer of Communist activities. They were charged with vagrancy and held without bail under a technical police booking.

tors of the Canadian National Railways curbing public activities of its employees were condemned in another resolution. Again the action was termed infringement of rights of citizens.

The convention advocated the use of industrial action, such as a general strike and refusal to bear arms, as a means of keeping Canada from war. Relief camps for single unemployed men were declared objectionable on many grounds and their abolition was sought.

Diplomatic recognition of Soviet of Russia was endorsed. The convention went on record against affiliation by the C.C.F. with other political parties and recommended to the national executive consideration of the Douglas credit system and other similar proposals.

Amalgamation of Canadian railways "in the interests of bondholders" was opposed. On old age pensions, the convention asked payment of a pension of $40 a month at the age of 60 years, with residence in all Canada being taken into consideration instead of residence in any one community in the Dominion.

Today the newly elected national executive was in session on routine matters.

Northumberland and Durham Medical Association Holds Annual Dinner.

CAMPBELLFORD, July 20 (Examiner Correspondence)—Dr H. A. Boyce of Kingston was guest speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the Northumberland and Durham Medical Society, which was held at Fred Keller's famous fishing resort, Healy Falls, on Thursday afternoon — when twenty-three members of the profession journeyed from Cobourg, Port Hope, Kingston, Belleville and adjoining towns and partook of a sumptuous chicken dinner. Dr. Boyce's subject "Heart Chicken" was followed by a brief address from Dr. George Stobie of Belleville, district representative of the Ontario Medical Board. After a general discussion, and exchange of views, the medicos turned homeward, feeling that another day had been well spent.

GERMAN MURDER RUMORS DENIED BY NAZI LEADERS

Reports of Massacres Termed Scandal Mongering by Berlin Officials.

TALE BEARER JAILED

(By A. D. Stefferud—A.P. Foreign Staff).

BERLIN, July 20 (A.P.).—Rumors of further wholesale murders spread through Germany to-day, only to be met by cool denials from Nazi leaders.

"Scandal mongering" was the term applied to the rumors, both here and abroad, by those officials who had not left the capital to escape the burning heat.

Among the reports was one of foreign origin that 2,000 persons were killed in and after the revolt of June 30 and that prisoners at the Dachau concentration camp were murdered. No verification could be found.

Although the reports met prompt denials, the belief prevailed in many quarters that the Government had not dealt frankly enough with the public on the revolt and that internal changes of policy are underway.

That the spreading of rumors is a real problem was increasingly indicated by anncuncements in Provincial papers that some man or other has been sent to a concentration camp for disseminating "baseless scandal," and by the threat of Viktor Lutze, head of the storm troops, to have the public prosecutor deal with tale-bearers and denunciators of his men.

The influential Hamburger Fremdenblatt assailed writers of anonymous letters and person "who confuse reason with foolishness and trash with which every administration has to deal."

The number of expensive automobiles to be seen in the streets has decreased decidedly because of the pressure of storm troop leaders and others to abandon "high living."

GREATEST RALLY

Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King and work out means by which the Dominion and Ontario governments could co-operate in solving the economic problems of Canada.

Slash Just Starting

Declaring his government was only on the fringe of its work of cutting the expenses of government, Mr. Hepburn renewed his assurance of a reduction of 50 percent. The people of Ontario would get some relief from their tax burdens and good government would not suffer. The Prime Minister said the depression was manmade and expressed his conviction something could be done to improve economic conditions in Ontario.

Reduction of taxes was one thing as this would remove a handicap from industry and trade. The trade restriction policy of the federal government had contributed to economic difficulties. The big thing was to cut expenses and reduce costs as competition in the modern world was too keen to permit governments to weigh down business with heavy taxes.

From Hon. Arthur Roebuck, Attorney-General, came a declaration the courts of the province would be administered in a different manner than previously. The government would see that the tendency to ignore the unfortunate was changed.

Prompt Action

Further he pointed to the promptness with which the government acted when "certain Tory politicians sought to deny poor men their rights merely because they are poor." He referred to the controversy between the government and Mayor William Stewart of Toronto over the proposed hunger-march.

Another Liberal stalwart called to speak by Mr. Hepburn was E. G. Odette the new liquor commissioner. He said beer and wine would be on sale Tuesday and declared the new liquor law would be administered as a temperance measure.

W. E. N. Sinclair of Oshawa, deposed as leader of the whole party by the selection of Mr. Hepburn and later deposed as house leader was present to join the celebration of the Liberal victory. Many other members of the legislature were present.

PREMIER MacDONALD'S VISIT.

It is predicted that Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain, who with his daughter, Ishbel, arrived in Canada yesterday to spend a much needed vacation of two months in the Maritime Provinces, will be overwhelmed with invitations to attend various public functions and to address different bodies.

The Examiner's opinion is that Canadians would be doing the British Prime Minister a great service if they permitted his sojourn in Canada to be a real rest, free from obligations to prepare speeches or to put in public appearances here, there and everywhere.

Affairs of state have pressed heavily upon Mr. MacDonald's shoulders for years; he has had tremendous problems to face and crushing responsibilities to carry, and he has most certainly earned a real holiday, relieved of any public duties or worries and at liberty to spend his vacation weeks as he most desires.

Canada is delighted to have him as her guest for the next two months, and can best show her hospitality. The Examiner feels, by letting our distinguished visitor alone and giving him the chance to enjoy the leisure that he needs so badly and has so richly earned.

THE HOURS OF SALE.

It is announced that under the new regulations wine and beer may be sold from 10 o'clock in the morning until midnight.

Thus the closing time is to be an hour later than in the old bar days and five hours later on Saturday nights, as the hotel bars used to close at 7 o'clock on Saturdays in the period before the Ontario Temperance Act.

The Government has intimated that these hours may be modified upon representations from municipal authorities, and the closing hour may be changed to 11 o'clock or even 10 o'clock if public opinion in any particular municipality so desires.

Under the circumstances the hours of sale become a matter for the city council to take under consideration; if there is a feeling among the majority of citizens that the midnight closing is too late and that something should be done to ensure an earlier cessation of sale, particularly on Saturday night, that sentiment should be placed before the Government.

There are, of course, various angles to this question.

There is, for instance, the matter of speakeasies where beer, both vendors' and home-brew, is now available; it might well be that if legalized sale were to be shut off too early this action would play right into the hands of the illegal sellers, and that factor would have to receive earnest consideration when hours of sale are under review.

GOOD SHOOTING.

Canada's expert rifle shots are making a splendid showing at Bisley, and their feat in winning the McKinnon Trophy, one of the two most important team competitions, yesterday, should cause general satisfaction throughout the Dominion.

The winning of this historic cup is rightly regarded as a convincing demonstration of accurate shooting, in asmuch as it is not an individual feat, but is shot for by teams of twelve riflemen representing the different countries of the Empire.

The McKinnon Trophy has been shot for for forty-four years, and this, the eighth occasion upon which the Maple Leaf marksmen have brought the honors to Canada, their last win previously being four years ago.

The English team was second yesterday, while last year's winners; the team from Scotland had to be satisfied with third place.

If the Canadian team success in this great competition can be repeated by some individual Canadian in the King's Prize competition, the Dominion team will indeed have covered itself with glory.

A good start has been made, for yesterday Private P. J. Martinsen, of La Tuque, won the bronze medal for leadership in the first stage of the King's Prize, winning a shoot-off from another Canadian and two British riflemen.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING.

This hunger march issue is being given a prominence that is utterly at variance with its importance.

The demonstration, promoted by radical leaders whose chief concern is to create all the trouble possible, has not commended itself to anything but a small proportion of the unemployed in the province; the majority of our citizens who are on relief realize that the "demands" that are to be made cannot possibly be granted, and they are not interested consequently in the affair.

Here briefly is what the "hunger marchers" are going to ask:

Cash relief 50 per cent. above the Campbell report for food, clothing and rent.

Assumption by the Provincial and Federal Governments of full responsibility for all relief expenditures.

Abolition of all "slave" camps.

Trade union conditions and wages on all relief projects.

Payment of five dollars a week for their maintenance to all single unemployed, male or female.

Supply of kitchen utensils, bedding, stoves and other household necessities to all unemployed recipients of relief.

Unemployment insurance without contributions from beneficiaries.

These extreme demands, involving a heavy increase in the already tremendous relief costs, cannot succeed, and The Examiner is satisfied that the promoters of the hunger march have not for a single moment entertained any hope of the concessions being granted.

The whole thing cannot avoid being a "flop," and yet the Hepburn Government and the Toronto municipal authorities are at war over the matter, and in order to give the hunger marchers the right-of-way the Government has gone to the unprecedented length of interfering with Toronto's local autonomy by ousting two of the Police Commission and appointing new members who will see to it that the trekers are given permission to parade.

RAILWAYS AND PENSIONS.

One of the last bills passed by the United States Congress authorized a national system of railway pensions under direct federal supervision. President Roosevelt, however, was not keen about it, and he appears to have gone on his holiday in a warship without signing it. The plan calls for a uniform annual assessment of 4 per cent. on the yearly payroll of the carriers and for a contribution of 2 per cent. to be made by the employees. This would mean, on the basis of present payrolls, an annual payment of about $60,000,000 by the transportation companies and of $30,000,000 by their workmen. Funds thus raised would be paid into the Treasury and administered by it. They would be used to finance an old-age pension plan based on retirement at 65 or upon completion of thirty years' service. A new federal agency, to be known as the Railroad Retirement Board, would supervise the operation of the plan. Retirement benefits would be paid on the basis of salary and of length of service.

The arguments for the bill were that railway employees on the whole are a well-paid class who could without much self-denial submit to the compulsory deductions toward provision for old age. But the President in his various speeches has pointed out that in 1933 the railways did not meet their fixed charges, that their financial condition is still precarious and their credit not restored.

To increase railway costs now would retard railway recovery, because it would add to that branch of transportation service a burden which their competitors, the motor buses and trucks, would not be called upon to bear. There are volunary schemes of pensions which would be disturbed, and moreover, the conditions of railway companies vary considerably.

If compulsory superannuation plans are to be devised for the railways they would be better worked out as part of a system of compulsory insurance for industry as a whole, so as to put them all on more equal footing.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

THE VOICE OF HITLER, BUT THE HAND OF GOERING.

It was the voice of Adolf Hitler the German Reichstag and the world heard last Friday, but the hand was that of Goering, Prime Minister of Prussia. Despite censorship and propaganda, the truth about Germany's "blood-purge" filters out to the world, and the truth is largely what the world suspected. Mainly it is that Hitler has become the docile puppet of the Junkers and reactionaries who financed and used him to overthrow the German Republic. Steel-masters like Thyssen, the leaders of the dye and chemical trust, the heads of the army, the Prussian Junkers like Goering—these had become convinced that Hitler's bombast and buffoonery had gone far enough. They had become fearful lest his millions of dupes be led too far, becoming as great a menace as Communism, so there followed the "plot," with Hitler betraying and assassinating his old comrades in obedience to his masters, this to keep his job.

The over-wrought, half-hysterical little man who screamed out a farrago of incoherencies in the Reichstag on Friday was the farthest thing removed from a Stalin or a Napoleon in the world's history. Actually, he was the obedient executioner offering the defence which his masters had prepared for him, seeking desperately but unsuccessfully to maintain the facade of fantastic folly behind which reactionary powers have operated these past fifteen months. Not a chancellory in the world to-day but does not know that Hitler is but pitiable "window-dressing," that behind him are the old military and industrial gang who scuttled the Republic, made the Treaty of Versailles another "scrap of paper," and sought desperately to have Germany regain her old power.

With the leaders of the pathetic dupes who believed in Hitler out of the way, with the crazy nightmare of a "Nordic Germany" nearing its close, there is to follow a new reign of terror. "Everybody must know for all future times that if he raises his hand to strike at the state, certain death will be his fate." Thus the voice of Hitler, and the hand of Goering.

Yet there is no promise that another blood bath, nor the threat of it, will save Nazi Germany. The Government of which Hitler is the figurehead needs money desperately. It will not get it through a reign of terror, with tyranny upholding the pagan, pseudo-Socialism of Nazi-ism. It may well be, therefore, that, in due time, we shall see Hitler transformed by his masters into a respectable despot, or, failing that, see him elbowed into obscurity. Leaders like Goering and Goebbels, driving toward an end, do not scruple over methods.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Now, let's see. Who has been fired to-day?

At least the new Government is supplying the newspapers with an abundance of front page stories.

Mr. Henry says he knows more about the Companies' Law now than he did a short time ago. And about many other things, it is to be imagined.

With federal by-elections to be held in September, the politicians are taking very little time out. If everybody in Canada was as busy, happy days would really be here again.

For the next few weeks, at least, King Beer will occupy a central position on the stage of events. It is to be hoped that the drunken driver does not eventually push him out of the spotlight.

With Ontario House in London to be closed, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson will have to work overtime to convince Britishers that Canada is not shutting up shop completely in the British Isles.

Tory newspapers are now getting after Mr. Hepburn because they say he is talking too much. Well, didn't he talk his way into the premier's shoes?—Sarnia Canadian-Observer.

Mr. Hepburn had a visit with Premier Henry and the conversation was very friendly. They seemed good friends and quite close, there being only an ex between them.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

Rob some men of their conceit and there would be nothing left.—Ottawa Journal.

First thing everybody knows, with these favorable weather conditions Western Canada will have a great wheat crop.—Winnipeg Tribune.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

SACKVILLE, N. B.

This town is another instance of a Maritime urban site that took its name from old country associations, coupled with repercussions from the American revolutionary war.

At the time the Acadians were expelled from this district in 1755 Lord Sackville was colonial secretary, following a distinguished war record. Sackville held office at the time of the American revolutionary war and had much to do with settling the area with patriotic Britons who refused to forswear allegiance to the land of their birth.

It seemed only natural, therefore, that the name of the man who had so much to do with the repatriation of the loyal subjects of the King, should have been perpetuated in this manner. Just why the name "Sackville" was adopted, instead of the old French name, "Tantramar," cannot be stated with authority by local historians.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

YOU . . . YOU . . . YOU

Some minor disappointment—like having it rain when you planned a picnic—is a great annoyance to you and you complain fitfully; but you face a major disappointment, manfully drawing upon some hidden reservoir of strength that is within us all, though we tap it rarely.

You wonder what you would do if you were ever greatly tempted to steal a great sum of money, without possibility of being detected . . . or if you found a big package of bills on the street. . . . You hope you'd do the right thing, but you wonder how much you'd be tempted.

You wish, sometimes, that you didn't have to work, but you find it difficult to plan a life without work in it.

You put up your hand for a street car, but it goes right by without stopping. . . . You are furious. You plan revenge. You swear you'll report that motorman. You'll punish him as he deserves. . . . But you don't do it. Somehow you don't want it on your conscience that you caused him to lose his job. . . . Or perhaps your hot impulses are no more enduring than some of your gentler ones.

You may boast that you have a sense of humor or that you are a good judge of human nature, but never that you have a kind heart.

You don't know where the money goes.

You tell your farmer friend that you envy him his life in the country. He tells you about pests, frost, drouths, mortgages, low prices, taxes. You ask him if he'd rather live in the city, and he says "NO!"

You abuse city life to him and he asks if you would really like to live on a farm every day in the year, and this time YOU say "No!"

When you have a pain in your right side you wonder if it's appendicitis.

You aren't as certain of most things as you pretend to be. . . . But also you believe in more things than you will confess.

A Thought

"Let us reassure ourselves with the law of Love. God never punishes man for doing right, for honest labor, or for deeds of kindness, though they expose him to fatigue, cold, heat, contagion."—Mary Baker Eddy.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

By H. W. L. MAHOOD

THE UNITED STATES

DISQUIET prevailed in the ranks of the government, and of the employees during the closing hours of the 73 Congress. Veteran legislative employees were full of protest. A bill had been proposed that a legislative employee might receive a pension by contributing three percent of the salary received each year of service. Congress had some years before adopted a similar plan for railroad employees. The plan had been approved by railroad men enthusiastically. The pension while not large, gives the pensioned railroad man a comfortable living for his retirement days. The morale of the railroad has been heightened by this action of the government. When working men are treated right and receive living wages and are assured of a pension, strikes are an exception.

The Veteran Legislative Employee bill was passed by the Civil Service Committees of both Houses. It was adopted by the Senate. In the lower House the sentiment was strongly for its passage. There bobbed up one rock of opposition. The rock was in the Speaker's chair. Speaker Rainey refused to recognize the sponsor of the bill. The reason stood out plainly. Speaker's wife is on the pay roll as her husband's secretary. She is a legislative employee. If the Speaker supported the bill which would make her a claimant on the pension fund, if the bill were finally passed, a certain reaction would follow. Rainey was thinking of the coming elections in November of this year. Many of the Senators are due to go to the people for reelection on that date. The election of a senator from Illinois is an important political event for both parties. By his action Rainey shewed that he thought more of his reelection than of the veteran employee bill. Wonder why?

IN THE 73 Congress there was one dominant personality. He kept free from the entangling controversies. Different he is in his leadership from Hitler of Germany. For Hitler the Nazis go through rivers of blood. Many a day will pass before the rival parties in Germany become united. Hitler has wounded Germany to the death instead of crushing the Storm Troops. If he escapes assassination for six months it will be because he has sought safety as did Machado, in flight. The hope of this writer is that Germany will come to her senses and dispose of him in some other way. Hitler has forfeited his right to rule. Like his pagan religion he belongs to the cruel bloodthirsty paganism of the past.

Political controversies in the United States are as far away from present political conditions in Germany as Christianity is from paganism. Britain at this hour stands out in such sharp contrast from Germany. Heated political contention in the Empire is as far away from blood letting as are the Middle Ages. But we must not overlook the fact that there is lurking in the human heart of all races much of the pagan. A heightened temperature will wake up the sleeping serpent. There have been experiences when we all have been surprised to find the pagan within. Germany is passing through purging waters. The masses of the Germans are in grief that their leaders are so blind. From these masses of farmers and industrial employees came the soldiers who fell on bloody battlefields during the Great War. They now realize that they were misled by the Hohenzollerins. Nor are they blind to the present situation. German masses weep. Grief has taken hold of the Catholic and Protestant churches. The church survives. When Hitlerism has gone the church will still be.

AS completely as Hitler dominates the German Reich, Roosevelt dominated Congress in its closing hours. There was considerable rancor. Deeper than sentiment of a political nature was the genuine American type of democracy. The Reich is a rubber stamp government. Congress was as truly a rubber stamp Congress. But the rubber stamps were as different as are Hitler and Roosevelt. They were as different as are Germany and the United States.

Many bills were passed fundamentally changing the the American national life. The bills to which reference is here made were passed without debate. Every Congressman and Senator was eager to get away. The Democrats had the votes. For campaign purposes the Republicans were making copious notes. Protests because of the procedure were raised. Rainey steadfastly refused to let even one Republican make a speech.

Never before has a Congress so completely abdicated its functions. Methods of procedure long established were never so ignored. Matters of supreme national importance, without debate, were placed in the hands of the President. The N.R.A. in the hands of the President has not been fully tested. It may prove more successful than is at present anticipated. Congress has committed to the President without any code organization, matters just as important, to be disposed at his discretion. The American people are seriously questioning this Congressional action.

Democracy to function must have two political parties. Legislative bodies are for the purpose of debate before legislate. When this right is denied in any nation discontent and revolution are in the making. Silence the voice of any member of a legislative body, deny him liberty of speech and Democracy has become autocracy.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

A BIG BANK'S EARLY TROUBLES.

On this date, in 1818, the Bank of Montreal, which had commenced business on November 7th previously, opened an "office of Discount and Deposit" at Quebec, the first of its branches. Almost from the start a variety of difficulties were met. Almost at the outset the Quebec Branch had to meet the competition of the Quebec Bank and in 1849 its existence was imperilled by injurious rumors regarding the stability of the parent bank. The directors at Montreal had agreed to accept on deposit for one year at 6 per cent. interest the paid up capital of a Montreal fire insurance company. The transaction, becoming known to cautious merchants of Quebec, gave rise to gossip of a detrimental character which brought letters of anxious enquiry to the head office from the cashier of the Quebec Branch. He was informed that "the office at Quebec can reckon upon a fixed capital of 50,000 pounds and as many notes as they can keep in circulation and that the Bank having taken the money belonging to the Montreal Fire Insurance Company at interest was not from a want of it, but to encourage an infant institution in which many of our bank shareholders are interested."

Shortly afterwards the position at Quebec became still more unsatisfactory and it was decided to close the branch at the end of the year. But things improved; strong representations from Quebec merchants were received; protests against the closing were frequent; and it was decided to retain the branch. Later, during the political crises, 1834-38, the Bank of Montreal was the target of racial attacks, but their effect was not important.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping point — Wheat, 88c to 90c; oats, 35c to 38c; barley, 46c to 46c; corn, 74c to 77c; rye, 49c to 50c; buckwheat, 58c to 60c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Butter declined fractionally in price on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday. Trading was light.

The butter market was down ¼ of a cent, fresh No. 1 being 18¾c a pound in carlots or less. Small lots to retailers brought 20 cents a pound for solids and 21 cents for prints. Receipts totalled 926 boxes.

Cheese was unchanged in price. Ontario colored being quoted at 10c to 10¼c a pound, while Quebec cheese brought 9½c to 9¾c a pound. Arrivals were 5,262 boxes.

Egg prices held steady at yesterday's levels. Graded shipments in carlots or less were 20c to 21c a dozen for A-large, 19½c to 20c for A-medium, 19c for B and 18½c to 19c for C. Receipts were 425 cases.

No changes were recorded in potatoes, old N.B. Mountains being 40c to 60c per 80-pound bag, while new Quebec potatoes sold for 70c to 75c per 80-pound bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Prompted by startling reports of widespread drought damage, all wheat futures soared above the dollar-a-bushel mark yesterday. Simultaneously, corn and rye both overtopped the season's high-price record.

Maximum new upturns of about 2c were attained by wheat and other grains, but active selling to realize profits led to material reactions from the day's high points. The apex for wheat to-day was shown to be up nearly 16c in the last ten days.

A feature was trade forecasts current that, notwithstanding shortage of domestic wheat production, Southwest feeding of wheat to live stock this season would be the largest known in thirty years.

Wheat closed firm, ⅞c to 1¼c above Wednesday's finish; corn, ¼c to 1⅛c up; oats, unchanged to ¼c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 5c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, July 20. — The highest prices of the year were marked up as wheat futures continued the upward trend on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesteday. At the close of an erratic session values were 1⅛c to 1½c higher, July at 86⅝c, October 87⅝c, and December 88⅞c to 90c.

July closed at the day's high point, a new record price in the life of the current option, as a late ally lifted values and regained most of the ground lost earlier. Futures had fluctuated erratically, an opening advance of nearly 2c being reduced to ½c shortly before the close.

Heavy selling entered the pit on the bulges, credited chiefly to the Government agency and to profit-takers, overcoming the effect of continued unfavorable weather in Western Canada and advances at Liverpool. Gains of 1¼d to 1⅞d per bushel registered in the English market.

Higher prices on Argentine wheat offerings were being asked by exporters there. It was reported an increase of 1,000,000 bushels is expected to be shown in the week's exports from that country for the week, which would bring the total clearances to approximately 3,000,000 bushels.

Sale of some Durum wheat for overseas shipment featured cash grains, but trading in other grades was uninteresting. Coarse grains futures all moved higher in sympathy with wheat.

DOME SUFFERS $2.50 SETBACK

Cheaper Golds Irregular in Heavy Trading in To-day's Session.

SILVERS STEADY.

TORONTO, July 20 (CP).—New York sold some of the big gold stocks this afternoon, to add to the unsettlement of the Toronto Mining Market, already weakened by profit-taking on the recent rise. Dome dropped to $40 for a loss of $2.50 and McIntyre at $47 was off $1.80. The smaller golds had their ups and downs in heavy turnover and the close found losses and gains practically balancing. Silver shares held steady and base metals were slightly soft.

There was no explanation of the weakness shown by the interlisted gold group other than a rumor that the Washington administration might not tamper further with the price of gold.

God's Lake partly recovered from its header of yesterday afternoon, getting up from 3.40 to 3.85 in the early trading and closing at 3.75 for a net gain of 35 cents.

Warning the group not to pursue Blanton and his deliverer ran to the eastern end of the island and climbed into a rowboat.

As the amazed soldiers hastened to spread the alarm, the rowboat crossed the channel to the Brooklyn side of the bay.

The military hastily organized a search for the two men.

Everything is in readiness for the flight except weather and latest reports were that it would clear up within the next day or so to permit the flight. The fliers have taken two weeks in preparing for the flight. The plane (shown at top) is of sturdy construction. It is also shown below, being loaded with 600 gallons of gasoline to be carried on the trip. It is expected the flight will keep them in the air for 66 hours.

SMELTERS DOWN 5.

TORONTO, July 20 (CP).—The Industrial Market kicked around within a narrow range and closed with losses predominating. Volume was decidedly low. Selling of the metals by New York gave International Nickel a setback to 25, down 3-8. Ford A. hit 19, down 1-2, C. A., 1-8 and Brazilian 1-4. Walkout Averted

Wholesale resignations from the cabinet were thought to have been averted by the premier's attitude, which strengthened the hand of seven Radical Socialist ministers.

These seven were said to be supported in opposition to Tardieu, Marshal Henri Petain Minister of War; Louis Germain-Martin, Minister of Finance, and other high officials.

The end of the Doumergue cabinet when parliament reassembles was freely predicted, now that the outward appearance of peace has been destroyed and political linen is being washed in public.

Lous Barthou, Foreign Minister, long has been mentioned as a likely successor to the elderly Doumergue, who was called in last February to lead the country from a grave crisis.

Premier Doumergue refused to return to today's cabinet meeting because he hoped the ministers might thresh out their differences satisfactorily, but he can return in a short time if his presence is needed.

FRAIL WITNESS TELLS OF VISIT

and asked for a chair, which was furnished him. Continuing, he said Mike asked him to have breakfast to which witness replied that he couldn't eat after hearing the shooting. Witness continued by saying that Bradley insisted that he have something to eat, and after they both had a light meal Bradley went to the barn, where he stayed about 10 minutes. On the way back to the house Bradley drew some water from the well.

Witness concluded by saying that Bradley was wearing a blue shirt and blue trousers, and said he was going to Pembroke.

The Maid's Story

Muriel Marchildon, 15 years of age, former maid, at the home of the accused, was then called. She said she lived at Michael's for three weeks prior to the shooting. She said Michael slept upstairs sometimes and downstairs at other times. For a week before the murder he was sleeping downstairs.

Witness said she first saw the accused about seven o'clock on the morning of the murder walking towards the stable. "There's some one coming; if they ask if I'm in say no," witness said Bradley had told her when Vaillancourt was seen coming across the field. At this time, she continued, Bradley was wearing a brown shirt, overalls and gum rubbers. When a pair of overalls were produced in court witness said they looked like Michael Bradley's and said the same thing about the gum rubbers.

Adam Allard, was called to the witness box. He said he lived about 600 feet from the home of Joe Bradley and told of hearing shots and seeing a man going towards the barn with something over his head, on morning of July 21. At this point witness was shown a coat, but said he could not say whether it was the article he had seen over the head of the man.

Province Swelters

(By the Canadian Press)

A perspiring province to-day sought relief from excessive heat and humidity which sent Ontario's citizens scurrying to lakes and rivers. Only the weatherman's promise of rain before nightfall made conditions endurable. At Toronto, the official temperature was at 79 and going higher, while the humidity was 71 early this morning.

"Humidity terrific" and temperature at 88 was the report from Stratford. Woodstock expected the summer's record broken before dusk, for early this morning thermometers read 77.9, fractionally higher than at the same time yesterday. The temperature before the day ended yesterday was 95.5, a new mark for this summer.

Brantford held the unofficial championship for there a mark of 102 was recorded in the sun at eight o'clock, with 91 in the shade an hour and a half later. Humidity was high.

Kitchener reported the temperature was at 90 at noon following the hottest night of the season. The lowest point reached during the night was 69.

Two Die in Storm.

TORONTO, July 20:—(C.P.)—Two men are dead to-day, several others suffered injury, and thousands of dollars' worth of property was destroyed in the Toronto suburban area yesterday as a result of one of the worst electrical storms of the year. Electrical power was interrupted in several districts before dinner time, and many communities spent the evening in darkness.

William Brown, Hydro lineman, died on his way to hospital near Jackson's Point from severe burns suffered when he was repairing lines, while George Giles ,21, Toronto, was drowned when his punt upset on Lake Simcoe during the storm.

Thousands of dollars of damage was done to fields of ripening grain which were flattened to the ground by the heavy wind and rain.

Storm Sweeps Oshawa.

OSHAWA, Ont., July 20.—(C.P.) —A severe electric storm late yesterday afternoon and last night did considerable damage to the Hydro Electric system of the city, and one section was without light and power until three o'clock this morning. This was due to a transformer being struck by lightning, cutting off the power form the northwest end of Oshawa. Falling trees caused serious breaks in the northeast and south-east sections of the city, while falling telephone wires caused short-circuits which completely shut off the power from the commercial section down town. Garden and field crops were flattened by a hurricane of wind which accompanied the deluge of rain, and the loss to farmers and gardeners is likely to be heavy.

How Noted Scientist Would Outlaw War

A ray wall projected in curtains miles high around a country's borders to destroy invading hostile aeroplanes, has been announced by Nikola Tesla, above, famous inventor as his 78th birthday gift to the world for "outlawing war". Rivalling the fictional fantasies of Jules Verne, H. G. Wells, and other "utopians", the electrical wizard's plan, which he proposes to offer to the Geneva peace conference, would disable any attacking sky foe by means of fast moving ray particle despatched from land fortresses surrounding great cities or from small ray machines on warships.

Discussion of possible means of stabilizing currencies of the principal countries now off the gold standard is bringing George C. Harrison (LEFT) governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, and Montague Norman, governor of the Bank of England, together in Europe.

Best Smile In 40,000

GEORGIA BERRY

Of 40,000 competing in a Chicago World's Fair "perfect smile" contest, Miss Georgia Berry, of Richmond, Va., is declared winner. Miss Berry, one of a socially prominent Richmond family, will compete with two other girls in finals to be held at Chicago.

HUDSON AGAIN SMASHES MT. WASHINGTON RECORD

As motor enthusiasts lined the precipitous slopes of the famed 8-mile course, Al Miller, United States speed-driver, smashed all records for the spectacular and perilous Mount Washington climb when his standard stock Hudson Eight roared across the finish in 13 minutes and 20 3-5 seconds, clipping the record set by a Hudson-built car last year by 13 seconds. Highest peak in the Presidential Range in the New England States, Mount Washington rises to an altitude of 6,293 feet. The twisting course has 99 curves, some of these dangerously rimming the mountain side. Miller's car carried full equipment even to spare tire. The run was supervised by the A.A.A

Twins For Crosbys

MRS. BING (DIXIE LEE) CROSBY

The first Hollywood star ever to become the mother of twins is Mrs. Bing Crosby, above to whom the stork brought two boys on Friday the thirteenth. Mrs. Crosby is the former Dixie Lee, pretty actress. The Crosbys are also parents of a boy 13 months old.

Bathing Suits For Quintuplets

Five tiny bathing suits, infant size 50, hanging on a line. That was what Miss Genevieve Staley of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce domestic trade department has all ready to mail to the Dionne quintuplets at Corbeil, Ontario. The suits came to Miss Staley from H. S. Zaikaner, executive of a knitting mill, who stated in a letter that he wanted the suits sent on to the famous Canadian girl babies to wear when they took their first swim. Miss Staley is pictured above with the suits.

Dollfuss Curbs Cabinet Powers

Concentration of even greater dictatorial powers in the hands of Chancellor Englebert Dolfuss of Austria follows the "resignation" of his cabinet and formation of a new government in which Prince Ernst Starhemberg and Emil Fey remain, but with influence greatly curbed. Dollfuss, shown above at a military review with von Starhemberg and Fey, takes over four posts in the new cabinet and reduces the high status of the Heimwehr, or Fascist home guard, led by von Starhemberg and Fey. The reorganization was the first move in a campaign against Nazi bomb terrorism.

New Summer Print

A new summer print of gay design is worn by that blonde damsel of the screen, Alice White.

Two shoulders bows are this frock's chief decorative features. Alice wears a pair of the new crocheted gloves in cotton boucle, which are so extremely well liked for this season's warm weather.

Although England celebrated national baby week recently, for the benefit of the children, this little lady saw no harm in including a few canine friends in the picture. The fact that overcrowding, anywhere in the summer is one of the first things kiddies shou'd avoid, did not perturb her. The pups are pedigreed Springer-spaniels, aged six weeks.

Toronto, known as "The Belfast of Canada" did herself proud on the Glorious Twelfth with a monster parade of 20,000 Orangemen with visiting lodges from many parts of Ontario and the United States. The above photo shows only a small section of the parade and the huge crowd of 250,000 people that viewed it all along the route. More than 350 lodges took part in the monster celebration of the Battle of the Boyne.

Saar To Refuse Plebiscite

The Saar valley with its rich coal deposits that the Versailles treaty turned over to France for a period of 15 years as indemnity for mines destroyed by invading German armies may not vote in the League of Nations' plebiscite to rejoin the Reich after all. Its 800,000 inhabitants, mostly Catholics and Socialists, are fearful of their fate in a "Hitlerized" Germany, though until the advent of Nazi power, they had been eagerly waiting reunion. Here are shown, top left, German Vice-Chancellor Von Papen, commissioner for the Saar ;top right, French Foreign Minister Louis Barthou, who seeks to win the province; below, map of Saar territory

ATTACKING MAD DOG IS KILLED WITH INVOCATION TO THE DEVIL

French Sorcerer Has All Sorts of Magic Words for Casting Spells.

MUCH SUPERSTITION

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN, Central Press Canadian Writer.

LE BOURBONNAIS, July 20. — There's curious things going on in these parts of France, if you want to believe the peasants, and they're in dead earnest about it. The devil still roams the countryside of nights. There are many who swear they've seen the werewolf. The evil eye is frequent. Spells are cast which produce calamities with the crops, abortion in young women, rust in the grain, blisters on a cow's tongue, fire in the thatch of a granary, violent pains and sudden inexplicable death at high-noon.

Tell me this, could you stop a mad dog, who's foaming at the mouth and snapping in all directions, make him lie down and turn over on his back, dead as a doornail, without touching him or firing a shot? Le pere Blanchard, an old peasant hereabouts, can do it. And I am no end thankful to him, for it so happened that the dog was coming for me.

How did he manage that trick, which smacks of occultism and magic? Ah, but that took an awful long time to find out. French peasants are anything but talkative to a stranger. In the end, it is true, Blanchard did give me the formula. It proved to be an invocation to God and the devil both. The formula is as old as France itself. It is almost unintelligible nowadays, for it is in the language of the Celtic Druids, the white-robed priests who dwelled in the forests of Gaul before the days of Julius Caesar. At that, it may be older yet, and for all I know go back to the early days of the world when the sons of God mated with the daughters of men. For even the earliest known tribes of Asia and Europe had that belief in what Lucan called "the happy error of the immortality of the soul."

Very Superstitious.

Christianity has changed the people here but little. They drive automobiles, have Diesel-engines in their tractors, radios in their homes, but they have by no means abandoned belief in mountain tops where things visible and invisible meet. Maidens still dance in the nude around the sacred pagan oaks in the dead of night. Wells are still sacred and black roosters are still sacrificed by moonlight in the clearings. Two thousand years of Christianity have not eradicated pagan beliefs in elfs, nymphs, visions and fairies. In the spring, with the awakening of the first flowers women still sing a curious chant, like the Babylonians of yore, about a boy-god who was dead and who is coming back to life: "O Tammoes, a matchless strong one, who descended to the strange land!"

The priests of the new religion (you still hear Christianity referred to as the new religion in spite of churches dating from the fourth and fifth century) have long ago given up fighting the heathen practises of burning laurel leaves to the Great Mother, the Magna Mater of the Romans, who is the source in which the roots of life are deeply embedded.

"If I could always lift my soul to the devil I would never die!" said "Papa" Blanchard to me when we sat in his cabin on the rim of the forest. "Is that why you hang the crucifix upside down?" I asked, pointing to the cross on the white-washed wall.

"Do you know? Are you one of us?" he asked in a whisper.

Mystic Words.

"Sure," I said, and I added as mysteriously as I could: "Sadrach, Mesach et Abednego, daha mi un alter ego!"

"I don't know that one." He shook his head, but I could see that he was impressed just the same. "What is it for " he asked. "Change of luck," I said blandly.

"Ours is different," he came back, and he began: "Tara, Gara, Fara, Mara" . . . .

"What's that for?" I asked in turn.

"That's what I say when there's a spell on the crops. But it isn't enough. You have to call a priest."

"What do you mean, the priests around here also believe in sorcery?"

"No, but a priest can't refuse to come and bless the fields, can he?"

"Hardly," said I. "When did you have the last spell here?"

"Only last week," he informed me. "A wind came up and began to lift the sheaves that you see there drying in the sun. It went on for a good hour and then the peasants came running over to me much perturbed. 'Pere Blanchard,' they said, 'come and break the spell. The business is going to ruin!' I went over and made the wind lie down, just as you saw me make that mad dog turn over."

"That was fine work," I said. "Could you make it work on humans? It'd be quite useful in wartime, for instance!"

"I sure worked it on the Boches," he said. "No bullet came near me. I went through the war without a scratch."

Never Touched in War.

"Were you at the front " I asked.

"Monsieur," he came back with indignation, "I was sergeant in company 2, fifth battalion, 139th infantry regiment of the line. We were in the thick of it in Champagne, the Chemin des Dames, the Somme, everywhere. But never a scratch I got."

"Have you been for a long time one of 'these'?" I asked.

"These," "those," "the others" are some of the terms the peasants use to designate sorcerers and men and women supposedly in touch with the supernatural.

"I had the secrets from my father," he replied. "On the night of his death he told me the invocation and I went to the cross-roads near the big oak, drew the magic circle on the ground, sacrificed an animal, that's all."

"What happened?"

"The devil appeared himself."

"Weren't you surprised?"

"No, because my father told me he would come."

"What did he look like?"

"Have you never seen him?" Papa Blanchard asked, lifting his bushy eyebrows in surprise.

"I never had the honor," I said.

"Eh bien, he looked like a man."

"Did he speak to you?"

"Of course, he did. He always does."

"What language?"

"Parbleau, the language de chez nous. Our language, of course. What do you think he'd talk, German?"

"Why not German?"

"They are not worth bothering about, he knows that."

"What does he speak about?"

"Ah," drawled out Papa Blanchard, "that I must not repeat!"

Sit Up All Night.

I felt like laughing, but that would have been the worst thing to do. To gather folk-lore one needs patience, lots of time, but above all reverence. You can't make fun of the queerest customs. They are queer simply because they are unfamiliar to us. We have some customs ourselves about which the loss said the better.

So we talked till evening, Papa Blanchard and I, until after supper: Herb soup, cheese and bread with a red wine, as you never get in your ritziest hotels. After Madame Blanchard had retired to the kitchen to wash the dishes I learned among other things that whereas seven is the number sacred to God, thirteen is sacred to the devil. I heard of were wolves, undead mortals who roam around on stormy nights and cypress trees because they cannot find rest in the grave, of the night of April 30 when every farmer in the Bourbonnais region keeps all the lights burning in the house and beats with a bar of iron on a cartwheel all night long. Why? "That's the night when the powers of good and evil confront themselves in the air about us?" Papa Blanchard explained. "C'est la nuit terrible!" (the terrible night) he said. But more he didn't know, or wouldn't tell. I can't tell which.

ALL-BRAN RELIEVED HIS CONSTIPATION

Delicious Cereal Brought New Health to Mr. Bartholomew

We quote from his voluntary letter: "I had considerable trouble with my stomach. Digestion was out of the question. I got medicine which gave me only temporary relief.

"Then I thought of taking ALL-BRAN. I started eating a cereal dishful two or three times a day.

"It has been over a year now since I ate that first dish of bran, but from that day to this I have had the pleasure of enjoying the proper functioning of the digestive organs.

"Thanks to ALL-BRAN. I still eat it regularly and like it better all the time."— Lester Bartholomew (address furnished upon request).

Constipation is usually due to lack of "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to promote elimination. ALL-BRAN supplies both, as well as iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Certainly this food is more natural than taking harmful patent medicines. Two tablespoonfuls daily will usually overcome most types of constipation. With each meal in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

CHURCH SCHOOL IS BIG SUCCESS

Closing Exercises Were Held in George Street School Room.

CERTIFICATES PRESENTED.

Two hundred children and as many parents and friends gathered in the Sunday school hall of George Street United Church for the closing exercises of the Peterborough Church Vacation School last night. The venture, the first of its kind to be undertaken in this city, was declared an unqualified success by Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, principal of the school.

Welcoming the adults to the exercises, Rev. Sutcliffe in the chair outlined the purpose behind the daily classes conducted during the past two weeks. As a venture to provide for the constructive and beneficial use of the idle vacation time of Peterborough's children it fulfilled in excellent measure the ambitions of its sponsors, the Peterborough Council for Christian Education, he said. The response on the part of the children themselves was wide enough to justify well the continuation of the school next summer, he declared.

As the program proceeded the presentation af a sum of money collected through offerings taken each morning of the classes and a considerable bundle of clothing gathered by the children was made to the local representative of the Labrador Grenfell Mission. The intended presentation of a number of toys and other articles made in the classes to children's hospitals was announced.

Class Routine

An interesting feature of the program was a demonstration by the children of the different groups of the daily routine which has been followed during the ten days of the course. Then one hundred and five certificates were awarded by Mrs. Carver, chairman of the Children's Work Board, and L. J. Pettit, president of the Peterborough Council for Christian Education, to those children who had attended at least eight out of the ten classes and had acceptable records for punctuality and satisfactory work.

Mr. Pettit called attention to the fact that the financial support of the Children's Work Board made the projects possible. He urged support of the Board by the citizens of this city, pointing out that a repetition of the school next summer will depend on the financial position of the Board.

A total of more than 250 were enrolled for the school and the daily attendance averaged over 200. Twenty-two volunteer workers from three churches behind the school, Murray Street Baptist, George Street United and St. Paul's Presbyterian, supervised the classes in the three groups, kindergarten, primary and junior. Leaders were Margaret Harris and Miss Connelly, kindergarten supervisors; Miss Graham Farnell, primary supervisor; Alex Runett, supervisor of boys' work; Marion Armstrong, leader of the junior girls; and Ethel Smedmore, secretary of the school. In addition to exercising principalship over the school, Rev. Sutcliffe directed the junior department.

A tribute to Netannis Semons of Toronto, secretary of the National Council of Church Schools, was paid during the evening. As "instructor of the instructors," she played a vital part in the success of the school.

HERRIOT LENDS SUPPORT TO SAVE FRENCH CABINET

PARIS, July 20.—(A.P.)— Burly Edouard Herriot, sped post haste back to Paris to-day from Geneva in an effort to close a split in the Doumergue cabinet and avert a threatened crisis.

Heedless of a leg ailment, Herriot, former premier and minister without portfolio in the present government, is placing his country before his radical Socialist party to stand by Premier Gaston Doumergue.

Radical Socialists are demanding that either former Premier Andre Tardieu be removed from the cabinet or that Herriot and other party members withdraw.

Tardieu's charges that the Radical Socialists knew about the activities of the late Serge Stavisky and his swindles before they were exposed angered leaders of the party, who said it broke the truce under which the Doumergue government was formed.

Annual Checker Picnic Draws Provincial Experts

LINDSAY, July 20—The third annual checker picnic held at Hotel Swastika, Thurstonia Park, drew an entry of over thirty expert checker players from all parts of the Province. The opening games were in the form of exhibition games, on the giant twelve-foot checker board, in front of the hotel. The winner of Section A was C. F. Cudden of Toronto, and Dr. M. B. Annis, Lindsay, secretary of the organization, came second. In Class B Mr. Milligan of Orillia carried off the honors, with James Rennie of Cannington coming second. There were two lady checker enthusiasts, and as a result a class was opened for them, Mrs. Cudden of Toronto winning over Mrs. Ficher of Whitby.

MONTHLY REPORT

Inspector Dr. Thomas Johnson, V.S., had received complaints that horses working on highway construction work were abused, and he visited all work between Peterborough and Marmora and between Havelock and Campbellford. Also the Lakefield road construction work and found no need for any complaints horses were in splendid condition and well looked after and in some cases water cans were kept in convenient places and horses given water at intervals during the day. The foremen were men who understood how horses should be treated and discharged one man for using the whip severely, and sent another man home until he would supply his horses with better hay. The Inspector was received very cordially and work ceased while the horses were examined.

A complaint came to the police station that an east city resident's horses were in a starving condition. The Inspector, accompanied by one of the local police, visited the stable and found a team of horses housed in very unsanitary conditions and no feed of any kind to carry over the week-end. Feed was immediately ordered and had to be got from a neighbor's stable as it was late at night. Orders were given that the stable conditions be immediately improved. This was done.

Inspector Johnston is constantly at work in the city and surrounding country and is receiving complimentary letters from J. McNabb Wilson, general manager of the Ontario society, for the manner in which he is discharging his duties.

EPIDEMIC OF CHICKEN THIEVING SWEEPS ROOSTS IN TWEED AREA

Two Farmers Report Losses —Tracks of Three Men Seen in One Yard.

LIQUOR CHARGES LAID.

TWEED, July 20 (Examiner Correspondence). — An epidemic of chicken thievery in this district, which has resulted in losses to farmers and other residents, is causing no little concern. On Tuesday evening Robert Wright, who lives just south of the village, had a number of chickens taken, while Allen Houser, living on No. 1 Route, reports that his roost was also roobed the same night.

Fifteen hens were missing at Mr. Houser's and he feels the loss rather keenly. He states that three men made up the party as the tracks in the yard indicated that two had entered the hen coop while another apparently remained on guard.

Mr. Houser states that last year he met with a serious loss when the wool was stolen from 22 sheep. The dog made quite a fuss at the time, but Mr. Houser, presuming it was his hired man returning from a fishing trip, did not get up from his bed.

Patrick Nolan, of Belleville, was arrested at the Memorial Park on Wednesday evening, and has been charged with consuming liquor illegally. Roy Bennett, a visitor from Point Anne, is also facing a charge of reckless driving.

Mike Yerspenka was arrested by Constable Hayes and has been charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. Robert Millish of Point Anne and Leonard Provost, residing near Tweed, have been charged with consuming liquor in a public place. It is alleged that the trio crowded Walter Leal off the road near Tim Trudeau's residence north of the village. Fortunately Mr. Leal's car was not damaged. The trio were taken into custody in the village a few minutes after the accident occured.

Norman Champagne, who reported his car stolen in Belleville on Saturday, received word on Wednesday that it had been recovered undamaged on a side road at Scarboro. Accompanied by Constable Hayes, Mr. Champagne went to Toronto on Thursday morning and brought the car back.

Tanahill Meeks, of Cloyne, who is employed on the Northern Highway Development, fractured his foot while at work early this week After the fracture was reduced by a local physician he returned to his home.

Bert Cornell suffered two broken ribs while working on the highway just north of the village.

Treat SUNBURN as a BURN!

Sunburn is FIREburn

. . . just as painful . . . sometimes just as serious as other burns. It's only common sense to use a real burn remedy instead of a cosmetic cream or lotion.

Use Unguentine, the standard burn remedy used by doctors, hospitals and first-aid stations for nearly fifty years. Especially medicated for burns—it goes as deep as the burn . . . stops the pain . . . hastens healthy healing.

NOTE: Sunburn is not the only burn of summer. Accidental burns are a constant hazard around campfires and summer cottages. It's best to have Unguentine with you wherever you go. And use it for cuts, scrapes, scratches, insect bites and poison ivy. *Look for the name NORWICH on the tube. BRIDE IS HONORED BY WOMEN'S LEAGUE

Very Pleasant Gathering is Held at Home of Mrs. F. J. Deyell, Millbrook.

MILLBROOK, July 20.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. F. J. Deyell was hostess for a very pleasant gathering on Wednesday afternoon when the Women's League of Grace Presbyterian Church was entertained at her home for its July meeting, the thirty or more present being seated on the verandah, with the president, Mrs. Charles Thorndyke, in the chair.

The treasurer reported receipts from the garden party of $75.50, and discussion followed for a picnic to be held on August 9 at the home of Miss Lillie Syer, Cavan, with a small admission fee and a committee in charge for the program.

The main feature of Wednesday's gathering was then proceeded with when Mrs. Mervan Kinsman, who has been an active worker in the society and who is shortly removing to Keene to reside, was invited to a central seat amid the company, Miss Vanita Ingram reading an appreciative address expressing regret at the loss of so faithful a helper from the church and the community. Elibabeth Williams, the daintily-attired little daughter of the Rev. H. R. and Mrs. Williams, then presented the guest of honor with a handsome mirror reflector for her dining-room table, and Mrs. R. J. McKnight spoke briefly voicing the appreciation of all present of Mrs. Kinsman's services, and wishing her continued happiness and prosperity in her new home.

The president then invited a bride who has recently come to the village, Mrs. James Chalmers, to come forward, when Miss Ruth Thorndyke read an address welcoming her to the church and the community, Elizabeth Williams again bringing the gift, a china sandwich tray with half a dozen plates to match. Miss Ethel McKnight made a brief address on behalf of the society, expressing the hope that Mrs. Chalmers might fill the vacancy caused by Mrs. Kinsman's removal, and that there might be a continuance of the happy relationship between the workers that has prevailed during the former's residence in the village and her membership in the Women's League.

Both replied briefly, and following the closing benediction in unison, adjournment was made to the nicely-shaded lawn with its several flower-beds now in full bloom where the hostess and her group served afternoon tea. At least fifty guests were served at the tea hour, a number coming in expressly for this social occasion, and from the silver collection taken $8.50 was realized for the talent money raised by Mrs. Darell's group.

Lakefield News

The annual Lawn Social of St. Paul's church, Lakefield, will be held at the Lakefield Inn on Wednesday, July 25. This event, so popular in past years, promises to be more so this year. Besides the usual sumptuous fowl supper, lottery booths and the various amusing games, many unusual features will appear on this year's program; in fact it looks like a musical festival.

At least five orchestras from the surrounding districts will compete for handsome cash prizes. In addition there will be individual contests among fiddlers (old time), guitar players, singers, step dancers, and callers. The various parish committees are busy with the necessary arrangements endeavouring to make this the biggest and best Lawn Social in the parish. It looks like an event that would well repay a visit.

A delegation from St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church were in Peterborough on Monday attending the funeral of their former minister, Rev. James Ross, Mr. J. M. Simpson was one of the honorary pall bearers and Mr. A. H. Clark and Dr. J. C. Smith, the active pall bearers. Mr. Ross was a resident of Lakefield for about three years and was highly esteemed as a citizen as well as a faithful and capable minister. Both in his congregation and outside it he made many warm friends who sincerely mourn his loss and feel the world is the poorer for the passing of this estimable Christian gentleman.

Among those who attended his funeral were Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Simpson, Miss Quinn, Miss Jean Clark, Mr. C. M. Duff and Master Billy Clark.

LICENSE BLANKS RECEIVED HERE

Several Local Hotel Keepers Making Minor Alterations in Old Bar Rooms.

OPEN NEXT WEEK.

New application blanks for authority to sell beer and wine were received by the standard hotels in Peterborough this morning from the Liquor Commission in Toronto. In all cases the blanks were filled out and placed in the mail immediately in order to expedite arrangements.

Minor alterations in the old bar rooms of several of the hotels were begun yesterday in order that all will be in readiness by the time the licenses arrive. It is expected that each of the hotels will have beer and wine for sale by Wednesday and several as early as Tuesday.

At the Empress Hotel today, workmen were busy removing the old bar from the beverage room. Although the regulations do not forbid the existence of the bar, they forbid the serving of drinks over the bar. At the Empress, a section of the bar may be retained as a dispensing stand.

EVEREST CLAIMS ANOTHER VICTIM

British Army Captain Fails to Return From Daring Lone Ascent.

9TH TO DIE IN EFFORT.

CALCUTTA, India, July 20 (AP)—Everest, cold and imperious monarch of mountains, has repulsed with death man's latest attempt to conquer her.

Native porters stumbled into Darjeeling yesterday with a familiar story—another daring explorer dead on the icy windswept fastnesses in trying to reach the summit where man has never trod.

Maurice Wilson, 36-year-old former British army captain, for years nursed an ambition to place the Union Jack on Everest's 29,141-foot crown. He set out alone to do it.

For months Wilson underwent rigorous training for the exhausting effort. Denied permission of Indian authorities to attempt the climb, he disguised himself as a tibetan and left Darjeeling March 25 with three porters.

Overcoming numerous hardships, the little party reached the 21,000-foot level late in May. Here there was a camp established by the Ruttledge expedition.

Wilson started on alone May 31. He told the porters to wait two weeks for him—then to turn back if he hadn't returned.

The men waited a month. Their food ran low, so they began the long descent. They believed Wilson died on a particularly dangerous part of the mountain at the 23,000-foot level, where avalanches are frequent.

At least nine men have died in the attempt to conquer Everest, the world's highest mountain, some with the goal almost reached.

To the aeroplane only has Everest surrendered.

12 Polls Still Await Counting By Judge

Peterboro's recount, halted this morning in an adjournment by Judge O'Connor until 2 o'clock this afternoon with the ballots of twelve polls still sealed in their enveloped. It was expected that the tedious work would be completed this afternoon, with the prospect of a definite result before the day was ended, providing the concluding stage of the recount did not exceed the average time.

In the course of the examinations of the ballots Thursday afternoon it seemed that the electoral result in Peterborough riding would not be changed.

GRAND STAND ATTRACTIONS

After considering many, the directors have finally arranged for these outstanding attractions to appear in front of the Grand Stand each afternoon and evening this year.

Bebney's Revue

The "Winter Garden" Revue of Talented Broadway Dancers and Stage Folk. Something new and proving very popular at outside entertainments. A galaxy of Precision Dancers in lovely routines.

Royal Buccaneers

Seven clever Acrobats performing seemingly impossible feats of daring. This is one of the world's most thrilling features in the field of athletic endeavor.

Joe Mandis' Troupe

Three men and a maid in a hilarious act of gymnastics and side-splitting comedy. You'll laugh with amazement at this equilibristric offering.

Mary Palmers' Circus

Enjoyment for the children, but for grown-ups too. Mary Palmer and Mr. Palmer have assembled an exceptional collection of cleverly trained Dogs and Ponies—one pony dances and plays a saxaphone.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

How much do you want to keep well? This may sound like a foolish question but there is more truth than fiction in the old reply to the query, "How are you?" which was "I'm enjoying poor health." This was considered as agreeable an answer as a sick person could give. Strange as it may seem there are persons who, despite the protests they would make, really do enjoy poor health. They choose not to make the necessary effort to get well. This applies to those suffering from diseases other than nervous. Many persons could be in far better health than they are if they wanted to enough.

* * * * * * *

This is brought to mind forcibly by a recent announcement about the circulation of certain fluids in the body and their effect on digestive organs. When happy and in good spirits these fluids flow so that they act favorably on the digestion. When angry or unhappy the flow of the fluid is changed and the effect is deleterious. Indigestion is courted. For a long time it has been considered unwise for a person to eat when angry lest he get indigestion, and that laughter and merriment were good table companions. It would seem that this idea is vindicated by scientific research and investigation.

* * * * * * *

Now comes the test. Will persons, knowing that they may suffer bodily discomfort if they do not curb their tempers, make it a point to cultivate amiability, and promote thereby their good health? Do they want to be well enough to do this? It appears that the stomach is quick to react to happy thoughts or to disagreeable ones.

* * * * * * *

Centuries ago King David said, "A happy and a pleasant thing is to be thankful." The grace said before meals is one way of expressing thanks, and if done from the heart whether in spoken words or in silent blessing, it turns the mind toward happy and pleasant things.

* * * * * * *

Headaches are frequently the result of dwelling on depressing things, or of disputing, often about insignificant matters. Worry is another cause of illness. It is the sad and disagreeable contemplations that invite poor health, while the happy and lovely thoughts bring good health in their train. It depends largely on whether we want to be well, whether we are or not.

* * * * * * *

Certainly it is a pleasant road to health that takes us along the way of happy and agreeable thoughts. We, alone, are rulers of our thoughts, so it is easy to understand how we can foster fine health.

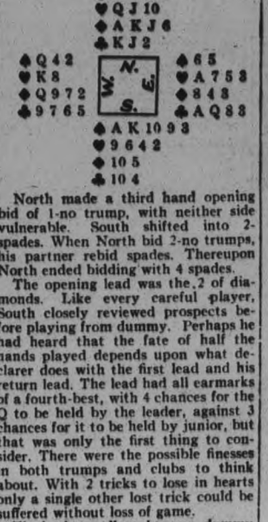
CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

CHOOSING BETWEEN FINESSES

Comparatively few hands are played without having to take at least one finesse. When two or more finesses must be chosen between, the player who thinks most clearly averages to come out best. The declarer of the following hand had a choice of 3 opportunities to finesse. He displayed unusually good judgment in his method of playing his cards, avoiding numerous pitfalls, where less careful players would have suffered a penalty instead of fulfilling the contract.



North made a third hand opening bid of 1-no trump, with neither side vulnerable. South shifted into 2-spades. When North bid 2-no trumps, his partner rebid spades. Thereupon North ended bidding with 4 spades.

The opening lead was the 2 of diamonds. Like every careful player, South closely reviewed prospects before playing from dummy. Perhaps he had heard that the fate of half the hands played depends upon what declarer does with the first lead and his return lead. The lead had all earmarks of a fourth-best, with 4 chances for the Q to be held by the leader, against 3 chances for it to be held by junior, but that was only the first thing to consider. There were the possible finesses in both trumps and clubs to think about. With 2 tricks to lose in hearts only a single other lost trick could be suffered without loss of game.

The lead was allowed to run, dummy playing the 6, East the 8 and South winning with the 10. Nearly every player would try to enter dummy to finesse the J of spades. Had South done this he would have gone down 2 tricks, losing a spade, 2 clubs and 2 hearts. South led off with his ace and K of spades, leaving the top trump with West. Then the declarer led his last diamond. Won with dummy's J. Upon the ace and K of that suit, South discarded both his losing clubs.

The Q of hearts was led. East passed the trick. If West held the K he would win the trick. If South held the K East would win the next trick with his ace, then block egress from dummy by throwing in the North hand with a low heart. West's K won. The 5 of clubs was led back, after West had taken his good trump. Dummy's J of clubs was covered with East's Q. South ruffed. East was put in the lead with a heart. Either he had to put dummy in with a heart, allowing South to ruff a club and take his good heart, or East had to ruff the last trump out of the declarer, by leading the ace of clubs. He did the latter, leaving the last heart and the K of clubs in dummy to win the last 2 tricks, for game.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

The treatment of ringworm, whether it occurs on the feet in the form of what is generally known as "athlete's foot", or on the hands, or under the armpits, or on the face, depends upon a great many different factors.

One of these factors is that there are a great many different varieties of the ringworm fungus. Some of them are killed by one drug and others resist this drug. For that reason, a great many different remedies have been suggested, ranging from salicylic acid, sulphur, iodine and mercurochrome, to the use of the X-ray to kill the fungus when it is deeply embedded in the tissues.

Another factor is the stage of the disease. In the early stage, when there is nothing but a superficial invasion of the fungus in the upper layers of the skin, and is accompanied only by itching, nearly any of these remedies will stop an attack. When, however, the infection has gone for several days, and has been complicated by scratching and the added factor of pus infection from the fingernails, the secondary infection demands treatment first with such remedies as ammoniated mercury, yellow oxide of mercury and mercuric chloride.

Recently a new drug has been introduced which seems to be lethal to nearly any form of the fungus. This is phenylmercuric nitrate, which is used in an ointment of 1 to 1,500. The base of the ointment is lanolin. The drug must be added to the lanolin gradually in an electric mixer.

Before applying the ointment, it is necessary to cleanse thoroughly all the affected parts of the skin by means of soap and water and a soft brush.

Overtreatment is to be avoided and the ointment should be gently rubbed into the affected parts twice daily, night and morning, for a few days. Then treatment should be stopped for a matter of a week, and if there is any recurrence, should be begun again.

Editor's Note: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

LINDSAY, uly 20. — Little Roy Seeney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Seeney of Mount Pleasant, had the misfortune to fall out of his father's car and break his leg in two place. The little lad was sitting in the car with his father and mother, and the car was backing out of the garage, and the youngster leaned out the window to see if the door of the garage was open. He leaned out too far, lost balance, fell under the car and a wheel went over ris leg.

Like Fifi, You Should Know Ins And Outs of Work if You Dye Hair

Very few people really know it, but that vivacious French cinema siren, Fifi D'Orsay, really is a blonde. Fifi, however, has always felt that raven locks harmonized better with her gay, sprightly temperament. And so, for a long time now, she's been having her tresses dyed to a dusky, blue-black hue.

Fifi, however, knows all the ins and outs about hair dyeing. That's why her hair always looks so natural, so healthy and so glossy. But there are a good many femmes who know nothing whatsoever about hair dyeing. And as a consequence, they often do their hair irreparable harm by patronizing inferior beauty shops, or by attempting to dye their own hair with questionable dyes.

To protect such women, however, a recent regulation was passed governing the sale and use of hair dyes in beauty salons and like establishments administered to the hair. For some dyes may cause skin irritations and scalp inflammations on certain individuals. The test usually is made by painting a small spot of the dye on the skin behind the ear. If no soreness or irritation results within 24 hours; in other words, if the test proves negative, the dyeing of the hair is supposed to be entirely harmless.

It is interesting to note that there are few dyes excepted in this ruling. There are a number of hair dyes on the market that contain iron, aluminum, copper and silver. Such dyes should never be used indiscriminately by women, for dyes that contain a metallic base sometimes will react on the kidneys and the liver.

There are many reliable beauty shops that refuse, without any law demanding this duty to the customer, to use any kind of dye that is not guaranteed to be harmless, or to use a dye without first making a pre-disposition test. Such shops are the ones that women should patronize when they wish their tresses dyed, not only for the sake of their hair health, but also for the continued well-being of their entire bodies.

Fifi D'Orsay

And it's now no longer possible for a gal to rush on impulse, into a shop and have her hair dyed.

According to the new regulations, a pre-disposition test of the action of the dye on the skin of the client must be made 24 hours before the dye can be

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Eyelashes

Laura: Apply a bit of plain vaseline or odorless castor oil to your lashes nightly. This will help to promote their growth and thickness.

Colors

Redhead: I think that you will find shades of tan, brown, russet, capucine, pinkish beige, cool greens, mat white and black most becoming to you.

Vegetable Shampoo

Dorothy L.: A fortnightly vegetable shampoo should best serve to brighten your hair. The solution you mention is really for blonde hair, not auburn.

Measurements

Flora: I think a girl five feet three inches tall and 17 years of age should weigh about 118 pounds. She should measure: Bust 33 inches, waist 27 inches, hips 35 inches, thigh 18 inches, calf 13 inches and ankle 8 1-2 inches.

Complexion

Gracie: Certainly it is possible to relieve the skin of blackheads, enlarged pores and oiliness. Full information, which is too long to print here, is given in my "Beauty Culture" booklet.

Martin Qualifies For Ontario Tennis Semi-Finals

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

TODAY IS an off day as far as racing is concerned on our tracks. Fort Erie closed last evening and will remain so until next July, being the only track in Ontario to hold a fourteen day meet as passed in recent legislature. It seems too bad that a plant like Fort Erie with its beautiful lawns, spacious grandstands, wonderful clubhouse should be in actual use only fourteen days out of every year. The same of course applies to all race courses in Canada with the exception of Dufferin Park in Toronto which is used for circuses, trotting meets winter and summer and soccer and ball games.

Woodbine is used for the odd polo game but this is non revenue producing. It can easily be seen why the tracks across the international line can put in expensive totalising machines and all modern equipment when they run for ninety and one hundred days against our fourteen day limit. The Dorval track at Montreal did not and will not open its gates at all this year. Owing to its location so far from Montreal and the tough times we are passing through it looked like a loosing proposition. The moving vans will get a break today transporting the horses quartered at Fort Erie over the 25 miles of Niagara frontier to Stamford Park.

THEY TELL us that Yellow Metal is all set to go over in a big way at the Falls, his recent races have been awfully good, Carlydon is another that always hits his best stride in the big Roar Town and he was never better than he is right now. In fact Bill Campbell expects to win a few purses with both he and Canny Age. Yesterday at Fort Erie, Butch Keeling put Dark War down in front for the first time since the spring meeting at Dufferin. Now that this one has reached winning form she will be dangerous in all her starts.

One big feature at the Niagara meeting is that every day including both Saturdays, all hands will be admitted for the sum of twenty-five cents per head, which should allow everyone to see the bangtails in action who feel so inclined. The park condition book enters practically entirely to the cheap platers, which means the handicap brigade will remain pretty well in the barn, but cheap platers evenly matched make a better wagering proposition than a stake race where one particular handicap performer is a standout.

Soccer Notes

At the request of the players, it has been arranged that the game scheduled for Saturday will be played in the evening at six o'clock. The players are hereby notified that they must have a prompt kick off so as the game will be finished otherwise they will have to revert to thirty-five minutes each way. Referee W. Harrington.

Canada Packers will travel to Deloro on Saturday afternoon to meet the Smelters in a league engagement. Kick off is 4.15. All players connected with C.P. are requested to be at the plant no later than 1.45. Conveniences will transport the team. Referee A. Frick.

A special meeting of the association will be held on Monday evening so as to arrange the games for the following week.

Brazil is building a tricky auto race course which will have eight "V" turns. Probably to determine the world's Sunday driver championship.

NUNNS DEFEATS ROLLY LONGTIN STRAIGHT SETS

Match Between Murray and Leahong Halted by Darkness.

MRS. NUNNS ADVANCES.

(By Elmer Dulmage, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

TORONTO, July 20 (C.P.)—Almost across the board it was Quebec against Ontario to-day in Ontario's own tennis championships, the last official warm-up before next week's Canadian net title play starts. Bobby Murray, youngest and brightest of Quebec's stars, was expected to complete the interprovincial layout to-day.

If Murray, 19-year-old champion of Quebec, can win one set more from Donald Leahong of Jamaica to-day, the home defenders will face a Montreal array in every singles match. Darkness halted the Murray-Leahong battle last night with Bobby in front by scores of 6-3, 4-6, 6-4.

The winner will play Gilbert Nunns of Toronto in one semi-final while the defending champion, Walter Martin of Toronto, hooks up with Marcel Rainville of Montreal in the other. In the women's singles final Mrs. Gilbert Nunns, defending title-holder, will play Mrs. W. D. Patrick of Montreal.

Carrying the idea right down the line George Robinson of Montreal, Quebec's outstanding boy player, will meet John Cheley of Ottawa for the junior title. Cheley scored a surprise victory yesterday in his semi-final, downing Art Anderson to overcome the young Davis cupper in five sets, 4-6, 1-6, 6-1, 6-2, 6-0, in a contest that was interrupted by a downpour of rain. Martin started his comeback before the rain came and, refreshed by a two-hour rest, easily finished it when the rain stopped.

Watt played the best best tennis he has ever shown in Toronto for two sets, scoring at will on the champion and No. 1 ranked player. But it was only a two-set rush and Laird was unable to recover from the letdown.

No Difficulty

Rainville had no difficulty eliminating George Leclerc of Ottawa, 6-1, 6-0, 6-2, and Nunns defeated Roland Longtin of Montreal in straight sets, 6-4, 7-5, 6-4. Nunns played a daring style of tennis that was extremely effective.

Leahong and Murray gave a masterful exhibition of stroke production for three sets and will finish their quarter-final match today. They made few errors scoring with pretty passing shots, drops, lobs and volleys that delighted the gallery.

John B. Shibe, president of the Philadelphia Athletics, has become a speedboat enthusiast. Probably because he wants to be interested in something that's at least going some place other than down.

TORONTO MEETS SECOND DEFEAT BY ROYAL CLUB

Red Wings, Bears and Senators Also Bow in International Field.

TRI-PLAY FOR HERD.

(By the Associated Press)

Second division clubs have scored a clean sweep over the four leaders in the latest set of International League engagements with Toronto Maple Leafs in the role of chief sufferers.

Second place Rochester had dropped a 6-4 decision to Buffalo in an afternoon game yesterday when the Leafs took the field against Montreal Royals at night. A victory would have sent Toronto into second place by a few percentage points but instead the Leafs took a 7-3 beating and remained in third place, a full game back of the Red Wings. Newark, leading Rochester by a game and a half, was beaten by Baltimore Orioles, 7-4, and fourth place Albany bowed to Syracuse Chiefs 7-5 in night games.

Effective pitching by Clydell Castleman was the principal reason for Montreal's victory over Toronto. New York Giants' farm hand gave up only seven hits and never was behind at any stage of the proceedings. Montreal put together four hits, including a double by Hubby Walker, for three runs in the eighth and made their score sure. Walker collected three hits, all told, as did Ike Boone, Toronto manager.

Buffalo's triumph over Rochester was marked by the Bisons' second triple play of the season. In the second inning, with Mize on first and Goodman on second, Lewis lined to Mallon whose toss to Mulleavy retired Goodman. Mulleavy then threw to Clancy, retiring Mize, Charley Perkin went the route for the Bisons, keeping 12 hits fairly well scattered and contributed a line double which drove in two runners in the seventh when Buffalo rallied for five runs.

Baltimore clubbed Jack Lareca for nine hits in seven innings and received eight passes from him to boot in winning easily from Newark. George Granger climaxed a fine pitching performance by fanning Kies, Farrell and Gibson in succession in the eighth after Hill, Alexander and Muller had singled in a row. He struck out seven men all told. Atwood for Baltimore and Gibson for Newark hit homers.

Fred Sington's 22nd homer failed to save Albany from a defeat at Syracuse's hands and the fourth place Senators found their lead over Montreal cut to one game. Clarence Pickrel pitched steady ball for the winners who collected 13 hits off Ed Chapman, Ed Pilley, Art Jones and Art Herring.

Jobs we don't want: Being Al Schact or Nick Altrock, Washington's comedians, with the Senators rapidly proving American league champions in name only.

MARMORA-DELORO BATTLE 4-4 TIE

Smelters Even Count in Final Frame With Three-Run Splurge.

MARMORA, July 20.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Marmora and Deloro played a 4-4 tie on the latter's grounds on Wednesday evening, the game proving to be one of the best fixtures seen in the Trent Valley Baseball League this season. Darkness prevented more than nine innings being played. Deloro had the services of the two veterans, Leal and Boudreau, the latter substituting throughout as catcher in the place of Stewart, who was injured at Coe Hill a week ago. Leal pitched two innings for his team and steered them out of a bad situation when bases were loaded. To break up the McInroy battery was Deloro's hope but the brothers were not to be outwitted and Jack McInroy, on the mound, turned in one of his best games. Marmora took the lead in the first innings which they sustained until the ninth when good hitting by the homesters evened the score.

Marmora: Hewitt, 3b; Auger, ss; Woodhouse, rf; G. McInroy, c; Hughes, 1b; Shannon, lf; Brady, 2b; Phillips, cf; J. McInroy, p; Robertson, lf.

Deloro: O'Neill, 1b; V. Callery, rf; Leal, lf, p; McCallery, cf; F. Callery, p, lf; Boudreau, c; Smith, 2b; Simmons, 3b; Gray, ss.

BEN CHAPMAN'S TIMELY CLOUTS WIN FOR YANKS

New Yorkers Have Close Call in Defeating Tail-end Chicago Sox.

INDIANS WIN IN 9TH.

The Ruth-less Yankees recovered some of their recently lost ground in the American League race when they edged out Chicago 4-3 while rain kept Detroit and the Athletics idle.

Ben Chapman provided the difference between victory and defeat by driving in three runs and scoring another as he hit a single, double, and triple. The triumph left the Yanks just two games behind the Tigers.

Cleveland Indians drew closer to the third-place Red Sox by smashing over five runs in the ninth when Fritz Ostermueller fell before a hit barrage and defeating the Hose 6-5. The Browns opened an assault on Washington and fifth place by spotting the Senators five runs in the first then coming from behind to win 8-7 with the aid of two homers by Harland Clift.

KITCHEN MAY HURL SATURDAY

"Chief" Williams Likely Take Over Mound Duty for Nats in Game Here.

ON SATURDAY P.M.

Belleville is here tomorrow (Saturday) in its second last C.O.B.L. appearance of the season, and this game may see Jack Williams in action here for the last time this year—unless possibly in the play-offs. The final Belleville appearance at Riverside Park will be late in August. They play the Petes here at three o'clock tomorrow afternoon, weather permitting, with the league leadership at stake. The Nationals can move into first place over Knotty Lee's crew by winning this game, or the Petes can take a tighter grip on the top rung by a victory.

With Williams billed to twirl for the visitors, and either Archie Devell or Russ Kitchen—the latter making his first home appearance of the year, if he does—it looms up as another classy pitchers' battle, with both teams in there battling hard for every break. The last Belleville-Petes' struggle in Riverside went to ten innings and saw plenty of fighting and excitement before the Nats squeezed out a win by a couple of lucky breaks in the overtime stanza. Tomorrow's contest looks like another such natural, and will no doubt draw a huge crowd.

SCHUMACHER EXTENDS WINS TO 9 STRAIGHT FOR GIANTS

Terry's Star Right-hander Blanks Cincinnati Reds Despite 12 Hits.

CUBS BEAT PHILLIES.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

At least two pitchers in the National League, Jerome Herman ("Dizzy") Dean of the Cardinals and Harold ("Hal") Schumacher of the Giants, have earned the privilege of wearing slightly superior looks when any mention is made of the liveller ball used in the senior circuit this year.

Each of them could boast today of nine straight victories on the hill, the best winning streaks of the season. Dean was the leading flinger with 17 victories against three defeats and Schumacher was tied with Frankhouse of Boston for second place with 14 games won and four lost.

The eccentric Dean chalked up his ninth consecutive triumph yesterday when he stopped the Braves with seven hits to gain a 4-2 decision over Bob Smith. And he broke oneof his few "jinxes" in doing it for it was his first triumph in Boston in more than two seasons in addition he batted in the winning run with a long fly in the sixth after Spud Davis, Ernie Orsatti and Leo Durocher had connected for singles.

Schumacher continued to show the "Indian sign" over the Reds as he gave them 12 hits and shut them out 4-0. In his three-year major league career he hasnt lost a game to Cincinnati, winning 11, but it took some fancy fielding on the part of his teammates to enable him to apply the whitewash yesterday.

These two victories failed to alter the upper part of the league standing as the second-place Cubs also came through with a victory, beating the Phillies 2-1 when Pat Malone and Lonnie Warneke got together to hurl a hour-hit game.

The other first division team Pittsburgh, ran into trouble however, when Linus ("Junior") Frey of Brooklyn broke up an elbowing argument between Bill Swif and relief flinger Emil Leonard by socking a home run with one aboard after two were out in the ninth to give the Dodgers a 4-2 decision over the Buccos.

PHILLIPS TO STAY HOME

TORONTO, July 20 (C.P.)—Alfie Phillips, Canada's diving champion, was hard at work to-day while his companions on Canada's British Empire Games team prepared to embark from Montreal for England.

Pressure of business kept Phillips at home, he said to-day, and he has given up any remote possibility of "catching the next boat." At the east end plant of the B. Phillips Co., Alfie regretted his inability to make the trip but said recent business matters had come up that prevent him going.

Manchuria's extensive construction program is boosting business generally.

CLARKE SHOOTS 146 OUT OF 150

Pte. P. J. Martinson of Quebec Only One Point Behind Silver Medalist.

FINAL STAGE SATURDAY.

BISLEY CAMP, Eng., July 20. (C. P. Cable)—Sergeant-Major W. R. Clarke of Bombay, India, today won the silver medal for top score in the second stage of the classic King's Prize. Clarke recorded 146 out of a possible 150 in the three ranges of the shoot, limited to the 300 qualifiers from Wednesday's first stage.

Private P. J. Martinsen of La Tuque, Quebec, the leading Canadian, was only one point behind the silver medallist. As the scores for the second stage are added to those of to-morrow's third stage to determine the winner, Martinsen was in a fine position. He won the bronze medal for the first stage in a shoot-off yesterday.

Earlier to-day Martinsen was announced as being in a tie with only two others for the grand aggregate.

Canada will send eight men, possibly 10, into to-morrow's final, the highest number the Dominion has had in the King's 100 for many years. The final stage is limited to the best 100 scorers to-day. At the bottom of the shoot, 32 men with scores of 139 are to shoot off for 10 remaining places.

Canada's finalists, with their second stage totals, are: Martinsen, 145; Lieut. Donald McLeod of Saint John, 144; Csm. George Emslie, Toronto; Capt. A. C. Lucas, Toronto, and Lt.-Col. F. W. Utton, Toronto, all with 142; Lieut. Neal Dow, Saint John, 141; and Capt. H. W. Bishop, Ottawa, and Cpl. B. W. Beaumont, Vancouver, each 140.

In addition two Canadians with 139 have a chance to get in the final. They are Sgt. James Borland of Toronto and Lieut. R. A. Sweet, Hamilton. Only three of the Canadians failed outright today.

Rain put an end to a very interesting game last night, when John Penrose and Jim Harrison were playing off a tie in group No. 3.

Penrose was leading 10-7 and the game had gone past the required 10 ends, so it now looks as if John will have to clash with Bob Hendry. Outside of this game there was nothing of importance doing ....the heat and threatening weather keeping the boys home.

× × ×

To-night we expect the boys will be out. It is our weekly Friday night tournament. In a few days we hope to be able to publish something that will be of real importance to our own bowlers, bowlers in this district, and to all bowlers throughout the province of Ontario.

× × ×

Our games committee is planning to put over one of the biggest tournaments ever attempted in eastern Ontario.

It will take place on August 15th and we are just passing over this little piece of information so the bowlers can lay their plans accordingly .... more later.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball, Lacrosse, Soccer Softball, Bowling, etc.

By C. J. P.

We have a ball game listed for tonight, an E.P.L. ball game, down at the Fair Grounds. And this ball game, this E.P.L. ball game, will be played unless it comes up a heavy shower or an earthquake, or unless maybe the boys hear that beer by the glass is available tonight. Not that it would make any difference to some of them, but we have grave doubts about certain of the lads. However, in this case tonight, this E.P.L. ball game—oh, yes, it's between Fosters and C.G.E. —is a highly important ball game to both teams, meaning for Fosters either curtains or another chance at the playoffs, and for C.G.E. either a serious reverse or the clinching of a playoff berth. Such being the case, both teams will likely be at full strength, and both squads will no doubt put up a good battle in this E.P.L. ball game.

• • • • • •

Then, tomorrow in Riverside Park, there will be a ball game, a C.O.B.L. ball game. And this ball game, this C.O.B.L. ball game, is also a highly important one to both teams. We forgot to mention that it's between Belleville and the Petes, and that first place in the C.O.B.L. is most decidedly at stake. And no amount of beer by the glass in hotels, even nickel beer, will keep the players away from this ball game. In fact, we doubt very much if any amount of good nickel beer even over the bar in hotels would keep many ball fans away. No, sir, it's that kind of game, that kind of C.O.B.L. game.

• • • • • •

The finest southpaw in the loop for many years, including this one, Jack (Chief) Williams, is slated to take the slab against the Petes. The Chief beat us here in a ten-inning thriller some three weeks back, and he'll do it again if given half a chance. But Messrs. K. Lee, Deyell, Kitchen, Ash & Co. will make it their business to see that the Indian doesn't get half a chance. Maybe Deyell will pitch for the Petes, and maybe Kitchen will make his '34 debut here. We don't know, but listen carefully to what we do know: It will be a sweet struggle regardless of the outcome, and if it isn't we'll eat that pink-striped shirt—which we still have—but somehow we don't think we'll be on any shirt diet for another few weeks.

• • • • • •

Frank Shine, Orphans' flinger, didn't like our crack at him the other day so he got peeved and took it out on the poor Johnston Tire softball squad last p.m. He blasted his hoppity ball by fourteen of them and the poor little Orphans only won, 8 to 2. It would have been a real even contest only for Shine going and spoiling it all by getting burned up at us and taking it out on the Tiremen. And now, we suppose, Bert Deck will be kind of mad at us. Life is certainly no bowl of cherries for us guys, but then we don't care much for cherries anyway.

• • • • • •

Two bantam ball games will be run off in the Exhibition Grounds Saturday afternoon, St. Peter's playing King Edward at 1.30, and Hawks tangling with Leafs at 3.30. The K.E. boys are on top at present, closely pursued by the S.P.S. gang, and with Hawks and then Leafs not far behind. We see by the O.B.A.A. draft of playoffs that the local juveniles meet Oshawa Aug. 11th, while the local bantams get a bye into either the finals or semi-finals. And the local juniors get a first-round bye. Wonder who is handling these juniors here. Pat Calladine started but we don't know if he kept it up.

• • • • • •

Coming down from Belleville—perked in rumble seats and, we suppose, hanging on running boards—with the Nats on Saturday, the Alemite softball team will take on the Brintons here at Central at 6.15 p.m. The Alemites are intermediates and copped the Belleville Centennial Cup recently, and the tussle here will give players and fans an idea of how Brintons stock up this year against good opposition from other burgs. We've heard also that next week the local men's schedule will be shifted in order to get in one or two more games a week, thereby rushing through the schedule to make time for the extremely complicated local playoffs—said playoffs, we've no doubt, having the N.H.L. moguls green with envy.

• • • • • •

Some of the City Leaguers want to know what a balk in baseball is. And the information might be of interest to many of the grown-up ballsters, too. Any motion made by the twirler when in position to deliver the ball to the bat or to first base, when occupied, without delivering it is a balk. And throwing the ball to any base to nip a runner without first stepping directly toward that base. He must always face the batsman before throwing the ball to him, and he cannot have either foot back of and not in contact with the pitcher's slab. It's a balk if the hurler holds the ball too long, in the umps' opinion, when runners are on. He cannot step on the rubber without the ball, nor can he stand off the rubber and feint a delivery to the plate. Delivery of the ball to the bat when the catcher is outside the lines, or taking his hands off the ball once he's on the rubber except to throw to the bat or a base, or stepping off the pitcher's plate to wipe his hands, etc.—without the umpire calling "Time"—or if he, in the act of delivering the ball to home or first when occupied, drops the ball—any of these infractions make a balk, the ball is dead and the runner or runners may advance one base.

• • • • • •

We didn't see it, but we heard the Summer Gardens' softball team knocked off Doug Mowry's local O.A.S.A. juniors by a 3-2 count in the Oval yester eve. Ridley was borrowed by the dance hall lads and proved too much for the young opposition. Vitarelli didn't go so badly for the other side, either. It was also reported to us that the base umpire was a very base man indeed and in close decisions whoever got to him first and looked the toughest, well that guy got the break from ye umps. In spite of this brand of on-the-fence officiating, it is said to have been a good struggle, in case anyone is interested. Well, we weren't either.

ORPHANS CINCH GAME IN THIRD

Frankie Shine Allows Only Eight Hits in Masterful Display on Mound.

FEW ERRORS

Orphans climbed back into the running last night, by pounding out an 8-2 victory over Johnston Tires, at Central. They scored most of their runs in the third inning during which frame they batted around, and pushed over five runs to cinch the game right there.

Frankie Shine, on the mound for the winners, gave a masterful display, allowing only eight hits and two runs to be scored against him while fanning fourteen and walking but four. He had the situation well in hand at all times and was never in any danger throughout the game. Jimmie Price started for the Deck gang but gave way to Elliott in the fourth who hurled good ball for the remainder of the contest, together they yielded but nine hits, only one more than Shine but their support was weak and this accounted for many of the runs scored against them.

Board, first baseman for the Orphans, was their big gun on the attack with three singles out of four times at bat while Jones had two for four and Shine also helped his own cause with a double out of three tries.

Johnston's hitters were led by Dorrington and Montgomery, each of them having two hits out of four trips to the plate.

Orphans were very good in the field only having two bobbles while the Deck men booted four. McQuade, centre fielder for the Tiremen, had his finger broken by a hard hit fly ball in the third inning and was forced to retire from the contest.

Orphans—Wilshaw, 2b; Weese, 3b; Jones, rf; Cadd, c; Fleming, ss; Hope, lf; Miller, cf; Shine, p; Board, 1b.

Johnston Tires—Starr, c, lf; Dorrington, 3b; Anderson, lf, c; Montgomery, rf; cf; Ellis, 1b; McQuade, cf; Allen, rf; Parsons, ss; Price, p; Elliott, p; Stanger, 2b.

Score by innings:

Orphans	1	0	5	0	2	0	0	9	2
Johnston's	0	0	0	0	2	0	0	8	4

Umpires—Batley at the plate, Payne on bases.

MENIE WINS 6-RUN MARGIN

Outscore and Outhit Petherick's Outfit to Win by 18-12 Count.

COSTLY ERRORS.

BURNBRAE, July 20 (Special to Examiner)—Taking a slim lead at the start and steadily increasing it, Menie softball team outscored and outfielded the Pethericks outfit to win 18 runs to 12 in Wednesday evening's Seymour League fixture. Nine errors all at cruicial moments game Menie the winning margin. In the field Menie were great, the only errors being credited to the backstop. Eagleson pitched steady ball yielding only nine hits until the last frame while he struck out five and walked one. Oddie brothers were good in the infield while Milne starred in the outer garden.

D. Kerr was the fielding star for the losers while A. Petherick and Ewing led with the willow getting four out of five each. Petherick had men on bases in every inning but lacked the punch. The whole team showed the ill-effects of the two week's lay-off due to illness and injuries. G. Kerr pitched steady ball but was not as effective in the pinches as when in condition. He struck out three and walked five.

Hume, Craighead, Jeffs and Eagleson counted three each for Menie, while Oddie brothers and Craighead accounted for three homers.

Line-ups:

Menie—Eagleson, p; Jeffs, c; Craighead, 1b; R. Oddie, 2b; Rannie, 3b; K. Oddie, ss; Hume, lf; Milne, cf; Wallace, rf; Parr, sub.

Pethericks—G. Kerr, p; A. Petherick, c; Barnum, 1b; G. Petherick, 2b; L. Watson, Anderson, 3b; Ewing, ss; R. Fry, lf; D. Watson, cf; D. Kerr.

By innings—

	R	H	E
Menie	2	11	4
Pethericks. . .	1	10	0

Umpires—Farrell, Tinney, Sargeanson.

The result of this game retains the interest in the league race right to the end. Petherick must win Saturday's game from West Seymour to get into the play-offs and this would create a three-cornered tie for the first position. The betting seems to favor the Westerners to cop the victory and a clear margin for first place, but the Pethericks outfit will give all they have and may pull out a win. A record crowd is assured for Saturday evening as the interest is keen among the fans now.

Standing—

	W	L
West Seymour	4	3
Menie..	4	4
Pethericks	3	4

Should a tie result, the suggestion of chief umpire Farrell that the playing order in the play-offs be decided by the toss of a coin, will likely be adopted to save time. In any case the play-offs will probably start on July 25.

THE SPUN GLASS MYSTERY

A Tale of Scotland Yard

By A. FIELDING

CHAPTER 53

On the back of the envelope was the printed address of the Ricci's shop. Now, when Pointer and his taxi-driver had bought theirs, neither had been furnished with an envelope. A man was sent down at once to buy some trifle, and, when paying, ask if it could be put in an envelope for him. This was done, but the envelope was not the same kind as that which Tait had been seen to fling away. The man, however, had obtained a similar one from a pigeon-hole filled with printed stationery on the top of the paying-in desk.

Pointer examined the envelope carefully. On the inside the analyst found some traces of the poison, but besides that invisible substance, there was a faint round red mark the size of a penny, and two tiny red smears rather like thick pencil strokes, without apparent meaning. The round red mark turned out to be rouge of a good French make, especially suitable for a blonde, and the two red dabs were lipstick, also of a kind used by fair women. Miss Dundas was blonde, with soft fair hair and a lovely fair skin.

Pointer put the precious envelope in another, and went off to Great Cumberland Place. His watcher told him what he knew already, that Miss Henrietta Naylor and Miss Dundas were not yet back, that Miss Scott, his woman detective, was "in attendance." Pointer went on into the house. He showed the envelope to Mrs. Burnham and Lady Tait, but to neither, to no one, did he mention what had been inside it, but he did say that Mr. Tait had been seen to throw it away as he walked from the house after lunch.

Mrs. Burnham caught it up at once at the words, "The last thing possibly that John touched. You'll let me have it back when it's all over?"

He promised that she should have it. Both she and Lady Tait said they had no recollection of ever having seen it before. Both, on reading the name of the shop on the flap, looked disturbed.

"Where is Miss Dundas? She may have seen it by chance." Pointer's tone suggested one who misses an unimportant member of the household for the first time.

"She's gone out with one of the Misses Naylor," Mrs. Burnham said, speaking a little awkwardly, and with her back to the chief inspector, "they said something about Selfridge's florist shop."

"In my opinion, chief inspector, Miss Dundas has run away," Lady Tait put in sharply, "because my niece, too, refuses to see the obvious—sorry, Puss—she's gone out with her, to be given the slip, of course, at the first opportunity, and left to come home alone. I saw them both go out, and I saw their faces. Two conspirators."

"How can you say such things!" Mrs. Burnham spoke with warmth.

"My dear," the elder woman replied firmly, "kindness to some people is weakness."

"But, Lady Tait," Mrs. Burnham protested, "this envelope—Miss Dundas doesn't—can't—know these Italians, and it is Mrs. Ricci, you know. We all know."

Lady Tait blanched as always at that name, however gently spoken. Naylor came in during the painful little silence that followed. He examined the envelope carefully, and said that he had never seen it before. "The Ricci's . . . perhaps what poisoned him was inside . . . you haven't told us yet what did poison him, something practically undetectable, according to the woman herself."

Pointer was wanted on the telephone. An urgent message from Miss Scott. Pointer listened to a very unusual report from her of failure, absolute and possibly irretrievable. He was now told that Mrs. de Souza's "shadow" had seen a man enter Harrod's who was very much wanted by the police, and who had for quite a long time been in hiding. He had asked Miss Scott if she could manage both women for a few minutes, just to give him time to telephone, after which he would pick up Mrs. de Souza again. Miss Scott had been quite sure she could manage—easily. She had been too sure, and she had lost both.

Pointer listened with his usual immobile face, but he was greatly disturbed.

"They changed the hats they were wearing for others," she said with bitterness, "must have done, or else took their hats and cloaks off, dropped them somewhere and went on as saleswomen—anyway, one moment I had them well in sight, Miss Dundas in her orange and black little hat and her coat with the ermine collar, and Mrs. de Souza in purple velvet hat and coat, and the next moment they were nowhere to be seen. There's a sale one, unfortunately, and the place was packed."

"I told you to be sure not to let Miss Dundas out of your sight," Pointer said with ominous calm. Then he hung up. The woman was a good detective, but this was a ghastly enough failure. His face was very grave as he hurried back to the house. The only hope was that the man following Strange would link up again with the two women, and Pointer rather expected Strange to join Mrs. de Souza ultimately, for he did not think the latter would herself actually murder Gillian Dundas. He read her as a woman who would shrink from physical violence, also Gillian was, or should be, the stronger of the two. But Strange . . . his rather terrible figure struck a sinister note.

. . . Pointer returned to the room with a set face.

"I think you're right, Lady Tait, and that Miss Dundas has run away. She may have met some one and gone with them unwillingly, cowed, or she may think she's with a friend, and yet be in the hands of the murderer of Mr. Tait."

Mrs. Burnham gave a little cry. Even Lady Tait gave a gasp.

"Where would she be likely to go? To make for?" he asked the former. "Have you any idea, however faint or improbable?"

"She spoke of going to Brussels, she must have a passport, of course, and I have an idea her parents live near there. They are caretakers at a cottage in the Ardennes, I believe, or rather I fancy. I wish I knew the place; she didn't go into details. . . . Oh, why is she so reserved? Why doesn't she confide in one of us here? We're all her friends. We all want to help her." Lucy Burnham actually wrung her pretty hands. "I'm beginning to think that Gillian must be connected in some way with the muder of my John." She spoke slowly, almost fearfully. "But not in any guilty way. She knows something, and loyalty won't let her speak. That's possible, though even that seems a dreadful thought. For she came here—to me—as I thought, but now I think she came to try and warn John. To save him." Her voice broke. Lady Tait took her hand and held it close.

"Dearest Lucy," she began, then stopped as the door was flung open and Etta Naylor stood in the opening. "That girl has got away!" She spoke in a voice quite unlike the gentle tones Pointer had hitherto heard from her. "I wondered if she had crawled back here. No? Then I'm off to look for her in my car." There seemed strangely little of the compassionate friend who had begged Gillian to confide in her in the angry, handsome woman who faced them at that moment with flashing eye and bright carmine cheeks.

"Yes, yes!" Lucy urged. "Do try and catch up with her. She'll make for the boat train, of course, or else for wherever an Osten boat starts from—she'll make for Brussels . . . she told us so."

"Did she tell you that too, Miss Naylor?" Pointer asked.

"She told me nothing," was the reply.

"But you were with me when she said she wanted to go to Brussels. Alone. She said it over and over!" Mrs. Burnham looked amazed. "We both said Brussels was out of the question and you said . . ."

"I didn't hear her say a word about Brussels," Etta repeated firmly. This time Mrs. Burnham's eyes widened in earnest. How could Etta pretend that she had not heard Gillian say she wanted to go to Brussels? Why did she now claim, before the detective officer, that she had no idea where the girl would go first?

(To be continued.)

For Saturday, July 21.

A very lively state of affairs with a fair degree of profit and pleasure are presaged for this day judging by the lunar and mutual aspects. There should be much stirring gainfully in all pertaining to writings, publishings, publicity and promotions as well as business generally. It is probable that financial support may come from friendly inclinations of those in places of power or standing or substantial assistance may be counted upon of a woman, elderly, or personally interested. Be calm and restrained in all impulses.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a lively and tnterprising year, with important aims and ambitions flourishing, possibly meriting the friendly support and co-operation of large interests. Or it is possible that such support may be secured from an elderly woman, or a woman interested personally in its success from domestic, social or romantic reasons. Be calm and self-contained in all.

YOUTH DROWNS AT EAGLE LAKE

Girls Save Victim's 2 Companions From Rotary-Kiwanis-Y.M.C.A. Camp.

SAILING AGAINST RULES.

KINGSTON, Ont., July 20. (CP) Further particulars were received here this morning about the tragedy which took place at the Rotary-Kiwanis-Y.M.C.A. camp at Eagle Lake near Parkham yesterday, when Raymond Metcalfe, aged 17, son of Ronald I. Metcalfe, this city, was drowned.

The body had not been recovered up till this forenoon. The Metcalfe boy was drowned when a punt in which he and two other companions were sailing, overturned.

Bill Gommer and Ronald Arkley who were with young Metcalfe were rescued by a group of girls in a camp at Oconto, but they were unable to save Metcalfe. It is reported that the three boys left the camp in the forenoon, and that in doing so they broke two camp regulations, the rules stating definitely, that no boy who could not swim, was to set foot in a boat, and that no boat was to be taken without the permission of the camp directors.

Fatal Neglect

Not only did the camp supervisor, Andrew Reekie, not know that the boat had been taken, but did not know that the boys were leaving the camp, and his first intimation of a camp disaster came from Kingston, where F. J. McKellar, secretary of the Y.M.C.A. was notified from the girls' camp.

Mr. Reekie knew that the boys were missing from camp, but had no knowledge of where they went, or what had happened to them.

Metcalfe and one of his companions were unable to swim. The Metcalfe boy was one of the group of boys sent to the camp by the Rotary Club. He had been there for two weeks, but had been allowed to stay another two weeks, paying his way by working around the camp. His mother is dead, and he was one of a family of eleven children. His father is a carpenter, and has lived in Kingston for many years.

DR. V. A. KILLORAN TO PRACTICE HERE

Old Peterborough Boy to Take Over Practice of Dr. F. P. McNulty.

Dr. Vincent A. Killoran, a former Peterborough boy and honor graduate in the faculty of medicine of the University of Toronto, has assumed the office and practice of Dr. F. P. McNulty, for years one of this city's most successful physicians and surgeons.

Dr. Killoran will have the advantage of the assistance of Dr. McNulty in an advisory and introductory capacity. He received his primary school education in Norwood and Peterborough, followed by a brilliant course at the University of Toronto, where he was silver medallist in the 1927 graduating class of 150 students. For a year he was interne at the Hamilton General Hospital, and during the succeeding five years was on the staff of a clinic in Ohio specializing in surgery and obstetrics. Dr. Killoran has just completed a post-graduate course in surgery at the medical school of the University of Buffalo.

In taking over Dr. McNulty's office, Dr. Killoran will carry on a general practice in medicine with special attention to surgery and obstetrics. He is well known in Peterborough, Norwood and Hastings, and returns as a native son to this city and district.

Dr. and Mrs. Killoran and family have taken the Micks cottage at Chemong for the summer.

BEHIND the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL.

NOT TO PUT

any more worries on the industry, but a famous church official asked for and is receiving from a prominent Hollywood writer (formerly of Chicago) a complete report on why pictures are bad and whose fault is it.

The answer, as the author is talking it around, will blister the whole system of production, especially the big-wigs. Besides suggesting the removal of most of the producers and Will Hays, the five-page letter advocates: That every censor board which let a dirty picture through be removed; that every story should pass censorship before it is bought; that every star pass searching examination as to morals; that every director be made to take an oath to support the constitution of the United States (this against co-called communistic propaganda); that shareholders be quizzed on how many (if any) dividends they have received on motion picture stock—and many other things that would be gloomy reading for Hollywood.

believe what you hear, Ruth Chatterton is lending an eager ear to Harry Cohn's proposals of a Columbia contract. The star is a great pal of Grace Moore and Grace is enthusiastic—as who isn't?—over the way her Columbia picture turned out.

The most attractive feature of the offer to Ruth Chatterton is said to be a story which she likes very much. Ruth actually has turned down 18 pictures since she left Warners, because she couldn't see herself in the roles.

La Chatterton will shave her price—quoting rumor again—if she accepts the Columbia deal. Cohn's offer is said to total $100,000 at $25,000 a picture.

Chemong Sailing

Club Notes

Two sailing meets will be held by the Peterborough Sailing and Aquatic Club at Chemong this week-end. The starting gun on the first will send the dinghies into action about 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon and the second contest will get under way at 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

A fine turn-out of dinghies is expected for the two events. Points will be awarded as in the former contests of the series. While striving to improve their standings in the battle for the seasonal trophies, the dinghy pilots will be grooming their technique with a view to the group showing the club is to make at both the Chemong and Sturgeon Point regattas this summer.

"Handpicked" in the Fruit and Honey Act, 1934, means that, as applied to apples, pears, peaches, apricots, and cherries, they will be considered handpicked unless they show evidence of rough handling or of having been on the ground.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

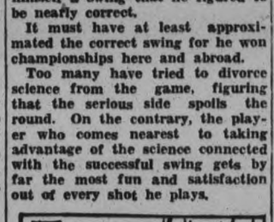
We've had many brilliant players but a truly scientific round of golf has yet to be played.

I mean by this a round in which scientific principle were consistently and deliberately applied.

They've been applied accidentally, of course, and in some cases their application has been closely approximated as in the case of Walter J. Travis who more or less taught himself a swing that he figured to be nearly correct.

It must have at least approximated the correct swing for he won championships here and abroad.

Too many have tried to divorce science from the game, figuring that the serious side spoils the round. On the contrary, the player who comes nearest to taking advantage of the science connected with the successful swing gets by far the most fun and satisfaction out of every shot he plays.



Many players come to me complaining about being uncomfortable as they stand over the ball.

I watch them take their starting position and I've yet to have one of them give any attention to the comfort of their mid-section.

They'll fuss about the angle of the clubface, ignoring the way the shaft of the club slants. Some will twist and squirm their feet around until they're standing pigeon-toed. Others will fret over the position of their hands.

None of them take a position that affords comfort and relaxation to their mid-section.

The best way to take your starting position is by first taking your grip, then placing the clubhead back of the ball. While it's resting there place your feet with your hips tilted toward the left.

You'll find that having your toes turned outward and your hips tilted over to the left keeps your mid-section free and easy.

Baseball reports about the Tigers and the Cubs recently have been sweet music to the ears of Detroit and Chicago fans and it isn't because Manager Mickey Cochrane of the Tigers is champion saxophonist of the American league and Manager Charley Grimm of the Baby Bears No. 1 banjo strummer of the National.

Young Couple Are Honored By Friends

LAKEFIELD, July 20 — On Friday evening about 150 neighbors and friends of Mr. Hilliard Jory, called at the home of Mr. Franklin Jory, to present Hilliard and his bride with a miscellaneous shower. This also took the form of a farewell, since Mr. and Mrs. Jory are making their home at Tepee Creek, Alta. Mr. Jory has been in the Peace River district for the past seven years and is spending a month at his old home here.

The evening was pleasantly spent in games and contests, then Mr. and Mrs. Jory were called out and an address read by Miss Alma McCracken. Mr. and Mrs. Jory, although taken by surprise, made suitable replies in a few well chosen words.

Two large baskets, beautifully decorated in pink and white, were brought in by Barbara Parsons, Iva Little, Muriel Payne and Lois Little. The gifts were opened and displayed on a large table so that all might get a glimpse. "For They are Jolly Good Fellows," was sung. Lunch was served and the remainder of the evening spent in dancing.

The young couple leave for their home with a host of good wishes for future success and happiness.

300 Persons Attend Annual Lawn Social

HASTINGS, July 20.—(Examiner Correspondence). — The beautiful and spacious lawns of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Hess was the scene of the annual lawn social of the ladies of Trinity United Church on Tuesday night. The large lawn, which was lighted especially for this annual occasion which is one of the social events of the summer season, is situated on Albert street overlooking the village, with the very artistic rock garden of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Hess proved to be an ideal spot.

Over three hundred people enjoyed the sumptuous supper served on the long tables. As has been the case in the past, with suppers served by the ladies of Trinity Church there was no end to the good things to eat.

From seven-thirty until nine-thirty the nine-piece orchestra of the United Church of Havelock, under the direction of Mr. Kempt, gave a very delightful musical program on the verandah of the parsonage. Seating capacity of the lawn was all taken up, many standing out on the street for the entertainment. Short addresses were delivered by Rev. F. W. Newell and Rev. Mr. Glover.

At the conclusion of the program, Rev. Newell moved and Mrs. H Edwards seconded a hearty vote of thanks to Dr. and Mrs. Hess, the orchestra and all those who helped make the social such a success.

GRAIN WILTING GOOD RAIN IS BADLY NEEDED

Barley Ripening Fast—Early Crop Looks Exceptionally Good.

CORN FLOURISHING.

Hay Crop Even Lighter Than Expected Three Weeks Ago.

Peterborough farmers are watching their crops and the weather with considerable anxiety as the harvest season approaches with insufficient moisture to fulfill the earlier promise of satisfactory returns for their Spring work.

A note of doubt and pessimism was heard in reports this morning from residents of the neighboring townships, and as a prominent Smith farmer remarked, "If it were pouring down rain, I'd have a different story to tell you. But, with this heat a lot of the grain is wilting badly, and we don't know what the results will be. If we get a good rain over the week-end the situation would look a great deal different to me."

Ripening Fast

Barley is ripening fast, and while the crop that was planted early looks exceptionally good, the later sowing is beginning to show signs of drying up. A timely and widespread rain would be a real benefit.

Oats have been making splendid progress, but the moisture factor enters into the final estimates of his crop.

Corn is flourishing, and is apparenly the last resource of the dairy farmers for sufficient winter feed. A successful farmer told The Examiner that the cultivation of corn at this period was of primary importance. HAIL RAKES AREA S ASKATCHEWAN

Worst Storm in History Wipes Out Crops, Gardens in Ten Mile Strip.

BUILDINGS LEVELLED.

SASKATOON, July 2 1(C.P.). — Hail again took heavy toll in Central and Northern Saskatchewan late on Friday, cutting down crops which showed promise of maturing to a fine harvest in two weeks, and damaging property.

The worst hail storm in the history of the Hafford district destroyed gardens and farm crops over an area about four miles wide and 10 miles long. Windows were smashed in the majority of farm homes, and in the Hafford Hospital 30 windows were broken.

Mike Symchk, farmer, was cut about the head by the big hail stones as he sought shelter with his team in a bluff on his farm. Several buildings were reported levelled.

Some damage was occasioned at Rosetown, but the extent could not be determined early to-day. Telephone communications with Sonningdale, to the north of Rosetown, had not been restored, and it was impossible to ascertain the damage there.

Heavy rains fell in many districts, bringing relief to parched wheat fields.

The Bisley Grand Aggregate is the greatest test of consistent shooting in the world. In King's Prize he ranked second among the Canadians.

FINAL RESULTS ARE UNCHANGED AFTER RECOUNT

Both Liberal and Conservative Lost Votes But Plurality Stands at 34.

C.C.F. IS UNCHANGED.

Cost Against James Hawthorne, Appellant, Assessed at $95.

T. P. Lancaster's plurality of 34 votes was confirmed to the exact figure by Judge L. V. O'Connor late Friday afternoon at the conclusion of the recount which had been in progress from Wednesday morning.

The net result of the judicial examination of the ballots cast in the riding of Peterborough on June 19, a month ago to the day, reduced Mr. Lancaster's and James Hawthorne's previously announced totals by seven votes each, and left Rev. John A. Sutherland's unchanged.

The vote recorded by Judge O'Connor was as follows: T. P. Lancaster, M.L.A., Conservative, 9,394; James Hawthorne, Liberal, 9,360; and Rev. J. A. Sutherland, C.C.F., 2,288.

The previously published figures as compiled by the returning officer, Sheriff F. J. A Hall, a week after the election, from the original count by the deputy-returning officers throughout the riding, were: Lancaster, 9,401; Hawthorne, 9,367, and Sutherland, 2,288.

Judge O'Connor expressed his congratulations to Mr. Lancaster, who was the only one of the three principals present.

"I am not entitled to declare the winner of the election for two days," His Honor said. "That delay is required in the event of a possible appeal, and I shall issue the certificates in two days and send it out."

Costs against the appellant in the recount, Mr. Hawthorne, were assessed at the prescribed sum of $95.

Judge's Compliments

"I think the electors of Peterborough county are to be congratulated on the manner in which they cast their ballots," Judge O'Connor said in reference to the comparatively few votes that were

BARLOW BREAKS LATE SCORE TIE TO GAIN HONORS

First Time Yorkshire Marksman Had Ever Been Among Major Winners in Bisley Shoot.

5TH ENGLISH WIN.

Sergeant-Major George Emslie of Toronto, Leads Canadian Finalists.

BISLEY CAMP, July 21 (C. P. Cable). — Captain J. A. Barlow of West Yorkshire Regiment, to-day won the King's Prize, the Empire's classic of service rifle shooting.

Barlow, a Bisley veteran, won the blue riband of marksmanship on his sixth entry into the final stage of the arduous shoot.

The Empire's greatest award for the rifleman thus eluded the Canadians who had been driving forward with important wins all week, and had sent nine men into the final stage of the King's.

It was the fifth English victory in succession since Canada scored the last of her six triumphs in the big match with Lt.-Col. R. M. Blair of Victoria in 1929.

In all his years of competition at the big Imperial meeting of the National Rifle Association, Barlow had never gained even the bronze

LONDON BROKER IS FOUND DEAD

Car Hits Bridge—Heart Attack Believed Climax of Worry on Court Case.

FINED $2,300.

LONDON, Ont. July 21.—(CP)—Seized with a heart attack, believed to have been brought on through worry over a court case which resulted in a $2,300 fine on Friday, James Russell Carlyle Struthers, London broker was found dead in his overturned automobile one mile east and one mile north of Springfield this morning.

Mr. Struther's body was removed from the wreckage of the machine in the ditch alongside the road after it had struck the end of a small cement bridge, at a spot known as Simon Charton Corner. Nearby residents ran to the scene and immediatey called Dr. Freeman of Springfield who stated he was of the opinion Mr. Struthers was dead before car left the road.

He notified Coroner Dr. C. Sinclair of Aylmer who hurried to the scene.

Under Special Care

Two weeks ago when Mr. Struthers was to have appeared in court for judgment on the three charges under the Securities Act, a doctor's certificate signed by Dr. Percy Banghart of this city was produced to the effect that Mr. Struthers was under constant medical attention and was under the care of a day and night special nurse. At that time the cause of illness was given as a nervous breakdown and heart

PORT LAMBTON, Ont., July 21 (C.P.). — 'Dogged does it," but not with a wildcat. George Brouton's dog was badly mauled by an old she cat in the bush near this village. Brouton beat her off with a long pole, and she retreated up a tree in which crouched three of her offspring.

TWO AGED MEN KILLED IN CRASH

Pair Evidently Blinded by Sun Struck by Bus Near Hamilton.

CAR IS WRECKED.

HAMILTON, July 21.— (CP) — Coroner Dr. O. A. Cannon of Hamilton today continued a detailed investigation into the death of two aged men in a crash between a light coupe and a passenger bus on the highway near here last night.

The two men, Richard Whitlock, 77, and Daniel Coyne, 73, both of Brantford, died in hospital within five minutes of each other after their bodies had been removed from the wreckage of their car.

Police investigating were told the little car, driven by Coyne, zigzagged across the highway in the path of the bus when the aged driver apparently became blinded by the sun.

The two unconscious men were pulled from the wreckage and died shortly after an ambulance carried them to hospital. Driver of the bus was not held, and it was not decided immediately if an inquest would be held.

Peterboro' Paddler Leaves Gaspe Braving 270-Mile Trip Over Gulf To Newfoundland

GASPE, July 21.—(CP)—Alone in his 16-foot canoe, John Smith of Peterborough, was somewhere out in the broad reaches of the Gulf of St. Lawrence today, battling wind, waves and currents in an effort to reach Cape Ray, the tip of Newfoundland. Smith plans to paddle across the Atlantic to the British Isles.

The lonely paddler put out from here yesterday without even a compass. He believed he can navigate by sun and stars on the 270-mile journey to Newfoundland.

From Cape Ray, Smith told seafaring men here he will follow the coastline of Newfoundland till he reaches St. John's. The latter city will be his point of departure on the 2,000 mile voyage across the ocean.

Smith arrived here July 18. Early yesterday he was up preparing his canoe for the voyage across the gulf and he paddled briskly away at noon. Fishermen reported him "lying-to" six hours later 30 miles away, while a storm blew itself out.

Beamsville Blaze Sweeps Bush, Farms

BEAMSVILLE, July 21 (C.P.).—Starting afresh to-day after it was thought to have been completely under control at a late hour last night, fire continued to claim a heavy toll of timber and farm crops over a wide area above this town at noon to-day. It was estimated that over 80 acres, including wooded lands, pasture and wheat fields, had been ravished by the blaze which was said to have started about o'clock yesterday from a spark blown from a stump which was being burned on a nearby farm.

Waiting List

WINDSOR, Ont., July 21 (C. P.). — Already the new hostel being erected by the Essex County Humane Society has a waiting list. Workmen saw a small dog, holding up an injured paw, hobble on three legs to the door frame, peer inside, and then go and lie down by the side of the building, as if to wait until it was ready for him.

BIG NEWS SOON SAYS HEPBURN MORE CHANGES

New Premier to Date Has Lopped Off $200,000 Off Administration Costs.

10 DAYS IN OFFICE.

Moves Fast to Fulfilling Promise of 50 Per Cent Slash in Outlay.

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, July 21 (C.P.)—Rapid change is the order of affairs in Ontario under the new government of Premier Mitchell Hepburn. In the general election a month ago the Liberal party appealed for votes with the slogan "It's time for a change."

The change has not been delayed. No sooner was the 11-year-old Conservative government of office than changes started. They have followed one another in rapid succession and still Premier Hepburn says "You haven't seen anything yet. We will have big news for you soon."

To-day is the 10th day of office for Premier Hepburn and his colleagues. In those 10 days scores of officials have been discharged, some to be replaced by others, some not—probes were launched, a new liquor law was proclaimed and put in operation, works were closed down, government automobiles were called in for sale at auction and a sharp controversy waged with the mayor of Toronto in which the last word has yet to be said.

50 Per Cent Cut?

Recalling his promise to cut expenses 50 percent Premier Hepburn launched at once on a program of economy. It is roughly estimated he has so far lopped more than $200,000 a year from the annual cost of administering the affairs of Ontario.

A few of the savings effected were: A $2,000 a year reduction in the salaries of cabinet ministers; withdrawal of the use of government motor cars from cabinet ministers and high officials; closing of Ontario House in London, England; re-organization of the Prime Minister's department; replacement of the Hydro and Liquor Commissions and re-organization of their staffs; dismissal of District Health Officers; stoppage of work on high-

STATUTE OF BRITTANIA FOR MINDEMOYA CHURCH

MINDEMOYA, Ont., July 21 (C. P.)—The Church of St. Francis of Assisi, now under construction here by members of its congregation, which has been deeded a statute of Brittania from St. Stephen's Church by the English Parliament, will have within its walls pieces of stone from three of the most famous church buildings in the old land when it is completed.

Canterbury Cathedral, Westminster Abbey and Yorkminster will all contribute parts of their buildings for the stone church which is being erected now. Brass plates have been donated by George S. Henry, former premier of Ontario, and Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada.

An oil painting of Christ in the garden of Gethsemene, the product of Frank Scott Clark, noted Detroit artist, and for which he has been offered $3,000, has been donated to the church by its painter and will be placed before the altar.

It is expected that the church will be opened next spring and dedicated by Right Rev. Rocksborough R. Smith, Bishop of the Diocese of Algoma.

PERJURY COUNT IS LAID AGAINST ALVIN THOMPSON

Claimed He Was Bachelor in Obaining License to Wed Another July 18.

BAIL IS REFUSED.

Over 1,000 File Past Body of Victim Before Identification Made.

TORONTO, July 21.—(C. P.)—Alvin Thompson, husband of the woman whose battered body was found under a lilac bush, was arrested today on a charge of perjury. Thompson and his brother-in-law left their temporary residence on Ontario Street in company with city and provincial police. Inspector Stringer of the Provincial Police said Thompson had been taken into custody on a charge of perjury connected with a marriage license. "It is not the license connected with his marriage to the slain woman," police said.

After it was estimated more than 1,000 persons had filed past her body, the woman was definitely identified last night as Mrs. Viola Thompson, 25.

Today detectives started an exhaustive tracing of the woman's movements from the time she left her home Tuesday night. It was reported some investigators left for Niagara Falls and Stamford race track early today in connection with the search.

So far as is known, Mrs. Thompson walked to a nearby grocery store made some purchases and departed presumably for home. From that time on her movements are a mystery.

Crown Attorney J. W. McFadden said the charge of perjury had been issued against Thompson arising out of his actions on July 18 when he obtained a marriage license to wed another woman, declaring in an affadavit he was a bachelor.

AUSSIES TOTAL 494 RUNS FOR 4

W. H. Ponsford and Don Bradman Combine for New Partnership Record.

38,000 SEE MATCH.

LEEDS, Eng., July 21. — (C. P. Cable) — With a new test match partnership record established by W. H. Ponsford and Don Bradmen, Australia took a long lead over England in the fourth test match of the season today.

At the close of play before a crowd of 38,000 that broke the ground record, Australia had amassed 494 runs for a loss of only four wickets, in reply to England's first innings total of 200 runs.

The teams have been even in the three previous games, each winning one with one drawn.

Ponsford and Bradman smashed a 22-year-od test match record partnership for any wicket, when they put together 388 runs before the fourth wicket fell. The score was carried from 39 runs overnight to 494 with the loss of only one wicket.

BODY IDENTIFIED BY HER BROTHER AND FIVE OTHERS

Husband Suffering From Shock is Not So Thoroughly Convinced.

MOTHER OF 2 CHILDREN.

Victim's Trail Ends After She Left Store on Trip for Groceries.

TORONTO, July 21.— (CP) — Resources of Ontario provincial and Toronto city police were thrown today into a widespread search for the slayer of a young woman whose body was found Thursday beneath a lilac bush on the outskirts of the city.

The body was identified last night by six relatives and friends as that of Mrs. Vila Thompson, 25, mother of two children and wife of unemployed Alvin Thompson, 27, a Toronto resident. Thompson, himself, said he was not convinced of the identification, made through a scar on the back and two abnormalities of the ear lobes. The couple moved here from Guelph, where Mrs. Thompson was born, three years ago.

Coroner M. M. Crawford said the woman had been attacked criminally and had died of a fractured skull believed to have resulted from a blow on the head with a pointed stone found embedded in the ground near the body.

Inspector Albert Ward of the Ontario Police and Detective Sergeant George Tuft of the Toronto force launched an extensive investigation of the woman's movements since Tuesday night, the time her husband said he saw her last.

Left For Groceries

He said she had left their home to buy groceries at a nearby store. A preliminary check indicated she reached the store, made her purchases and disappeared thereafter.

Thompson was said to have been reluctant to confirm the identity of the body without the additional corboration of George Rudd, a brother of the dead woman.

The six who identified the body last night included Herbert Rudd, another brother; Stanley Thompson, a brother-in-law, and Miss Grace Thompson, sister-in-law.

The husband was reported suffering from severe shock and strain occasioned by long anxiety following his wife's disappearance.

N. York Society Girl Shot Climbing Fence

WASHINGTON, July 21 (A.P.).—Washington society was saddened to-day by the target shooting accident which cost the life of Louise Dudley Breckinridge, 17-year-old daughter of Colonel Henry Breckinridge.

The girl, who had gone target shooting at Battery Park, near Bethesda, Maryland, died instantly yesterday when her .22 calibre rifle caught in a fence she was trying to scale and discharged a bullet into her heart.

Her father, a close friend and legal adviser of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, was assistant secretary of war under President Woodrow Wilson. He is a prominent New York lawyer.

With the exception of corn and sugar beets which show increases, there is little change in the acreage of late-sown crops in Canada, according to the preliminary estimate.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 21 (A.P.)—Striking Minneapolis truck drivers demanded a general strike to-day after a day of violence in which 68 persons were wounded in a blast of shotguns.

Federal meditators, faced with the ultimatum of the strikers that they would offer peace negotiations until assured they would "not be shot down like dogs," worked feverishly to stem the rising tide of indignation among the truck drivers.

CANADIAN FRUIT YIELD SLUMPS

APPLES, PEACHES DOWN.

OTTAWA, July 21.—A sharp reduction in Canadian fruit production in 1934 is forecast in the second fruit report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Compared with 1933 it is estimated there will be 5,891,700 fewer quarts of strawberries; 52,326 bushels of cherries; a falling off in the peach crop of 364,123 bushels and a reduction of 1,965,190 barrels in the yield of apples. British Columbia was the only province in which production was expected to equal last year's volume.

The severity of the past Winter resulted in extensive Winter killing and injury throughout Eastern Canada. The early growing season was characterized by cool weather and drought in some areas—particularly Ontario. In Quebec Winter damage was extensive but the growing season has not been as unfavorable as that experienced in Ontario. In the Maritime provinces varying degrees of winter-injury are reported and the early part of the season was inclined to be cool. More recently drought has been a factor affecting the development of fruits.

Following are the production figures for 1933 with the estimated 1934 production shown:

	1933	1934
Strawberries (quarts)	22,742,700	16,851,000
Raspberries (quarts)	6,402,400	6,173,750
Cherries (bushels) ...	215,406	162,080
Apricots, B.C. (bushels) ...	22,841	101,300

Weather Conditions Lend Price Strength

WINNIPEG, July 21 (C.P.). — Weather news, this time at home, and willingness of Argentine exporters to follow the general upward trend of wheat prices provided the base for another price advance on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange this week. Wheat futures to-day show a net gain of 3⅛c to 2½ cents for the week.

Speculative purchases again comprised most of the trade as futures advanced strongly throughout the week. Values suffered only one severe setback, a decline of 1¾ cents being recorded on Friday when the traders sought to collect their profits of the advance. July futures ended at 84¾c, October 85¾c to 86c, and December 87⅛c to 87¼c.

Cash grains were enlivened by a demand for Durums, large premiums being paid for this variety of wheat. Other grades, however were featureless. Coarse grains futures closely followed the action of wheat and, with the exception of oats, all showed moderate advances.

SECOND YEAR NORMAL TERM TO BE BANNED

Order in Council Ending Henry System Expected Next Week.

SNAGS CROP UP.

Substitute Plan Likely to Involve Compulsory Summer School Attendance.

TORONTO, July 21.—Abolition of the second year normal school course for teachers will be made the subject of an Order-in-Council of the Hepburn Government next week, it was learned at the Parliament Buildings yesterday. Dr. L. J. Simpson, Minister of Education, is expected to place before Cabinet Council a substitute system which will be free of the features which so many teachers find undesirable in the system to be scrapped.

The second year normal course was put into effect by the Henry Government in an effort to raise the standard of teacher-training and to keep down the number of teachers. Though leading educationists endorsed it whole-heartedly the system met stout opposition in the rural districts.

Summer School.

It is believed the substitute plan will involve compulsory summer school attendance. At the present time attendance at summer courses is optional and the Department is gratified at the hundreds of men and women teachers who have already availed themselves of the opportunity of better equipping themselves. It is believed a compulsory summer course would be popular and would silence the opposition of public schcol teachers who object to having to go back to normal school for a second year after teaching for three or four years.

Difficulties.

The big difficulty facing the government is the fact that many teachers have been granted a year's leave of absence in order to take the second year normal training. Substitute teachers have been engaged in their place and if the government decides to abolish the system, either the teachers who have been granted leave of absence or the temporary teachers hired to take their jobs will be ousted. Then, too, it is pointed out that scrapping of the normal course will remove the check on the numbers who yearly flock to the teaching profession, sadly overcrowded already as educationists admit.

The big advantage to the teaching profession in the wiping out of the normal training, from a financial standpoint, is that the bogey of losing a year's salary will be removed. As matters stand now, teachers are expected to make provision for the time when they will have to go back to normal school without remuneration.

According to observers, the government may decide to withhold action for the present, contenting themselves with the announcement that the second year normal course would be abolished in 1936-36.

OVER 100 DEAD U. S. HEAT WAVE

Missouri Alone Has 33 Dead as Temperatures of 100 Are Common.

STOCK DYING OFF.

CHICAGO, July 21.—(A.P.)—Heat fatalities in the current hot spell in the United States exceeded 100 to-day.

Missouri alone counted 33 dead in the past two days. Nebraska, whose farmers have seen their crops wither under the devastating heat rays, reported 23 head in a little more than a week.

The figures for the remainder of the torrid area were:

Kansas, four; Oklahoma, six; Connecticut, two; Ohio, three; Minnesota, three; Chicago, 16; Quincy, Ill., three; Iowa, six; New York, three; Texas, 10; Joliet, Ill., Pennsylvania and Indiana, one each.

Temperatures of more than 100 degrees were common yesterday throughout the stricken area and no general relief was in prospect.

In St. Louis, where 30 have perished from the heat so far this season, the temperature was 109 yesterday. Chicago had 89. New York got a temporary breathing spell from a maximum of 90 degrees when showers fell, but afterwards the mercury shot back up to 87. Mexico, Mo., was the hottest spot with 114.

At Fort Smith, Ark., hundreds of persons joined in a prayer meeting for rain.

Meanwhile the loss of livestock grew hourly. Horses were reported falling dead in the harvest fields, and cattle, ill from thirst and hunger, were perishing in the pastures.

ATHLETES FOOT

This is an ailment not only common to golfers, swimmers, tennis and ball players but also among all who do much walking. It is really a sort of ringworm which attacks the skin on the sides of the toes. Inflammation is set up and there is itching and burning which causes much discomfort. By bathing the feet thoroughly in hot water and applying Dr. Chase's Ointment freely, you can soon entirely overcome this trouble.

OTTAWA ORDER CUTS GAS PRICE

Lowers Imposts on United States' Product—Passed Last Session.

REGULAR TARIFF HOLDS.

OTTAWA, July 21. — (C.P.) — An order in council which will have the effect in many cases of lowering the imposts on United States gasoline coming to Canada by one cent a gallon has been pased by the Dominion government. The order is based on the authority of two bills passed in the last session of Parliament, amending the customs act so that special taxes levied by the United States on products there might be disregarded by Canadian customs appraisers in deciding on the fair market value of any product.

The United States has an excise tax of one cent a gallon on gasoline. In the past the fair market was fixed by Canadian customs officials. The change does not affect the regular tariff on gasoline which is 2½ cents a gallon, but in most cases a dumping duty has also been levied, and this will be reduced by one cent a gallon. An insistent demand for this change has come from Western Canada.

A similar action has been taken in regard to lubricating oils, hogs and cottons, which have processing taxes. These will be disregarded in fixing the fair market values in future. As these changes are ad valorum the changes will apply both to the regular tariffs and the dumping duties where such are imposed.

$50,000 Damage Fire In St. Therese

ST. THERESE DE BLAINVILLE, Quebec, July 20 (C.P.). — St. Therese was menaced by a fire that destroyed the three-storey sash and door factory of Emery Magnan two nearby homes, and several outbuildings early to-day. Firemen from Montreal, St. Jerome and Ste. Rose were called by Mayor A. Coulombe to aid the village volunteer brigade. Before the flames were checked after a stiff five-hour battle, damage estimated at over $50,000 had been caused.

There are no hydrants in Ste. Therese and firemen were forced to couple 32 lengths of hose together to reach the water in a small river that runs through the town.

Now they're searching the neighborhood for placer gold.

Floods In Poland Sweep On Warsaw

WARSAW, Poland, July 21 (A.P.). —Flood waters which have ravaged Southern Poland for days swirled to-day about the edges of Warsaw itself.

Residents of endangered zones were hastily evacuated. The Vistula River, swollen by heavy rains, is expected to inundate lower sections of the city.

Steamers were unable to pass bridges because of the Vistula's high stage.

The floods took some 30 to 40 lives when a bridge at Sandomir collapsed yesterday. At least 120 others are known to be dead in southern provinces, with more than that number missing.

The bridge spanned the Vistula, eleven members of an engineering corps were said to have been among victims of the collapse.

rejected. "I also wish to express my thanks to the gentleman who have been associated with me during the last few days for their assistance that has enabled me to complete this work in a rather short time. They are also to be congratulated on the spendid spirit which they have shown. It is wonderful to find a number of gentlemen representing both sides of politics coming together in a friendly way to help in this work, and getting along for three days without one cross word. It has been a pleasure to have been associated with them, and may I say again, we had a splendid lot of ballots."

In a brief reply Mr. Lancaster said: "May I congratulate Your Honor on the fair and impartial manner in which you have conducted the recount, and also the gentlemen who assisted you for the goodfellowship and may I say, sportsmanship, which has existed throughout."

Judge O'Connor's assistants in behalf of Mr. Lancaster were: J. F Strickland, K.C., J. D. Lawrie, Emmett Sheehy and H. I. Bradburn; and for Mr Hawthorne, W. F. Huycke, J. A. Harstone, T. J. Carley and Jacob Low.

Twenty-two Ballots Considered.

When the figures for the 137 polls in the city and county had been tabulated by W. B. Gordon as calle dout to him by Judge O'Connor for adding machine totalling, His Honor dealt with the twenty-two ballots which had been set aside for final consideration. Fourteen of them were definitely rejected, after some of them had been "paired" by Mr. Huycke and Mr. Strickland.

Of the remaining eight, five were pronounced valid for Mr. Hawthorne and three for Mr. Lancaster. And of the fourteen that were cast out nine were Lancaster votes and five Hawthorne. There was virtually no dispute about any of them.

The ballot from poll 69, Cottesloe, in Dummer township, which had manifestly been counted for Lancaster on the night of the election, but which had apparently by mischance fallen on the floor among loose papers where it was found the next morning by the deputy-returning officer and returned to Sheriff Hall a week later, this ballot was among the rejected.

Judge O'Connor remarked in the presence of Mr. Lancaster and counsel that there was no question about it being improperly returned.

Another ballot paper, apparently marked for Hawthorne, had been wrongly torn after folding, and was put in the box with the upper part, bearing Mr. Hawthorne's name, missing. Judge O'Connor dismissed it with the remark that it simply was "no ballot."

Smudged Ballots

Other ballots were rejected because while they were properly marked in one space they were "smudged" in others by voters who for some reason or other changed their minds, and started to rub out the marks indicating their first choices.

It was stated that if a voter desires to make a change of that nature he should ask the deputy-returning officer for another blank ballot. In these local cases, comprising most of the fourteen that were quickly disposed of, the voters either rubbed out or scribbled out the first "X" and marked another "X" in an adjoining space.

Both Mr. Lancaster and Mr. Hawthorne had losses in this respect.

For example, if a voter first marked his "X" for Mr. Lancaster then rubbed or smudged it out and put an "X" opposite Mr. Hawthorne's name, that ballot was declared invalid.

A Peculiar Incident

Mr. Huycke showed The Examiner a ballot which had been cast at one of the Burleigh Road camps. It bore on its face a big "X" across the three spaces, probably with the intention of destroying its effect, and possibly the voter did not wish to vote for any one of three men but went through the motions of casting a ballot.

But, the feature of this ballot was that the two strokes of the "X" crossed in the white space opposite Mr. Lancaster's name, and Judge O'Connor declared it a vote for Mr. Lancaster. Possibly that was precisely the elector's purpose, but the probabilities seemed to be against that interpretation.

Another voter marked his "X" for Lancaster and added what looked like an "O" opposite the two other names. Judge O'Connor said it could not be certain whether the sketchy "O" in the other spaces were a form of signature or not and disallowed the vote.

There were about 180 spoiled ballots altogether, less than one per cent of the total as compared with about 5 per cent in an Ottawa recount. Most of the local number were blanks and "smudges" it was stated.

Sabbath Message For The Shut-Ins

LAMPS SHOULD GIVE OUT LIGHT.

By REV. RALPH D. WRIGHT, M.A., B.Th., Minister of Gilmour Memorial Baptist Church.

IN a recent article in "The Christian World," Dr. James Black draws attention to an instance of our missing of the delicate shade of meaning naturally resident in the original text and innocently lost in the Authorized Version. The distinction is very interesting and of more than passing significance for us. The verse in question is found in St. John's Gospel, chapter V., verse 35, and reads in the ordinary translation, "He (John the Baptist) was a burning and shining light." The Greek word is undoubtedly not "light," but "lamp," the vehicle of the light! John the Baptist was a burning and shining lamp. This, apparently minor distinction, has its underlying meaning admirably brought out in Westcott's comment, "John the Baptist was the lamp, the derivative, and not the self-luminous light." In the New Testament Jesus Himself is the only person described as "Light." John and anybody else are lams that need constant care and attention that they may ever be the mediums through which the source of all light may shine.

In this distinction between light and lamps there lies a great sermon upon which all Christians might do well to ponder. Despite all our admitted frailities and mistakes our lives are capable after all of emitting light. They are lamps and ought to shine forth. But we must always remember the light is "derivative." We hail with joy a beautiful moonlit night. Our beings are strangely stirred by its borrowed light. And after all our joy is dependent on the fact of the moon being a good reflector. We are the lamps. How have we been fashioned to reflect the light? After all the shape of the lamp has much to do with the quality of the light. Have we been fashioned according to the pattern shown us in the Mount? Herein lies the final difference between the Old Man and the New Man. Also that so many Christians are content to light the lamp only. It needs constant trimming or the chimney being blackened few indeed will discern the light of Christ within us. Or perhaps you are thinking of the habit the moon has of only shining brightly a day or so in the month. Oh, yes, but so many Christians do not have any regularly recurring moments when that Light which alone can light men is to be seen. To omany of us are like the foolish virgins our Lordtold of in the Parable. We have our lamps, but when we could do something with them there is no oil and we are left crouching bitterly about their dying embers.

If we to-day are to be of any light to our generation we must never forget the humble message in this little text. We, too, are like John the Baptist, "lamps." Are we burning and shining lamps as Jesus testified of him If we would be such it can only be by constant daily attention and care.

And there is this comfort amidst our daily failings: We are lamps! Let us see to it that we are faithful keeps of those lamps. We can then be sure Christ will make them burn and shine brightly, that all our difficulties will be pierced by that radiant beam and our own individual radiance, lit at the light within, shall become a light to other stumbling feet.

Most Christians are so anxious to follow the precepts of St. Paul it were almost well he had never said, "When I became a man I put away childish things," at least as far as our use in maturer life of childhood's hymns. Surely we want to keep on singing:

"Jesus bids us shine with a clear, pure light,
Like a little candle burning in the night;
In this world of darkness we must shine—
You in your small corner and I in mine.

"Jesus bids us shine, first of all for Him;
Well He sees and knows it if our light is dim;
He looks down from heaven to see us shine—
You in your small corner and I in mine.

"Jesus bids us shine, then, for all around
Many kinds of darkness in this world abound:
Sin and want and sorrow, so we must shine—
You in your small corner and I in mine."

Ah, me, how poorly so many of us have been about this business of shining for Jesus! Our danger is to forget we are lamps, our glory to remember that we are.

Partnership

MAN plows, plants, digs and weeds,
He works with hoe and spade;
God sends the sun rain and air,
And then a garden is made.
He must be proud who tills the soil
And turns the heavy sod;
How wonderful a thing to be
In partnership with God!

Work reveals character, but so does waiting.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Religious and Social Questions Answered
By DR. WYLIE CLARK

What is the difference between avoiding tvil and facing it.—S.A.R.

Some of us try to grow in character by avoiding all places and conditions where we might be tempted or defeated. Our main object is to see difficulties and keep away from them. By following this method we may get through without any collapse or disastrous happening; but we will not be sure of our strength neither will we have done anything worth while in destroying the evils or bringing in the good.

Dr. Wylie Clark

It is far better to meet the needs of life and do with them what ought to be done and thus in the very meeting of them to assure ourselves that we are neither children nor angels, but men and women in a world of reality where sufficient power and determination may be found to make us overcomers and give us the victory.

The cross was not avoided; it was met and defeated because it was in the purpose of things.

Are not some of the most prominent ministers of the different denominations going batty on the war question?—G.Y.R.

I should say they are going sensible. The great war was war with all the horrors of human ingenuity let loose to serve the devil in the destruction of the human race. Anyone who will sit down and put on paper the results of those four years and squarely face them, will be convinced that those who are against war are wise men and not fools.

Are we not getting entirely away from the gospel of salvation by faith and going over to Salvation by works.—G.B.S.

With all the social reforms we are talking about and working at, it would seem as if "good works" were the main theme of our religion, but is not this so, because we have reached a clearer conception of what God wants done in this world and our faith in this desire of His drives us to make better conditions in the world. In other words, are we not just trying to follow the exhortation of James to prove our faith by our works.

We surely require all the works we can possibly do in order that we may convince a needy world that there is something in and behind our faith which is good enough to rescue and build up the high hopes of the greatest dreamer.

In the letter I have written you, what would you advise me to do?—"Blanche."

It is hard to judge your condition, but from other cases I have known I would say, you are not nearly as ill as you think you are.

I fancy you have a combination of nerves and fear, both of which you could overcome by an exertion of will-power. Life should yet hold much usefulness and happiness for you.

The Psychology of Jealousy

By PAUL COLOLIAN, M.D.
Condensed from Les Annales, Paris by Magazine Digest.

CRIME with its passion and brutality provides an inexhaustible source of inspiration for writers and novelists. It is the current coin of the daily press.

But passionate crimes form a chapter in themselves in the vast field of criminology. An ordinary crime is always despicable. A passionate crime usually arouses the sympathy of the public and the offender has a good chance of meeting with the indulgence of jurors and magistrates.

The number of passionate crimes is so obviously on the increase that it has become the object of scientific study. Is it a morbid emotion that drives man to kill for love or is it the effect of bad reading?

Both surmises are in a way correct. In romantic literature, adultery was "honored, magnified, glorified, deified." From romance there was but a step to reality. Today the passionate crime is an everyday occurrence.

Ordinary crimes are committed for various reasons. Passionate crimes are inspired only by one passion: jealousy which is unquestionably a morbid emotion. But how does it arm the whitest and most innocent hands?

Jealousy is an emotion natural with all living beings and familiar to all ages. Among children jealousy is very frequent, as it is among animals. The dog growls when another animal approaches its bowl of food. It is jealous of its property and does not want to part with it.

Jealousy in a latent condition is ever present in the sphere of our subconsciousness. Different causes may arouse it to activity. It may be awakened suddenly, through the brutal revelation of unfaithfulness on the part of those we love, or gradually under the influence of doubt.

Amorous jealousy is nothing but the fear of losing our property. We do not like to lose anything. The pleasure we derive from finding something is not half as great as the pain caused by the loss of something that belongs to us. The object of our love which releases in us subjective and objective reactions is our property which we want to keep to ourselves. Love is very egotistic and jealousy is its vigilant guardian. We love for our own sake and satisfaction.

A man may love a woman in a platonic fashion. He, too, may be jealous of her, but his jealousy will also be platonic. We do not know of many passionate crimes inspired by platonic love. The platonic lover has nothing to lose. His jealousy is sentimental, but not passionate, and does not go as far as crime.

Jealousy may exist without love and it may awaken love. A husband no longer loves his wife. She has become indifferent to him. Conscious of it ,the wife begins to flirt with other men, to accept their homage. If she does it ostensibly, under the eyes of her husband she will surely awaken jealousy in him. The jealousy will lead to scenes between them, but ultimately it very often leads to the reawakening of the old love on the husband's part.

Jealousy is aroused and stimulated by injured pride and ambition. Philosophers who have given the problem much thought, like Vauvenargues and La Rochefoucauld, maintain that jealousy is the disease of ambition rather than of love proper.

Men are vain. They are proud of their victories, they take delight in their power. All of them are Don Juans at heart. The man who falls in love with a woman cannot admit that she may have physical or moral shortcomings. She is to him perfection, because she is his property. Of course, he is terribly disappointed when he finds ou tthat he no longer has absolute power over her and that she takes an interest in other men or even thinks of them. His ambition suffers terribly. But take away his ambition and very little will actually remain of his great love.

It is a current opinion that men are unhappier than women and suffer the pangs of jealousy more acutely.

Maybe this is true of a certain category of men who are by nature very proud. but it does not by any means apply to all men and women. The jealous woman goes through the same mortal sufferings as the jealous man. It is all a question of temperament and constitution. Amorous jealousy releases reactions and emotions that are more or less violent, not according to the sex or the degree of suffering, but according to the constitution of the individual.

A jealous woman is as bad as a fury. This, too, is a matter of constitution.

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

THE aspirant upon the mystical Way will meet with many reverses. There will be times when the lower self asserting itself in rebellion will seem to have nullified all progress, all growth. Then is the disciple apt to question the utility of the effort, to fall into despair at the magnitude of the apparently hopeless task. But there is no need to despair. It is inevitable that these things should be. Progress, at least in the earlier stages of the culture of the higher Self, is not in a straight line, but in a series of advances and retreats as first the higher and then the lower sides of the disciple's nature predominate. To subjugate the lower to the higher is ever a long and arduous task and may not be accomplished easily, but to give up because of the difficulty only magnifies the difficulty. There is as much reason to arise and struggle on after the hundredth fall as after the first, and it is this determination that strengthens the character. The kingdom of heaven is not for the weaklings, but for those who in the face of repeated seeming failure can still turn their faces to the Light, and struggle in the mire to reach the solid ground. The main thing is not to trouble overmuch about the failing, but to keep going, for it is not our lower selves which can judge of our success, but the almost unknown higher self within us. The lower self must stand aside. as is written: "Stand aside in the coming battle, and though thou fightest, be not thou the warrior. Look for the warrior and let Him fight in thee. . . . He is thyself, yet thou art but finite and liable to error. He is eternal and is sure. He is eternal truth. When once He has entered thee and become thy warrior, He will never utterly desert thee, and at the day of the great peace He will become one with thee."—Frater IX., Rosicrucian Order, San Jose, Calif.

Elijah Hears God's Voice — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—I Kings 19:9-21.
By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

After Elijah's victory over the false priests on Mt. Carmel he fled to escape the wrath of the wicked queen Jezebel and hid under the juniper bush and begged God to take his life. He was utterly discouraged and down in the dumps feeling his life was a failure.

God gave him the vision of himself the prophet needed. He showed him a terrific storm of wind, then an earthquake and fire. In none of these could Elijah find any trace of God. Then he heard a still small voice which he recognized as God's.

God's methods are the quiet invisible methods of love and grace as seen best in Jesus and not the destructive methods of judgment Elijah thought God preferred. From this lesson God sent Elijah to anoint kings for various nations. Elijah's work was not yet done.

Copyright, 1934, by Central Press Association, Inc.

Elijah still had before him the task of selecting and preparing his successor Elisha to whom he came at his work plowing in the field with his oxen. Elisha sacrifices and left his farming and became a great prophet.

SPANIARDS TO HUNT GOLD ON 19 SUNKEN GALLEONS

MADRID, July 21.—(C.P.-Havas)—The 19 galleons of the Franco-Spanish fleet sunk in the Bay of Vigo in September, 1703, by the combined British and Dutch fleets, under Sir George Rooke and the Duke of Ormonde, will be searched for gold, the newspaper El Debate reported to-day.

Although several previous attempts to salvage the treasure brought by the fleet from the West Indies were fruitless, a new attempt will be made next summer by a Spanish company, to whom the Spanish government has granted the exclusive right of salvage in return for a 20 per cent. share in the supposed treasure.

The Spanish company intends to use compressed air caissons. It was believed that the maximum depth to be explored will not exceed 82 feet at high tide.

PUBLIC OPINION WINS.

History has repeated itself in San Francisco where public opinion has crushed the general strike and the strike committee has voted to return to work.

On paper plans for a general tie-up by means of a simultaneous strike in all lines of business and industry seem to be invincible, but always when the actual test comes and the rights of others are being interfered with by mass action the pressure of an aroused public opinion is quick to assert itself and the strike collapses.

It was so in Great Britain eight years ago; it is so in San Francisco to-day.

The trouble on the Pacific Coast has already cost a terrific price.

The original strike, involving the long shoremen, has itself entailed tremendous losses, for 250 ships have been tied up, the shippers have lost $50,000,000, cargoes amounting to $75,000,000 have been held, and the strikers have dropped $3,500,000 in wages.

When to these losses are added the cost of a general strike, the seriousness of the situation should be apparent to everybody; it is a battle in which everybody loses, and for that reason the decision to end the general strike is a triumph for common sense and clear thinking.

ANOTHER CANADIAN TRIUMPH.

It was Empire Day in old England yesterday with the Empire's sons from the self-governing dominions featured in the sporting headlines.

Australia was doubly prominent, for her renowned cricketers were engaged in the fourth test match for the mythical "Ashes," and at the same time her tennis stars, Jack Crawford and Vivian McGrath, were in action in the semi-final round of the Davis Cup competition with the United States team as their opponents.

Meanwhile at historic Bisley Camp, Canada's riflemen, stamping themselves as one of the strongest teams that has ever represented the Dominion at this gathering of the Empire's greatest marksmen, were winning the Kolapore competition, the second major team trophy shot for at Bisley every year.

To ad dthe Kolapore Trophy to the McKinnon Cup won Thursday by the Canadians means that the chief team honors of the annual shoot have been monopolized by the keen-eyed, iron-nerved riflemen from the Dominion, a wonderful feat on the part of the Canadian team.

The King's Prize, the chief individual competition, would be a fitting trophy to add to those honors already won by the Maple Leaf marksmen, but even if that great prize does not come to Canada the team from this country has already achieved gloriously and has earned the plaudits of fellow Canadians.

BATHING BEAUTY CONTESTS.

The Examiner begs leave to extend congratulations to Rev. W. E. Young, of Dundas United Church in London, upon the effective manner in which he has stated his opposition to a proposed bathing beauty contest at Port Stanley.

Said the reverend gentleman: "To parade girls in scanty attire puts the whole performance on the level of a livestock show and the girl on the same basis as a cow."

That packs the whole case into a sentence.

These bathing girl competitions, popular across the international line, but up to the present finding little favor in Canada, are a form of exploitation in which the promoters cash in on the good looks and frank costumes of the competitors.

We can see no reason for them in this country, for while we believe the modern bathing garb has done much to increase the popularity of swimming and it is therefore to be commended rather than condemned, there is a vast difference between the wearing of such costumes on the beach or in the water and parading before a curious crowd who have paid so much a head to gaze their full at the girls on view.

Rev. Mr. Young has summarized the feeling against such competitions very nicely when he declares that the performance is "on the level of a livestock show."

We can get along nicely without such exhibitions which seek to cash in on the charms of our young womanhood for the financial benefit of some shrewd promoter.

THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

In the interest of his Empire free trade campaign, Lord Beaverbrook has just issued a most informative little book, entitled "The Resources of the British Empire," which, as he himself puts it, states outstanding facts which constitute the main outlines of Empire knowledge, such as should be known to every man and woman in the country, however slight his or her interest in politics.

The book, declares Lord Beaverbrook, would only have served its purpose if it enlarges and enriches the vision of Empire which every Briton has in less or greater degree.

"The Resources of the British Empire" contains within its covers a wealth of up-to-the-minute information in regard to the British Commonwealth of Nations, starting with Great Britain and covering all the self-governing dominions, the crown colonies and the protectorates.

It contains as well a brief history of the Empire free trade movement, a chapter on the effects of the Ottawa agreements, a study of Britain's trade agreements with foreign countries, a concise description of the colonial possessions of the United States, France and Japan, and a large amount of other interesting data.

Whether or not you are a believer in Empire free trade, this Empire text-book is a publication that should be of general interest and benefit, and will be welcomed by every Britisher who desires to know more about the far-flung Commonwealth of which his own country forms a part.

The statistics used are up-to-date and accurate, and have been secured from many official sources as well as from that well-known publication, "Whitaker's Almanac."

CANADA'S FUTURE IN THE AIR.

The human mind is extraordinarily conservative. Taking as a matter of course the most amazing progress, it seems incapable of visualising similar advance in the future, fails to plan accordingly. On Saturday Ottawa witnessed a great spectacle in the air, proof of one of the most wonderful achievements. How many of us paused in our wonderment to reflect that all of this had come within 25 years? That this tremendous triumph of science, with its revolutionary implications, had come within a heart-beat of history? More than that, and more important, how many of us stopped to think of what may be brought by 25 years more, or 50?

It is worth thinking about. Because it is true, Saturday's great spectacle notwithstanding, that in the air the British Empire has been lagging, and Canada most of all. Great Britain stands but fifth among the world's air powers, the following being the figures:

Soviet Russia	1,726	machines
France	1,280	"
Japan	1,138	"
Italy	932	"
Great Britain	500	"

Perhaps the position does Britain credit. For ten years or more Britain has sought disarmament. Fighting to salvage something from Geneva, laboring to reconcile French and German differences, hoping against hope that agreement would come, she limited her own armaments to the minimum. Said Mr. Baldwin not long ago:

"The sands are running out, and if we are faced with the duty of securing that state of parity in the air which is essential to our safety, by building up simply because others will not come down to a more reasonable level, that is a task from which the Government will not shrink, a task in whose fulfilment it will have the support of the nation at large."

A plan has been drawn up by the British Air Ministry to increase the R.A.F. by an additional 50 squadrons, but of these not more than three or four can be ready before 1936. Modern 'planes, with their great speed, cannot be manned in a day, or even a year, and it will take considerable time to provide new Air Force stations and to train the 850 officers and 5,000 aircraftmen required by the new squadrons. It is true, of course, that most of the machines possessed by all nations will be obsolete in a year or two, which may mean that from now on, with her new building program, Britain's inferiority will decrease speedily. On the other hand, airmen who have manned old machines can be trained much more quickly to man new ones, so that in the matter of flyers Britain must remain for some time at a considerable disadvantage.

What of Canada? One of the regrettable and perhaps serious consequences of the depression was that it checked almost completely this country's progress in the air. Good pilots were let go, there was a cessation of active training, a serious check to commercial flying.

The one bright spot in the picture is that the Government, as a relief undertaking, has been building 130 aerodromes and landing places across Canada from Halifax to Vancouver. These, it is understood, will be completed soon, when all that will be required will be to add lighting, radio and meteorological services, this making them among the most efficient in the world. In the meantime, consideration is being given to the operation of a three and a half day combined steamship and air mail service from London to Canada, and, what is more important, thought is being given to the air situation as it concerns this North American continent as a whole, and to future air travel to the Orient.

The Journal would like to see this whole problem of Canada's future in the air laid completely and frankly before Parliament next session. Economy is an admirable thing under certain circumstances, but there are times when economy, applied to certain things, brings little but grave loss. That, we fear greatly, will be the outcome of any failure on the part of this country to read the signs of the times and to keep abreast of air developments.—Ottawa Journal.

Mr. Justice Latchford is endeavoring to get more light and less heat in the Hydro probe. More power to him!

Not a municipality in Ontario has made a grant to the hunger marchers. That gives an indication of the general opinion in the province of this Red-inspired demonstration.

NEWS OF OUR OWN VILLAGE

A pleasant visitor in our midst lately was J. Hunter, the talking reporter of the Telegram published in Toronto, west of here. Come again, some time, Jim, say we.

Cecil Frost, from Lindsay, north west of here, give the Rotarians a talk on the early battles of the Great War when they et at Graham's Hotel, Mon., but didn't have nothing to say about the more recent political battles in which he was a doughty warrior.

Not many from here is lining up for the hunger march to Toronto, end of this month, so it don't matter much down this way whether Mayor Bue Stewart of that town takes the welcome off the mat or not.

If all the village Grits what has applied for a job under the new Govt. was to line up on the grass at Confederation Square it is estimated Walt Stocker would have a fit.

The doctors of the village has passed a resolution calling for only pasteurised milk to be sold in these parts, but your scribe understands some of the smaller vendors of the same think this is pretty raw.

Many of the war veterans from this village is planning to visit Toronto, west of here, for the re-union at the beginning of next month and it looks like as if a big time was going to be had by 1 and all. That's right, lads, you got a binge coming to you, say we.

It is currently reported the village taverns is going to start selling beer Tues., and your scribe hopes they won't be nobody killed in the rush. Remember the 4-4 lads, remind we.

A circus is billed for this town on Tues., Aug. 7, which we mention early to give the boys that want to carry water for the elephants a chance to get organized.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

RECOVERY IN GREAT BRITAIN

THE fact has been verified. The upturn has arrived. Recovery in any nation will set the whole world on the right path. Any worthwhile discovery, in whatever realm it may be, soon reaches out to the ends of the earth. The methods that bring recovery in one nation may not be adapted to another. Not the method that is important. That recovery has been won is the inspiration for other nations.

Eagerly, British economists have observed signs of recovery since the first of January, 1933. From that date the trend has been steadily upward. Unemployment has been continuously decreasing. The number of unemployed is still great enough to be a burden to the government. The taxes of the employed are heightened by the out-of-work. The bent of unemployment in the right direction has cheered the whole British Empire. Taxation that would otherwise create resentment is patiently borne. True there are a few malcontents in Britain. They are taking advantage of the situation created by the unemployment of 2,000,000. The unrest among one-twenty-fifth of the population of the British people will not seriously affect the outcome. For this part of the population the British government and the municipalities are doing their very utmost.

BECAUSE Britain is a major world market, wholesale prices ought to remain stationary. There will be fluctuations caused by a surplus or by a shrinkage of supplies. Considered as a whole, the world supplies, tend to be stationary. Wholesale prices at the beginning of 1933 ceased the downward tendency. Even before that, in 1931, when Britain went off the gold standard, prices began to point in the direction of the normal.

Britain's export statistical record prior to 1932 declined steadily for seven years. Good foreign markets for exports make for prosperity. Lean production and slow world markets for products lead to bankruptcies. Overproduction in any nation and indifferent demand on the world market, usher in depression. In 1932 British exports reached an advance. Since that year, the advance, while not large, has steadily increased. In 1924 British exports were in demand. The prices were good. Exporters were very active. Seventy per cent. of that level has been attained. And at this writing the outlook encourages the conviction that there will continue to be sure, though it may be slight, gains until the normal of good times is reached.

British wages for the last ten years will compare favorably with those of any nation. There has been some decline. World conditions have had an effect on British wages. World conditions and home have caused a decline of only five percent. during this ten year period. Wages in the United States during the same period have declined at least thirty-five per cent.

THE busiest carpenters, and stone masons, and brick layers, and plasterers, and skilled workers in the world are British. In ten years the advance has been so great that the 1924 level has been surpassed by sixty per cent. When the depression was at the lowest the percentage of unemployed builders was thirty per cent. Now it is twenty percent. The reported index of business activity of the nations is carefully studied by financiers. British business activity has reached the 1929 level. Statistics show that the 1924 level has been surpassed by ten per cent.

But there are shadows in the British economic and industrial scene. There are so many gains to record that the relation of the losses will not darken the picture overmuch. It is well to have all the facts. Or at least as many as can be gleaned. Never at any time in the history of all the nations has there been one unclouded hour. The losses may prove to be as advantageous as the gains. A Minneapolis workman lost his wife. He had small children. The youngest was a babe of a few months. He knew but little how to care for a small child. His cried so much. At times so long and so pained that he began a study of the why. The usual pin was the cause. How to remedy, was his problem, not only for his baby, but for all children. The safety pin as now in use everywhere there are children was his invention This simple devise made him a benefactor and a millionaire. Hard times are a blessing in every human experience. Hard times are made for thrift, and toughened sinew, and morals and a sensеof dependence.

Britain, of tight wee islands, has been blessed with great coal deposits. From this source comes much of her prosperity and revenue. Her coal exports have declined sixty per cent. of the normal. Thirty-three per cent. of the miners have lost their jobs. No more helpless laborer is to be found when out of a job. He knows how to do just one thing. The work below the surface is so different from that above. Lots of pathos in this. He toils to brighten and to lighten. When out of work others enjoy the fires and the light. His home is likely to be cold and cheerless.

Shipbuilding is as natural to this Empire of the Seas as fishing is to the people of Labrador. A decline in this trade is serious. Last year the slump was nearly eighteen per cent. of the 1924 level. Fifty per cent. of the skilled shipbuilders are out of employment. A gain of ten per cent. in employment has given hope of an upturn.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

DO YOU KNOW "YOUR PLACE"?

Once, in a restaurant, I heard a man speak sharply to a waiter and send him away pale of face. And the man turned to the woman at his side and said, "That waiter does not know his place."

What had that waiter done? Of what impudence had he been guilty? . . . Simply this. He had known the man when both were poor, when the man was not as powerful, as imposing, as now, and he had made the mistake of calling him by his first name. Without thinking he had called him "Jim"—easily, naturally—and thus had made the "presumptuous mistake" of not knowing his place. He had offended that man's dignity by daring to break in upon his complacence and treat him as if he were a human being.

But which of those two men did not know his place? Which had failed the more? And where IS our place on this wandering earth, among these hundreds of millions of human creatures who travel so perilously from the cradle to the grave?

It's my belief that the failure was the angry man. He is the one who had lost his place in the great book of life and may never find it again. Not that humiliated waiter who was so presumptuous as to believe that humanity still bore fruit in the friend of his youth.

It is true that each of us has a place on this earth, but it is not on the Peaks of Pride. It is down on the great highway where the mass of men are treading. Not with those who have traded their souls for something useless, but with our fellows who are friendly because they LIKE us and not because of anything we OWN.

Other men may not know their places but OUR place on the road where the humble great have gone before . . . with the Lincolns, who grieved for boys who were on the battle line . . . for St. Francis, who cried "brother" to wild wolves and gentle rabbits . . . for Tolstoy, who begged us to remember "we are all men, going home." . . . We float ahead on a slight raft and the only light living men may see is the glow of human companionship. And what room is there on that raft, under that light of human fellowship for the man who dares to say that one of his fellows "does not know his place"? The man who says another does not know his place, has not yet learned his OWN.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

AN ANCIENT JUDICIAL HORROR

On this date, in 1797, there took place at Quebec the most terrible execution in its history. A few weeks before, a stranger, who had come with good references from friends in Boston of the lodging house keeper with whom he stayed, was arrested at night by soldiers on the personal orders of the governor, Sir Robert Prescott, on charges of treason felony. He gave the name of Jacob Felt, but it was proved that he was David McLean, a former merchant of Providence, Rhode Island, who had been bankrupted by seizure of some of his ships by the British. He was arraigned on June 12th when the grand jury found a true bill against him and trial was fixed for July 7. On that date he faced a bench composed of Chief Justice William Osgoode, Hon. James Monk, chief justice of Montreal, Mr. Justice Dunn, Hons. Hugh Finlay, Francois Baby, A. J. Duchesray and John Young, the latter four members of the executive council. Evidence was given that McLean had boasted of plotting to invade Canada by land and sea, and the jury took only 20 minutes to return a verdict of guilty.

Sentence was then pronounced in these terrible words: "That you, David McLean, be taken to the place from whence you came and from whence you are to be drawn to the place of execution, where you must be hanged by the neck, but not till you are dead, for you must be cut down alive and your bowels taken out and burnt before your face; then your head must be severed from your body, which must be divided into four parts and your head and quarters be at the king's disposal, and the Lord have mercy on your soul."

McLean was taken from the jail, placed upon a hurdle, or drag, and drawn to the gallows near the citadel, a spot which has ever since been known as Gallows Hill. Bishop Mountain and Rev. Mr. Spark, Presbyterian, were at his side and prayed with him. The soldiers formed a hollow square about the scaffold and the execution began. The body hung for 25 minutes and was cut down after Dr. Dewar pronounced the man dead. A platform with a raised block upon it was brought and a fire kindled to carry out the rest of the sentence, but all that was dispensed with, save that the executioner cut off the head, held it to public view as "the head of a traitor."

The Quebec Gazette said: "The whole of the execution took about two hours and the conduct of the unfortunate sufferer was in every respect composed and becoming of his station". The law had been avenged! But never in Canada was such a horror to be repeated. Thank God!

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAINS.

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 88c to 90c; oats, 35c to 38c; barley, 45c to 46c; corn, 74c to 77c; rye, 48c to 50c; buckwheat, 58c to 60c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Potatoes were again lower in price on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday. Other prices were unchanged from their former levels.

The butter market was steady, fresh No. 1 being 18¾c a pound in carlots or less. Small lots to the retail trade brought 19c to 20c a pound for solids and 20c to 21c for prints. Receipts were 2,996 boxes.

Cheese prices were steady, Ontario colored being quoted at 10c to 10¼c a pound and Quebec selling for 9½c to 9¾c a pound. Arrivals were 5,500 boxes.

On the egg market, Thursday's price levels were maintained. Graded shipments in carlots or less sold for 20c to 21c a dozen for A-large, 19½c to 20c for A-medium, 19c for B, and 18½c to 19c for C. Receipts totalled 681 cases.

New potatoes declined sharply in price as the result of heavy arrivals. New Quebecs brought 50c per 80-pound bag for No. 1 grade, a drop of 20c to 25c. The market for old potatoes is rapidly diminishing, N.B. Mountains being the main offering, and being quoted at 40c to 50c per 80-pound bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

An abrupt downward plunge of wheat prices yesterday took the market 4¾c under high points touched earlier, and accompanied rains and cooler temperatures northwest.

Adding to the bearish effect of moisture relief and of some abatement of heat both north and south of the Canadian border, were reports that a large quantity of Argentine wheat had been sold to Europe, and was being hedged at Winnipeg. Yesterday's break in wheat, the first of any consequence since a pronounced upward movement of prices got under way about two weeks ago, was regarded by many traders as being largely due to profit-taking.

Wheat closed nervous at a moderate rally from the day's bottom level, but 1⅝c to 2⅛c below Thursday's finish, corn unchanged to ⅝c off, and provisions unchanged to 5c decline.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, July 21. — The profit-taker took a hand in yesterday's session of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, giving wheat futures their most severe check in more than a week of rising prices. At the close, values were 1⅜c to 1⅝c lower, July at 84⅝c, October 85⅜c to 86c, and December at 87¼c to 87½c.

Only a late rally prevented futures from closing with a still greater loss, as former purchasers, taking heed of showers in the West and a forecast of more, turned sellers and unloaded their holdings. Half an hour before the close values were 2½ cents lower, but made a moderate recovery in the late dealings.

Export sales of 1,250,000 bushels of wheat failed to stem the decline. Destined for August shipment, 1,000,000 bushels were sold from the stock on hand at Churchill, Man., and the remainder of the day's export business was made up of scattered loads for both Atlantic and Pacific clearance. The Saskatchewan wheat pool was believed to have sold the Churchill wheat.

Liverpool also eased yesterday, closing ¼d to ⅝d lower. Argentine wheat shipments for the week totalled 4,500,000 bushels, a 1,000,000-bushel increase over last week's clearances. Australia's exports were slightly under last week's, totalling 2,000,000 bushels.

COMMON DECENCY.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir:

When a party politician can go to a member and say "I worked for you and did a lot to put you in and keep the other fellow out" he should have the decency to say when the other fellow gets in "I got this job far beating you and now I'l lget out." That's fair.

READER.

MR. HEPBURN ON PROHIBITION

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—The following is a statement by Premier Hepburn:

"Referendum is a difficult question. Take Essex for example. This county, because of its proximity to the United States, is wet. Then we have Huron County, which is dry. No one has any quarrel with Huron for being dry, but I do not believe the people of Huron County should be allowed to impose their will on the people of Essex County. I am therefore opposed to a general referendum. I would rather see the principle of local option in operation."

Now, Sir, to superficial thinkers this may sound fair and reasonable, but will it stand the test of sound logic?

Let us carry it out to its logical conclusion.

If it is wrong for the people of Huron to impose their will on the people of Essex, then it must be wrong for some of the people of, say Peterborough County, to impose their will on the rest of the people of Peterborough County, and, if so, what becomes of local option?

The position is clearly untenable.

Of course the majority must rule, and the fairest way is to take the whole province, or the whole Dominion, as a unit, rather than small areas. At present a vast majority in the province is dry, but the will of the minority is being imposed on the majority.—Yours very truly,

J. C. SMITH.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

DRUMHELLER ALBERTA.

This newest of Canada's young cities owes its being to the proximity of coal, which has caused it to forge ahead very rapidly. Incorporated as a village 21 years ago, it became a town in 1916, and a city in 1930.

It was formerly a ranch owned by Thomas P. Greentree. When the Canadian Northern, now the Canadian National, was being projected through the west, Greentree's homestead was purchased as a townsite by Samuel Drumheller, of the C.N.R. townsite department. The citizens of the little community adopted Drumheller's name for their official name.

PUBLIC OPINION WINS.

History has repeated itself in San Francisco where public opinion has crushed the general strike and the strike committee has voted to return to work.

On paper plans for a general tie-up by means of a simultaneous strike in all lines of business and industry seem to be invincible, but always when the actual test comes and the rights of others are being interfered with by mass action the pressure of an aroused public opinion is quick to assert itself and the strike collapses.

It was so in Great Britain eight years ago; it is so in San Francisco to-day.

The trouble on the Pacific Coast has already cost a terrific price.

The original strike, involving the long shoremen, has itself entailed tremendous losses, for 250 ships have been tied up, the shippers have lost $50,000,000, cargoes amounting to $75,000,000 have been held, and the strikers have dropped $3,500,000 in wages.

When to these losses are added the cost of a general strike, the seriousness of the situation should be apparent to everybody; it is a battle in which everybody loses, and for that reason the decision to end the general strike is a triumph for common sense and clear thinking.

ANOTHER CANADIAN TRIUMPH.

It was Empire Day in old England yesterday with the Empire's sons from the self-governing dominions featured in the sporting headlines.

Australia was doubly prominent, for her renowned cricketers were engaged in the fourth test match for the mythical "Ashes," and at the same time her tennis stars, Jack Crawford and Vivian McGrath, were in action in the semi-final round of the Davis Cup competition with the United States team as their opponents.

Meanwhile at historic Bisley Camp, Canada's riflemen, stamping themselves as one of the strongest teams that has ever represented the Dominion at this gathering of the Empire's greatest marksmen, were winning the Kolapore competition, the second major team trophy shot for at Bisley every year.

To ad dthe Kolapore Trophy to the McKinnon Cup won Thursday by the Canadians means that the chief team honors of the annual shoot have been monopolized by the keen-eyed, iron-nerved riflemen from the Dominion, a wonderful feat on the part of the Canadian team.

The King's Prize, the chief individual competition, would be a fitting trophy to add to those honors already won by the Maple Leaf marksmen, but even if that great prize does not come to Canada the team from this country has already achieved gloriously and has earned the plaudits of fellow Canadians.

BATHING BEAUTY CONTESTS.

The Examiner begs leave to extend congratulations to Rev. W. E. Young, of Dundas United Church in London, upon the effective manner in which he has stated his opposition to a proposed bathing beauty contest at Port Stanley.

Said the reverend gentleman: "To parade girls in scanty attire puts the whole performance on the level of a livestock show and the girl on the same basis as a cow."

That packs the whole case into a sentence.

These bathing girl competitions, popular across the international line, but up to the present finding little favor in Canada, are a form of exploitation in which the promoters cash in on the good looks and frank costumes of the competitors.

We can see no reason for them in this country, for while we believe the modern bathing garb has done much to increase the popularity of swimming and it is therefore to be commended rather than condemned, there is a vast difference between the wearing of such costumes on the beach or in the water and parading before a curious crowd who have paid so much a head to gaze their full at the girls on view.

Rev. Mr. Young has summarized the feeling against such competitions very nicely when he declares that the performance is "on the level of a livestock show."

We can get along nicely without such exhibitions which seek to cash in on the charms of our young womanhood for the financial benefit of some shrewd promoter.

THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

In the interest of his Empire free trade campaign, Lord Beaverbrook has just issued a most informative little book, entitled "The Resources of the British Empire," which, as he himself puts it, states outstanding facts which constitute the main outlines of Empire knowledge, such as should be known to every man and woman in the country, however slight his or her interest in politics.

The book, declares Lord Beaverbrook, would only have served its purpose if it enlarges and enriches the vision of Empire which every Briton has in less or greater degree.

"The Resources of the British Empire" contains within its covers a wealth of up-to-the-minute information in regard to the British Commonwealth of Nations, starting with Great Britain and covering all the self-governing dominions, the crown colonies and the protectorates.

It contains as well a brief history of the Empire free trade movement, a chapter on the effects of the Ottawa agreements, a study of Britain's trade agreements with foreign countries, a concise description of the colonial possessions of the United States, France and Japan, and a large amount of other interesting data.

Whether or not you are a believer in Empire free trade, this Empire text-book is a publication that should be of general interest and benefit, and will be welcomed by every Britisher who desires to know more about the far-flung Commonwealth of which his own country forms a part.

The statistics used are up-to-date and accurate, and have been secured from many official sources as well as from that well-known publication, "Whitaker's Almanac."

CANADA'S FUTURE IN THE AIR.

The human mind is extraordinarily conservative. Taking as a matter of course the most amazing progress, it seems incapable of visualizing similar advance in the future, fails to plan accordingly. On Saturday Ottawa witnessed a great spectacle in the air, proof of one of the most wonderful achievements. How many of us paused in our wonderment to reflect that all of this had come within 25 years? That this tremendous triumph of science, with its revolutionary implications, had come within a heart-beat of history? More than that, and more important, how many of us stopped to think of what may be brought by 25 years more, or 50?

It is worth thinking about. Because it is true, Saturday's great spectacle notwithstanding, that in the air the British Empire has been lagging, and Canada most of all. Great Britain stands but fifth among the world's air powers, the following being the figures:

Soviet Russia	1,726	machines
France	1,280	"
Japan	1,138	"
Italy	892	"
Great Britain	500	"

Perhaps the position does Britain credit. For ten years or more Britain has sought disarmament. Fighting to salvage something from Geneva, laboring to reconcile French and German differences, hoping against hope that agreement would come, she limited her own armaments to the minimum. Said Mr. Baldwin not long ago:

"The sands are running out, and if we are faced with the duty of securing that state of parity in the air which is essential to our safety, by building up simply because others will not come down to a more reasonable level, that is a task from which the Government will not shrink, a task in whose fulfilment it will have the support of the nation at large."

A plan has been drawn up by the British Air Ministry to increase the R.A.F. by an additional 50 squadrons, but of these not more than three or four can be ready before 1936. Modern 'planes, with their great speed, cannot be manned in a day, or even a year, and it will take considerable time to provide new Air Force stations and to train the 880 officers and 5,000 aircraftmen required by the new squadrons. It is true, of course, that most of the machines possessed by all nations will be obsolete in a year or two, which may mean that from now on, with her new building program, Britain's inferiority will decrease speedily. On the other hand, airmen who have manned old machines can be trained much more quickly to man new ones, so that in the matter of flyers Britain must remain for some time at a considerable disadvantage.

What of Canada? One of the regrettable and perhaps serious consequences of the depression was that it checked almost completely this country's progress in the air. Good pilots were let go, there was a cessation of active training, a serious check to commercial flying.

The one bright spot in the picture is that the Government, as a relief undertaking, has been building 130 aerodromes and landing places across Canada from Halifax to Vancouver. These, it is understood, will be completed soon, when all that will be required will be to add lighting, radio and meteorological services, this making them among the most efficient in the world. In the meantime, consideration is being given to the operation of a three and a half day combined steamship and air mail service from London to Canada, and, what is more important, thought is being given to the air situation as it concerns this North American continent as a whole, and to future air travel to the Orient.

The Journal would like to see this whole problem of Canada's future in the air laid completely and frankly before Parliament next session. Economy is an admirable thing under certain circumstances, but there are times when economy, applied to certain things, brings little but grave loss. That, we fear greatly, will be the outcome of any failure on the part of this country to read the signs of the times and to keep abreast of air developments.—Ottawa Journal.

Premier Hepburn's victory celebration showed the world that the people of his own district have every faith in the native son who made good.

Mr. Justice Latchford is endeavoring to get more light and less heat in the Hydro probe. More power to him!

Not a municipality in Ontario has made a grant to the hunger marchers. That gives an indication of the general opinion in the province of this Red-inspired demonstration.

As the Mail and Empire points out, Kaye Don may be a famous racer to the world at large, but to a British court he is merely a reckless driver.

There are those who think the best way to cut down governmental overhead in Ontario would be to abolish the Legislature itself, but so far the new administration has not proposed anything as radical as that course.

NEWS OF OUR OWN VILLAGE

A pleasant visitor in our midst lately was J. Hunter, the talking reporter of the Telegram published in Toronto, west of here. Come again, some time, Jim, say we.

Cecil Frost, from Lindsay, north west of here, give the Rotarians a talk on the early battles of the Great War when they et at Graham's Hotel, Mon., but didn't have nothing to say about the more recent political battles in which he was a doughty warrior.

Not many from here is lining up for the hunger march to Toronto, end of this month, so it don't matter much down this way whether Mayor Bud Stewart of that town takes the welcome off the mat or not.

If all the village Grits what has applied for a job under the new Govt. was to line up on the grass at Confederation Square it is estimated Walt Stocker would have a fit.

The doctors of the village has passed a resolution calling for only pasteurized milk to be sold in these parts, but your scribe understands some of the smaller vendors of the same think this is pretty raw.

Many of the war veterans from this village is planning to visit Toronto, west of here, for the re-union at the beginning of next month and it looks like as if a big time was going to be had by 1 and all. That's right, lads, you got a binge coming to you, say we.

It is currently reported the village taverns is going to start selling beer Tues., and your scribe hopes they won't be nobody killed in the rush. Remember the 4.4. lads, remind we.

A circus is billed for this town on Tues., Aug. 7, which we mention early to give the boys that want to carry water for the elephants a chance to get organized.

RECOVERY IN GREAT BRITAIN

THE fact has been verified. The upturn has arrived. Recovery in any nation will set the whole world on the right path. Any worthwhile discovery, in whatever realm it may be, soon reaches out to the ends of the earth. The methods that bring recovery in one nation may not be adapted to another. Not the method that is important. That recovery has been won is the inspiration for other nations.

Eagerly, British economists have observed signs of recovery since the first of January, 1933. From that date the trend has been steadily upward. Unemployment has been continuously decreasing. The number of unemployed is still great enough to be a burden to the government. The taxes of the employed are heightened by the out-of-work. The bent of unemployment in the right direction has cheered the whole British Empire. Taxation that would otherwise create resentment is patiently borne. True there are a few malcontents in Britain. They are taking advantage of the situation created by the unemployment of 2,000,000. The unrest among one-twenty-fifth of the population of the British people will not seriously affect the outcome. For this part of the population the British government and the municipalities are doing their very utmost.

BECAUSE Britain is a major world market, wholesale prices ought to remain stationary. There will be fluctuations caused by a surplus or by a shrinkage of supplies. Considered as a whole, the world supplies, tend to be stationary. Wholesale prices at the beginning of 1933 ceased the downward tendency. Even before that, in 1931, when Britain went off the gold standard, prices began to point in the direction of the normal.

Britain's export statistical record prior to 1932 declined steadily for seven years. Good foreign markets for exports make for prosperity. Lean production and slow world markets for products lead to bankruptcies. Overproduction in any nation and indifferent demand on the world market, usher in depression. In 1932 British exports reached an advance. Since that year, the advance, while not large, has steadily increased. In 1924 British exports were in demand. The prices were good. Exporters were very active. Seventy per cent. of that level has been attained. And at this writing the outlook encourages the conviction that there will continue to be sure, though it may be slight, gains until the normal of good times is reached.

British wages for the last ten years will compare favorably with those of any nation. There has been some decline. World conditions have had an effect on British wages. World conditions and home have caused a decline of only five percent. during this ten year period. Wages in the United States during the same period have declined at least thirty-five per cent.

THE busiest carpenters, and stone masons, and brick layers, and plasterers, and skilled workers in the world are British. In ten years the advance has been so great that the 1924 level has been surpassed by sixty per cent. When the depression was at the lowest the percentage of unemployed builders was thirty per cent. Now it is twenty percent. The reported index of business activity of the nations is carefully studied by financiers. British business activity has reached the 1929 level. Statistics show that the 1924 level has been surpassed by ten per cent.

But there are shadows in the British economic and industrial scene. There are so many gains to record that the relation of the losses will not darken the picture overmuch. It is well to have all the facts. Or at least as many as can be gleaned. Never at any time in the history of all the nations has there been one unclouded hour. The losses may prove to be as advantageous as the gains. A Minneapolis workman lost his wife. He had small children. The youngest was a babe of a few months. He knew but little how to care for a small child. His cried so much. At times so long and so pained that he began a study of the why. The usual pin was the cause. How to remedy, was his problem, not only for his baby, but for all children. The safety pin as now in use everywhere there are children was his invention This simple devise made him a benefactor and a millionaire. Hard times are a blessing in every human experience. Hard times are made for thrift, and toughened sinew, and morals and a senseof dependence.

Britain, of tight wee islands, has been blessed with great coal deposits. From this source comes much of her prosperity and revenue. Her coal exports have declined sixty per cent. of the normal. Thirty-three per cent. of the miners have lost their jobs. No more helpless laborer is to be found when out of a job. He knows how to do just one thing. The work below the surface is so different from that above. Lots of pathos in this. He toils to brighten and to lighten. When out of work others enjoy the fires and the light. His home is likely to be cold and cheerless.

Shipbuilding is as natural to this Empire of the Seas as fishing is to the people of Labrador. A decline in this trade is serious. Last year the slump was nearly eighteen per cent. of the 1924 level. Fifty per cent. of the skilled shipbuilders are out of employment. A gain of ten per cent. in employment has given hope of an upturn.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

DO YOU KNOW "YOUR PLACE"?

Once, in a restaurant, I heard a man speak sharply to a waiter and send him away pale of face. And the man turned to the woman at his side and said, "That waiter does not know his place."

What had that waiter done? Of what impudence had he been guilty? . . . Simply this. He had known the man when both were poor, when the man was not as powerful, as imposing, as now, and he had made the mistake of calling him by his first name. Without thinking he had called him "Jim"—easily, naturally—and thus had made the "presumptuous mistake" of not knowing his place. He had offended that man's dignity by daring to break in upon his complacence and treat him as if he were a human being.

But which of those two men did not know his place? Which had failed the more? And where IS our place on this wandering earth, among these hundreds of millions of human creatures who travel so perilously from the cradle to the grave?

It's my belief that the failure was the angry man. He is the one who had lost his place in the great book of life and may never find it again. Not that humiliated waiter who was so presumptuous as to believe that humanity still bore fruit in the friend of his youth.

It is true that each of us has a place on this earth, but it is not on the Peaks of Pride. It is down on the great highway where the mass of men are treading. Not with those who have traded their souls for something useless, but with our fellows who are friendly because they LIKE us and not because of anything we OWN.

Other men may not know their places but OUR place on the road where the humble great have gone before . . . with the Lincolns, who grieved for boys who were on the battle line . . . for St. Francis, who cried "brother" to wild wolves and gentle rabbits . . . for Tolstoy, who begged us to remember "we are all men, going home." . . . We float ahead on a slight raft and the only light living men may see is the glow of human companionship. And what room is there on that raft, under that light of human fellowship for the man who dares to say that one of his fellows "does not know his place"? The man who says another does not know his place, has not yet learned his OWN.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

AN ANCIENT JUDICIAL HORROR

On this date, in 1797, there took place at Quebec the most terrible execution in its history. A few weeks before, a stranger, who had come with good references from friends in Boston of the lodging house keeper with whom he stayed, was arrested at night by soldiers on the personal orders of the governor, Sir Robert Prescott, on charges of treason felony. He gave the name of Jacob Felt, but it was proved that he was David McLean, a former merchant of Providence, Rhode Island, who had been bankrupted by seizure of some of his ships by the British. He was arraigned on June 12th when the grand jury found a true bill against him and trial was fixed for July 7. On that date he faced a bench composed of Chief Justice William Osgoode, Hon. James Monk, chief justice of Montreal, Mr. Justice Dunn, Hons. Hugh Finlay, Francois Baby, A. J. Duchesray and John Young, the latter four members of the executive council. Evidence was given that McLean had boasted of plotting to invade Canada by land and sea, and the jury took only 20 minutes to return a verdict of guilty.

Sentence was then pronounced in these terrible words: "That you, David McLean, be taken to the place from whence you came and from whence you are to be drawn to the place of execution, where you must be hanged by the neck, but not till you are dead, for you must be cut down alive and your bowels taken out and burnt before your face; then your head must be severed from your body, which must be divided into four parts and your head and quarters be at the king's disposal, and the Lord have mercy on your soul."

McLean was taken from the jail, placed upon a hurdle, or drag, and drawn to the gallows near the citadel, a spot which has ever since been known as Gallows Hill. Bishop Mountain and Rev. Mr. Spark, Presbyterian, were at his side and prayed with him. The soldiers formed a hollow square about the scaffold and the execution began. The body hung for 25 minutes and was cut down after Dr. Dewar pronounced the man dead. A platform with a raised block upon it was brought and a fire kindled to carry out the rest of the sentence, but all that was dispensed with, save that the executioner cut off the head, held it to public view as "the head of a traitor."

The Quebec Gazette said: "The whole of the execution took about two hours and the conduct of the unfortunate sufferer was in every respect composed and becoming of his station". The law had been avenged! But never in Canada was such a horror to be repeated. Thank God!

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAINS.

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 88c to 90c; oats, 35c to 38c; barley, 45c to 46c; corn, 74c to 77c; rye, 48c to 50c; buckwheat, 58c to 60c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Potatoes were again lower in price on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday. Other prices were unchanged from their former levels.

The butter market was steady, fresh No. 1 being 18¾c a pound in carlots or less. Small lots to the retail trade brought 19c to 20c a pound for solids and 20c to 21c for prints. Receipts were 2,996 boxes.

Cheese prices were steady, Ontario colored being quoted at 10c to 10¼c a pound and Quebec selling for 9¼c to 9¾c a pound. Arrivals were 5,500 boxes.

On the egg market, Thursday's price levels were maintained. Graded shipments in carlots or less sold for 20c to 21c a dozen for A-large, 19½c to 20c for A-medium, 19c for B, and 18½c to 19c for C. Receipts totalled 681 cases.

New potatoes declined sharply in price as the result of heavy arrivals. New Quebecs brought 50c per 80-pound bag for No. 1 grade, a drop of 20c to 25c. The market for old potatoes is rapidly diminishing, N.B. Mountains being the main offering, and being quoted at 40c to 50c per 80-pound bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

An abrupt downward plunge of wheat prices yesterday took the market 4¾c under high points touched earlier, and accompanied rains and cooler temperatures northwest.

Adding to the bearish effect of moisture relief and of some abatement of heat both north and south of the Canadian border, were reports that a large quantity of Argentine wheat had been sold to Europe, and was being hedged at Winnipeg. Yesterday's break in wheat, the first of any consequence since a pronounced upward movement of prices got under way about two weeks ago, was regarded by many traders as being largely due to profit-taking.

Wheat closed nervous at a moderate rally from the day's bottom level, but 1⅝c to 2¼c below Thursday's finish, corn unchanged to ⅝c off, and provisions unchanged to 5c decline.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.
